Washington Adopts Policy Of Discreet Silence on Fall of John Diefenbaker

WASHINGTON (AP)—Official Washington has adopted a policy of discreet silence on the fall of John Diefenbaker as prime minister of Canada. There were no cries of approval but neither were there any loud laments.

The fact is that relations between Canada and the United States have been tense much of the time since Diefenbaker became prime minister. U.S. leaders obviously were not upset by his political misfortune.

What does seem to have disturbed President Kennedy and State Secretary Rusk is that the United States played such a role in bringing about the collapse of Diefenbaker's Conservative regime on a non-confidence vote in Parliament last Tuesday night.

Government authorities here insist the U.S. action was not designed as a political bombshell—at least that much of a bombshell.

Kennedy and Rusk, according to administration sources, were not directly involved in the issuance a week ago of the state department statement which precipitated the crisis. Kennedy is said to have been angry at Diefenbaker for not realizing the political dynamite involved.

In a time of turmoil in a Washington Hall from the United States normally would keep its mouth shut. The present situation is considered by some to be especially delicate.

Obviously U.S. leaders would like particularly like to see restoration of the Diefenbaker defence policies by a new government. But the charges of "intrusion" Diefenbaker has already made against Washington are nothing to the protests that would be made if Canadians thought Kennedy was trying to influence the upcoming April 8 election.

West German Detectives Are Called In

BONN (Reuters) — West German detectives have been called into Parliament buildings to investigate the disappearance of confidential documents, parliamentary sources said Wednesday.

The papers include court documents sent from Nuernberg to a parliamentary committee which met last year to consider whether then Defence Minister Franz-Josef Strauss had acted improperly in assisting a project to build houses for the United States Army.

The commission's majority report cleared Strauss.

Seamen Fined For Picketing

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Two members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.), Earl MacDonald, 43, of Vancouver and Howard Harvey Hampton Lawrence McKinnon, 40, of the Lakehead, were fined $100 each Wednesday for conviction of taking part in illegal picketing May 3 against Upper Lakes Shipping company vessels.

Two other men, Roland Mesh, 29, and George Colley, 21, were remanded on the same charge until Sept. 4. Bail was set at $1,000 each.

The four charged with picketing the vessels at two Lakehead grain elevators after a court injunction had been issued to stop picketing.

Wave of Anti-Americanism May Be Seen in Campaign

OTTAWA (CP)—There is deep uneasiness in diplomatic circles here that anti-Americanism may be whipped up and exploited as an issue in the coming election campaign.

Highly responsible sources say this could do nothing but harm to the essential interests not only of Canada but of the United States and the Western alliance as well.

Some of the more optimistic profess to believe that such an emotional issue will not be allowed a place in the over-all campaign strategy of the four major parties.

Nevertheless a haunting fear persists that even if this hope is realized the issue will be injected into the campaign in subtle and devious ways, perhaps primarily at the local level, and thus become a potent undercurrent.

The fact that the danger exists at all, in such an acute form, is directly attributed to the U.S. state department.

RESENTMENT LINGERS

There still is strong resentment in official quarters over the state department release last one week ago Wednesday night criticizing the Canadian position on nuclear defence and directly contradicting statements of Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The declaration was branded by Mr. Diefenbaker as an unwarranted intrusion into Canadian affairs, and on that point the other party leaders in an otherwise divided House of Commons were as one with him.

If anything, it appears the public apology made by Secretary of State Rusk last Friday only made matters worse. Mr. Rusk told a press conference that he regretted the tone of the original statement but stuck by its contents.

The expression of regret for the tone of the statement is being conveyed to the Canadian government, according to Mr. Rusk.

As it turned out, this was done simply by the state department providing the Canadian embassy in Washington with a transcript of the secretary's press conference statement; and the U.S. embassy here sending a copy of the same to the external affairs department.

STARTING ON STEAKS?

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Stefania Sabatini, 23 days old, already has two lower teeth. Her doctor said today five upper teeth also appear about ready to break through the gums.

Says Indians Trust RCMP, Not Society

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Rev. Dalton C. Blackmore, minister of a United Church in suburban Kirkland Lake, said Tuesday that Canadian Indians have learned to trust the RCMP but not the remainder of society.

In an address to the Rotary Club, he criticized treatment of Indians by whites.

Mr. Blackmore said he lived for two years on a reservation 17 miles southwest of London.

"Many people don't know they are there, yet their population exceeds 2,500."

Mr. Blackmore said Indians have high respect for RCMP officers and this is reciprocated.

Prejudice against the Indian is first learned at home, he said.

"Encourage your family to stop using such derogatory terms as 'drunk as an Indian,' Indian giver, and lazy as an Indian.'"

British Deny French Report

LONDON (AP) — An authorized British source has challenged the French version of Prime Minister Macmillan's fateful December talks with President de Gaulle and denied outright that Macmillan ever offered a combined Anglo-French nuclear force.

French legislators have quoted de Gaulle as saying Macmillan made this proposition during their talks at Rambouillet.

Instead, according to the French version, Macmillan surprised de Gaulle by arranging to buy Polaris missiles from the United States.

As a result, the French say, de Gaulle changed the entire tone of his Jan. 14 press conference which barred Britain from entering the European Common Market.

The foreign office declined a formal comment on the French version of Macmillan's supposed offer. An authorized source said privately, however: "Mr. Macmillan did not say this."

Editor Says Strike Issue Is 'Free Press'

CLEVELAND (AP) — Editor Louis Seltzer of the Cleveland Press and News said Wednesday the issue in the 69-day newspaper strike here is "a free press," and a Guild leader with whom he debated called the major issue "free riders."

Seltzer, 65, recently put 35 years as editor of the evening Scripps-Howard newspaper, debated with Ward Wical, 33, a former school teacher who was president of the Cleveland Newspaper Guild and a copyreader at The Press and News when the strike began Nov. 28.

The debate was carried by all Cleveland radio stations and was telecast later on the city's three TV stations.

Seltzer made two main points:

1. That the Guild demand for union security contract covering The Press and News commercial department — a major obstacle in negotiations—was a "device of extortion by which bacon until the whole thing is taken" and every editorial writer would be "forced into a union in order to work at that profession." He said this would undermine a free press.

2. That the current strike was forced on the Guild membership here by its leadership and continued against the wishes of what he said was a majority sentiment among editorial employees of his newspaper and the morning Plain Dealer to return to work.

CLAIMS PROMISES

Wical said that in 1956, when a strike occurred, the Guild "accepted promises from management the problem of nonunion employees would be eliminated . . . but the problem grew instead."

Wical defined this problem as "anti-union supervisory personnel and harassment of union people that made the Guild's position untenable." He said there were "straw bosses who openly and continually expressed their contempt for the Guild and all who joined" and "free riders who accepted all the benefits while smiling over the fact that they pay nothing for them."

Seltzer repeated his pledge that he "will not edit a newspaper where an editorial department is under compulsive unionism."

Wical answered in his rebuttal that freedom of the press is not involved in this dispute—"and under no circumstances" "deals with conditions of work—not thoughts."

Parties Search For Strategy, Money, Platforms

Politicians Head Home To Constituencies

OTTAWA (CP)—All four parties started rummaging through their campaign closets Thursday, searching for stategy and money and platforms.

Party organizers met party leaders. Lights burned late in the Parliament buildings as bull sessions developed before the politicians headed home to their constituencies.

The planning will continue in the weeks ahead and it may be late February before chosen routes to the April 8 election become known.

This much seems clear so far: The campaign may be shorter, at least at the local level. Though the time between dissolution and election is just as long this year as last, few nominations have been made. That contrasts with 1962 when an election was a foregone conclusion for weeks and even months and slates were practically filled.

GOSSIP ABOUT THE SAME

But it likely will be no less flamboyant. Although the 1962 campaign strained party treasuries, and while there have been only eight months to recoup as against the normal four years between elections, indications are that spending will be quite as heavy. The Liberal party, for one, has said its costs will be about the same.

Thursday there were these developments:

Conservative MPs and senior party organizers met behind closed doors with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and many of the cabinet ministers. A cabinet meeting was scheduled today.

Mr. Diefenbaker is due to address the Canadian and Empire Clubs in Toronto Monday night.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson worked on his speech in Ottawa on a major speech to be delivered to the party's national council, meeting here Monday. He also speaks Saturday to the Canadian University Liberal Federation. During the day he also conferred with party officials.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, spent the day in seclusion with the NDP national executive. A party caucus will be held today. Mr. Douglas is working on speaking engagements and tentative plans call for Toronto addresses Feb. 13 and 15.

Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, had a three-hour meeting with Ontario and Que-

Harold Wilson Likely New Labor Leader

LONDON (CP)—Harold Wilson, the British Labor party's spokesman on foreign affairs, now seems likely to become the new socialist leader in Britain.

In the first ballot for a new leader Thursday night, Wilson needed only eight votes to win a clear majority over his two opponents.

A second ballot, to be declared next Thursday, will decide the issue between Wilson and his runner-up, Acting Party Leader George Brown.

Out of the 249 members of the parliamentary Labor party eligible to vote, 115 supported Wilson, 88 voted for Brown and 43 backed Labor's shadow chancellor, James Callaghan. Five members abstained.

With Callaghan now out of the running, Brown will need nearly all the Callaghan votes to defeat Wilson. British newspapers give him little chance.

"Wilson for No. 10?" asks the left-wing Daily Mirror in a similar headline.

Wilson, 46, a grammar school scholar who went to Oxford University, was once the "Keynesian boy" of British politics. He had ministerial experience both during the wartime Churchill coalition government and in the Labor government that succeeded it.

Brown, 48, a truck driver's son, worked his way up through trade union posts to become minister of works in 1951. Since 1959, he has been regarded as the Labor party's chief spokesman on defence.

Beautiful Sydney Divorcee Talk Of Aussies for Unmasking Spy

Having arranged a meeting with Skripov, she poured out to him a fictitious story of a broken romance and blamed the Australian government for her sweetheart's death. She said that as a result she hated Australia so much she was willing to help Russia.

EIGHT CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE IN TORONTO

Entire Family Is Wiped Out

TORONTO (CP) — An early-morning fire swept through a row of two-storey frame houses in Toronto's west end today and took the lives of eight children, the entire family of Mr. and Mrs. Roy French.

Mr. French, 36, was forced back by flames and smoke as he vainly sought to rescue the children from their second-storey bedrooms. He had been asleep on the ground floor.

Mrs. Effie French, 32, was at work at Toronto's central post office when the fire broke out around 1 a.m.

Fire Chief Coakwell said the blaze started in the kitchen lining room of the home and spread to two adjoining dwellings. The French house and one of the adjoining dwellings, belonging to Elmer J. Hachey, were gutted. The other received minor damage.

The children were identified as Roy, Jr., Jeannie, 17, Albert, 15, Eileen, 14, Allison, 12, John, 12, Linda, 9, Sharron, 7, and Billy, 4.

'WORST I'VE SEEN'

A fire department captain said "this is the worst I've ever seen."

When Mrs. French arrived, the scene was a maze of fire trucks, hoses and surrounded firemen. Her house was in flames.

Helen Hodge, 14, a neighbor, said "Mrs. French came up and started yelling 'Annie, Annie.' She started screaming and then she collapsed."

She was taken to hospital as was her husband who suffered a three-inch gash on his leg. Both were suffering from shock. Hospital officials said Mrs. French is a beer delivery truck driver.

A dozen pieces of fire equipment fought the blaze in zero temperatures. The Miller Street house was in a row of 10 two-storey structures, separated by

Tariff Board Gives Ruling On Gas Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision which could have an important bearing on a future market for Canadian natural gas was issued Thursday by the tariff board.

In a 2 to 1 judgment, the board ruled that the 11 per cent federal sales tax applies to natural gas used in gas turbines for producing electricity.

Two Edmonton companies, Canadian Utilities Limited and Western Chemicals Limited, and the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority had sought a ruling that gas used for this purpose was exempt under the terms of the Excise Tax Act.

In the majority decision, board chairman Louis Audette and Donald Eldon ruled that the gas turbine equipment in question was an internal combustion engine.

The law provides a sales tax exemption for fuel used for lighting or heating or when consumed in the production of goods—which includes electricity—but stipulates that this exemption does not apply to fuel used in internal combustion engines.

In a dissenting opinion, board member Alex Elliott said it is clear that the term internal combustion engine, as commonly defined in dictionaries and used in practice, "refers to an engine in which the combustion occurs in the cylinder." It is clear from the evidence that in the gas turbine in question, this did not happen.

Kennedy Warns Russia Against Setting up Any Offensive Arms in Cuba

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy says he believes Russia wants to seize power without the risk of war. But he warned that if new Soviet nuclear missiles are introduced into Cuba, the United States will know it and the world will be faced with history's greatest crisis.

The risks in such a situation would be so alarming, Kennedy told his press conference Thursday, that he believes "the Soviet Union will proceed with caution and care."

The president said the same goes for the United States, which he said must not be stampeded into rash action on the basis of rumor and hearsay concerning Soviet strength in Cuba.

Through U.S. newspapers have for days featured stories on the Canada - U.S. nuclear controversy, the press conference dealt mainly with the Cuban and European issues. Veteran observers said it was fantastic that the Canadian issue was not raised.

Cuba was the centrepiece of discussion, probably because the administration had put on a big television show the previous night to counter Republican charges that offensive weapons still exist in Cuba.

The Canadian issue came up only in a peripheral way. Aside from a reference to nuclear weapons control, Kennedy also expressed the "highest confidence" in State Secretary Dean Rusk. The secretary had been criticized by Prime Minister Diefenbaker for having allowed the state department to make an unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs by issuing a public statement criticizing Canadian nuclear policy.

Kennedy's Cuban remarks, delivered with obvious feeling, represented a blast aimed at two targets:

1. At the Kremlin leaders who continue to keep a formidable supply of short-range arms in Cuba.

2. At administration critics, in and out of Congress, who suggest that U.S. Intelligence may

West Germany's 'Senate' Wants Britain in Market

BONN (CP-AP)—The upper house of the West German Parliament today unanimously passed a resolution calling upon the government to do its utmost to get Britain into the Common Market.

Such a resolution is highly unusual. It was another indication of the mounting pressure being put on Chancellor Adenauer to oppose actively French President de Gaulle on the British entry issue.

The upper house consists of representatives of the 10 states that make up West Germany and exercises an important voice in legislation, although it can be overruled by the Bundestag (lower house).

"The upper house observes with great concern the difficulties that have occurred because of the interruption of the negotiations on the entry of Britain," the resolution said.

"If a resumption of the negotiations does not come about, the danger would arise that Europe would be divided into two economic blocs. Because of this the political relations of the European countries to one another would necessarily be adversely influenced.

"The upper house requests the government, in co-operation with the governments of the other members of the Common Market and its institutions, to do everything possible to avoid this danger and bring about the resumption of negotiations with Britain. This would be in accordance with the spirit of the Common Market treaty, which contains an invitation to all over European peoples to become members."

The upper house will be the first to consider the new treaty of French-West German co-operation that Adenauer is seeking to have ratified before his retirement next fall. The political parties are using ratification to force Adenauer to take a more clearcut stand in favor of Britain and against de Gaulle.

Because of his long close association with the French president, the chancellor is widely held to be less determined to bring about British entry than his words in public would indicate. He pleaded with the Bundestag to believe that this is not the case and urged that the treaty would help European unity not hinder it.

Meanwhile, British-West Ger-

BUDGET JUST 'LOT OF WORDS' SAYS OPPOSITION

Wintermeyer Calls It 4-Cent Budget

TORONTO (CP)—The 1963-64 budget presented in the Ontario legislature Thursday was described by the opposition leader as a "morass of words" designed to conceal the government's lack of faith in the province's growth.

Liberal Leader Wintermeyer said that, instead of bringing in far-reaching provisions for economic and social advancement, Treasurer Allan presented a "four-cent budget, a caretaker's budget."

His mention of four cents was a reference to one of the few changes in the province's tax structure. Mr. Allan modified the three-per-cent retail sales tax to exempt purchases worth 21 cents from the tax, instead of 7 cents.

The budget, second to involve more than $1,000,000,000, also provided for tax credits to manufacturers who increase employment and production facilities, and minor changes in succession duties to benefit widows and children who inherit estates.

Among the gross expenditure of $1,074,715,000 in the fiscal year starting April 1, Mr. Allan forecast education costs will rise to $393,532,000, up some $34,500,000 from the current year and still the largest expense in Ontario's budget.

ROADS SPENDING UP

Spending on highways will rise nearly $20,000,000 to about $275,000,000.

Ordinary revenues were forecast at $1,073,080,00, with corporation taxes expected to provide about $190,000,000 of the total, and taxes amounts from the sales tax, personal income tax and the gasoline tax.

Semi-Official Reports Say Kassem Killed

Premier Lived Under Guard in Ministry

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Junior officers in Iraq's armed forces staged a pro-Nasser revolt today against Premier Abdel Karim Kassem and claimed they had "destroyed his dirty rule."

Blaring Egyptian martial music over Baghdad radio, the rebels claimed their planes and tanks had destroyed Kassem's defence ministry in Baghdad, where the premier lived under heavy guard.

The rebels announced at one point, "we have destroyed the Tyrant." The broadcast did not make clear that the 48-year-old premier had been killed, but the Iranian government said it had received word from the Iraqi capital confirming Kassem's death in the defence ministry.

Turkey's semi-official Anatolian news agency also reported that the premier had been assassinated and 19 Iraqi Army generals arrested.

REPORT URPRISING

The British embassy in Baghdad reported to London that junior officers had risen against Kassem's police state regime and that it confirm immediately the report that the premier had been assassinated.

The population of Baghdad itself is "quiet," the embassy's first messages to London said.

The foreign office in London said British Ambassador Sir Roger Allen reported that the embassy staff was safe.

In the 1958 revolution, when Kassem seized power, the British Embassy was sacked.

Baghdad Radio announced all Iraq's borders — with Turkey, Syria, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Iran—are closed. All Iraqi airports also were closed.

The rebels, calling themselves the National Council of the Revolutionary Command, announced that a national guard had been set up under a colonel identified as Abdel Kerim Mustafa.

The council pledged to respect the United Nations charter and international agreements, to follow a non - alignment policy abroad and a policy of democracy at home.

PLEDGE OF FLOW

"The new movement," a communique said, "will work to increase our financial potentials and guarantee that oil will continue to flow abundantly."

Between communiques the rebel-held radio played patriotic songs of praise for Nasser's United Arab Republic with which Kassem had carried on a bitter feud.

Another broadcast assured all foreigners in Iraq their lives

British Soldiers Learn Weapons Tricks in Sub-Arctic Barrens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Diplomats in restive Iraq have wondered for months how long strongman Abdel Karim Kassem could maintain the control he seized in a bloody revolt six years ago.

On July 14, 1958, Kassem—then a 43 - year - old brigadier commanding an army division —overthrew Iraq's monarchy and turned street mobs loose to kill King Faisal II and pro-Western Premier Nuri Said.

Since then, Kassem, with guns and bombs, has been fighting a Kurdish tribal revolt, President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, the Arab League, the Western-owner Iraq Petroleum company, Kuwait, Iraqi Communists and Israel.

Fearful for his life, he drove through the streets of Baghdad in a bullet-proof limousine. He lived in his tightly guarded defence ministry. More and more he depended on extreme state measures at home and Moscow backing abroad.

He tried to woo the peasant with land reform—but his plan made little headway in two years' effort. Farm and Iraq Cropper and Iraq was forced to buy wheat abroad.

SOUGHT RECALL

Kassem's claims against the oil - rich sultanate of Kuwait alienated other Arab states. He asked for the recall of U.S. Ambassador John Jernegan after Washington recognized Kuwait's independence.

But Kassem was confident he would remain in power. He failed to show visitors a glass case holding the uniform he was wearing when he survived an assassination attempt in 1959, suffering three minor wounds and spending 50 days in hospital.

He was apparently shy man, slightly built and wiry, with no talent as an orator.

He never married because, he said, he feared that domestic life might deter him from his purpose of nationhood.

Despite the government propaganda machine and a controlled press, Iraq's 7,000,000 people showed a notable lack of enthusiasm for Kassem.

Economic problems added to his troubles. In a concentrating of power, Kassem allowed the economy to stagnate despite a huge income from oil.

Inflation crept across the land between 1958 and 1961. Euphrates Rivers, traditionally the food and clothing of Eden, became a land of living soared.

The Soviet bloc gave Kassem about $250,000,000 in credits for a five-year industrial plan. He already owed Moscow about $400,000,000 for tanks, trucks, artillery and a jet air forge.

He leaned heavily on the $250,000,000 he received as

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — "The thing I can't get used to," said Cpl. Les. Heery, "is being separated from our weapons. In any other war we'd be practically tied to them."

Heery, a lean 16-year veteran of the Irish and British armies, was relaxing on an inflated air mattress with his back against a rucksack in a sub-Arctic tent. Outside the moon shone brightly on the windswept barren lands of the Canadian Arctic.

Heery is one of 108 British paratroopers of D Company, the 3rd Battlion, Parachute Regiment, getting their first taste of winter environmental training near this Hudson Bay fortress and shipping port 600 miles north of Winnipeg.

The four FN rifles and a submachinegun of Heery's tent group were staked neatly against snowshoes stuck in a seven-foot-high snowdrift just outside the tent entrance.

"If we brought them into this heat," Heery explained, "we'd get condensation and five seconds after we brought them again we'd have frozen breeches among other things. And when the action worked, you can't shoot 24-calibre ammunition through a .22-calibre barrel."

Weapons care was only one of countless survival tricks I learned while spending 24 hours afield this week with No. 10 Platoon of D Company.

I shared a tent with Heery and two others.

Recreation Highlights

By B. JARVAH
Assistant Director

Each trade has its ups and downs, but refereeing, in any sport, seems to be the worst of them all. The public is hard to please, even for a player because it does not accept any letdown. Imagine, then, the difficult task of the referee.

Everybody knows the names given to the referee: blind mouse, traitor, and so on. All those suggestions of the crowd and of the players, dexterous only of victory, overexcited by the game itself, are not indifferent to the referee, but they are part of the game as injuries and mishaps are for an athlete.

One might be inclined to say, however, that the task of the referee in professional hockey is much more arduous than in minor hockey leagues. This is quite true, but however, it also must be stated that usually the position of the coach in a minor hockey league is much more trying, at least physically, than in the professional circles.

It isn't the easiest thing in the world to get up at 5.30 on a Saturday morning, go down to the arena, and upon your arrival, be charged with the coaching of some 20 excited, and boisterous young boys. It isn't too bad if you happen to be the coach of the Rigolets and draw a Tuesday evening game, but you must admit there is a difference between Tuesday evening and Saturday morning at say about 5.30 a.m.

It is sincerely felt that the fathers and mothers of Belleville should indeed be thankful to these men and older boys who are willing to give their time and effort in order that these young fellows may have their try at Canada's national sport.

In all honesty we owe also a debt of gratitude to the wives of these men, whose phones are constantly ringing with the phrases: "Do we play tonight?" "What about our exhibition game?" and "Can I play forward tomorrow?"

Belleville should be proud of the fact that this session, over 1200 minor boys are participating in the Minor Hockey program and over 70 volunteer coaches, assistant referees and conveners, not to mention the Minor Hockey executive, have in the past and are presently giving up their time in order that these boys may participate in a minor hockey program.

All too many parents are content just to call their son when it is time to go to the arena and then send them on his way with probable remark, "Let us know how you did, when you come home."

Granted, a lot of parents are unable to go to the arena with their sons, but then again, there are a lot who, even just once in awhile could "take their son and not just send him".

So, why not surprise your son when it comes time for his next game, especially now that the play-offs are here.—Go with him and join in with the others, especially your own, his team to victory! He'll appreciate it.

W. VanTassel Opens Office For Election

Only one political party in the Belleville area has named its candidate for the federal general election, but the official machinery for the April 8th vote is already in operation.

Mr. William Van Tassel, returning officer for Hastings South, said today that he again has accepted the space in the Victoria and Grey building at 178 Front Street. The second floor office location is the same as that for last year's election. The telephone number is Woodland 3-3541.

Enumerating of the voters will be one of the first jobs to be arranged by Mr. Van Tassel and starting on February 15th the official rose count will commence in Belleville and throughout the other parts of the riding.

In Belleville there will be 148 enumerators, named equally by the two major party organizations.

There are 109 polling subdivisions in the riding of which 74 are in Belleville.

15 Below Zero Coldest Night Of the Winter

The weatherman missed out by about ten degrees - - In the wrong direction.

A temperature of five degrees above zero was forecast for last night but Old Jack Frost went even better with result that it was the coldest night so far this winter.

The official low at the city water intake for the night was west end of the city was 15 degrees below zero but slightly colder readings were registered in the area north of the city.

At Tweed and Stanrobt the low for the night was 18 below; at Ivanhoe and Plevna 16 below and at Gilmour 15 below. Not as low as Belleville.

But residents in the north said it seemed much colder because of the wind.

The severe drop in temperature brought a cautionary grief to city and district motorists with garage trucks having a field day as calls to get balky motors rolling.

And local taxi firms were also hard pressed to keep up with the demand for transportation when private cars refused to start.

"It was just wild," stated the dispatcher for one local taxi firm. "I don't think we ever had it so busy."

At the peak period of the rush taxi firms were as much as 15 or more minutes behind schedule.

Two Marmora Men Admit Theft of Steer

Two Marmora men, brothers-in-law, who share the same home in the village, this morning pleaded guilty to a string of thefts, including cattle rustling.

Ross Allan Lake and Hector Sylvester Empey were arrested along with three other men after a series of police investigations at their home turned up loot from the robberies.

Lake is also awaiting sentence next week with the other men for recent break-ins, larceny and theft of a steer and of guns from a Belleville sports shop.

Both men pleaded guilty today to stealing from five cottages on Crowe Lake near Marmora, and theft of a steer from a nearby farm.

OPP Constable Gord LeBow said articles from the cottages were among loot taken from the double home shared by the two men's families, during the police search.

The cottage robberies were dated by police around Christmas.

The steer, valued at $150, was butchered by both men after its theft October 14 from the farm of Gordon Moffatt, three miles north of Marmora.

They went shooting rabbits and about dark drove into the farmer's field and shot the steer," said Constable LeBow. "They removed the intestines, loaded the steer in the car and drove to a cottage and butchered it . . . where the hide was removed."

Both men were remanded for sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The members then retired to the dining room where a delicious venison dinner was served and a social time enjoyed by the members.

Two Facing Charges of Breaking Parole

Two young Belleville men are in jail, facing charges of breaking the rules of probationary sentences.

Both appeared before this week by city police were Clifford Roy Rozell, 17, and 22-year-old Terry Joseph Bernard.

Both youths were given suspended sentences last month by Magistrate T. Y. Wills—Rozell for false pretences and Bennett for a break-in at the Belleville Curling Club.

Rozell went to Toronto to take up technical training. Bennett was ordered by the magistrate to observe certain rules of behavior—among them an 11 p.m. curfew.

Both were hailed into court this morning.

Inspector A. B. McLauchlin said Bennett had been involved in a beverage room fracas and also had repeatedly failed to observe the curfew.

The magistrate said he will hear the charges on Tuesday.

3 Institutes To Be Formed

WINNIPEG (CP)—Three government-sponsored physical fitness research institutes will be established soon at Canadian universities, Dr. Max Howell, says associate professor of physical education at the University of Alberta.

He told a group of 50 physical education teachers each institute will choose its own field to investigate.

They will likely be set up in March in Toronto, Montreal and western Canada.

The federal government has pledged $50,000 a year for five years in a five-year period and $20,000 for equipment.

Columbia Pact Almost Ratified Last Spring

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia government said Thursday the controversial international Columbia treaty was almost ratified last spring.

The Social Credit government also said:

The controversial takeover of the B.C. Electric Company for $171,000,000 followed that company's refusal to purchase power from a project proposed for the northern Peace River.

Agreement is close on the sale to the United States of downstream benefits deriving from the Columbia River treaty.

Lands Minister Ray Williston gave the government's position on power matters as he wound up the throne speech debate in the legislature.

He said that on March 19 last year there was a meeting between Premier W. A. C. Bennett and federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming at which there was substantial agreement on future plan for ratification and implementation of the Columbia treaty.

But on April 13, External Affairs Minister Howard Green, just returned from Europe, said in Parliament that the treaty would be referred to the external affairs committee of the Commons before ratification.

The Columbia agreement, ratified by the U.S. calls for construction of three storage dams in B.C. Fifty per cent of the power generated in the United States as a result of storage in Canada would be returned to B.C.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, retired chairman of the International Joint Commission, was described by Mr. Williston as a "politically pawn" in the Columbia controversy.

Mr. Williston described Gen. McNaughton as a sincere man whose engineering theories were supported by Liberal and New Democratic Party politicians for political gain but which were refuted even by the engineers who once worked with him.

An initial silence followed his reference to the aging general.

Then there were cries of "Shame, shame." Robert Strachan, NDP opposition leader, called it an "unfair attack."

The general's proposal calls for diversion of the Upper Kootenay River into the Columbia.

4 Being Held For Questioning At Napanee

NAPANEE (Special) — Provincial police here believe they may have surprised a break-in attempt near here during the night.

Four men are being held for questioning after they were arrested at Cring's Hardware store in Newburgh, northeast of here.

They were arrested by the crew of a police cruiser making property checks in the area.

Police say the men are all from the Kingston district.

GEMS MISSING

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Irene M Selznick, theatrical producer and former wife of of motion picture producer David O. Selznick, reported to police today the theft of jewelry from her apartment in the Hotel Pierre, on Fifth Avenue. Police headquarters said gems valued at $250,000 were taken from the apartment.

Pierre Sevigny Will Remain Cabinet Minister

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Sevigny, acting and associate minister of national defence who would like to be full minister, said Thursday he is a member of the Conservative cabinet team and will remain so.

Barring unforseen circumstances, which he couldn't picture, he would run for re-election in his old Montreal district of Longueuil.

Mr. Sevigny was named acting minister last Monday when former minister Harkness resigned. Thursday he issued a press release about British army training plans in "Canada in which—on his own instruction, it was learned—he was referred to as "defence minister."

This created a stir of politich and constitutional speculation.

J. W. Pickersgill, Liberal MP for Bonavista - Twillingate in Newfoundland, an historian and former clerk of the Privy Council, said a former secretary to two Liberal prime ministers jumped on the misnomer in the Commons.

EXPRESSES DOUBTS

He questioned whether there was a secret order-in-council covering the appointment, and expressed doubts at the propriety of the Diefenbaker government making any further appointments after its defeat in the Commons on Tuesday.

Other constitutional authorities, however, said that in law Prime Minister Diefenbaker is the adviser to the Governor-General and remains so until his resignation, which would only be necessary by a July defeat in the April 8 general election no definite that he would not be able to form a minority government or coalition.

Mr. Sevigny was reported to have been urging Mr. Diefenbaker to appoint him full minister in Mr. Harkness' place. There were rumors he was backing up his urgings with the threat that he would not run again.

Asked about the reports and rumors, Mr. Sevigny said:

"I am a member of the team and, barring unforseen circumstances which I can't think of at the moment, I am remaining a member of the team."

Cannot Support Diefenbaker Says PC MP

HALIFAX (CP)—The Chronicle - Herald quotes Edmund Morris, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Cape Breton as saying in an Ottawa interview: "I abstained entirely from sustaining Mr. Diefenbaker as prime minister of my country."

Mr. Morris didn't vote on either of the two non-confidence motions in the Commons this week which resulted in overthrow of the Diefenbaker government.

The newspapers quotes Mr. Morris as saying he spoke to federal and provincial party executives as far back as last Nov. 30 about "the difficulty I was beginning to have, when my parliamentary duty required, in publicly voting, to sustain the personality of the present prime minister—not only the government. At that time, I offered to step aside as their candidate if in any way this didn't satisfy their requirements in a candidate.

He added: "Whether or not Conservative party supporters wish me to be their candidate is a matter which they alone must decide—not I."

Mr. Morris, 40, former radio and TV commentator and newspaper man, was first elected to the Commons in 1957 and re-elected in 1958 and 1962. The other Halifax member is Robert J. McCleave, also a Conservative.

Conviction of Security May Disrupt Fleet Street

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—The conviction on contempt charges of two journalists for refusing to disclose the sources of their information may disrupt the whole unwritten law of Fleet Street.

The case, hitting at the heart of Britain's newspaper world, arose out of statements the two wrote at the time of the arrest of William Vassall, the 38-year-old admiralty clerk sentenced to 18 years in prison for selling navy secrets to Moscow.

In effect, the high court decision Monday means journalists enjoy no special privileges and have no right in law to refuse to disclose their sources, even when the information is given in confidence.

Both Brendan Mulholland of The Daily Mail, sentenced to six months, and Reginald Foster of The Daily Sketch, three months, implied in their stories that Vassall's homosexual tendencies were obvious.

Their sentences, for contempt of court, were suspended for five days, however, to permit the two to change their minds or to appeal. The judge also applied that some remission of sentence would be justified if the original source came forward.

CAUSES UPROAR

A tremendous uproar broke in the press offices over the arrest of Vassall, an admitted homosexual and the latest in a list of spies discovered in recent years.

Several papers suggested that it should be more obvious to admiralty authorities that he had homosexual tendencies and was living far beyond his $15-a-week salary in a smart Dolphin Square flat.

Then Prime Minister Macmillan ordered a tribunal hearing, with particular emphasis, insisted there were no obvious have been suspicious.

Thomas Galbraith, civil lord of what extent Vassall's private affairs were common knowledge among his colleagues.

Most journalists who testified of the admiralty resigned but were able to give the sources their information but Mulholland, 29, refused when asked who told him that:

Vassall was called "Auntie" in his office and was a known homosexual;

An admiralty typist had suggested Vassall could not possibly live as he did on his income;

Vassall was sponsored by two senior admiralty officials, thus avoiding the strictest part of the security check.

REFUSES TO ANSWER

Foster, 58, had refused to say who told him Vassall bought and wore women's clothes. The court noted Vassall had subsequently admitted this in person.

Before being sentenced, Foster told the court: "There has been no bias in this court of the word duty. With the greatest respect, I would like to say that all newspaper men have at least an equal access to the same word. I would conceive it a dereliction of my duty if I did anything to tarnish our long cherished freedom of the press."

Last week another Sketch journalist was sentenced to six months but an admiralty press officer later disclosed himself to be his source. The court ruled that this was acceptable and the sentence was not enforced.

TWAIN HOME BURNED

Clemens—lived in the three-storey white brick structure with his bride, the former Olivia Langdon. The author was editor of the Buffalo Express in 1870-71.

U.S. Planning New Base in Panama Zone

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army is planning to form a new group of anti-guerrilla experts and base it in the Panama Canal Zone—in position to help Latin American nations cope with any Cuban-fomented uprisings.

Informed sources disclosed this today amid concern in the United States over Soviet military strength in Cuba and the threat of Communist penetration of South and Central America.

Defence Secretary McNamara said the Russians and Cubans do not have the ships to move any of the tanks or other significant military gear across the Caribbean to Latin America.

But U.S. authorities long have been concerned that Fidel Castro might succeed in transplanting his revolution by underground means and stir up revolts aimed at overthrowing governments friendly to the United States.

The U.S. Army now maintains four special forces groups, each made up of more than 1,200 men trained in the techniques of combatting guerrillas.

For some time, a nucleus of special forces troopers has been detailed to the canal zone. The new group will be a full-scale and permanent outfit.

Blast of Icy Air Shoves Mercury Down

CHICAGO (AP)—A blast of icy air fanned by strong northerly winds, swept across broad areas in the northern half of the United States today, ending a brief spell of fairly mild winter weather in many sections.

Temperatures tumbled below zero from Upper Michigan southward into northern Maine and southward into New York State. The mercury dropped to 19 below in Pellston, Mich., one of the coldest spots.

New York State's lows included 16 below in Massena and Utica; 14 below in Binghamton, Rome and Plattsburgh; 12 below in Watertown; 12 below in Syracuse and Glens Falls; and three below in Buffalo.

The temperature dropped to two below in New York City, the lowest reading in the city in two years.

China Charges Atomic Arms Sent to Korea

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China charged today the United States has armed its troops in South Korea with atomic weapons to create a base for aggression in northeast Asia.

"In violation of the Korean armistice," the official Peking People's Daily charged, "the United States has continued to send reinforcements into South Korea, together with modern weapons, including atomic weapons."

There was no immediate comment from U.S. military officials in Korea or Tokyo. In the past they have declined to comment on suggestions that U.S. forces in Korea are equipped with nuclear arms.

President Not Asked Question On Canada

WASHINGTON (CP)—A White House informant described President Kennedy's press conference as being "tickled pink" that the president was asked no questions on the Canada-U.S. nuclear controversy.

In the 30-minute press conference, there was only one brief reference on the nuclear issue.

That was when an American correspondent referred to U.S. difficulties with French President de Gaulle and "in a slightly caustic and slightly different way with the Diefenbaker government in Canada."

Without referring to Canada, Kennedy said the United States and Europe would have to do a lot of negotiating to be successful in getting more than a different facade of U.S. nuclear control.

The White House informant said the president came to the press conference well-briefed on the Canadian issue but he volunteered no statement at the outset of the gathering.

PLAY IN LOW KEY

Just before the conference opened, an official said Kennedy wanted to play the Canadian issue in low key. This contrasted with a view expressed earlier this week that the president was ready to make a statement on the issue. Since that time Parliament was dissolved and a Canadian general election called.

The president selects the correspondents who question him but will answer by pointing a finger and nodding. Usually about a dozen or so stand up at one time and the president makes his quick choice.

A number of Canadian correspondents bobbed up and down in their seats trying to get the president's attention but they failed to win recognition.

DIES IN COLLISION

KINGSTON (CP) — Harold Warwick, 50, of Odessa, Ont., was killed Thursday in a head-on collision on Highway 401 six miles west of here. Mr. Warwick was Kingston area representative for the Ontario retail tax branch of the Ontario treasury department for the last 1½ years.

Queen Watches Horse Show

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters) Queen Elizabeth rounded out the last day of her two-day visit to New Zealand with a relaxing afternoon, watching a display of horse show jumping.

The Queen and Prince Philip also toured Auckland's industrial suburbs as crowds lined the streets under an overcast sky. She toured a pottery and a carpet factory while Prince Philip visited other industrial sites.

They later watched top New Zealand riders compete for the Queen Elizabeth puissance horse show jumping contest and presented a gold cup to the winner.

From Auckland, they plan to sail to Mount Maunganu, a vacation centre south of here.

SMOKING FALLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette smoking in the United States declined last year for the first time since 1954, the commerce department reported today, but only by an average of two cigarettes a person. Average consumption last year was computed at 199.2 packs of 20 a person compared with 199.3 packs in 1961.

Jack Sherman Re-elected Shannonville Fair Head

Mr. Jack Sherman was re-elected president of the Shannonville "World's Fair" at the annual meeting and fair banquet held recently at the Tyendinaga township hall.

Approximately 75 fair board members and their wives and other fair supporters attended the banquet.

Other officers named were Charles Long and Doug Lazier as vice presidents and Tom Hinchey as secretary treasurer.

Directors include the above named officers along with Donald Thompson, Reginald Poe, A. Colden, Jack McAvoy, Ronald Grahame, A. Long, J. Hinchey, J. Lazier and S. Lazier.

Committee reports show last year's fair was a financial success despite the fact that the scheduled midway failed to show up as result of a breakdown in transportation.

Jack Sherman and Tom Hinchey were named as delegates to the annual fairs convention at Belleville.

Delegates to the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies convention in Toronto will be Mr. and Mrs. Jack McAvoy and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Balcanquel.

Property improvements at the fairgrounds include painting and the installation of a new roof for the fairground palace.

A bigger and better parade will be held at next year's fair if members of the newly formed parade committee have their way. Named to the parade committee were Kenneth Vivian, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hagerman and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Grahame.

Russia Still Fears Germany

In the welter of controversy regarding nuclear weapons for Canada, sight may be lost of a much important development with respect to nuclear weapons elsewhere.

Russia has warned France it would consider nuclear armament of West Germany as an "immediate threat" which would oblige Russia to take immediate measures.

It is difficult to see how these measures could fail short of a "preventive war" which, of course, would not really prevent anything, but would merely speed the day of world disaster.

Yet any reasonable man can understand how the Russians feel about this matter. Their distrust of the Germans is deep and founded on bitter experience. What is more, it is shared by many other nations in Europe, especially by those which are now communist satellites. Russia might not have the united support of Eastern Europe in any war to prevent West Germany receiving nuclear arms—but its backing would be stronger than on any other conceivable cause of strife.

It is significant that this warning has been delivered to France. The largest chance of West Germany receiving nuclear arms would appear to lie through the creation of a NATO multi-nation nuclear force, such as is proposed by the U.S. This development is opposed by strong men in France, rather than the U.S., receives the warning. It is aimed at the signing of the Franco-German co-operation treaty, despite the fact that this treaty specififfaly excludes nuclear secrets from the list of fields in which the two countries will unite their efforts.

The only possible conclusion is that Russia places much more trust in Kennedy than it does in de Gaulle. Apparently Khrushchev believes in the good faith of Kennedy when he voices concern against the enlargement of the "nuclear club" and feels safe in assuming that the U.S. would keep a tight control over any nuclear weapons which it supplied to a NATO force. On the other hand, he is uneasy about de Gaulle's intentions despite the fact that the French leader has been alarming the U.S. and her allies by talk of an eventual rapprochment with Russia. Khrushchev would appear to feel that France's bid to create an independent "third force" in Europe, (armed with nuclear weapons in the same manner as the contending big powers, Russia and the U.S.), cannot succeed without the co-operation of Germany. Common sense will suggest to most of us that he is right.

At a time like this, when Khrushchev's quarrel with Mao is threatening to split the communist world, it would appear unfortunate if intransigence in the West hindered any trend for Russia to seek to end the Cold War. In the final analysis, though, de Gaulle's course may serve to bring Russia and the U.S. closer together, rather than driving them apart. Together they could stop any expansion of the "nuclear club" overnight, by a simple threat.

Evidence Is Lacking

It seems to be the fashion of the moment in some quarters to join in the clamor raised by NDP charges in Parliament that the Mounted Police are infringing academic and individual freedoms by checking for evidence of communist sympathies or activities among university students and teachers. As example, an editorial in a national weekend newspaper makes this comment:.

"The RCMP has done Canada excellent service in maintaining order and fighting crime. But it has no right to set itself up as a censor of ideas or a judge of what is orthodox and unorthodox in matters of politics and economics. Any ambitions it may have in that direction should be sternly repressed by the government."

It is hardly necessary to defend the force against this indictment. In the public interest the federal government needs to know where the agents of communism are working and what success they are having. The Special Branch of the RCMP is the government's ears and eyes for out of it.

Answers Taxpayer On Y and Parking

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Some satisfaction was derived from your note underneath the "taxpayer's" letter to you in Wednesday's paper regarding the old YMCA building. That "unknown" taxpayer has failed to give the matter full consideration.

If he (or she) took a good look inside that building and saw the inadequacies of the structure for providing the services for the large membership there would be no complaint about the need for a new Y". It is my opinion that Dr. Stobie would have agreed wholeheartedly to both projects which, in the long run, are in Belleville's interests.

Why? First of all, the children of today will be the adult citizens of tomorrow. Secondly, much of the land now used for parking was sold to the city, by merchants, for approximately half of the appraised value. Parking meter revenues are returned to the city. These parking areas are used night and day by Belleville citizens and not just the downtown merchants, but by those going to the libraries, the court house, the Collegiate functions, recreational pursuits, arts and crafts, and many other appointments. According to that letter even the writer of it uses them.

The proposals for the YMCA received critical comment, but not one better suggestion was forthcoming. Surely, a constructive, should offer an alternative solution. Where is there a better house to locate the one chosen? Surely not on the spot where the Plaza wanted to locate or on the approaches to the west. No, it follows that the taxpayer would, no doubt, say that the money should be used best, with renovations and enlargement of the building. Yes, then we who have children from tots to teen-age, could send them there through the increasing traffic of Pinnacle Campbell, Victoria Avenue, and Front Street in safety and security.

Is it not better that children transfer from bus to bus under police protection on Front Street? Let us not be misled either, by misguided taxpayers, that downtown is not a hub of traffic movement and business activity.

It should be remembered that merchants helped achieve the building of the present YMCA. It should also be borne in mind that they are now pledged to substantial amounts for the new YMCA. Further, I feel the merchants have never shirked in their support of projects of welfare in the city within the limits of their capabilities. In addition, you can rest assured that they will continue to support the "Y" over the years and set in every way to improve standards for the welfare and other citizens of Belleville.

It has been said, "Language was invented to hide true thoughts. What axe could that "taxpayer" really have to grind, if any?

A Belleville Merchant.

Came Here in 1913 Seeks Old Friends

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I must inevitably be a stranger to you, but as long ago as the year 1913, on July 15th, I sailed into Canada on the old Royal George bound for Belleville, Ont., where I eventually spent a year or two, and made many good friends, some of whom are alas, no more on this earth. I am now 72 and among which gives me more time for writing or typing letters. I also thank God that my health is quite good, and I am quite active for my age. Actually, my chief hobby is writing letters (I hate pen-pushing) not only to friends and relations, but I often get the urge to write to the daily papers on matters that I feel strongly about. I might "with a little bit of luck" even make a little "pin money" out of it.

However, I do feel that there may still be some old friends of mine living in Belleville, so I am going to ask you the favor of publishing my letter, in the hope that they will see it, in which case, we might have some interesting correspondence together.

Would I know Belleville now if I were to see it? I wonder, after so many years. I believe at the time I was there, the local paper was known as the Intelligencer if my memory serves me right (bit of a mouthful!)

Ladies' Night was incorporated with the regular Canadian National Railways War Veterans Association smoker and entertainment held at the Quinte Hotel, at which a varied program of dancing and instrumental numbers was presented by talented artists. Mr. Larry Ann, president of the Association, presided at the opening ceremonies, with the program chairman being Mr. J. Walden, and pianist for the many dancing and vocal numbers Francis K. Calvert. Illustrated slides of CNR veterans activities were shown by Mr. A. H. Jones who also announced that to date the Association had sent 647,200 cigarettes to members of the armed forces overseas. A great many of the boys received cigarettes from the local CNR Vets are former employees of the railway. In July, 1942, 100,000 of cigarettes sent overseas is $2,124, it was stated.

The burglarizing of summer cottages along the shores of the Bay of Quinte near Belleville has been quite prevalent this winter. Last week reports that several cottages at the Jones' Creek area had been entered and ransacked, unfortunately were found to be true as the burglar, damaged the buildings to a noticeable extent. Today reports reached Provincial Police that summer cottages at Peach Point had been entered and valuable fishing tackle stolen.

Believed to have been a victim of amnesia, and reported in yesterday's paper as having been hospitalized on Sunday, a Toronto girl, resident of Lawler Avenue in that city, has recovered from a four-day loss of memory, and has left for her home accompanied by her grandmother and an aunt.

Churchman Speaks Out

Ottawa Journal

The heart of Archbishop Clark's statement on nuclear security is this:

"On strict principles of justice, I do not see how we can condemn a nation possessing this deterrent, provided that it was determined to use it with restraint and to strike only hard enough to end the aggression. Nor would I demand as some Christians have done, that the United States should unilaterally destroy its atomic stock pile.

"Moreover, there is a certain moral difference between being ready to retaliate with atomic power and being the ally of a country committed to such retaliation. Canada now is involved in the latter bomb."

Beside the wisdom and the clarity of those words should be also placed the following guidelines:

"The situation is not one in which abstract moral principles can unfailingly be applied, or that everything appears as black or white. Our country has to walk step by step along a way of decision in which at no moment are all the moral factors clearly seen. Therefore, what also is needed is a sensitive, moral judgment which remains ever alert to the developing situation."

Some may ask why an arch bishop enters the debate over nuclear arms, but by both his voice is far more helpful than that of some retired generals. Archbishop Clark is discussing the morality of nuclear weapons; not the military or the political aspects of that question.

We should have more, not less, of such guidance from churchmen. Clergymen have been quick to speak out on far less vital matters, on banning books or beer. But on the great issues of our time, our consciences have not been sufficiently formed on the basis of moral principles. These our religious leaders, not our politicians, must apply.

In the Canadian proclamation she became "Supreme Head of Canada in and over Canada." At the time of King "George's death, the then Princess Elizbeth and Prince Philip were on holiday in Kenya. They immediately returned to Britain. The King had died in his sleep at Sandringham, aged 56, after an illness of some months.

Courtships Range Afar

Windsor Star

Most young unmarried men and women today have advantages their grandparents did not have. One of these is a wide choice from among the opposite sex with whom to fall in love.

In the early days in this province, and even into this century, most young people were circumscribed by transportation limitations. They could only court conveniently with the range of the horse and buggy.

There was no sense in failing in love with a lass who lived 20 miles away. It was impossible for a lad to woo steadily at that distance. And a lass naturally expected steadier courtship than the occasional weekend visit. That wasn't often enough to arouse any intense emotions.

That was why, in our grandparents' day, most lads wooed and won girls who lived within a radius of four or five miles. Driving ten miles for a date, courting and then ten miles back in the bleak of night, was scarcely worth the effort.

Nowadays, in large cities, young people have thousands of the opposite sex from which to chose and who are within easy courting distance. Even in rural Ontario the automobile has made courtship feasible within a distance of 20 miles or so.

One observer of romance suggests a lad, or lass, is likely to fall in love with the person of the opposite sex who seems the most congenial in the group or environment to which he or she belongs. It is a rule of thumb which is generally true.

Strictly Personal

Mouths, Eyes Show Person's True Character

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A magazine I was reading in the barber shop not long ago asked a dozen prominent men in various fields, "What do you first notice in a woman?"

Some of the answers, of course, were suggestively mysterious, and others were solemn; but the only reply that showed any real insight was made by Oleg Cassini, the dress designer.

He did not mention the figure or the posture or the clothes or any other superficial aspect that might be expected from one concerned with costuming. He said, rather:

"What I notice first about a woman is her mouth—then eyes . . . Her mouth tells me how she feels about herself. Her eyes say how she feels about other people — including me."

It is astonishing how many women utterly fail to comprehend that what shows in their mouths and eyes can totally cancel out the effect of their clothes and their cosmetics. In fact, the better groomed and the more conventionally beautiful the greater the contrast between their external appearance and their inner selves.

Such women spend billions every year on devices and decorations to improve their features and their looks — yet if the mouth is resentful and discontented, if the eyes are greedy and calculating, all of their vast expenditures of money and energy and time might as well have been tossed down the drain.

This is especially true of older women, who unmistakably reveal in their eyes and mouths the sum total of their emotional life, the adjustments of maladjustments they have made, the philosophy they have lived by, the attitudes they have adopted toward men and other women and children and their own sexuality and the whole fabric of their emotional experience.

If strife adjustments and attitudes have been healthy and honest and generous and humorous and compassionate, then the figure and the clothes become wholly subordinate to the personality; other awkwardnesses are nothing but spirit shining out from such a person.

Contrariwise, if the emotional structure has been ravaged by envy or petulance or self-pity or excessive vanity, then the expensive and well-tailored clothes, the impeccable make-up and hair-styling seem like a clown's costume, showing up in pitiless contrast the bitter mouth and the furtive eyes that disclose a basic dissatisfaction with one's self and with the world.

To Your Good Health

Recommend Contact Lenses, Must Be Fitted Properly

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 15-year-old girl who wears glasses. I've been wanting contact lenses but my parents are against them in the sense that they might irritate my eyes after a few years.

Do you think contacts are safe? B.M.

Contact lenses, properly fitted, will not harm your eyes. They may, or may not, irritate them, but in that case, an adjustment will make you stop wearing them.

They do bother some people, but not others. There are in-between cases, in which people can wear contacts for X number of hours a day, but not all the time.

If you (or rather, your parents) can afford the added cost of contacts, and will not be unduly effected in case you find that you can't continue to use them, I suggest that you try them.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would a mild case of overactive thyroid cause sterility or prevent conception? Could medication make one unable to conceive?

Mrs. J.O.

To the first, probably not; to the second, yes.

Dear Dr. Molner: Several weeks ago I read your article of ears. Mine has been discharging for more than two years. I went to a specialist, and he sprayed some sort of medication in my ear on three occasions and that did the trick. I wonder, could you tell me the name of the spray that's being sold? — C.A.

I wouldn't if I could — and I can't. There is no single medication used for this purpose. It depends on the cause. Using the right medicine on the wrong case can do as much harm as no treatment at all. Medical care just isn't that simple. If it were, we wouldn't need many doctors. In everyday practice, diagnosis is the most important part of medical care.

Dear Dr. Molner: The doctor took a urine test of my young year-old son and discovered that he had phenylketonuria. Will the boy have to stay on a special diet all his life, or just for a few years? Will he always be slower than other children because of the brain damage so far? — M.S.

The special diet may be necessary indefinitely. The condition is a defect in the enzyme system which we have not as yet found a way to correct.

The next best measure, therefore, is to change the diet to compensate. It is hard to predict improvement in mental ability; there probably will be some but the boy may always be slower than others.

It is now known that if treatment can be started immediately, brain damage can be prevented in most cases. Research efforts now are made to discover the condition at birth.

Note to Mrs. A.: Yes, excessive eating of sweets may have some connection with the occurrence of boils, although the connection is probably rather indirect. But there are other reasons why too much sweet stuff isn't a good idea — calories, weight, teeth, etc.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Ottawa Sun-Times Syndicate; P.O. Box 158, Postale, Ill., for a copy of the leaflet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is a type of girl or woman who can grab her coat and scarf on the run, snatch up her goloshes, wrestle into her coat as she runs to catch the bus, and then put her goloshes on after she gets aboard, who always looks well-groomed. Often as not, she looks beautiful.

But this type is rare. The vast majority of girls and women would not dream of going out a door without a long last look in the full length mirror. They don't mind missing the bus, or even two buses, so long as they follow the ritual of preparation. That may be why so many women are late.

It is a ritual, almost religious. So much time must be devoted to the basic dressing, the donning of basic garments. Then so much at the dressing table, or at the mirror in the bathroom, on the hair, on the cosmetics, on the precise selection and complementing of the earrings, the necklace. Then comes the assumption of the final garments, the dress, the shoes, the long and studied scrutiny in the mirror, or in both, or several mirrors.

Finally, there is the cautious last look in the goloshes, done without disturbing the hair already done; and the overcoating, finishing or adjusting of gloves and scrabble in the purse. The ultra-final look in the hall mirror by the door.

Was that the bus went by?

Confederation had many advantages but the division of the Maritimes is not one that added continuing worth. It would seem to be time for a change.

The Atlantic Provinces Committee was formed in 1961 to promote joint interests. It should be possible for this group, which links four provincial governments, to prepare the way for one great province. The plan does offer one glimpse of economic hope.

wooden walls. Fire officials evacuated more than 50 persons from the houses and from three nearby houses around in the Wadsworth Park section of Toronto.

A neighbor, Jean Hodge, 18, said Mr. French told her before he was taken to hospital that the fire started after he left an electric kettle going when he went to sleep.

Chief Coakwell said all the children were found in their beds, four in a front room, two in a centre room and two in a back bedroom.

"It was a tough one to fight," the chief said as he surveyed the scene from an ice-covered sidewalk in front of the house.

Mrs. Vera Hutchison, another neighbor said she looked out the window and saw the French house across the street in flames.

"Someone outside said I can't get the French kids out," she said.

"It's a shame. Everyone of them was blonde and good-looking."

From his bed in St. Joseph's Hospital where he and Mrs. French were taken, Mr. French said: "The firemen wouldn't let me go back in, but I might as well have died, too. There's no use living without them.

"I was waiting for Effie (his wife) to come home from work, so as usual I put the kettle on the gas stove. I have a cup of tea waiting for her.

"Then I went into the living room, and I must have dozed off. Suddenly I woke up. I could smell smoke.

"Then I heard one of the kids crying. I can't help wondering which one it was, calling for daddy to come.

"I ran to the stairs and I tried everything I could but it wasn't good enough. I just couldn't break through the flames.

"From then on, everything's hazy. I remember kicking out the front window—I guess that's how I cut my feet. The next thing I knew they were using oxygen on me.

"They wouldn't let me try to go back to my children. They held me down. Maybe they were right. Effie will need me."

A neighbor, William Bartlett, and two policeman, Murray Lee and Colin McPherson, collapsed in rescue attempts and were treated for smoke poisoning.

Mr. Bartlett said: "I kept trying to get in to the kids but I couldn't breathe. I've only got one lung."

Elmer Hachey, 38, whose home was destroyed said: "It was just God's luck we got out."

Mr. Hachey was watching television when "suddenly there was something shining on the wall, and then the flames broke through."

He rescued his two daughters, Caroline, 11, and Margaret, 10, from their bedrooms and then went back upstairs for 6-year-old Ron.

"We couldn't breathe," he said, "and I was afraid the stairs were going to collapse, so when we got halfway down I jumped the rest of the way with Ronnie in my arms."

Mr. and Mrs. William Fillier, who lost everything they had, credited Patrick Smith, who roused other, families in the block, with saving them and their five children.

Mr. Fillier said he awoke and "scooped up four kids and my wife got the baby. We could hardly see our way down the front stairs for smoke.

"The flames were coming through everywhere," he said. "Now there's nothing left but the bricks—all I've got are the clothes I'm wearing—and the kids only have their pyjamas."

In the face of the Common Market crisis.

Sir Eric Roll, undersecretary in the British ministry of agriculture and a veteran of the Brussels negotiations, met with West German Common Market experts from the foreign, economic and agricultural ministries.

British sources said that Roll brought no magic plan and expected to receive none. His purpose was described as sounding out all possibilities to see which the two sides consider to have the greatest chances of success.

Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder suggested that the deadlock might be broken by first granting Britain associate membership in the Common Market, with the understanding that this would be transitional to full membership.

While London has not officially taken up this suggestion, informed sources here said the British are showing some interest.

Pr. W. School Presents Fine 'Talent Nights'

A capacity audience witnessed the first of three "Talent Nights" to be presented by the pupils of Prince of Wales School on Tuesday.

Mrs. Kay Bushell, president of the Home and School Association conducted a brief business meeting before turning the program over to Mr. Bernard Wright.

Mr. Wright welcomed the parents and explained briefly that this 'Talent Night' did not imply a competition of individuals as one usually thinks of it but was a presentation of the talents of the pupils as a whole.

Mrs. Belch's class opened the program with a selection of songs and verses presented with all the "sarcdo-faire" of seasonal performers. Three choral speaking poems — "Someone", "Mice", and "Poor Old Jonathan Bing", were beautifully prepared with humor and clarity by the pupils of Miss Rowe. Mrs. Bishop's young charges left no doubt as to their musical ability with their presentation of six short songs.

Mrs. Newman's class completed Part 1 of the program with a colorful flannelgraph and narration of "Moses in the Bulrushes".

Mrs. Belch's class again entertained delightfully shewed with fine action, songs and verses featuring "Kittens", "Baby dolls' and Snowflakes", followed by Mrs. Nancarrow's group singing two lovely songs, "Day Dreams" and "Lullaby" and "I am the Little New Year".

CHORAL SPEAKING

Choral speaking at its humorous best was demonstrated by the pupils of Mrs. Bishop presenting "Mr. Shadow", and by Mrs. Nancarrow's class with "Another Sad Tale" and "There Was an Old Woman Who Swallowed a Fly." This last poem was graphically illustrated with wonderful posters.

A truly professional pantomime by Miss Rowe's class — "The Three Bears" — with colorful costumes and excellent narration, brought the program to a close and at this moment it is most dobtuful who had the best time — the pupils, the teachers or the parents.

Diocesan WA Hears Talk On Uganda

Mr. Harley Smyth, a recent winner of a Rhodes Scholarship, spoke at the Trinity Diocesan Woman's Auxiliary meeting which was held in St. Paul's Parish Hall. At the moment he is studying at Queen's University for his medical degree and also conducts a Bible class at St. James' Church. Three years ago he was a student at the meeting of the Christian Medical Society in Chicago and, while there, met a British doctor, Mr. Fletcher Lunn, who interested him in Uganda, a former British Protectorate which recently became an independent nation.

Mr. Smyth's interest grew and this past summer his dream became a reality when he flew to England with Mr. Lunn, journeyed to Uganda where he worked in three hospitals, did field work and was the only white student living in the residence at the university. This last factor made him realize how important it is to support international students in Canadian universities with fellowship and hospitality.

CHRISTIANS IN COUNTRY

Uganda is a nominally Christian country and possesses a cathedral and churches. Eighty per cent of the medical missionary, Sir Albert Cooke, founded the first hospital with Lady Cooke its first matron. They are buried close to the hospital they founded, and the memory of these two fine Christians is highly revered.

Like most African countries, Uganda is a mixture of the old and the new, grass roofed huts will be found in close proximity with buildings which equal Canada's most modern attempts. Unfortunately, many of these public edifices are lacking in trained personnel and cannot fulfill their objective. Here lies the challenge for the true Christian. If the gap can be filled by the right people, surely Africa will no longer be termed the 'dark continent' but one of great brightness and hope.

THANKS TENDERED

Miss Marion Dowdell thanked the speaker and Mrs. W. H. Black voiced the appreciation of the meeting to the members of St. Paul's for their warm hospitality. The president, Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell presided and the Rector, Rev. T. H. Good, gave the opening and closing prayers.

Congregational Meetings

HOLLOWAY STREET UNITED

The annual meeting of Holloway St. United Church was held on Monday, in the form of a pot-luck buffet supper. The Rev. C. W. Coleman opened the meeting by calling it to order and saying the grace. A bountiful meal was enjoyed by all.

The choir rendered the entertainment for the evening. Mrs. A. V. Barkley and Mrs. E. Hubbs played three piano duets, "The Bells of St. Mary's", "The Rosary" and "Oh, Sweet Mystery of Life." Miss Rosslyn Robertson rendered two solos, "I Kenw Where I am Going" and "Down by the Sally Garden." Instrumental music was presented by Dave Branscombe, William Campbell and Brett Daniels. Their selections were: "My Fair Lady Up to Date", "Glory to His Name" and "Near The Cross." These numbers were much enjoyed by all.

Mr. Douglas Ptolemy, Sunday school superintendent led the congregation in a devotional. The Lord's prayer was repeated and a hymn selected was Matthew 6: 1-16. Mr. Ptolemy spoke on 'Prayer' in the pen house life, its use, and the method of praying. Mr. Coleman thanked Mr. Ptolemy and asked the congregation to join with him in remembering those who had passed on during the year and he read the names and this was followed by silent prayer in their memory.

THANKS EXPRESSED

Mr. Coleman spoke encouraging of the work done during the past year and said that over the past several years the church property had been restored to excellent condition and congratulated the committee of stewards on their work and the United Church women for their part in the restoring the decoration of the church auditorium. Mrs. Scanlon were thanked for their work which goes on during the year and efforts on making the past year a success.

Reports were received from the various groups and accepted by the congregation. The Rev. O. Wagar reported on the progress of the Financial Committee of the Christian Education building and thanked all who helped with this work. Committees were appointed to carry on the work of the plans for this building.

Mrs. Dobbs thanked the A.O.T.S. Men's Club for convening the supper. The committee that handled the compiling of the annual report consisted of Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. G. Dobbs, and Mrs. H. Dixon. The report was much appreciated.

SESSION OFFICERS

The following are appointed to Session: Ray Sine, Leonard May, and Kenneth Parks. Mr. Knight moved that these be accepted and Mr. Don McCurdy seconded the motion. The motion carried.

Mother's Helper

WRAPPING GIFTS can be a messy operation for you as well as for the youngsters. Scraps of ribbon, bits of paper, price tags, etc. rapidly make a shambles out of a neat working surface. If you're busy at a card table, tape a paper bag to one side for a scrap catcher. Otherwise, keep a large carton or waste basket directly under the side, for brush-offs.

The president, Mrs Vaughan Glover presided. Mrs. R. E. Neal, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurers report was given by Mrs. J. Marett in the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. G. Howden.

The business meeting ensued with a motion by Mrs. Marett and Mrs. J. Aukland that $300 be transferred to the Church Board.

The ladies were asked to serve lunch to 100 persons when a Training Work Course for teachers of Centre Hastings will be held in Marmora on February 16th.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. Ronald McGarvey and Mrs. G. Wentworth.

An interesting skit was put on by Members of the Society, Mrs. Sanderson, E. Killian and J. Davidson with Mrs. J. M. D. Orchard as narrator. This was a portrayal of the life of the common people in China. Mrs. Glover thanked the ladies for their splendid effort.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostesses.

IODE Observes 'Founder's Day,' Gives Details of Work

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE) observes Founder's Day on February 13th, which will mark its 63rd anniversary.

It is the first women's organization to have as a project the building of community halls in the far north. One has been completed in Frobisher Bay in the Eastern Arctic; a second one in the Western Arctic at Tuktoyaktuk was opened by the national president, Mrs. Peter L. Robinson, in December of last year, and a third hall is under construction in the Central Arctic at Baker Lake.

IODE ORGANIZED

The order was organized in 1900 by Mrs. Clark Murray of Montreal and now has 979 chapters reaching from the Yukon to Newfoundland. It co-operates with the national chapters of the IODE in Bermuda and the Bahamas. It is associated with The Victoria League in England, and the Daughters of the British Empire in the United States of America.

The IODE is one of the largest voluntary, patriotic women's organizations in Canada. It stimulates patriotism through education and service, fosters unity within the Commonwealth, maintains the official organization for prompt and united action in times of emergency, and works for the betterment of Canada and the people.

Over 30 thousand voluntary women comprise the membership who raise and disburse over $1,000,000 annually.

SCHOOLS ADOPTED, ASSISTED

One-third of a million dollars is spent on education. During the past year 2,060 schools were adopted and assisted, 1,810 students were awarded scholarships, bursaries and grants from all grades of chapters, 157 of whom were from homes of ex-service personnel; 62 schools in the Far North, and 8 hostels received IODE assistance. Living in the West Indies and British Honduras, 49 schools have been adopted by IODE chapters.

4,235 Canadian school children who have been encouraged to be "pen pals" with other children in Canada and the Commonwealth, have exchanged letters.

$74,400 was awarded from I.O.D.E. First and Second War Memorial Funds to provide 14 post - graduate scholarships (Overseas) of $2,000 each, and 29 bursaries in Canadian universities to the value of $1,600 each, for children of Canadian war veterans.

SUPPLIES SHIPPED

In the field of service, half a million dollars is spent annually: $400,000 in Canada and $100,000 on supplies shipped to Europe, Africa, Korea, The West Indies, Hong Kong and India. Through the continuous work of I.O.D.E. members, thousands of knitted and sewn articles of clothing and quilts are made for distribution and chapters have undertaken the sponsorship of destitute and refugee children.

The I.O.D.E. is a patriotic, non-sectarian Canadian women's organization apd, by its diversity of interests, offers a satisfying outlet to any woman who is a Canadian citizen or British subject.

TWO LOCAL CHAPTERS

There are two chapters of the I.O.D.E. in Belleville. The St. Julian and the Argyll. Both do much work locally. All city secondary schools receive prizes or scholarships to children of war veterans and the St. Julian Chapter presents prizes to children of naturalized Canadian parents for proficiency in English.

Prizes and presentations are given adopted schools and special interest shown in Retarded children. Parcels of clothing are placed in each public school class room.

On citizenship court days, new Canadians are welcomed by the Chapters, and members help at blood donor clinics held at the Cancer Society work rooms.

As participating agents, they aid in the United Appeal canvass.

PHONY BANGS

False curls and bangs were common articles of hairdress among the Greeks of classical times.

River Valley W.I. Sponsors National Farm Forum

STIRLING — On Monday evening, February 4th, River Valley Women's Institute sponsored the National Farm Radio Forum at the school with an attendance of 23 men and women. There were 13 Institute members from River Valley W.I. and six from Pinegrove W.I.

It was regretted that due to road conditions the eight members of Charleston W.I. who had planned to attend were unable to be present.

The school room was decorated with friendship posters, an A.C.W.W. banner and with a set of United Nations initials and their meanings on the blackboard.

Mrs. Vernon Harry, vice-president welcomed the guests and each signed the guest book. At 8.30 p.m. Mrs. Roy Bush chairman for the event opened the meeting with a special welcome to all. Mrs. George Heasman was pianist and the group sang "O Canada" and "Friend and Neighbors". Mrs. J. Bush read a letter entitled "I am a New Canadian". Mrs. Ernest Carr read "The Story of the Farm Forum" as it was written ten a few years ago, in the "Home and Country".

GREETINGS

Mrs. Percy MacMullen brought greetings from West Hastings district and told how the executive of the National Farm Radio Forum had decided to invite the largest women's organization in Canada to participate. The first broadcast in 1962 was based on "Technical and Vocational Training" and it was so successful they decided to ask the Institute to participate again for 1963. She closed with a message from the Triennial Conference held at Melbourne, Australia. It said in part "Member societies of A.C.W.W. must endeavour to give more to the Pennies for Friendship fund. Much more could be accomplished during the coming three years if there were sufficient funds. Mrs. MacMullen said that the Canadian Institutes were highly honored to have a place on this outstanding program.

Mrs. Roy Tucker read a message from Mrs. Ruth Hoock, Brampton and this outlined how through the United Nations, women contribute to health and nutrition; to the education and a better standard of living for underdeveloped peoples of the world.

Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis read an article on the distribution of surplus food stuffs. Other nations should be taught better methods of production, distributions, education and population.

Recently Dr. Helen C. Abell stressed that people from other lands should be invited into Canadian homes. Every year hundreds of people enter Canada to study in Canadian schools, offices and government institutions.

LISTEN TO BROADCAST

Mr. and Mrs. John Kane provided the radios and the group listened to the broadcast from 9 to 9.30 p.m. The thoughts that were presented included that the F.A.O. teaches people to make the best use of what they have. Miss Pearl Isaachsz of Ceylon, now studying home economics at MacDonald College, Guelph, on a $1000. Institute scholarship was interviewed. On her return to Ceylon she will train community leaders and their rural women and girls will spread the idea through their village classes. She will stress improvement of agricultural techniques and health and sanitation measures. She also hopes to establish and run food preservation centres on a commercial scale thereby assisting the government in its campaign to grow and preserve food products to the fullest extent possible.

The broadcast also stated that in 1961 F.W.I.C. raised $7,150 in Unesco gift coupons for the extension department of University College in the West Indies at Kingston Jamaica.

The Lady Aberdeen scholarship is used to assist in training mature country women who are now leaders and teachers for adult education, family welfare and home and country crafts.

The broadcast closed on the theme of "World Peace" and that women of rural Canada are most important. The group was arranged by number and 20 minutes were spent in discussing the various ideas. The chairman held open discussions and the secretary wrote the findings which will be forwarded to Toronto. Each branch were to a few thoughts of interest such as "Could our outdated machinery be used in less developed countries?" "Would bales of clothing be distributed by each branch Institute be of assance to the needy of other lands?" "How best could each branch stress world peace?"

SHORT SYNOPSIS

Following the discussion Mrs. Roy Tucker gave a short synopsis of letters in connection with the United Nations, such as: F.A.O. — Food and Agricultural Organization; U.N.E.S.C.O. — United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization; and U.N.I.C.E.F. — United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. The W.I.'s of Canada are now volunteer organizations but they do have consultant status with the United Nations. Mrs. Tucker stressed the advisability of all branches supporting their funds through their own organization where it is used so wisely. Later she collected "Pennies for Friendship" which amounted to over $3.

Mrs. George Heasman told of the various scholarships at provincial level. Some day it is hoped that each branch will respond with their donation and then the interest will be used to send trained home economists to other countries. Requests have come to F.W.I.C. for assistance but unfortunately funds have not been sent in as yet.

The chairman gave a paper entitled "Food for Thought" which was compiled from many sources. This was both informative and educational.

A.C.W.W. TALK

Mrs. Percy MacMullen spoke briefly re A.C.W.W. and said that Mrs. Van Beekhoff of the Netherlands is president of Associated Country Women of the World and this organization comprises 34 countries with women of all races, colors and creeds. It was organized 30 years ago and now there are over 340 constituent societies and 54 corresponding societies. As a power for good A.C.W.W. has become worthy partners in the international field and has gained the confidence of the United Nations. Unfortunately far too many Institute members do not seem to realize the tremendous forces behind in A.C.W.W.

The chairman closed the meeting with a poem written by Ethel Chapman, editor of Home and Country.

The agricultural group under the direction of Mrs. Jack Bush and assistants Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis, Mrs. Roy Irwin, Mrs. Ernest Carr, Mrs. John Kane, Mrs. Roy Tucker, Mrs. Glen Bush and Mrs. George Heasman served fruit bread, pickles, celery, cheese, cookies and coffee.

A decorated and lighted birthday cake made by Mrs. Ernest Carr was displayed and Mr. John Kane was honored as he was celebrating a birthday. The cake was then shared by those present.

Mrs. Alex Tanner, president of the Gregory branch voiced thanks on behalf of the group for the kind invitatin.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen on behalf of River Valley Branch expressed thanks to Mrs. Roy Bush who chaired the meeting and was responsible for the program arrangements.

The closing thought was in the poem "The cry of the world is not only — I have, — but also, I give."

Cleft Palate Children Need Help

WINNIPEG (CP) — About 200 sets of parents in Winnipeg are sending out a plea for help for their pre-school children.

The children all suffer from congenital cleft palates and the parents are seeking a speech therapist to come to Winnipeg and help their children to talk properly.

Until last year, there was such a therapist at Winnipeg's Children's Hospital. When she left for other work, there was no one to fill the gap.

J. E. Robinson, hospital administrator, says:

"We lost our speech therapist some time ago when she went to the Rehabilitation Hospital where she is working with adults.

"Once we got word from a therapist in Australia who wanted to come, but she changed her mind. Another time we almost got somebody from Scotland, but she broke a leg and that changed her mind."

He agreed with the parents that the best time to train these children is before they start school, but said continual advertising has had little effect.

The parents are desperate for help for their children, who they feel, could lead nearly normal lives if they could be given some trained help before they enter the competitive world of school.

Fine-Pointed Shoes Said On Way Out

MONTREAL (CP) — The fine-pointed toe in women's shoes is on the way out in Canada, officials of the Shoe Information Bureau of Canada say.

Representatives of leading Canadian shoe manufacturers said at a press conference Thursday the vogue "dinner tip" point and square toes were replacing the elongated pointed toe in spring and summer styles for 1963.

The most popular color and leather combination for women's shoes in the forthcoming season, will be black patent leather. Soft leathers in bone, mid-browns, blues and reds will follow in popularity.

The opened up look is still evident, with openings at the sides, sling pumps, and more perforated and mesh styles.

Heels will continue to be fine because of the unbreakable steel used in heels. Stacked heels will have their biggest fashion thin spring, ranging in height from one half inch to two inches.

That chairman of the bureau, Malcolm C. Knox, said that in Europe the broad square toe still is popular and most heels are two inches or less.

Children's dressy shoes will have fewer bows and ornaments. For service footwear, soles will be made of polyvinyl chloride, a material which wears well and does not mark floors.

WELFARE GROUPS TO MEET

OTTAWA (CP)—The emphasis will be on fund-raising when volunteer and professional workers of community funds and social planning councils meet at Windsor, Ont., Feb. 14-15, the Canadian Welfare Council said Thursday. The combined goals are expected to total $36,000,000 this year, up about $1,000,000 from last year.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

CHRISTINA LEWIS

AN ATTRACTIVE TABLE PROMOTES GOOD MANNERS

If junior's table manners aren't up to par, maybe the setting has something to do with his lack of interest and finesse.

Table manners tend to be better-behaved when the table is set the same way — with dipped dishes left over from broken and discarded sets and a table cloth that has seen better days. No wonder junior has difficulty learning to eat correctly, especially when half the essential "tools" are missing.

When young children are included in family meals, naturally, its impractical to use the best company china and linen. But with all the new and inexpensive items available, its now possible to set an everyday table that is just as pretty as the one you set for guests.

Functional and attractive for family settings are plastic dishes that don't chip or break, tablecloths and place mats that can be cleaned with a flick of a sudsy sponge; and stainless steel flatware that doesnt need polishing and requires only soap and water care. While fine napkins are one of the little luxuries of a well-mannered table, there are many a day when napkin fabrics that launder easily and are just as fetching in appearance. An attractive model we know makes her "family" napkins from squares of terry-cloth which she hems on the machine-washed and dried between runs.

Many of the new plastic table coverings are so good-looking they could pass for some of company settings. Particularly convenient for everyday dining are the vinyl place mats that in striking new patterns and colors. Some look so much like linen that you have to feel the eye. Non-skid backs add to their practicality, so young diners will be encouraged to sit in one of position.

For something "fancier" on a family table, there's also a lace cloth of 100 per cent Orlon that has a stain-resistant finish and practically takes care of itself. All it requires is a wash, a rinse, and then it can be crisp-dried without need of stretching, blocking or ironing.

Plastic dinnerware also has kept pace in handsome new designs, textures and colors. Recently improved, functionally as well as in styling, it now is more resistant to acid and food stains, resists scratches, won't chip and can safely be washed in the hot, hot suds required to keep dishes sanitary.

Just as practical for daily and day-time dining are stainless flatware, which can take a lot of hard wear and still keep its shiny appearance. Some of the newer designs have solid wood handles that add an additional touch of elegance to an everyday setting.

So if junior's table manners aren't what they should be, maybe he craves a chance of seem. An attractive setting at family meals might be all the incentive he needs.

SMALL TALK

How to Care For Your Baubles

By ZENA CHERRY

Mrs. R. A. Vaughan-Jones of Toronto, past president of the Metal Arts Guild said something to me recently which stuck, "Canadian women have beautiful jewelry but so many wear it filthy dirty."

"Really?" and though I try not to fall into that female failing of taking things personally, I looked at my ring and it wasn't very shiny. "I cart my stuff in for my once-a-year check-up and cleaning."

"My goodness," she shook her blonde head, "your wouldn't wear anything else every day and wash it only once in twelve months. It needs frequent care at home between the annual professional job."

I quite believe in going to the top, so I asked the Keeper of the Jewel House in the Tower of London, Major-General Silwell who lives in the Tower in a large royal apartment over the Traitors' Gate. He said me, "My job is far from honorary — I am fully responsible for everything here. We clean the Crown Jewels when we think they need it, rather often. The beginning of February. Guards, send people over there. It takes three or four days. What they need is not known."

Next I queried Garrard and Co. who have been Court jewellers for 125 years. We don't think their advice very useful — could be English reticence, but here's what they said. "We are naturally not in a position to disclose details concerning this highly confidential work but can say that jewelry should be cleaned frequently."

Next Jewellers and C and H Wartski and as I understand this lofty lingo the phrase means when pieces of the Royal Household buy jewels, they buy here. Wartski has this to say: "The best way to clean diamonds and other precious stones, if set, is with ammonia and alcohol. Place in warm water and dry in warm box wood dust."

Yes, I don't know what box wood dust is either — and so — to the Smithsonian Institution. Head curator G. Arlington Cooper says, "Jewelry should be cleaned regularly by soaking for a time in a cup containing some household ammonia. Brush with a small toothbrush. Then dip in water with a small amount of detergent in it, and finally rinse in clear water. Dry with soft cloth."

Birks of Canada have further advice, "Protect jewels by keeping them in lined jewel box. Keep emeralds, sapphires, rubies and other gems separate from each other, and from diamonds, or the harder gems will scratch the softer ones."

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

Question: . . . Ever since I was a child and before I even took cooking lessons at school my mother always taught me to make gravy with cornstarch rather than flour. I simply mix 1 tablespoon of cornstarch with 1 cup of cold water until smooth and add salt and pepper. When the roast or steak or whatever, is cooked, I remove it to a hot platter and keep it warm. I pour off excess fat from the roasting pan, leaving the meat juices in the pan. I then add a cup (or 2) of cold water to the juices in the pan and bring to a boil. Once boiling, I bring to a simmer and then add gradually my cornstarch and water mixture. In this way I can stir to control the thickness of the gravy. We like this, at our age. It has never, never, lumped or overthickened, and if I have to keep it warm, to await guests, I simply place it in the top of a double boiler. This is such a simple method with never a lump in the gravy that I'm beginning to wonder why it is never mentioned in any cooking recipes. Is there anything detrimental?—"Gladys".

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Batter-Fried Fish Fillets; Tartare Sauce; Tomato and Onion and Buttered Toast Casserole; Kernel Corn in Cream Sauce; Shredded Carrot and Lettuce Salad; Blueberry Cobbler with Brown Sugar Spice Sauce; Coffee.

Answer: No—certainly there is nothing wrong with it. I should say to readers who want to try this very thin cornstarch-and-water paste that if they like medium-thick gravy they should use at least 2 tablespoons of cornstarch to 2 cups of finished gravy. Thank you.

Letter: This I suppose is known to all women cooks but it is new to me until lately. I am an old lumber camp and construction cook. I used to peel potatoes raw Then I tried this dodge which I pass on I boil raw potatoes for a few minutes according to their age — a little longer the older they are. Then either use a rubber glove, or dip each hot potato into cold water just so as to be able to handle — and they can be peeled like new potatoes. A big saving on both potatoes and time. This way might help some women that I have seen paring potatoes with a butcher-knife . . . Old-time Cook, Harry H. S.

Answer: Another man! Welcome! Thanks from me and readers for a good potato paring tip.

Question: . . . Is there a trick to boiling onions so that the insides don't pop out? . . . Kilnore Van V.

Answer: You are boiling the onions too hard and too long I think and they are too free in too much water. Also when you peel them do not cut away a wide slice at the top. Merely pare the dry outer skin away—no excess of the in-er top layer. If you can buy any cooking parchment, moisten a sheet of it and wrap the onions in it to boil in plenty of water. This keeps them still and confines the odor.

Women's Activities

Drunk When He Said He Loved Me

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—The first time Tom told me he loved me he was drunk, so I didn't put much value on it. But my mother has often said that with some men that's the only time they get their nerve up.

Then I moved east with my parents. We kept corresponding and he said he was coming down in the summer. But he didn't, and when I had a chance for a holiday in B.C., I went, and phoned him on the way through.

He seemed angry at something and said he was fed up with women. I knew he was talking about an ex-girl friend he had been out with. But I didn't know what to do about him.

In December he sent me a Christmas card saying he was sorry he didn't get down last summer. Should I write him a letter or should I ignore it?—UNCERTAIN.

DEAR UNCERTAIN—If you like him, write by all means. Nobody's perfect, and this is his way of apologizing.

DEAR DORIS—I am twenty-one and have got absolutely nowhere in life so far because I can't seem to find where my talents lie. I have my grade twelve.

Recently I have treid a course in hairdressing, but failed because the instructress said there was no great strength in my hands and no artistic ability. I felt pretty bad because I banked on it and enjoy working with hair. Do you know of any way I could still do this on my own? She said a sturdy robust girl is required for this job, which I'm not, being rather small boned. She also felt that I would be unable to master typing either; I must add that I did try it and didn't fare too well.

Also, I like drawing cartoons, that is copying them off a comic strip. But my guidance teacher said I possess the talent but there isn't too much future in it. Enclosed is a sample. Any suggestions you can offer will be greatly appreciated.—DISCOURAGED.

DEAR DISCOURAGED—A girl who can get her grade 12 need not be discouraged. Your drawing shows artistic ability and a good color sense.

But you downgrade yourself. My guess is you have other difficulties. You feel inadequate, defeated, before you start. Are there home problems?

Along with tests of ability, you need a complete assessment of personality. Visit your mental health clinic for personal counselling.

DEAR DORIS— I am a widower of 59; modern home, no family. How long should a man wait before he thinks about getting married again (a respectable time) after the wife passes away?—HALE AND HEARTY.

DEAR HALE—A year's long enough, any more. And has it ever occurred to you that it's a compliment to the wife who has passed on, when her man cannot bear the emptiness?

Just don't expect to replace her—and never, never make a point of her good qualities to any second mate. Every woman and every marriage have different assets. Life has changed.

and properties would be protected.

The rebels said they were rising against imperialism in the name of Arab brotherhood.

"In the name of God, people of Iraq," said a communique, "we have been able with the help of God to destroy the enemy of God and of the people, Abdel Karim Kassem, and his gang which has used the country for its interests and which choked liberty and disrupted the law."

RECALLS KASSEM REVOLT

Kassem expressed similar sentiments July 14, 1958, when he seized power in an army revolt in which pro-Western King Faisal II, his uncle, Crown Prince Abdul Ilah, and Premier Nuri Said were killed.

Voices on the radio chanted "union, union" in an apparent cry for union with Nasser and the U.A.R.

The rebels also broadcast a statement mourning the "martyrs" who fell in a pro-Nasser revolt against Kassem in 1959. The broadcasts gave indications that the rebels' control was not complete.

Communiques and statements urged the people to fight on the streets for the revolt.

One — Nasser sentiment was shown to be high in Iraq, and Kassem's recent mounting difficulties were bound to increase this. In the 18 months she suffered to great blows to his prestige.

The first occurred in June-July, 1961, when he announced that the British withdrawal of Kuwait was an integral part of Iraq. British forces, which just had given full independence to the sheikhdom, hurried back to frustrate the Iraqi leader and Arab League forces moved into Kuwait as a further barrier.

The Kurdish revolt showed the ineptitude of the Iraqi armed forces under Kassem's wavering leadership.

Countless times Kassem announced the revolt had been smothered and its leader, Mullah Mustafa Barzani, had been killed. But the uprising continued in the mountains of northern Iraq.

Earlier this year, in what seemed a final bid to end the fighting, Kassem offered an amnesty to all rebels. When none came to meet his first deadline, he extended it until March.

KURDS TAKE CREDIT

There was no indication whether the uprising was linked with the Kurdish rebels. But a radio station operated by the Kurds in northeastern Iraq also promptly reported what it called "the end of the dictatorial regime of Kassem."

The broadcast claimed that the Kurds paved the way for Kassem's downfall by their own revolt. It did not say, however, whether the Kurds would seek a pact with the rebel regime.

Kassem gave western diplomats the impression of having become highly emotional and unstable during the last two years. They attributed this to the extreme tension under which he was living.

His illness came from the Iraqi scene would not upset the major western powers if they were sure his successor would carry out a firm and more cooperative international policy.

Kassem disturbed the West not only because of his dealings with the Communist powers but also because his government had served notice it intended eventually to nationalize most of the oil industry, owned primarily by British and American interests.

Presumably in pursuit of this policy, Iraq's minister of oil in recent days has been visiting Moscow and conferring with Soviet bigwigs.

Bilingual Maps For Surveyors Is Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Bilingual maps were opposed Thursday by a bilingual French-Canadian at the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Surveying.

Maurice Landry, assistant director of the National Capital Commission, said bilingual maps are "completely impractical."

He told the surveyors' convention that all Canadian maps should be printed separately in English and French even if it costs more.

Mr. Landry said bilingual maps become "so cluttered up with names" they are impossible to read. This presented a major problem to tourists.

Attempts had been made in Canada to produce bilingual maps. Every attempt failed because the map sheets became overloaded with names, confusing the person trying to read them, he said in a panel discussion.

NEEDS GREAT CARE

Mr. Landry said greater care should be taken in translating geographic names. An English city or French place name should be translated into the other language only on the authority of widespread local or historical usage.

"If a geographic place name is English, it should appear on a French map in English. The same thing should apply to an English map where the place name is French."

Mr. Landry gave two examples. He said Regina should not appear on French maps as "Cite de Regina" but as Regale Philippe in Quebec and should not appear on English maps as Lake Philip.

Bilingual boundaries also are bad, he said. There should be separate publications.

THINKS TOO EXPENSIVE

What sense was there in going to the expense of producing bilingual publications? he asked. An individual was bilingual he could read only the one in his native language.

Lt.-Col. L. M. Sebert, deputy director of the army's military survey, said most city maps in Canada are so out of date they would be useless in the event of a disaster.

City maps for military requirements had to show the locations of churches, schools, hospitals, roads, city halls, police and fire stations and other key points. They also had to show the locations of services underground so they be shut down, such as power and gas pumping stations.

Only two women in Canada is to get cities "to stand still while their picture is being taken."

"In the case of Toronto, we found that in the two years that it took from the taking of mapping photography in 1960 until the maps are produced in 1963, the buildings and will be obsolescent at the date of printing and will have to be followed fairly shortly with a second edition."

Budget

Leader MacDonald commented that "by the time the government has finished patting itself on the back" in the 214-hour budge speech, "there's little time left for anything other than a few additions to the present grants system where long-delayed needs have forced the government's hand."

Mr. Allan said capital spending would probably hit $350,317,000 before the end of the current year, and rise to $358,334,000 in the next year.

He forecast a nominal surplus of $378,000 in 1963-64 budget finances, and said the figure was arrived at after making provision for $2,500,000 in capital disbursements to be paid out of current revenue.

He leaves here Saturday for Regina and preliminary discussions on the party's campaign in Ontario and the West. Mr. Thompson and Deputy Leader Real Caouette plan to open their Quebec campaign in Montreal on Feb. 24.

OPPOSES NUCLEAR ARMS

Mr. Caouette said in Montreal Thursday his party is opposed to Canadian forces having nuclear arms.

He was asked at a press conference for "a straight yes-or-no answer" to the question whether or a Social Credit government would equip Canadian forces with nuclear weapons.

Mr. T.U. — She insists I change my will and leave all to her.

Mrs. T.U. — Our children are wealthy but I don't want to have to turn to them.

Mr. T.U. — We've been married 44 years and have two married daughters and seven grandchildren. Last year I had the usual will drawn up, dividing my estate among my wife, my children, and my grandchildren. But ever since then my life has been a hell, because my wife insists that I make her the sole beneficiary and exclude the children.

I haven't talked this over with my lawyer yet. First of all, I'm ashamed to because he's my nephew and this might get out among the family. Secondly, I'm pretty sure it's illegal to shut out your children that way, for no reason.

It seems she has a terrible fear of being left unprotected.

Mrs. T.U. — I've seen a few horrible cases where what happens to an elderly mother after her money is gone and she is forced to depend on her children. In view of the fact that our daughters are each married to wealthy men, and one of the girls is head of a cosmetics business herself, it seems ridiculous for my husband to cut me out the usual will leaving me the usual one-third which the law prescribes. The other two-thirds which he's leaving to our children and grandchildren is just like pin-money to them. But to me it would mean peace of mind.

It's painful to have to discuss this. I hope my husband is around a long time to take care of me. But he should think of later, too.

The Council: Usually when a man leaves a will in which his wife provides for "maintenance" her down rights, one gathers that his children are in need (and he feels she won't care for them), or it's sufficient to meet the needs (if he loved her), or that he's expressing his displeasure at his marriage in this way (he didn't love her). So we must conclude that there's more than meets the eye in this arrangement between Mr. and Mrs. U. over his bequest to her.

Underlying the talk about Mr. U.'s last testament is the hint that they don't trust each other. Else, wouldn't Mr. U. relax in the assurance that Mr. U., providing for her now, can be counted on to make adequate provision for her in his absence? And wouldn't Mr. U. be glad to leave Mrs. U. something — even all of it, to his wife, confident that she'd handle it well and use some of the funds to make grandparental gestures and gifts to the descendants? What's strong?

We can only guess. Perhaps Mrs. U. has demonstrated that she can't handle money efficiently. Or there may be "bad blood" between her and the young relatives. Or he may be concealed about members of his own family which he's not so fond of, may be more readily forthcoming from his children than his wife, whom he's not around.

The resolution of this difference depends upon the true relationship between husband and wife, after these many years. And the "Cupid" will only come out in two offices — the lawyer's and the marriage counselor's. If Mr. U. — embarrassed to have it out in front of his lawyer-nephew, he should change lawyers so that his wife's misgivings can be aired and allayed quietly.

Then is Mrs. U. we say there's no certainty as to who will predecease whom. Your wise course is to do your darndest to keep your husband alive, and glad he's alive! In the final analysis, he will be his wife's business. Trust him to be fair. Forget about those "horrible examples," and look to the future with confidence that you'll be "done right by."

be overlooking ominous hidden stocks of Soviet missiles in Cuba.

MIGHT BE WRONG

Kennedy expressed confidence that such secret stockpiles do not exist, but he conceded he could be wrong.

If he is, Kennedy implied, it wouldn't make much difference because hidden weapons would have to be uncovered and placed in position before used—and this would be discovered by aerial reconnaissance. He said:

"We cannot prove that there is not a missile in a cave or that the Soviet Union isn't going to ship (one) next week. We prepared for that. But we will put them where they do, and when they do, the Soviet Union and Cuba and the United States must all be aware that this will produce the greatest crisis which the world has faced in its history."

He also warned President de Gaulle that if the French leader persists in attempting to split the North Atlantic alliance, the Western camp will face disaster.

Kennedy said de Gaulle is no friend of the Atlantic and European Treaty Organization but the U.S. believes this treaty "is what keeps the Atlantic and Europe together."

REDS MAY EXPLOIT

"The question really is whether we are willing to be partners or whether there will be sufficient division between us that the Soviet Union can exploit."

The Anglo-American Polaris agreement at Nassau, which de Gaulle had criticized, was an attempt to give those countries which lacked a nuclear capacity "a greater voice in the management of the weapons and in the political direction of the weapons and in their control."

Questioned whether the U.S. could provide the Allies with all greater control and thus reduce difficulties with de Gaulle and Canadian governments, Kennedy said Thursday he is conscious of his obligations under the McMahon act which prohibits transfer of custody and control over American warheads to other countries.

nually in oil revenues to serve his domestic economy and help pay a $100,000,000 defence budget.

This was a prime reason why he tried to pressure the Iraq Petroleum Company into raising payments and why he tried to annex Kuwait.

When he took over the country, Kassem declared Iraq's previously pro-Western course and looked toward Nasser in Cairo and toward Moscow. He took Iraq out of the Western-sponsored Baghdad Pact.

But the Iraqi Communists and supporters of Nasser grew increasingly restive as Kassem more and more pursued his own course. Finally he cracked down on the Communists and broke with Nasser, a break that split the Arab world.

In recent months, Kassem tried to avert the spotlight from internal unrest by accusing the United States of sponsoring spy rings in Iraq and ordered the arrest of an Armenian employee of the U.S. embassy on charges of aiding the Kurdish revolt. He also ordered the British of spending £400,000 ($1,300,000) to foment the revolt.

But he believes that something could be worked out in the coming months, with patience and imagination and with the co-operation of Congress. The preliminary negotiations would be to prevent destruction of the Western alliance because of the "difficult and sensitive question of control of nuclear weapons which is tied up with sovereignty."

Kennedy also touched on British's failure to join the European Common Market. "It is possible there may be some reconsideration of the British application," he said.

On the Cuban issue, Kennedy said discussions are being conducted with the Soviet Union concerning a promised withdrawal from Cuba of remaining Russian troops in Cuba.

Kennedy said he still is greatly concerned over the fact that Russia has some 17,000 technicians and troops in Cuba. But he doesn't believe they pose a threat to the U.S. He suggested they are mainly there to exert some form of control or policing on the Cubans.

As for the demise of the Fidel Castro regime, he said: "I can not sit down and say time which I can clearly see the end of the Castro regime. I believe it is going to come, but I couldn't possibly give a time limit."

Canadian girls with a flair for cooking have the chance to earn a $1,500 scholarship, Teen-Age Canada reports today.

Teen-Age Canada

Young Canadian Girls Know Way Around Home

By JACK HUTTON

How many gals these days have baked their first cake by the time they're 12, can toss a salad by the time they are 14, or can carve a roast by the time they're 16?

The answer, I've been finding out this week, is for an amazing number of young Canadian girls know their way around the family kitchen.

Some of them cooked their first "brownie" before they could read their first primer.

If there is a top teen-age cook somewhere in Canada she has a chance to win either a $1,500 scholarship or a $1,000 Canada Savings Bond.

A nationally advertised flour company is sponsoring a Teen-Canada Teen-Age Bake-Off for Canadian girls between the ages of 13 and 17, inclusive. Deadline for entry is midnight, Feb. 23.

If you're interested, ask about the contest at your local grocery store or write to "Bake-Offs," Box 6089, Montreal. Contests are to be held in every province before a national contest April 27 in Toronto.

Prizes for the provincial winners are a $100 Canada Savings Bond, inscribed trophies and one piece of luggage. The company will also send each provincial winner with an adult to the Toronto competition.

As soon as I heard of the contest, I began to wonder about the future cooks of Canada. Do high school girls really worry about the difference between a medium and a soft-boiled egg?

Miss Helen Gougeon of Montreal, cooking consultant for the contest, thinks they do.

"Ten years ago the teen-ager who liked to bake cookies and bread and showed a keen interest in cooking lore was regarded as pretty far-out," she commented. "But there has been a gradual change."

Part of the credit, she believes, belongs to the wife of U.S. President Kennedy. "She's an appealing young woman who understands the creativity of cooking and has made entertaining at the White House something very special," she said.

I spoke, to a 16-year-old friend, Marlene, who is not only good-looking but one of the most socially active teen-agers I know. (Doesn't like publicity, though. Hence the first name.)

"Maybe some girls hate cooking," she said, "but I don't think that a girl who likes the kitchen is considered square by the others. After all, how can you expect a husband to put up with bad food?"

"I've always tried to learn as much from eating classes at school. And they are even better than what I might learn at home since they force us to start off from scratch instead of using mixes."

Another girl told of the evening when her mother proudly passed the word that her daughter and a friend were making the biscuits for a Home and School meeting.

The biscuits turned out to be so hard that not even the girl's could bite them. The mother was so embarrassed that she immediately started giving her daughter lessons.

The national contest, if you feel like trying your luck, will ask you to give a recipe of your own and also one supplied to you. The best of luck to you.

John Fraser, 17, of Vancouver, wants to take issue with jazz fans or critics who think there is anything new about the Bossa Nova.

"Frankly," he writes, "I'm getting a little tired of hearing people say that the Bossa Nova is something brand new on the hit parade or in jazz.

"Didn't anybody else listen to that excellent Album issued a few years ago with the excellent alto saxophone of Bud Shank and the guitar of Laurendo Almeida?

"They made a beautiful sound in which Shank's alto fluted jazz phrases over Almeida's Latin-American rhythms. Listen to it today and it sounds like the Bossa Nova."

JILTED

Nice to hear a story with a happy ending.

Charles (Chuck) Marshall, 16, of Halifax, writes: "I was amused by your column on sick valentines. But it also reminded me of how a valentine put me in my place two years ago.

"It had been telephoning a new girl at school once or twice a week but couldn't get her to go out with me. I wrote her notes and got friends to put in a good word for me, but no dice.

"When I got a valentine with her name on the back of the envelope, I felt like walking on air. On the outside the valentine read: 'Guess who my secret heart-throb is?'

"I felt like shouting when I opened the card and found, 'NOT YOU — STOP TELEPHONING.' That's a hint that's hard to avoid.

"But just in case any of your other readers get a similar card this month, there's a different ending. We met at a party one year later, and have been going together ever since!"

More Than Peace of Mind

By ROY L. SMITH

There is a preacher within the circle of my acquaintanceship who is so enamored of that phase of the Christian gospel which promises inner assurance to the believer that it is said of him that no matter what his sermon may be, it always goes back to the text, "My peace I leave with you."

That there is a place in good religion—and a large place—for preaching peace of mind is perfectly true, but there is a very grave danger that we may become so fascinated by this aspect of the Christian message that we lose sight of its opposite—that the Christian gospel is a declaration of war on all that is evil and unrighteous.

Certainly the Christian is assured of peace of mind, but he is also assured of crosses, burdens, opposition, struggle, and finally death. When Jesus issued His challenge, He said, "If any man would come after Me, let him take up his cross."

MARCHING ORDERS

Miss Elsie Ferris, one of the famous lawyers of California, became a Christian quite a number of years subsequent to entering the practice of law as a result of a terrifying experience in Yucatan, in which she saw a companion fall to her death from the side of one of the great pyramids.

In describing her Christian experience to me, she said, "I do not go to church on Sunday morning to be assured of peace of mind. I go to get my marching orders for the week."

That's it! Marching orders!

If the New Testament record of Jesus' teachings means anything, it means that He left His followers out into the world to change things. Very evidently He was not satisfied with things as they were. He could never be content with the suffering, the self-righteousness He saw all about Him.

He believed there was a better way for men to live than the way they were living. And I am convinced that if He were to appear, today, in Washington, London, Berlin, New Delhi, or Moscow, He would say, "You people have missed the whole point of living. I have come to show you how to really have life while you live."

And He would meet the same opposition, and from the same sources, with which he met such a disastrous experience on the occasion of His first appearance among us.

All of which is to say that it is the Christian's business to make changes in those situations and conditions of which Christ did, and of which He would, disapprove.

BEWARE OF COMFORTABLE

It was said of a young preacher who had just arrived to begin his first pastorate, that "he takes naturally to luxury." And because of his eagerness to avail himself of every comfort he suffered greatly in the estimation of the community.

But tell me, I pray you, why is it so impious on the part of the preacher when he seeks out the luxurious, and such a mark of distinction when the layman achieves the same degree of luxury?

Genuine piety is quite independent of luxury. He who is genuinely devoted to his Lord knows, as Paul did, "how to be exalted and how to be abased."

There are those lay people with thousands in the savings bank, who think it is a sign of his secularism if they discover that the preacher also has money in the same savings bank.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 10: "Helpers in Jesus' Ministry," Mark 6: 1-56.

Moreover, there are those laymen who seem to think it is a part of their Christian responsibility to keep their preacher anxious about his personal financial affairs. There is, for example, the story of the old man who prayed, very dovoutly each morning, "Lord, keep our pastor humble, and we will keep him poor."

CONCERN MARK OF CHRISTIAN

He is the most faithful Christian who most surely shares his Lord's concerns.

If Jesus was concerned about the little children, how can we be indifferent when we hear about little ones who are hungry?

If Jesus held conceit and self-righteousness in contempt, how can we afford to be guilty of such sins?

If Jesus' concern took in the whole world, how far short of that limit do we dare stop?

If Jerusalem brought tears to Jesus' eyes, how does He expect us to feel about our home town?

It is not the aim of Christianity to provide us with peace of mind, but with righteous concerns.

Canadian Manufacturers' Price for Refined Sugar Up 45 PC Since Cuban Crisis

MONTREAL (CP)—Pressures of supply and demand in world markets have driven the Canadian manufacturers' price for refined sugar up slightly more than 45 per cent since the Cuban crisis last October.

The price in Montreal of refined sugar was raised again Thursday to $10.60 a 100-pound bag. It was the eighth price increase since Jan. 1, when refined sugar was $9.10, plus freight charges, a 100-pound bag.

Manufacturers say the price charged for Canadian refined sugar is a direct reflection of the price of raw sugar on the world market in London. Some countries, such as the United States and the United Kingdom, buy under special price agreements, while Canada buys on the world market.

Manufacturers attribute the rise in world prices partly to a poor cane crop in Cuba and continuing uneasiness about Cuba's political situation.

Another major source of raw sugar for Canada is the European beet crop, which is estimated at about 8,500,000 metric tons this year, compared with about 7,000,000 metric tons in the 1961-62 growing season.

WEATHER HIT CROP

The cold weather which swept Europe early this winter is considered a big factor in the smaller crop this season.

Another reason given for the increase in world prices is a shift in the world balance between production and consumption.

Until January, 1961, production of raw sugar was growing at a faster rate than world consumption. Aided by the downward pressure caused by some large sugar stocks, prices fell to all-time lows.

Last January, refined sugar in 100-pound bags sold at $6.30.

But since then, manufacturers say, production has levelled off, while consumption has continued to increase.

The result has been 45 fluctuations in the price of refined sugar in Canada. Between January and late October, the trend was erratically upward.

CRISIS BOOSTS PRICES

But with the onset of the Cuban crisis, the price spiral accelerated. A price change was announced Oct. 23, the day the crisis emerged, and of the 20 price changes since then, only two have been decreases—and they were in a brief period of confidence following the crisis.

Since Jan. 1, the upward spiral has had a dizzying pace. By Jan. 16, the price was $10; by Jan. 20, $10.20, and by January 31 had soared to $10.50.

The present level is the highest since prices skyrocketed in the aftermath of the Suez crisis in April, 1957, and reached $10.80 a 100-pound bag. The all-time high is $11.75 a bag reached in 1923.

Three of Canada's major sugar refiners—Canada and Dominion Sugar Co. Ltd., Atlantic Sugar Refineries Co. Ltd., and St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries Ltd.—are located in Montreal. They market their sugar across the country.

Their refined sugar prices includes transportation costs, so prices at Toronto and other points west of Montreal are higher than in Montreal. The refiners' price in Toronto is 20 cents a 100-pound bag higher, while in Winnipeg it is $1.40 higher.

ESTABLISHED AT PORTS

The refined sugar price is established at the three refining centres that are overseas ports — Montreal, Vancouver and Saint John, N.B.

The St. Lawrence Refining Co. Ltd. in Vancouver now is charging $10.70 a 100-pound bag. All the company's production is from cane sugar. It is marketed in B.C. and in parts of the Prairie provinces.

The increases in the manufacturers' price of refined sugar are passed along fairly directly to the consumer.

Manufacturers of products with high sugar content have also been caught in the price spiral also.

Soft drink manufacturers raised their price on single bottles by eight cents from seven cents. Candy and ice cream manufacturers have been forced to take similar steps.

HELPS DOMESTIC INDUSTRY

One bright spot in the picture is the effect rising sugar prices probably will have on the domestic sugar - beet industry. About 20 per cent of Canada's sugar is made from beet sugar produced in Canada.

In Edmonton, Ian Angus, general manager of Canada Sugar Factories, Ltd., said changes in the world sugar price has an immediate effect on beet sugar production. Increases in the world price stimulated beet sugar production in proportion.

The company produces 150,000,000 pounds of granulated sugar a year from beets, supplying the needs of Alberta, Saskatchewan and part of Manitoba.

Conservatives Close Ranks For Election

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative officials appear to be left little doubt of their party's confidence that the party has effectively closed its ranks for the April 8 election campaign.

Yet their confidence, and the determination of unity from the party caucus, hasn't stilled speculation on the circumstances and the nature of the rumored challenge earlier in the week to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's leadership.

The full story probably won't be told for years, until diaries of the principals become available to the public.

The story of the challenge, or of a feeling in some quarters that the party should seek a new leader, began on Tuesday with reports that a group of cabinet ministers was meeting to consider asking Mr. Diefenbaker to poll his full cabinet on the desirability of a change. Ministers close to the situation insist there was nothing secret about the meeting, that the group kept Mr. Diefenbaker informed through an intermediary and their discussions. He remained at home, apparently working on the speech he was to deliver in the Commons later in the day during debate on Social Credit and Liberal non-confidence motions that toppled his minority government Tuesday night.

WAS FINE SPEECH

The speech itself struck observers as one of Mr. Diefenbaker's finest oratorical efforts in years.

Although he appealed directly to the Social Credit and New Democratic Party members for their support in the Commons vote, he also made a strong plea to Conservatives gathering here that the real impact was on his own followers who saw in the debate that he was not fighting trim for a campaign.

The situation was reported to have changed considerably at a caucus meeting Wednesday of Conservative MPs and senators. There was a noticeable lessening of forthright public expressions of dissatisfaction mostly from cabinet ministers.

Trade Minister Hees, caucus chairman, said: "There was a great victory spirit" and "the prime minister is the spirit of confidence." He labelled talk of a cabinet revolt against Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership as "pure fiction" and dismissed as amusing stories heard in a long time."

Senator Wallace McCutcheon, cabinet minister without portfolio, said the party is absolutely united and reports of a leadership challenge were "fantastic." Finance Minister Nowlan said the state of the party was "never more excellent."

ACCOUNTS VARY

Accounts of the scenes in the caucus vary.

One informed source said that at the outset one cabinet minister told the caucus he planned to resign, but withdrew from the meeting when the prime minister gave an assurance that he would not conduct an anti-American election campaign.

Other ministers said to be ready to resign—some reports said as many as 12—stayed their hands.

Veteran MP A. J. Brooks, veteran Conservative and former cabinet minister who has never had to campaign as an orator, is said to have made an emotional and effective appeal for unity.

One source said that the prime minister, almost as soon as he arrived, called for and obtained individual pledges of support from cabinet ministers later and that some broke down as they gave it.

Send Embalmed Heart Back To Scotland

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Marie Hurley is sending the family's embalmed heart back to Scotland because she wants to prevent it from further abuse from disbelievers.

The heart, reposing in a box on a cupboard shelf in Mrs. Hurley's home, belonged 313 years ago to the Marquis of Montrose—at least that's how the legend story goes.

The Marquis, a flamboyant royalist, asked before he was hanged in 1650, that his ashes be scattered in the air. The Marquis' niece bribed prison officers and obtained his heart which she embalmed and carried around in a silver box.

After a career which took it to a municipal treasure house and back, the heart was given to the Royal Stuart Society which in 1952 sold it to Mrs. Hurley, a direct descendant of the Marquis.

A few months ago Mrs. Hurley said she had decided to try to have the heart cremated and scattered over Scottish soil. If that was impossible, she was going to have the ashes sprinkled on her own coffin.

Mrs. Hurley, 76, said Thursday a cousin in Scotland, Christopher Campbell Johnson, heard of her cremation decision—and "let out a yelp." He wrote her asking that the heart be spared.

"So I decided to bequeath it to him," she said. "Even if it isn't the real one it's pretty close. I don't want it insulted any more."

Commission Will Postpone Action Against Officers

TORONTO (CP)—The Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission decided Thursday at a special meeting to postpone action against individual police officers involved in the arrest of Rabbi Norbert Letner until the rabbi's civil actions against individual officers are settled by the courts.

The rabbi's arrest a year ago was the subject of a judicial inquiry by Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of Ontario Supreme Court who found the arrest illegal, that a police sergeant twice struck the rabbi and others used abusive language against him.

Magistrate C. O. Bick, chairman of the Metro commission, announced the commission's decision and said Metro legal department will be asked to consider whether the 18 police officers involved should be disciplined for actions.

Magistrate Bick revealed that in the last 10 years, 3297 Metro policemen and women have faced disciplinary action. He said that of these, 141 have been asked to resign, 116 have lost days off, 61 were reprimanded, 40 lost part of their pay, 18 were reduced in rank and 15 were either dismissed or permitted to resign in lieu of dismissal.

The most frequent accusation against police, he said, was of acting in a manner likely to bring discredit to the force.

Ontario Budgets for Astounding Increase in College Enrolment

TORONTO (CP)—Grants for three new universities and plans for a fourth to meet an expected "astounding" increase in student enrolments by 1970 were contained in the 1963-64 education budget presented Thursday by Provincial Treasurer James Allan of Ontario.

Mr. Allan said the record $70,000,000 university allocation —an increase of 50 per cent on the current grant — includes funds for a start this year on university colleges in Scarborough and Etobicoke, Toronto suburbs, and the fully-autonomous Trent University in Peterborough. All three will be finished by 1967.

He said planning is well-advanced for Brock University to serve the Niagara Peninsula and the institution will receive its first grant in the next budge. The university is scheduled to receive its first freshman class in 1965.

COLLEGE AT SUDBURY

Mr. Allan said the budget plans also include a new bilingual teachers' college at Sudbury, start on work of an Ontario College of Education in London for secondary teachers and plans for a similar institution—possibly for women—in Toronto.

He said present Ontario university enrolment of 33,000 is expected to exceed 55,000 by 1970, and the increased grants are part of an expansion program to meet this rapidly increasing enrolment.

"In all areas of the province, university facilities are, being expanded or development at a rate which would have been considered impossible a few years ago," Mr. Allan said.

John C. McCaffrey, secretary of the Ontario government's university advisory committee said $1,000,000 of the $19,357,000 University of Toronto grant has been earmarked for expenditure this year on the university satellites at Scarborough and Etobicoke.

The liberal arts colleges will each accommodate 3,000 students by 1970, with total accommodation of 5,000. The Scarborough college will be the first developed and is expected to enrol its first classes in the fall of 1965. Classes at the Etobicoke college will probably start in 1967.

Dr./Claude Bissell, University of Toronto president, said the university has already agreed to purchase a 202-acre block for the campus for the Scarborough college for $700,000.

The cost of this land might exceed the remaining $300,000 of the grant.

He said neither college will have residence accommodation and because of this, the university hopes to keep costs down to a minimum. He estimated the initial outlay at about $2,000,000 each.

Trent President T. H. B. Symons said the university, which

Court Not Sure Whether Accused Male or Female

TORONTO (CP)—"Are you male or female?" the court clerk asked the prisoner in the dock.

Clifford Cayer, appearing on a charge of dangerous driving, flounced a red bouffant hairstyle and said nothing.

Arrested as a woman last June following an accident in which a woman was killed, Cayer was later charged with the men's section of the jail.

After consultation Thursday in Mr. Justice Everett Weaver's chambers, Cayer was allowed to plead not guilty under the additional name of Dianna Adams.

Cayer, wearing a necklace of white beads, pearl earrings through pierced ears, a Persian lamb coat, grey stockings and black pumps, started boldly ahead as the jury was picked.

The pink polish on the accused's long fingernails matched the lipstick.

The trial continues.

Talk Now Is Of Breathing Space in ECM Struggle

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

All the talk now is of a "breathing space" in Britain's battle to solve the consequences of failure in Brussels.

Early enthusiasm for an "alternative" to membership in Common Market is evaporating as it becomes clear just how elusive any new policy will be.

The truth probably is that ministers just don't know what to do. There is no dramatic cut-and-dried program available to replace the European solution on which so many hopes were pinned.

Prime Minister Macmillan has been in touch with Commonwealth prime ministers, but so far nobody except Sir Roy Welensky of the Rhodesian federation has shown any eagerness for a round-table conference to discuss what happenes next.

British ministers may ruefully reflect that Commonwealth colleagues occasionally have provided a psychological lift for a lethargic nation, would have infected industry with a new dynamism and expansionist spirit, would have brought United States investment flooding into Britain.

Instead, Albion is on its own, economic difficulties by international measures.

The experience of 16 post-war years, which have seen successive chancellors of the exchequer resorting to a series of temporary measures to deal with the complex economic problems of a country not overblessed with natural resources, hardly encourages the thought that any magic formula can be found overnight.

The problems confronting the conservative government therefore remain formidable. About the only glimmer of light for administration is the knowledge that the Labor opposition, engrossed in selecting a new leader, finds it hard to take full advantage of the Tory troubles.

India Walks Out on Parley

MOSHI, Tanganyika (Reuters) India walked out of the 36-nation Afro-Asian conference here and declared it was no longer a member of the Afro-Asian Peoples Solidarity Organization sponsoring the conference.

The Indian action Thursday was in protest against the removal from the agenda of a resolution on the border dispute between India and Communist China.

India's delegation leader, Raman Lall, said the walkout was against the Afro-Asian organization and was "killed, destroyed and ended."

"Without India there is no organization."

Lall strongly supported the resolution, which called on the conference to support the proposals for settling the border dispute drawn up at the recent Colombo Ceylon, conference of six African and Asian countries.

Soviet Diplomat Mastermind Of Spy Ring In Australia Was Seeking U. S. Secrets

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) New security measures today were reported to have been clamped on Australian bases by following government charges of spying against Soviet diplomat Ivan Skripov.

The Sydney Sun says Skripov was the mastermind behind a spy ring trying to steal secrets about a new U.S. Navy communications base being built in northwest Australia.

The newspaper says fresh security "screening" has begun of thousands of workers at an secret Woomer rocket testing base in south Australia.

"The security authorities have evidence of a serious leakage of top secret information to an unknown Russian agent," the Sydney Sun adds.

The pudgy curly-haired Skripov Thursday was ordered by the government to leave the country within seven days on charges he made "elaborate preparations for espionage."

TRIES TO SEE WIFE

The Sydney Sun's Canberra correspondent tried to interview Skripov today as he drove away from his home in Campbell, a Canberra suburb, with his wife and nine-year-old son.

The Russian diplomat, who appeared under great mental strain, told the correspondent he did not know when he would be leaving Australia. He refused to comment on the spying charges.

The diplomat's wife also has been ordered to leave the country.

The Sydney Sun says Skripov's main job was to "organize spy tentacles" into a new $80,000,000 U.S. Navy communications base in northwest Australia.

REPORTS THEFT TRY

At Woomera, the newspaper says Skripov's network tried to steal U.S., British, French and Australian defence secrets.

The newspaper quotes authoritative sources as saying it is believed Moscow was tipped off last Tuesday that Skripov knew the game was up."

This fact, the newspaper says, explained Wednesday's announcement that Soviet Ambassador Ivan Kurdyukov, who is now in Russia, was removed from his diplomatic post.

There was no doubt the security service would have liked to have the agent to trap other members of the spy network, said Moscow sent its hand, the newspaper says.

Foreign Exchange Reserves Will Weather Campaign

OTTAWA (CP)—Can the country's vital foreign exchange reserves weather a two-month election campaign without a repetition of last year's financial crisis?

Well-informed government officials predict that the reserves will come through with no sense of uneasiness.

It's conceded that the heat of the campaign may generate some uncertainties that could affect the reserves of United States dollars and gold support-ing the Canadian dollar's pegged exchange value. But these fluctuations are expected to be temporary and limited in effect.

There are both financial and political reasons for this view.

The political reason stems from a report that the cabinet group which unsuccessfully challenged Prime Minister Diefenbaker's leadership obtained assurances that his campaign wouldn't feature anti-American attacks. Cabinet critics have stated clearly that they will shun any anti-American tone in their speeches, which could frighten off U.S. investors.

SITUATION DIFFERENT

But it is also pointed out that today's financial situation is far different from that during last year's election campaign. Then the dollar was pegged in mid-range at 92½ cents and our exchange reserves lost more than $300,000,000 and a crisis developed which brought on the country's worst financial year.

At Jan. 31 the foreign exchange reserves stood at a record high of $2,662,000,000—more than $1,000,000,000 higher than at the start of last year's election campaign.

Instead of last year's uncertainties over the dollar's exchange rate, there is expected to be unprecedented speculation and a run on the dollar—the Canadian dollar now is pegged officially at 92½.

Last year's crisis proved that international financial aid is readily available to support the dollar. The government still has a stand-by credit of $250,000,000 available from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

POSITION IMPROVED

Moreover, officials say the underlying deficit position of Canada's balance of payments has improved. The deficit in the last quarter of 1962 is estimated at about half the rate of the year's first quarter.

Repayment of the $300,000,000 federal loan owing to the International Monetary Fund is seen as most unlikely. The government would want to retain as much of its reserves as possible to protect the dollar.

In fact, if the reserves remain relatively steady during the campaign, informants indicate that a further dismantling of the import surcharges is a possibility, though this is not being planned at present.

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP)—It's in politics as in religion. Everybody depends upon a fair start."

So said T. C. Halliburton in his Sick Chronicles of Canadian Times more than a century ago.

Things haven't changed much in politics, even with cross-country election swings by jet aircraft and fast trains, nation-wide television networks and the singing commercial on radio.

Whether the April 8 general election campaign will afford a fair start among the four party leaders remains to be seen.

Liberal Leader Pearson appears to have the rail position but Prime Minister Diefenbaker's meeting here which he will address Monday is engagement was undertaken before the government was defeated in the Commons last Tuesday night, epitating dissolution of Parliament Wednesday.

While it will be an occasion for a whooping campaign address, Liberal spokesmen say it shouldn't be interpreted as Mr. Pearson's opening speech. That will come later, when his cross-country tour has been mapped.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has a speaking engagement Monday in Toronto to the combined Canadian and Empire clubs. This essentially non-political engagement might not count as a campaign speech.

Mr. Pearson will be back go to Toronto on Feb. 18 for an Ontario Progressive Conservative rally.

Mr. Diefenbaker is scheduled to receive the city of London's freedom at the Guildhall ceremony Feb. 25. He said Thursday he hasn't considered canceling the trip to the United Kingdom during which he would confer with Prime Minister Macmillan.

Social Credit Leader Thompson and New Democratic Party Leader Lewis have a series of speaking engagements in Windsor-area and Toronto next week, but they are mainly to non-political audiences.

Possibly the most solid campaign news of the week is Credit Deputy Leader Real Caouette is leaving next week for a 5-day tour of Quebec ridings by location, and will open his Quebec campaign Feb. 25.

PEASANTS SLAY RIVALS

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Peasants in rival farming communities clashed with guns and machetes over a boundary dispute, leaving 30 of them dead and about 100 wounded, press reports said Thursday. The dispatches said the villagers of Laimes and Jaremanis fought their bloody battle Wednesday.

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Trail Smoke Eaters in Ontario on an exhibition tour prior to trekking to Stockholm for the world championship, sat in the Windsor Arena the other night—and rubbed their eyes in wonderment.

They came prepared to see a tilt between the Windsor Bulldogs and the Kitchener Waterloo Tigers of the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" league.

The Bulldogs, presently battling it out for the loop's top spot with the Chatham Maroons and rated as top Allan Cup material by OHA moguls, romped through a puck-chasing farce that had the Smokies reaching for anti-nausea tablets and wondering how much one can believe of Ontario sports reports of its senior clubs.

When the scorekeepers raised their heads with the final whistle the score read 14-0 for the Bulldogs.

The workout scarcely ruffled the Dogs' hackles. For the Tigers brought but three regulars with them borrowed three Windsor players, plus their spare goalie and used several players recruited from the K-W city hockey league.

To make matters worse one of the Tiger cars broke down en route to Windsor and three players did not have their equipment for the first period.

The Smokies left the arena wondering if they were watching another instance of history repeating itself. They had seen their own "old" Western Hockey League foe, team by team, until they were alone.

Last month the Sarnia Rams were dropped by the senior "A" league because of inability to ice sufficient players, causing lack of fan support which in turn caused the Sarnia management to fail to live up to the league's new policy of salary-paid players.

Lloyd Pollock, the OHA's genial prexy who hails from Windsor, tossed aside his workaday speech the other day and donned a pair of rose-colored "cheaters." Said Mr. Pollock: "Senior hockey in Ontario has made a great recovery this season and I feel it is definitely on the path back to its former status. I'm highly optimistic that our group will produce an Allan Cup winner and return the trophy to Ontario."

"Attendance has been a problem particularly in the early part of the season, but since the league was stabilized with the expulsion of Sarnia, teams have been drawing better."

Western Ontario fans, if such is the case, must be a different breed to those in other parts of the country. In this neck of the woods if a senior club showed up with three regulars, borrowed four off the home team and plugged the remaining gaps with intermediates, the next time it was scheduled to play there'd be more vacant seats in the arena than at the Los Angeles Bowl for a Khruschev address.

The Bulldogs' manager, Bill Baksi and Woodstock boss Gordon Harper don't share all the Pollock optimism. Baksi wants CAHA and OHA protection from American "amateur" leagues raids on Canadian top players. Harper wants the 50-game scheduled cut to 36 next year.

"Woodstock, Galt and Kitchener feel," he said, "that a 36-game schedule, one home and one away, would be far better. If there is not a reduction," he added, "I doubt if Woodstock will operate next year."

And a report from the K-W centre has it that it is doubtful if the Tigers will operate next year, period. It has been beset with financial and player trouble. Galt Terriers' box-office turnstiles have been clicking in waltz time.

Windsor and Chatham, the two top teams of the loop have been doing well fan-wise, according to reports. They have provided the life-blood of the loop thus far.

But unless something is done schedule-wise and player-wise to keep the clubs and fans happy, I fail to agree with Pollock's prediction that next year the league will be a compact six-team operation.

Indonesia Barred From Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Indonesia has been barred from the Olympic Games for anindefinite period by the executive board of the International Olympic Committee.

The decision was announced Thursday by IOC president Avery Brundage following a seven-hour meeting. The suspension was imposed after the board heard reports on last year's Asian Games in Jakarta, from which athletes of Israel and Nationalist China were barred.

The decision will be rescinded if the national Olympic committee of Indonesia gives guarantees that there will be no further political discrimination in sports.

Brundage said it is the first time a national Olympic committee has been suspended from membership.

Bruins Hold Wings To 3-3 Tie ★★★★★

Prentice Scores In Bearskin Debute

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It hasn't taken the two players involved in the National Hockey League's biggest trade of the season long to get used to their new duties.

Dean Prentice, the long-time New York Rangers winger who went to Boston Bruins in exchange for centre Don McKenney earlier this week, scored a goal in his first appearance in his new uniform Thursday night as Boston and Detroit Red Wings battled to a 3-3 tie.

Wednesday night McKenney donned his Rangers uniform for the first time and scored what proved to be the winning goal and added an assist as New York trounced Montreal Canadiens 6-3.

Prentice's first goal as a Bruin—his 14th of the season—came at 19:18 of the first period and gave Boston a 2-0 lead.

Both goals came on power plays, something the Bruins have lacked. Defenseman Irv Spencer got the first while Detroit's centre Doug Barkley was slitting out a minor. Fryer MacDonald was in the penalty box when Prentice scored.

WILLIAMS GETS HITS

The Bruins moved into a 3-0 lead at the 35-second mark of the second period on Bob Williams' 18th goal of the season, and then Detroit's ole pros started moving.

With Gordie Howe passing and Alex Delvecchio shooting, the lead was chopped to 3-2 before the second period ended.

Delvecchio got both goals and Howe assisted on both. It was Howe's 1,100th NHL game, a record that gave the Howe-Delvecchio-MacDonald line a total of 65 goals for the season, tops in the league.

Detroit got the tying goal from Larry Jeffrey, recalled before the game from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League.

Jeffrey had managed only three goals for the Red Wings before being sent down to the minors. But he scored four for seven with Pittsburgh and the Detroit brass decided he rated another look.

Five games are scheduled for the weekend. Montreal, their home ice still taken by a visiting ice show, will be in Toronto Saturday night and in Boston Sunday. Chicago and New York have a home-and-home series and Toronto is to meet Detroit in Sunday night's other game.

Petes Meet Juniors Here Tonight

The Belleville Juniors will try to wind up their home part of the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League schedule on a winning note here tonight when they take on the Peterborough Monsens in a nine o'clock fixture.

Don Barclay's crew has one more game remaining on the schedule after tonight. Belleville travels to Napanee to meet the red-hot Red Wings in an eight-thirty game there Monday. Napanee recently climbed into a second-place tie with Peterborough.

Tonight's game will actually be a playoff preview, since Belleville and Peterborough are two of the three clubs involved in the group's round-robin "B" playoff series, expected to start next week. Kingston Frontenacs will be the third team involved.

Belleville took the Monsens by a 4-2 count in the club's last meeting here and hope to repeat that performance this evening. The Monsens and the Petes are evenly matched and both are attempting to sharpen their club ice attack before they can oust the powerful Kingston club in the playoffs.

One new face will be inserted in the Belleville lineup tonight and there is a possibility that two other "old" ones may return. Norm Richards has completed a year's suspension by the OSHA and will make his first start tonight. John Harkness, out with a broken leg, and Lyle Adams, with a broken hand, are also expected back shortly, if not tonight.

Game time again is 9.00 p.m.

Earlier in the evening, Belleville's Bantam All-Stars will entertain their Cobourg counterparts in an exhibition game. That tilt is slated for 6.30 p.m.

Top Skiers Head Field In Slalom

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—Former winners Stein Eriksen and Heli Schaller top an international field of 23 skiers entered in Sunday's third annual $5,000 giant slalom.

The race, which carries a $2,000 first prize, will be run over one of the country's fastest slopes, the Devil's Glen's waterfall run. The first section drops at a sharp 42 degrees.

Eriksen, 35, a double gold medal winner in the 1952 Olympics and three-time Norwegian national champion, won the inaugural race in 1961. He now is a professional in Colorado.

Boston's Johnny Bucyk picked up one assist Thursday night as the Bruins and Detroit Red Wings battled to a 3-3 tie and he needed it to maintain his lead in the tight National Hockey League scoring race.

Gordie Howe, the Red Wings' great winger, got two assists and vaulted over the idle Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs into second place.

Bucyk now has 22 goals and 34 assists for 56 points, while Howe has 26 goals and 29 assists for 55 points.

Howe's goal total is only one short of Mahovlich's league-leading output.

Murray Oliver, Bucyk's linemate, also picked up one assist and moved into a tie for fourth place with Chicago's Stan Mikita with 53 points.

The other positions in the top seven scorers remained unchanged, with only the two clubs in action.

Nicklaus, Player, Hebert Tops Disorganized Display

Three Par-Busters Lead Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The Phoenix open golf tournament was skin-tight going into the second round today with three par-busters sharing a one-stroke lead and 42 others within four strokes of them.

Out front in the four-day race for $35,000 prize money after five under - par 67s Thursday were Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Jay Hebert.

Breathing down their necks at 68 were Arnold Palmer, who is trying to win this one for the third successive year; Tommy Aaron, Bob Harris and old pro Cary Middlecoff, Julius Boros and Jimmy Clark.

Ten others were grouped at 69, 10 at 70 and 16 at 71.

Among the 69s was steady Vancouver veteran Stan Leonard who went out in 34 and came home in 35.

PLAY IN PANAMA

Other Canadian pros on the tour bypassed the Phoenix event for the Panama Open first tournament of the Caribbean winter tour.

Player and Clark each eagled two of the par-five holes, the longest of which is 534 yards. Palmer scored one eagle.

Some of the leaders have gone a long time without a big pay day. Clark hasn't won a tournament since 1962. Middlecoff's best showing in more than a year has been a tie for 11th. Hebert hasn't finished first since he won at Akron, Ohio, in August, 1961.

Thomas Tops Panama Open

PANAMA (AP)—Young Ron Thomas of Durham, N.C., birdied two of the first three holes Thursday and fired a four-under-par 68 for the first-round lead in the Panama Open.

He took a one-stroke lead over Dick Straahan of San Leandro, Calif., Bill Erhurth of Crete, Ill., and Milon Marusic of Glendale Mo. At 70 were Antonio Cerda of Argentina and Ron Weber of Bayside, Calif.

Ten others were tied at 71, including George Knudson of Toronto and Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla. Alvie Thompson of Toronto had a 72 and Norm Hunt of Quebec City a 74.

Smokies Lose To Tigers 6-4

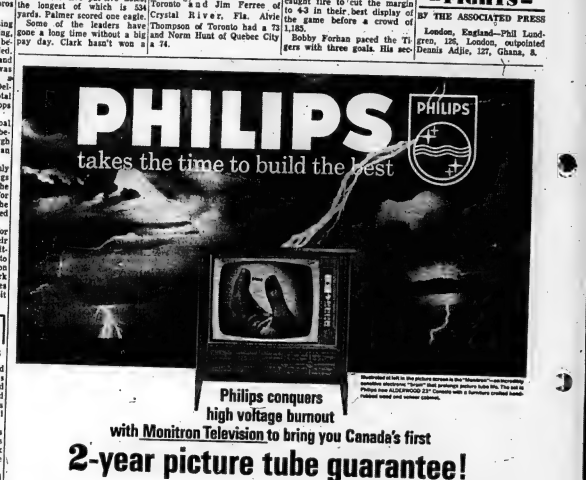
KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener - Waterloo Tigers, 14-0 losers to Windsor Bulldogs Wednesday night in regular Ontario Hockey Association Senior A competition, defeated Canada's representatives to next month's world hockey championships, Trail Smoke Eaters, 6-4 Thursday night in an exhibition game.

The Smoke Eaters came up with a disorganized display in the first period and again in the third to permit the Tigers in last place in their league, to win.

Tigers outplayed Trail by a wide margin in the first period, outbooting the visitors 21-5, but were held to a 1-0 lead by the spectacular netminding of Trail's Seth Martin. They made it 2-0 early in the second and were ahead 4-1 before Trail caught fire to tout the margin to 4-3 in their best display of the game before a crowd of 1,185.

Bobby Forhan paced the Tigers with three goals. His second marker came on a penalty shot early in the third period when Trail defenceman Don Fletcher fell on the puck in his net after Martin had been pulled out of position making a save.

Other Kitchener - Waterloo marksmen were defencemen John Lowes and Ivan Tennant and forward Gerry Theberge. Lowes was on loan to the Tigers from Galt Terriers while Theberge regularly plays with Woodstock Athletics.



Defenceman Ted Makl, sent to Trail by the Tigers two weeks ago, got two goals for the losers. Ed Cristofoli and Walt Peacosh were the other Trail marksmen.

The Tigers outshot Trail 44-27.

Wants Olympics Hockey Banned

Ahearne Lodges Protest

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—Canada's John F. Ahearne, European president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, says he will urge the federation at its Stockholm congress next month to withdraw from the 1964 Innsbruck Winter Olympics.

Ahearne told a press conference Thursday the federation stands to lose more than $100,000 in television rights by merging its annual world championships with the Olympic Games.

He said he has made no demands for a larger share of the Innsbruck television payments but left no doubt that he expects the Stockholm congress opening March 6 to be dissatisfied with the $3,000 payment already received by the federation.

Ahearne said the IIHF has received $70,000 for the television rights to the 1962 world championships at Stockholm next month.

Ahearne said he told Otto Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee, he considered the $3,000 "a very small amount" compared with the $200,000 in television rights collected by the Innsbruck bargaining committee.

Wings Whip Habs 3-1

Flyers Zero Petes 4-0

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings must have "that crowded feeling" in the Ontario Hockey Association senior pro/am Group A standings.

A 3-1 win over Montreal junior Canadiens Thursday night gave Hamilton sole possession of third place tie with Peterborough Petes to a second-place tie with Montreal.

Peterborough lost a chance to make it a three-way tie when they suffered a 4-0 defeat at the hands of league-leading Niagara Falls Flyers in Peterborough.

Standings now show Niagara Falls with 33 points, Montreal and Hamilton with 26 and Peterborough with 24. St. Catharines Black Hawks and Guelph Royals are well back, with 22 and 19 points respectively.

Hamilton's Pit Martin, who missed some time has been a first-place scoring race with Niagara Falls' Wayne Maxner, scored a goal and an assist Thursday night. But he remains one point back of Maxner, who rounded out his series in Peterborough for a total of 75 points, one more than Martin.

Hamilton's Paul Henderson, the league's top goal-scorer, notched his 40th goal of the season and defenceman Gary Doak got the other. Montreal's Bob Lemaire opened the scoring in the second period for the losers' only goal.

BALLS TAKE LEAD

In Peterborough, Niagara Falls took a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes of play and added a goal in each of the following periods while bolding the Petes scoreless.

Angry fans threw debris including eggs and coffee at referee Gord Fevereau as they saw 21 penalties handed out in the game. Fevereau was escorted from the ice between periods and at the final buzzer by police.

Niagara Falls goals were accredited to Terry Crisp, Bryan Belanger, Ron Stewart and Ron Schock.

In Metro Junior A action Whitby defeated Brampton 7-5.

VAN IMPE SUSPENDED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — President James G. Balmer of the American Hockey League Thursday suspended forward Patrick Van Impe of Cleveland Barons for six games without pay. Van Impe used abusive language and physical tactics Dalton MacArthur in a game in Pittsburgh Sunday night, Balmer said.

Ken Rosewall Likes Money, Also Title

BOSTON (AP)—Ken Rosewall, the defending pro tennis champ, and Australian Rod Laver will win his share of matches in the 30-match tournament the United States which opens in Boston tonight. But he won't win the title "because I like money and I like having the title."

Rosewall, an Australian as is his red-headed Laver, won $80,000 on last year's tour. Laver will be making his U.S. professional debut.

In Australia and New Zealand Laver won 19 of 23 matches against Rosewall and Lew Hoad. A total of $112,000 in prize money is up for grabs. Depending on the success of the tour, the winner can take away from $20,000 up to $80,000.

Also in the troupe are Andres Gimeno, the Spanish champion, Chilean king Luis Ayala and Americans Barry MacKay and Earl Buchholz.

EVERTON BUYS WINGER

LONDON (AP) — Everton, making a strong bid for the English league soccer championship, bought winger Alex Scott from Glasgow Rangers Thursday for $112,000. English clubs have paid more than $2,800,000 in the last five years for Scottish players.

Gets Bonus, $1,000 A Month

Machen Has New Manager

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A real estate developer has taken over as manager of heavyweight Eddie Machen with the avowed intention of building the troubled boxer into heavyweight champion.

Under terms of the five-year pact with Walter Minskoff, the fighter will receive a signing bonus of $5,000 and a guaranteed income of $1,000 a month if he regains his boxing license. Medical reports for the license are expected within 10 days.

Machen was rated the top heavyweight contender by the World Boxing Association at the time he was originally admitted to hospital after threatening suicide last Dec. 12. On Jan. 18, he was released from the hospital after psychiatric treatment.

His aims were to break all ties with Sid Flaherty, his former manager, and to fight champion Sonny Liston who beat him in 1960 when Floyd Patterson still was champion.

Machen now 30, admitted that financially he was starting the bottom again and financial worries were blamed for part of his mental problems.

Will Attack World Land Speed Mark

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—An assault on the world land speed record is planned this fall in a small rocket-powered race car.

Romeo Palamides of Oakland, who is building the car that needs wings to keep it on the ground, says, "I'm kind of scared of this one. I'm going to ease into it. This is a controlled explosion, a projectile on wheels."

He calls the new project Mach 1, the scientific designation of the speed of sound—about 700 miles an hour, compared with the present land record of 403.135.

The engine for Mach 1 is out of a surplus space rocket and the car is expected to weigh about 800 pounds. The wings will be short 15-inch stabilizers on each side of a thin, needle-shaped titanium nose cone. They're designed to produce negative lift, forcing the vehicle to hug the ground.

Larks May Abolish G.M. Post

MONTREAL (CP) — M. E. (Ted) Workman, president of Montreal Alouettes, has hinted that the post of general manager with the Eastern Football Conference team may be abolished and that he would take over the work it entails.

Workman gave rise to the possibility in an interview Thursday after disclosing the club's board of directors interviewed Leo Cahill for almost an hour as a candidate for the head coaching job. Cahill was assistant coach under Perry L. Moss, fired Jan. 30 as head coach and general manager.

Workman said Cahill is under consideration only for the head coaching job "and so are about 10 or 11 others."

North Shore Hockey League

Belch Construction hung onto first place by a slim one-point margin over Hibbard - Callow Combines as the Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League wound up its regular schedule last night.

Belch's, who trailed Hibbard-Callows nearly all year, tied the Combines 3-3 last night after moving into first place last week. In the other tilt last night, Rossmore and Stinson Construction also played to a 3-3 stalemate.

Semi-final playoffs, which open next Thursday night, pit Belch's against Stinson's while Hibbard-Callow tackle Rossmore, in best-of-five sets.

Details of last night's games were not available due to an injury suffered by Norm Post, in charge of statistics.

The final team standing, however, shows Belch's with 19 points, Hibbard-Callow 18, Stinson's 10, Rossmore nine and SACO, out of the playoffs, with three points.

Final league statistics and playoff dates will be published as soon as they are made available.

Komets Rally To Tie Frontenacs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fort Wayne Komets started a three-game road trip in their interlocking schedule with the Eastern Professional Hockey League with at least partial success.

The International League leaders met the EPHL's second-place Kingston Frontenacs Thursday night, spotted them a 4-0 lead and battled back for a 4-4 tie.

Tonight Komets meet Hull-Ottawa, the EPHL leaders, and Sunday they are at Sudbury to meet the third-place Wolves.

Fort Wayne goalie Chuck Adamson was the star of Thursday night's game. He stopped 38 shots, allowing only one goal in the last two periods.

Frontenacs took a 3-0 lead in the first period on goals by Gerry Ouellette, Jeannot Gilbert and Billy Knibbs.

In the second period, Norm Waslowski and Ed Long narrowed the margin to 3-2 and Bob Rivard scored the tying goal in the third.

Don Blackburn gave the Frontenacs a 4-3 lead with his 30th goal of the season, but Komets came right back to tie it with a looping blue line shot by defenceman Gary Young with nine minutes to play.

Athlete, 10 May Join Pan-Am Team

SASKATOON (CP) — Glenna Sebestyen of Saskatoon, at 19 too young to compete in the Canadian senior gymnastic championships, is on the threshhold of representing Canada in the Pan-American Games at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Her entry in the Games depends upon an age ruling by the Pan-American Games gymnastic committee. If the committee rules there is no minimum limit, she will be retained on Canada's gym team next April.

Chuck Sebestyen, her father, who is national chairman of the Canadian Gymnastic Association, said a 1959 Pan-American committee ruling allowed Lelata Krol of Windsor, Ont., to compete at 12. This augurs well for Glenna.

"But we have to check with the committee first to get a ruling," he said in an interview. "We're hopeful she'll be able to compete."

Glenna, Canadian junior champion last year, was runner-up to Gail Daley, 16, in the recent Pan-American Games gym trials in Saskatoon. Miss Daley is current Canadian senior women's champion.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Flyers defeated Los Angeles Blades 5-4 Thursday night in the only Western Hockey League game of the night.

The win, Flyers' first in 14 games, was produced by Norm Corcoran's power-play goal with about 90 seconds left in regulation time.

John Mizzuk, Bo Elik, Jack McIntyre and Ray Kinasewich scored the other Edmonton goals. Bruce Carmichael scored two for the Blades, Gord Haworth and Lloyd Haddon adding one apiece.

Toronto Girl New Champion

Crown Junior Skating Queen

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

EDMONTON (CP) — Jeannie Marie Sanders, a 16-year-old Toronto high school student, today reigned as Canada's junior women's figure skating champion after a strong and steady performance in a gruelling 16-hour test.

She began in the pre-dawn darkness and didn't have the championship under her wing until late Thursday night. The 15-year-old East York Collegiate student won the championship on her first try for the title over 14 other competitors.

The young Grade 11 student held a comfortable margin after the compulsory figures were completed in the morning and came back to increase her margin in the free skating at night.

It was the first championship decided at the 52nd Canadian figure skating championships, which continue until Saturday night.

Miss Sanders compiled 447.1 points in the compulsory figures section, which comprise 60 per cent of the points towards the championship, and finished with an aggregate score of 722.46 after completion of the free skating.

LADIES SECOND

Gloria Anne Tatton, 18-year-old farm girl representing the Toronto Cricket Club, placed second with 744.11 points.

Third place went to Marjorie Hare, 19, of Oakville, Ont., with 732.14 points.

Rounding out the top 10 were Lindsay C. Cowan, Vancouver, 730.97; Carol Kiser, Stratford, Ont., 689.88; Shirley Robson, Edmonton, 683.91; Bonnie-Jean Jackson, Vancouver, 690.51; Seija Hinkkuri, Timmins, Ont., 690.21; Patricia Riordan, Winnipeg, 684.94 and Carole Stoddart, Timmins, 681.45.

A factor in compiling the official standings called the ordinals allowed Miss Kiser to place fifth despite receiving fewer points than Miss Robson. Miss Jackson and Miss Hinkkuri.

Ordinals refer to the placing each judge gives a contestant in an event. Miss Kiser had one fifth, one sixth, one seventh and two 13th placings, thus giving her a lower ordinal total than the other skaters.

The initial round of the junior dance was also held Thursday. Four of eight couples entered in the dance were eliminated in the first round, for which no results were issued.

Still alive in the event, in which a champion will be decided today, are Bonnie Lilley and John Booker of Toronto, Lynn Matthews and Bryon Topping of Toronto, Linda Ann Ward and Neil Carpenter of Galt, Ont., and Judith Ann Richardson and Brian Ballie of Toronto.

Killebrew Gets 'Nice Raise'

The Dotted Line League

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a good reason why most major league batters take a firm toe hold and a big swing, seeking to hit the long ball instead of a measly old single.

They figure that healthy home run and runs-batted-in totals will result in healthier pay cheques. And it's true as far as Harmon Killebrew is concerned. The slugging Minnesota Twins outfielder batted only 243 and struck out 142 times last season. But he also paced the American League in homers with 48 and RBI, 126.

Killebrew Thursday signed his 1963 contract for a reported $40,000 to $45,000. According to Twins' owner, Cal Griffith, Harmon got a "nice raise" over his $36,000 of last season.

"Killebrew ranks as the highest paid player in club history," said Griffith.

Killebrew, came to terms via telephone from his home in Ontario, Ore.

Other signees included pitchers Jim Grant and Pedro Ramos of Cleveland Indians, infielder Bob Johnson and pitcher Eddie Watt of Baltimore Orioles, outfielder Jim King and catcher Don Leppert, Washington Senators; pitcher John Wyatt, catcher Jose Azcue and infielder Ed Charles, Kansas City Athletics; pitcher Earl Wilson and outfielders Roman Mejias and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox; infielder-outfielder Tommy Aaron of Milwaukee Braves and infielder Charley Neal and pitcher Galen Cisco of New York Mets.

10 Years, $5,000 Fine

New Bill Hits Gamblers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (Rep. N.Y.) has introduced a bill aimed at preventing gamblers "from corrupting college and professional sports."

The measure would prohibit schemes in interstate commerce to influence by bribery the outcome of supporting contests. It would set up maximum penalties of 10 years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Keating told the Senate Thursday: "The proceeds from gambling on sporting events is considered by many law enforcement authorities as today's major source of income for the underworld. Because of the large stakes involved, the gambling fraternity will stop at nothing, including murder and blackmail, to keep things in line."

The senator said the bill "would halt the contamination of sports by organized gambling syndicates by punishing any players or officials, as well as gamblers, who attempt to corrupt these games for personal gain.

"It would cover schemes to affect the point spread in a contest as well as to throw the game entirely and would apply to every case in which interstate facilities—such as the telephone or the mails—have been used to carry out the conspiracy."

Reds Blank Aces 2-0, Grab Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ei Giacomin was all aces against the Quebec Aces in the American Hockey League Thursday night.

The five - foot - 11 goalie for Providence made 48 saves as the Reds blanked the Aces 2-0 and took over first place in the Eastern Division. It was the only AHL game scheduled.

It was the second straight victory for the Reds over the Aces on Quebec ice and in each case it was Giacomin's brilliant defensive play that made the difference. On Tuesday, he made 43 saves as Providence won 4-1 and tied Quebec for the lead.

Thus in two straight games against the Aces, Giacomin, a 23-year-old native of Sudbury, Ont., kicked aside 91 of 92 shots on the Providence goal.

Charlie Hodge, the Quebec goalie, made 23 saves but Larry Leach beat him for what proved to be the winning goal 51 seconds after the start of the second period. Zellio Toppazzini got Providence's other goal at 1:19 of the last period.

LIONS WITHDRAW

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Skrien, coach of British Columbia Lions, Thursday declared his club out of the "circus" bidding for Jackie Parker whose climb to the auction block Wednesday jolted the Canadian football world.

Skrien said Toronto Argonauts badly needed the Edmonton Eskimos player "so I'm sure they'll go to any limit to get Parker." He said Parker's value is as a quarterback and the Lions already have a first class man—Joe Kapp—in that slot.

"He is a tremendous football player, but I think Toronto is the only club that needs a quarterback badly enough to give up what Edmonton will want for Parker."

TO PAY YOUR '63 TRACTOR FUEL BILL

(AND DON'T BE SURPRISED IF YOU HAVE SOME LEFT OVER FOR '64)

We want to make a point that the Case 3-plow 430 and the Case 3-4 plow 530 Dynaclonic diesel tractors cost less to operate than any comparable tractors on earth.

Yes, both already are world's diesel fuel economy champions in their classes. And here's your chance to make us prove our economy claims—on free fuel!

If you purchase a new Case 430 or 530 farm tractor* between January 15 and Feb. 28, 1963, we'll send you our check for $135 payable in cash. How much No. 2 diesel fuel can you buy locally for $135? Figuring a national tank wagon average price per gallon of 15.9c, that's 850 gallons.

In a Case Dynaclonic diesel, that's much more diesel fuel than you'll likely use in a year's work — with a healthy amount left over for next year!

Here's why we're so sure: in Dynaclonic design, each fuel charge is packed into a swirling tornado. It achieves the "maximum turbulence" engineers seek — the complete blending of fuel and air essential to complete combustion.

Results: more pounds of thrust—up to 13,700 pounds behind every piston stroke! More work-power from every ounce of fuel.

Team this combustion efficiency with Dynaclonic's long-stroke, high-torque design, and you'll see where its extra power comes from—why it can pull through where high speed automotive type engines begin to labor and stall.

Get the details— and a demonstration — from your Case dealer. And do it soon. Remember, the free fuel offer is good only through Feb. 28.

*PREFER GASOLINE TO DIESEL?

The same $135 cash bonus applies. Gasoline or diesel, you purchase the fuel at your convenience and from the local supplier of your choice.

Garanoque Whipped 8-3 By Picton

PICTON (Special) — Picton Merchants handed the slumping Gananoque Islanders another setback in Eastern Junior action here last night, downing the visitors 8-3.

Merchants outshot Gananoque 44-31 and led 3-0 and 7-2 by periods before the club split a pair in the third.

Harold Haddock led the Picton point-getters but got a good run for his money from defenceman Bob Brown. Haddock scored three goals and assisted on three others. Brown scored two goals, 42 seconds apart in the second heat, and drew three assists.

"Dusty" Rhodes also scored twice and helped on one while George Salesbury also scored. Haennel and Pero drew two assists each, Drwan one.

Doug Higgins potted two Gananoque goals with Pete Mantrop firing the other. Lid dell, McGlade, McGlashon and Parker had assists.

There were 18 penalties handed out in the game, 11 to Picton. Brown and McGlade got majors for righting around the 17-minute mark of the first heat with Pritchard and Stacey picking up game misconducts for butting into the battle. Picton completed the game with just ten players after Stacey was ejected.

The Merchants play their final game of the schedule in Gananoque on Sunday after noon at two o'clock. This game was postponed earlier.

Mayor Orders Crackdown On Speeders

PICTON — Crackdown on speedsters and others who do not observe the town's by-laws while is the instruction given Chief Constable George Pitt and members of the town police force, by the local Police Commission.

Mayor H. J. McFarland instigated the decision to tell police to crack down.

The police department was told to get its radar equipment out and to put it to use.

"We are asking the special constables who watch school-crossing intersections at hours used by school children, to be more alert and to promptly report licence numbers of any cars who do not respect these crossings," the Mayor said.

"We are going to crack down on all motorists who may be driving in a manner that might be dangerous to pedestrians, especially children. We are appalled when thoughtless or reckless driving claims lives," he added.

General Officer Central Region Meets Guards

PICTON — Distinguished visitor to Camp Picton today, Friday, is General Officer Commanding Central Army Command, Major-General G. Kitching, CBE, DSO, CD.

Fabulous Singing Career Of Tito Schipa Nearing End

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tonight is the night the fabulous 53-year singing career of Tito Schipa ends.

At least that's what it says on the program of the 13th and final concert of the Italian tenor's farewell tour at Philharmonic Auditorium.

But he's not so sure. Giving an eloquent shrug, he commented: "If they still want me to sing, I sing."

He has been singing since he was a seven-year-old in southern Italy. Now a hearty, well fed 73, he sees no real reason to stop.

But he does plan a shift in careers. He would like to settle in Los Angeles and coach young singers. He has sent for his wife and 17-year-old son—"my baby, who is six feet tall"—to join him. Since 1948, the Schipas have lived in Rome.

The Schipa career spanned the golden age of opera, begining with his debut in La Traviata at Vercelli. He began with the Chicago opera in 1919 and the Metropolitan in 1932. His memories of those years were studded with great names: Caruso, Gigli, Flagstad, Garden, Pons, Melchior, Galli-Curci.

Will opera ever see another such golden era?

"No, I am afraid not," he said. "Young singers nowadays can make too much money in other fields. They won't bother with opera."

He commented on the meteoric career of the late Mario Lanza—"a beautiful voice, a sad story."

Schipa himself makes singing seem astonishingly simple. Many singers spend hours daily in practice and warm up carefully before each performance.

"Nonsense," said the Italian. "Singing is not like athletics; you don't get better by exercise. I never practice. I don't even do any warming up before I go onstage. The only thing I do is start out the concert with one or two easy numbers, like an Ave Maria.

Then how does he know if he'll be in good voice?

"If I can talk, I can sing."

PASS BOXING BILL

CARSON CITY (AP) — The Nevada senate passed a bill Thursday which provides for "no contest" decisions in boxing matches in which one fighter is unable to continue because of a proven low blow. The measure was sent to the assembly. The bill is aimed at preventing a recurrence of the situation that arose in the Emile Griffith-Jorge Fernandez welterweight title fight at Las Vegas last December.

Inger Stevens Got Love Of Acting From Parents

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Inger Stevens, a pretty blonde, blue-eyed actress who might well be cast perennially in ingenue roles, couldn't be blamed if she was a hypochondriac.

In recent episodes on some of the most popular shows in television she has portrayed a housewife suffering from postpartem psychosis; an ex-heroin addict, a pregnant Romanian refugee, a paranoic and a call girl with a bad heart.

Inger, daughter of a Stockholm school teacher, came to the United States when she was 13. Her parents were interested in amateur theatricals, and Inger inherited their love for acting.

With considerable effort and study, the young performer finally got rid of every trace of a Swedish accent. Her first television part was that of a Czech refugee, with an accent.

"That was all right," she said, "because it indicated I didn't have a Swedish accent. But last season when I played a Romanian in A Case of Tomatoes a producer who was interested in me for a movie turned me down because I had ... he thought—a foreign accent."

The cycle of irony is turning again, however. Inger recently finished the pilot show for a series based on the comedy The Farmer's Daughter—in the title role, has a big Swedish accent.

"If it sells," she sighed, "I'll probably have to prove all over again that it isn't real."

The league-leading Satellites decisively whipped the third-place Globetrotters by a score of 85-46 in last Wednesday's doubleheader in the YMCA. Youth Basketball House League.

The Irish, spurred on by their upset win of the previous week soundly trounced the second-place Steelers 81-58 in the second fixture.

Leading the Satellites' attack was Ron Walkin, who dropped 27 points, assisted by Dave Templer's 23-point effort. Top marksman for the Globetrotters were Jack Jury with 17 and Rick Graham with 15.

Terry Mc Cann again led the Celtics with a 37-point run. Roger Ling came through with 18 points.

John McKibbon hooped 34 points for the Steelers and George Pugh assisted with an 18-point effort.

League standing shows the Satellites still in first place with 22 points. Next are 20's Steelers 11, Trotters 8, Celtics 7.

The individual scoring standings have changed little. Available is Terry McCabe's rise from fourth best to tops in three games, displacing Murray Swan, who led the race up to now. McCabe has a total of 338 points and Walkin has 327.

TO FIX BEACH

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—New storm damage at the Jacksonville beaches has spurred talk of a new look at the septic-stricken area. Army engineers announced that the first work will comprise placing 500,000 cubic yards of sand on the beaches, replacing that washed away by the two storms this winter, rebuilding auto and pedestrian ramps to the beaches and temporary repairs to the seawall along the Jacksonville beach boardwalk.

Postal Officials Looking At Possibility of Stamp For Christmas But Not in '63

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal postal authorities are looking once again at the possibility of a Christmas-theme stamp for Canada—but they don't plan one for 1963.

The demand for such a stamp has increased, but it's a touchy subject that has plagued the experts for years.

"No matter what design we hit on we're bound to offend somebody," Deputy Postmaster-General W. H. Wilson said in an interview.

The difficulty of picking a design that would be attractive and at the same time satisfy all religious denominations was one of the reasons there was no Yuletide - theme stamp again this Christmas.

"But we are going into the matter again," said Mr. Wilson, a veteran of the service who took the department in 1929 as a postal helper.

Planning for next Christmas will begin this month after the reports come in on the handling of mail last Christmas in the 11,400 post offices across the country.

"If the decision is to produce a Christmas stamp, we will follow the normal procedure of getting designs from a number of artists."

There are a number of artists in Canada who design postage stamps from time to time, usually as a "sideline." Payment ranges to $350.

When planning a new issue the department usually invites a number of these to submit designs. "But we'll accept designs from anybody," Mr. Wilson says.

The artist is told what the subject is to be—from wildlife to transportation—stamp honoring a great explorer or former prime minister—and the design is left to him, subject to approval of the department.

It sometimes takes two years before the public sees the finished product.

Canadian stamps through the years have covered just about every topic—except Christmas.

Stamps planned this year, for example, portray a new likeness of the Queen, the only living person who can appear on Canadian stamps—Canada geese in flight and a scene illustrating export markets.

They are all difficult designs, but should likely to offend anyone.

The United States last Christmas issued its first Yuletide stamp. The green, red and white stamp had a non-committal design that featured a wreath with a red bow. On the left-hand side were two burning candles and at the base "Christmas 1962."

TAKES SOME LICKING

A postal official said that if Canada issued such a design "we would have all religious people mad at us for further commercialization of Christmas."

"And what would we do with the stamps the rest of the year?"

If the stamps were dated, the officers would have to be "turned up" at the end of the season. If they weren't dated, they would have to be stored every year until the next Christmas.

The Christmas-theme stamp is a "live" problem, officials say, but one that will likely take years to lick.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Guess old Ernie will get a cold reception after Saturday's warm weather as he did not see his shadow since it was cloudy all day. He will crawl back in his dugout until the weather warms up again.

Mr. Will Sine returned home on Sunday from the Belleville General Hospital where he had been a patient for the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cole and boys were recent weekend guests of the latter's parents, of Gananoque.

Mr. Robert Garrison of Bancroft was a recent tea-hour guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison.

Wallbridge L.A.B.A. held its euchre party on Wednesday night with a large attendance. Ladies served refreshments after the games which all enjoyed.

The weather has made skiing and skating for young and old.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris attended the wedding of their niece, Miss Marilyn Langabeer, and Mr. James Jones, on Friday evening at the Presbyterian Church, Belleville, and at the reception.

Mrs. Harris attended a linen shower on Wednesday night at the home of Miss Beverley Ridley, as hostess.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. G. Dovey of Montreal were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris.

CAUSE CANCER

Many agents can cause skin cancer, including ultra - violet radiation, arsenic, certain oils and some forms of tar.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Notes on canker sores, the toll of influenza, and penalties of the "easy" life.

CANKER SORES

If you keep getting canker sores in your mouth, get suspicious about some food to which you may be sensitive.

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, a well - known medical editor, says he gets them himself from chocolate as the main offender, with even a trace of chocolate starting the sores. To help your doctor diagnose the trouble, keep a list of the foods you eat, particularly unusual foods, to trace back and pick out the culprit afterward from the lists, he writes in Modern Medicine.

INFECTIONS' TOLL

Deaths caused by infections have climbed back almost to their former rate before antibiotics appeared some 15 years ago, a physician warns. Penicillin and other staphylococci and a group of germs, known as gram-negative bacteria, which are resistant to the usual antibiotics Dr Frank P. Foster of the Lahey Clinic, Boston, writes in Postgraduate Medicine.

In combination, they are particularly dangerous among elderly persons and those convalescing from sickness or surgery. Three potent antibiotics — kanamycin, neomycin and chloramphenicol—can overcome the infections, if used in time, but none should be continued too long, he says.

THE EASY LIFE

In these modern times of easy living, heart disease and cancer and degenerative diseases are taking higher toll, particularly as the population grows older.

And the "better living" seems to have taken its price back among Indians living in the southeastern United States some 600 years ago, say Lucile E. Hoyme, anthropologist of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., and William M. Bass of the University of Kansas.

Judging from the remains of skeletons, the Indians who lived between 1000 BC and 600 AD on a snow-submerged island in the Roanoke River had better health than their presumed descendants living in 800 to 1400 AD, they report.

The earlier Indians were nomadic hunters and food gatherers, while the later ones supported themselves with a primitive type of agriculture. They had more tooth decay, and more bowed legs suggesting deficiencies in proteins or minerals.

High School Activities

MOIRA

BASKETBALL

Girls — Tuesday, January 29, B.C.I. junior girls met Moira. The game was a sprint-stirring one, each team's variable victories suspended on a slender thread which ultimately broke in the remaining minutes of the game, Moira broke loose, and piled up points.

The Moira senior team kept pace ahead of B.C.I. through the first game and won an easy victory.

Although the Juniors lost by a close margin to Napanee, Tuesday, February 5, they remain the regional C.O.S.S.A. champions.

The senior team faced stone-cold defeat, culminating the season with the second place title.

Boys — Emotion came to a fountain-head last Friday night when B.C.I. junior boys played Moira—The top score was juggled back and forth, until time finally ran out, leaving Moira with a precarious victory.

The Moira bantam boys defeated their opponents while the senior team conceded the upper hand to the Belleville team.

On Tuesday, February 5, all three boys' teams had no trouble at all in taking the lead over Trenton.

WRESTLING

It has been smooth sailing for our wrestlers. In a bout against Albert College, the Trojans collected 37 points compared to Albert's 6 points.

Against Campbellford, they again displayed their might and muscle and won 43 to 11.

"MOIRANTICS '63"

A sneak preview has conclusively shown that Moira Secondary School's annual variety show is going to be tops!

Spurred on by the overwhelming success of last year's show, the keyettes, cheerleaders, cadet corp, and girls' gym squad have again turned out in full force to support what they know will be an award-winning program. Besides these school groups, the German class and Technical "12" boys have joined the cast in the intention of adding even more "umpf" to Moirantics.

The wide scope of the theme, "Around the World in Eighty Minutes," is being used to full advantage. The globe-trotting acts skip from Canada and the United States to countries in South America, Europe and Asia.

Moirantics caters to all tastes in music and dance. The program fluctuates from jazz to classical, and from modern to folk dance.

Skits underline the lighter side of the show with monologues and take-offs dotting it with sparkling humor.

The variety and talent combine to create a brilliant, kaleidoscopic production.

It is a show well worth anyone's while!

This year Moirantics is running for two days, February 15 and 16. Tickets are on sale at Moira Secondary School or may be purchased at the door.

B.C.I.

By SHERYL DRYSDALE

BASKETBALL

Last Friday night in a triple-header at Moira the B.C.I. Bantams lost to the Trojans by a score of 36-22. Our Juniors were also defeated in a close game, with the final score 39-36. The senior Collegiates however made a second-half comeback, trampling with a 45-28 win. Terry McCabe and Bob Williams were top scorers for B.C.I.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Due to the unsuccessful presale of the "Elevator" (only 600 orders from 1200 students) there will probably not be a yearbook next year. This will be a grave disappointment particularly to the Grade 12's, next year's Graduating class.

CONGRATULATIONS:

To Alan Pipe winner of the junior public speaking contest finals. Andrew will now represent B.C.I. in the Junior C.O.S.S.A. public speaking contest. Good Luck!!

CAMPUS KAPERS:

On February 21, 22 and 23 this annual variety show will be in town once again. It is presented by the Boys' Athletic Society under the guidance of "Hack" Townsend and the m.c. for this excellent display of local talent will be Peter Carver. I have also heard that Fifi and Mimi will be on hand again to entertain us with some enjoyable antics. Special features of this year's production will include free calisthenics by the girls and male and female artists performing on the trampoline. Don't miss this outstanding event of the school year.

American Tanker With 39 Aboard Is Unreported

Captain 'Punctual' Man So Delay Is Alarming

NEW YORK (AP) — The air and sea search continued today for a missing American tanker with a crew of 39 aboard. The U.S. Coast Guard described the captain as a punctual man who ordinarily would report by radio if his ship was delayed.

Since noon Thursday, when the Marine Sulphur Queen was due at Norfolk, Va., there has been no word from the 524-foot ship, a converted tanker of Second World War vintage.

She is missing somewhere in the Atlantic between the western end of the Gulf of Mexico and Norfolk, the coast guard said.

The tanker's course would have taken her through a severe Atlantic storm that battered the southeastern coast and churned up seas 14 feet high.

14-FOOT WAVES

A coast guard spokesman said such seas would have put the decks of a tanker awash, adding: "A 14-foot sea is like a 28-foot sea to any other ship."

Another coast guard official said however, he doubted that 14-foot waves would seriously disturb a tanker the size of the Sulphur Queen although a tanker similar to the Sulphur Queen, the Esso Bridge, broke in two off Cape Hatteras in 1960 and seven lives were lost.

The Sulphur Queen left Beaumont, Texas, at 8 a.m. last Saturday under the command of Capt. J. V. Fanning of that city. The ship, operated by Marine Transport Lines Incorporated, carried a load of molten sulphur.

The last known word from the tanker came last Sunday at 8:25 p.m., the coast guard said, when a seaman sent a personal message from the Sulphur Queen giving her position as 200 miles southeast of New Orleans.

Coroner's Jury Says Man Shot Himself

HAILEYBURY, Ont. (CP)— Roland Garceau, 44, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head, a coroner's jury ruled Friday.

But the five-man jury ignored a suggestion from Ontario's supervising coroner, Dr. H. B. Cotnam, that it give an opinion on the actions of Arnold Peters, New Democratic Party federal member for Timiskaming.

The inquest was called after the NDP member suggested that the death of Garceau was linked with the highgrading racket in Northern Ontario.

Highgrading is the illegal removal of high-grade ore from mines.

The coroner suggested Friday that Mr. Peters had been "acting irresponsibly" and making charges "verging on public mischief."

He said Mr. Peters should have gone to the police—not the press—with any suspicions about the death, and accused him of being a "mischiefmaker."

WAS THREATENED

Two witnesses testified that Garceau told them someone was trying to kill him.

Mr. Peters, who testified for half an hour, was interrupted several times by Crown attorney F. A. Goldbick, who told him the inquest was not dealing with highgrading and to stick to the facts surrounding the death.

Two nephews of Garceau said they found the body Oct. 27 in a locked room with a pistol clutched in both hands.

Dr. W. J. Deadman of the attorney - general's laboratory testified that the difficulty police had prying the pistol from the dead man's grasp indicated Garceau had held the gun at the moment of death.

Police had originally termed the death a suicide and had said no inquest would be necessary.

LANDSLIDE KILLS 5

MANILA (AP)—A landslide brought on by heavy rains has buried and apparently killed five people on flood - stricken Mindanao Island, the Red Cross said today. More than 50,000 are homeless.

Taxi Drivers Want Guns

PARIS (Reuters) — Paris taxi drivers today demanded permission to carry firearms after the murder of two fellow drivers earlier this week.

Albert Tanneur, secretary of the drivers' union, said there had been 394 attacks on taxi drivers in the Paris area since the war, including 23 murders.

Thaw Cracks Through Freeze To Bring Floods and Landslides

LONDON (AP) — All across Europe today thaw cracked through the worst freeze of the century, bringing floods and landslides. The death toll climbed to 600.

Rain-loosened earth slithered down on the village of Mirofiltion in central Greece, destroying all buildings except the church and the school. Police warned the 800 villagers in time and they fled with their live stock. Greek Air Force helicopters dropped tents and supplies.

Four Yugoslav helicopters bombed the ice on the Morava River where it is nearly 10 feet thick.

About 200 families were left homeless in Leskovac, southern Yugoslavia. Reservoirs formed a human chain in the river and prevented ice floes from land to hand when 100 houses were inundated in the Slaisc area.

In northern France, the flood threat mounted as snows began melting. Rain in northwestern France also threatened flood danger.

The slow thaw continued in Germany, but was not fast enough to cause any flooding.

In Britain, the threat of flooding moved to the north as the thaw spread up toward Scotland. A Devon River board spokesman said widespread flooding was unlikely in the next 24 hours unless there was heavy rain.

Today's Chuckle

Almost everyone believes in luck. He wise can we explain the success of those we don't like?

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cloudy and milder weather with occasional light snow prevails over Northern Ontario. Later today this weather will spread into southern Ontario accompanied by a little light snow, to be followed Sunday by clearing skies and a slight drop in temperature. Generally clear and colder weather is due for northern regions Sunday.

JOBLESS FUND WILL GO BROKE END OF MARCH

Headache Awaits Next Government

OTTAWA (CP)—The unemployment insurance fund will go bankrupt within two months, reliable sources forecast Friday. Benefit payments will be suspended, likely by a multi-million-dollar government loan to the fund.

The state of the fund will confront the 26th Parliament with a red-hot political and financial headache. Some basic changes seem necessary in view of the fund's fall from its 1956 peak of $926,000,000.

Last May, it had only $19,000,000 on hand, the lowest point since it was established in 1941. It held $90,000,000 at the end of 1962.

PREPARE PLANS

Two projections have been prepared, one based on the average experience of the last three years, the other based on the actual experience in 1962. Both show the fund in the hole by some $13,700,000 at the end of March, $49,000,000 at April 30.

A $25,000,00 emergency loan was earmarked by Parliament for such an eventuality. The loan, however, expires with the end of the fiscal year March 31.

After that, any money for Unemployment Insurance will have to be provided through Governor-General's warrants passed by the cabinet.

The second forecast shows only $2,000,000 in the kitty at the end of March. By April 30, the fund would be in the hole to the tune of $22,000,000.

PROMISE LAWS

The government of Prime Minister Diefenbaker had promised legislation to repair the fund problem.

A committee had recommended a universal unemployment insurance plan, a $150,000,000-a-year program of extended benefits and greater use of the existing federal-provincial program of unemployment assistance.

This report—and a bankrupt insurance fund—will await whatever party achieves victory at the polls early in April.

Two Reporters Lodge Appeals Before Deadline

LONDON (Reuters) —Lawyers for two reporters sentenced to jail for refusing to reveal their sources of information lodged appeals minutes before the deadline Friday.

A high court judge last Monday sentenced Brendan Mulholland, 20, of The Daily Mail to six months in jail and Reginald Foster, 58, of The Daily Sketch to three months for contempt of court after they refused to reveal to a special tribunal sources for articles they wrote about William John Vassall, former admiralty clerk now serving a 18-year sentence for giving navy secrets to Russia.

The reporters' cases will be reviewed by the Court of Appeals.

Meanwhile, three surprise witnesses were called before the security tribunal Friday to testify on behalf of Mulholland.

Mulholland had refused to disclose who told him that Vassall, a self-confessed homosexual, was known in admiralty circles as "Auntie." The allegation was significant because newspapers charged Vassall's homosexuality had been overlooked in security checks.

Clerical officer Patrick Delahunty testified he had worked in the same office as Vassall but denied telling anyone Vassall was known as "Miss Vassall" or "Auntie."

He said, however, he noticed Vassall's effeminate appearance.

TALKS OF COMING SPACE FLIGHT — Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper, Jr., is shown at Houston during a news conference on his upcoming Mercury space flight scheduled for late April. Cooper said plans called him to decommence the space ship to see how well the space suit worked. He said the coming flight would be 22 orbits or longer. (AP Wirephoto).

All Hope Anti-Americanism Will Not Be Election Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—Strong pressures are reported building up to keep anti-Americanism out of the April 8 federal election campaign.

Top officials of all three opposition parties in the last Parliament say they are determined to do what they can to prevent such an issue developing and to focus attention instead on "the real issues."

Powerful elements within the Conservative party are likewise said to feel that an emotional anti-Yankee binge could do nothing but harm to Canada's true interests.

According to one report, a number of cabinet ministers have let Prime Minister Diefenbaker know that they will no longer support him as leader if he attempts to exploit recent differences between Canada and the U.S. Many observers doubt, however that Mr. Diefenbaker would agree to keep these differences out of the campaign entirely.

A question frequently raised is whether the Conservative embrahil on Canadian sovereignty and "made in Canada" policies will, if it catches fire, generate its own form of chauvinism and anti - Americanism, given the present state of relations between the two countries.

A source close to the prime minister, questioned on the subject, said candidly it is "quite obvious" that anti-Americanism will be an issue.

It was inevitable because of the setting of the campaign, which will be waged against the background of U.S. criticism of Canadian defence policies, criticism that evidently helped precipitate the defeat of the minority Diefenbaker government in the Commons.

Liberal frontbencher Paul Martin said he doesn't know how the Conservatives can make an issue "out of something all parties are agreed upon, namely that there should be no outside intervention in Canadian affairs."

Social Credit Leader Thompson said it would be "most unfortunate" if anti-Americanism became an issue but he was afraid it will become one.

A high official of the New Democratic Party said Mr. Diefenbaker evidently intends to "stress it a great deal," while

Bennett's Budget Will Touch Every Pocketbook for Better

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Bennett stepped into his role as British Columbia's finance minister Friday and produced an annual budget that touches almost every pocketbook in B.C.—for the better.

Mr. Bennett promised to double government $50 annual grant to home-owners by 1965, eliminate a five-per-cent amusement tax on movies and sports events, raise civil service salaries, ease the logging tax and still have a balanced budget for the 1963-64 fiscal year.

Money was also in the limelight in another Canadian legislature.

In Quebec, Premier Lesage and Opposition leader Daniel Johnson exchanged pointed advice on stock market investments.

Mr. Bennett forecast expenditures of $372,706,000 in the 1963-64 fiscal year, up $16,564,000 from the amount spent last year, and revenues of $372,807,000, for a surplus of $201,000.

As in most other provinces, B.C.'s educational costs rise sharply and the department budgeting for $93,008,000 in expenditures next year, up close to $9,000,000 from the current year.

The premier also announced a change of plans. In June, he had said the present per-capita grant paid to municipalities would be replaced by grants in lieu of taxes. The budget said the grants will continue and the province will pay the equivalent of a 15-mill levy on provincial property.

B.C. will also enter the field of succession duties, abandoned by the federal government in 1946-47 in favor of rebates from Ottawa. Mr. Bennett said federal administration of the duties is allowing "skillfully managed large estates" to escape the taxes through legal means, and attempts to plug the loopholes in Ottawa didnt appear to be successful.

The province's 15,000 civil

STORM BREWING OVER ESTIMATES ON TOURISM

Not Yet Approved By Legislature

TORONTO (CP)— A small storm brewed in the legislature Friday over what the government described as a $1,000,000,000 business for the province.

A six-hour barrage of questions and argument left the 1963-64 estimates of the travel and publicity department still to be approved.

Travel and Publicity Minister Cathcart said foreign tourists spend about $350,000,000 a year in Ontario and along with the money Canadian tourists spend in the province it adds up to a $1,000,000,000 tourist industry.

This was good enough for Opposition Leader Wintermeyer, who wanted to know why only 55 per cent of the province's going abroad come to Canada compared to a figure of 45 per cent in 1954.

He charged that Mr. Cathcart had evaded the real problems and "disappointed" when he instead substituted "platitudes" for a discussion of "the real fundamentals" the department needed a "policy of conscience" to guide it.

URGES SPENDING

If it were true that 15 per cent of tourist spending in Ontario comes back to the government, Queen's Park should "be willing to pump real money into it to assist development of tourist resorts, be said in urging the province to spend $25,000,000 to build a year-round resort in a lake region capable of handling large conventions.

Mr. Cathcart said Ontario faces increased competition from other countries for the U.S. tourist dollar.

To meet this the provincial treasury department undertook a study that resulted in reorganization of all travel and publicity branches, he said.

The minister added that tourist operators and allied service industries shared an eight per cent increase in income from tourist spending in 1962. There was also been a heavy increase in winter activities.

DEMANDS PROBE

NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald demanded an investigation of the cost of public relations.

Hunt for Man Who Was to Get Transmitter

CANBERRA (Reuters) —Security agents today pressed a search for the missing "third man" in the Russian spy case.

The Melbourne Herald says he was the man to whom a Russian-made radio transmitter was to have been delivered by a woman countercpy.

The transmitter of the alleged spy ring is Soviet diplomat Ivan F. Skripov, ordered out of Australia last February on charges he made "elaborate preparations for espionage."

Debt Collector Hacked to Death

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) —A white South African businessman, Armando Della Torre, about 30, was hacked to death Friday night by a group of Negroes in Langa African Township near here.

Della Torre, who had been collecting debts, was seen running to his car chased by a number of Negroes armed with pangas.

Before he reached the car he was attacked and hacked to death. His attackers fled.

Police believe robbery was the motive for the murder.

Borders, Airports Remain Sealed Off From World

Rebel Junta Names Interim President

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rebel firing squads have executed Iraq's overthrown Premier Abdel Kerim Kassem, and three of his top lieutenants, Baghdad radio announced today.

The executions took place after the capture of Kassem and his aides by army rebels who staged a lightning revolt Friday, the broadcast said.

(Kassem's brother - in - law, Brig. Fadel Abbas El Mehdawi and Al Taha Al Sheikh Ahmed, "an Iraqi communist agent," also were executed according to the Baghdad radio reports quoted by Cairo radio.

(El Mehdawi was president of a military tribunal which tried Kassem's opponents after Kassem came to power in a military revolt in 1958.)

Earlier broadcasts by the new Iraqi regime had said Kassem was "destroyed" but gave no details of his reported death. It was believed by some that he could have fled from his besieged defence ministry and made good his escape by boat on the Tigris River.

FIND THE BODIES.

Another broadcast today said that the bodies of two of Kassem's lieutenants had been found by soldiers in the rubble of the bombed-out ministry. As soon as the announcer read his statement, cheering voices were heard shouting that the "mad dictator has met his death beneath the feet of the people."

Indicating that anti-Communist rebels may not yet have extended their supremacy everywhere, other broadcasts urged people to report to revolutionary centres and enlist to defend the revolt against Kassem's supporters.

Borders and airports remained sealed off from the rest of the world and Iraqis were warned that violators of a curfew would be shot.

Syria, Iraq's northwest neighbor, closed its own borders and braced for possible trouble from the pro-Soviet Iraqi regime. The situation in Damascus, where pro-Nasser students had demonstrated against the government last month, was described as tense.

Main threat to the new regime appeared to come from Iraq's well - organized Communists.

PLANS MANY ORBITS

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — U.S. astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. said Friday he may stay aloft for more than 22 orbits on his upcoming space trip unless the two-man Gemini capsule could sustain him at least two days—23 orbits—if it were allowed to orbit the earth a minimum fuel and oxygen consumption.

Alberta, Quebec Key Factors in Cabinet Changes

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative party fortunes in Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia loom large in the impending reorganization of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's cabinet.

Works Minister Fulton, one of the two B.C. cabinet ministers, is expected to surrender his portfolio before the end of the month to become the Progressive Conservative leader in B.C. on a full-time basis.

Alberta's cabinet representative until his resignation this week was former defence minister Harkness.

Thus there soon will be two portfolios to fill and, as always, many claimants for them.

The prime minister's easiest course might seem to be to appoint a B.C. man to succeed Mr. Fulton and an Albertan to succeed Mr. Harkness. But in politics the easiest course isn't always the best one.

Mr. Diefenbaker has a particular problem with regard to both the national defence portfolio and his cabinet representation from Quebec. He has been under fire for giving too little heed to his Quebec ministers.

VOTES ARE VITAL

Quebec's votes are vital to the Conservatives in the April 8 election.

Hon. Pierre Sevigny, 45-year-old associate defence minister, is ambitious to succeed Mr. Harkness as defence minister. He has been associate minister since 1960.

But he is only one among a number of present ministers mentioned for the job. Others include Veterans Minister Churchill, 64; Fisheries Minister MacLean, 48; Marcel Lambert, 47, Speaker of the last Commons; and Transport Minister Balcer, 45.

Mr. Lambert, MP for Edmonton West, and Arthur Smith, MP for Calgary South, have been mentioned at different times as cabinet timber from Alberta. But Mr. Smith says he won't run for re-election.

Other names have been mentioned as possible ministers for B.C.—David Orsh, Mr. Fulton's parliamentary secretary for fisheries.

Sure Russia Will Go Capitalist Roy Thomson Tells Red Officials

MOSCOW (AP)—Newspaper publisher Roy Thomson told the Russians today he is sure they will develop along capitalist lines.

The Canadian-born millionaire is in Moscow at the head of 170 British business leaders he brought here for a spectacular weekend visit.

About 30, who have come with a group of the British visitors met at the Soviet foreign trade ministry today to talk politics and told them amid laughter:

"As time goes on, I am sure you will develop along capitalist lines. And you will make progress."

"In the capitalist system we have to work like the deuce to make a living," Thomson told acting foreign trade minister Sergei Borisov. he added:

Canadian Tanker Explodes, Sinks

Nicholson College Students Present 'Charley's Aunt'

The auditorium at St. Michael's Academy was filled to capacity Friday evening as adults and children alike gathered to see Nicholson College Drama Club members present "Charley's Aunt," directed by Sister Mary Hyacinth.

Leading figures in the 10 member cast were Peter Cliff Philips as Charley and Roberta Bradshaw as Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez, Charley's aunt.

Jack Chesney, violently in love with Kitty Verdun, and Charley, equally enamored of Amy Spettigue, invite their sweethearts to their room for luncheon - - - in order to meet Charley's aunt from Brazil, whom he has never met.

A wire is received from Charley's aunt saying her visit will be delayed a few days. This comes as a terrible blow to the boys' plans. It is not permissible for the girls to visit the boys without a chaperone.

CHARLEY'S NEW AUNT

So young Lord Baberly, a fellow undergraduate, is dressed in a black satin skirt, a lace fichu, a pair of mitts and an old-fashioned cap and wig. You're right, this is to be Charley's aunt from Brazil, as far as the two girls are concerned.

As Charley's aunt then, this old friend of Jack's pretends to two sweethearts; to Jack's father (who is advised by his son to marry the millions); and to Mr. Stephen Spettigue, Kitty's guardian and Amy's uncle.

Time passes and Charley's sister is thinking perhaps he will propose to the old goat, as he must think of his son's future, and she is rich so she can foot the bill.

But, as Jack's father is making a play for dear old aunty, Mr. Spettigue is also planning the same idea, so he, too, is after her—millions that is.

By the time Charley's real aunt arrives at the scene, Jack has proposed to Kitty, Charley has proposed to Amy, and Mr. Spettigue has proposed to Charley's (boy) aunty.

The real aunt assumes another name and after meeting the happily little group, finds there is an imposter in the crowd, and that is the poor old poor Lord Baberly through the third degree.

Lord Baberly, after meeting the real aunt, realizes that she is his old flame from about 20 years back, but what he doesn't know is that she is the real Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez.

EVERYBODY HAPPY

In the confusion and in confusion, Lord Baberly, the phoney aunt, has tricked Mr. Spettigue into agreeing to the marriage of his ward to Jack, the real aunt marries Jack's father, Charley gets Amy and Spettigue's phoney aunt regains the fortune he has lost at gambling and obtains the hand of the girl he loves.

The cast was as follows: Mr. Stepnen Spettigue — Jerry Murphy; Col. Sir Francis Chesney — Brett Mann, as Jack's father; Charley — Peter Cliff Philips; Lord Fancourt Baberly — Brian Hannell; Jack Chesney — Michael Cleary; Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez — Roberta Bradshaw; Kitty Verdun — Heather Boyle; Amy Spettigue — Cheryl Power, and Ela Delahay — Carol Ann Kelly.

During intermission the audience was entertained by lovely Miss Elaine McCaffrey and talented young Stephen Boyle, with their tap dancing.

GIANT KITES

N.Y. Columnist Indicted For Failing to Register

WASHINGTON (AP) — Igor Cassini, New York society columnist who writes under the name of Cholly Knickerbocker, has been indicted on charges of failing to register as a publicity agent for the late Dominican dictator, Rafael L. Trujillo.

Cassini, younger brother of Jacqueline Kennedy's personal dress designer, Oleg Cassini, called the charge untrue.

"I am confident I will be cleared of this technical charge of non-registration," he said.

The indictment returned announced Friday a four-count indictment was returned against Igor Cassini by a federal grand jury here which has been investigating Dominican lobbying in the United States.

Each of the four alleged violations of the 1938 Foreign Agents Registration Act carries a possible maximum penalty of five years in prison and $100,000 fine.

A department spokesman said the grand jury accused Cassini of sharing fees of nearly $200,000 for spreading "political propaganda" designed to improve the image of the Trujillo regime.

18 Minnesota Banks Indicted For Fixing Rates

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The federal government has begun a double-barrelled legal action against 20 Minnesota banks and financial institutions, marking the first use of the Sherman anti-trust law against banks.

Three indictments returned by a federal grand jury Friday named 18 banks, a bank holding company and a clearing house in the criminal action.

Government attorneys said they will bring companion civil suits Monday asking courts to prohibit the rate-fixing activities charged in the indictments.

Among the counts in the indictments were charges that the banks acted in concert to fix rates, terms and conditions on loans secured by bank stock; fixed rates of interest for correspondent banks, and in general agreed on relations with correspondent banks.

Correspondent banks are financial institutions which rely on big city banks to clear checques and make loans largely on the basis of liquid assets applied to the rural banks.

DENY THE CHARGES

Officials of Minneapolis banks called a press conference last night to deny the charges.

"We seem to be the guinea pigs," said J. H. Colman, chairman of the board of First Bank Stock Corporation, a big bank stock holding company.

The bankers said the government's move is a test action to determine "if and to what extent, anti-trust laws apply to banking."

Maximum penalty for each defendant in the criminal action would be a $50,000 fine. Chief officers of each bank would appear for arraignment Monday.

Mayor Haig Discusses Civic Govt. at Park Dale

Mayor A. McLean Haig sketched a vivid word picture of the development of municipal government down through the ages, during a speech to Parkdale Ratepayers' Association Monday evening.

The Mayor, Alderman J. Ellis and Alderman J. Allin who are Council representatives on the Parkdale Community Centre Board, were guests of the Ratepayers' Association February meeting, through speeches on the subject of municipal government. Mayor Haig hopes to arouse more public interest in municipal affairs.

"Less than forty per cent of those eligible to vote, did so at the last city elections," noted the Mayor, "yet better than fifty per cent voted on the recent liquor plebiscite." "I consider it vital," he continued, "that private citizens be persuaded to take more interest in the conduct of their government."

In describing the beginnings of municipal government, the Mayor referred to the Middle Ages, times of Moses, Joshua and David. He followed it through the Greek-Roman period to the time of Alfred the Great and the start of the English borough system.

He traced the transfer of municipal government to North America with the justice department and progress. His listeners learned with surprise that St. John, N.B. was the first city in Canada to be granted its municipal government charter.

DESCRIBES DUTIES

Mayor Haig next described the history and growth of Belleville, and the duties connected with its municipal government. He said: tribute to the original settlers which would be a $50,000 fine. Chief officers of each bank would appear for arraignment Monday.

May Not Issue Peace Stamp This Year

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congressman Charles Mosher said Friday Postmaster-General J. Edward Day believes 1963 is not a propitious year for the publication of a stamp commemorating 150 years of peace between Canada and the United States.

The Ohio Republican said he received a charied Mosher said Friday Postmaster-General J. Edward Day believes 1963 is not a propitious year for the publication of a stamp commemorating 150 years of peace between Canada and the United States.

The Ohio Republican said he received a charied Mosher said Day suggesting that 1964 may be a better year for such a stamp since that was the year the war of 1812 was signed on Dec. 24, 1814.

Mosher, who has launched a campaign for simultaneous production in the two countries of a stamp to commemorate the 150 years of peace, said in a statement that Day's suggestion appears logical since 1963 would be a disappointment to states bordering on the Great Lakes.

These "are especially interested in the 150th anniversary of the signing of Lake Erie," it was that historic event that made lasting peace possible along our northern border."

On Sept. 10, 1813, U.S. Commodore Oliver Perry defeated the British fleet on Lake Erie and sent a message to headquarters saying: "We have met the enemy and they are ours . . ."

CRISIS INTERFERES?

Mosher said he feels "the present political crisis in Canada may interfere with a decision there."

He added in an interview:

"I deplore the present differences between Canada and the U.S. I feel that people on each side of the border—those in the state department and in the White House—are to blame for public criticism of Canadian nuclear policy.

"But this temporary embarrassment should not stand in the way of celebrating our long years of peace. A stamp would be a small but helpful way of signifying our lasting friendship."

Says Kennedy Authorized Substance But Not Wording Of Criticism of Canada

WASHINGTON (CP)—An informed source says President Kennedy authorized the substance but not the wording of the state department's public criticism of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's nuclear policy.

This informant, well-acquainted with the train of events that led to the issuance of the hotly-debated statement, says there should be no illusions that the state department is operating behind Kennedy's back.

When Diefenbaker aired his views on Canada-U.S. nuclear negotiations and the shift in Western nuclear strategy in his Jan. 25 House of Commons speech, both State Secretary Dean Rusk and Kennedy were placed on the alert, the informant says. The decision then was taken by the president to issue a statement clarifying the U.S. position. The wording was left to the state department, to be cleared later by the White House.

VERSIONS CONFLICT

The question of what part Kennedy played in the controversy—sparked in a Diefenbaker charge that the state department had made an unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs—has been the subject of conflicting interpretations by veteran American correspondents.

One school maintains that both Rusk and Kennedy knew nothing to do with the whole affair—that some lower officials had concocted the whole thing. Another school, led by veteran correspondent Arthur Krock of the New York Times, maintains that Kennedy not only had great but final responsibility for the statement, "including its phraseology."

The informant says preparation and issuance of the statement was thoroughly machined and co-ordinated "right to the top." Every possible reaction was considered, though the stinging criticism of all Canadian political parties came as a surprise. the planners had not believed the opposition parties would join with the Progressive Conservative administration in accusing the U.S. of unwarranted intrusion.

IS WELL AWARE

When the department's statement, charging that the Diefenbaker government hadn't pulled its full weight in Canada-U.S. defence, was issued, the White House official said the president was well aware of all facets of the Canada-U.S. controversy and the nature of the department's rebuttal.

Later, as U.S. legislators and American newspapers joined in the outburst against the department's rough handling of Canada, the White House emphasized Kennedy had not seen nor approved the final version of the statement. There even was a hint that Kennedy was surprised and upset by the whole operation and was calling for full state department information on the matter.

Republicans accused the department of being harsh and clumsy in its public utterance and one right-wing commentator suggested it was time Kennedy rid himself of Rusk. The state department also emphasized that Kennedy had seen the statement before it was issued. Rusk said he took full responsibility for it.

The difficulty of maintaining this pose was that it gave the appearance that Kennedy was not aware of what was going on in the department or in the execution of his foreign policy. The informant said this was not the case.

LIFT RESTRICTIONS

OTTAWA (CP) — Indians in the Yukon Territory have been given freedom to purchase and consume liquor on the same basis as every other citizen there. A proclamation in the official Canada Gazette announced the lifting of the special liquor restrictions that have applied to Indians, effective Feb. 1. The Yukon has an Indian population of some 2,200.

Phone Man Was Phoney, Wielded Gun

BETHESDA, Md. (AP)—At 1 p.m. Friday the branch bank at the Methesda Naval Hospital was advised by telephone that its electrical circuits seemed to be overloaded. The caller promised to be right over to fix them.

Thirty minutes later a man marched in who for the next half hour, until closing time, tinkered with the wires.

Then, according to bank employees, he nearly went to work—with a short black gun.

He unloaded the bank of an estimated $30,000.

Tourist Region Council Meets

MADOC — The regular meeting of the Highlands of Hastings and Land O' Lakes Tourist Council—Region 10—was held this weekend at Madoc. Mr. Grant McKittrick, president of the council, reported that plans were well underway for the display of Eastern Ontario at the Toronto Sportsmen's Show, on March 15th to March 23rd, and the Ottawa Sportsmen's Show, March 22nd to March 31st. The early Canadian furniture in the tourist booth has been loaned by the furniture factory in Madoc. A highlight of the display is a chance to win a free vacation for two to one week to the resort of your choice in the Highlands of Hastings or Land O' Lakes area. # Irish Object To Grouping With Africa

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish government announced Friday night that it will protest to United Nations against a UN report that classified the Republic of Ireland with Africa as a "less developed" area.

Prime Minister Sean LeMass and his (Irish government) drawing a foreign affairs debate:

"I certainly intend to express my intention that any United Nations body should publish a statement which may be taken by reference or notification to the government here.

"I regard it not merely as a disservice but as highly irresponsible."

The report, issued in New York by the UN commission on international commodity trade, classified seventy countries. It classified Ireland with Greece, Spain, Portugal, Africa, Southeast Asia, Latin America and the Middle East, as "economically less developed countries."

U.S.-Spanish Talks on Bases Have Hit Snag

MADRID (AP)—The United States and Spain have struck a snag in getting negotiations started on renewal of leases for American bases in exchange for aid.

The U.S. embassy said today the visit of Roswell L. Gilpatric, U.S. deputy secretary of defence, to open the talks "has been postponed because it appears neither side is yet ready to start talking."

Gilpatric was scheduled to come here Feb. 15.

Reports have been circulating in Madrid for a week that Gilpatric had been running into difficulties in arranging interviews with top Spanish officials during his planned four-day stay.

PLANS OTHER VISITS

U.S. embassy sources said it was presumed Gilpatric would fly to Rome and Bonn as previously scheduled to keep appointments there. They said they had no idea when he would be coming to Spain.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco has announced his desire to renegotiate base leases which are expiring in September. The Spanish chief of state has made public he wants more favorable terms, but he has not spelled them out.

The United States has given Spain approximately $1,500,000 in economic and military assistance for the 10-year-old bases.

Some observers said recent moves to end President de Gaulle to Franco may have led the Spanish leader to try to use the bases as a lever to get as much as he can from the Americans.

3 Questioned After Robbery Near Ivanhoe

Three men were being questioned by provincial police in Belleville today after an elderly Ivanhoe farmer was robbed of $300 at his home early this morning.

The men were arrested by Provincial police as they drove through town in a car.

Victim of the robbery was 72-year-old Jack Douglas, a bachelor who lives alone on a Huntingdon Township concession road about a mile east of the hamlet of Ivanhoe.

The robbery occurred shortly after 1 a.m. when three men rapped on the farm house door. When the farmer opened up, one of the men grabbed him around the neck, police said.

There was a struggle, before the men took the money, wrapped in a paper bag, from Mr. Douglas' pocket.

They then fled the scene in a small automobile.

The suspects were picked up later in Trenton and turned over to provincial police for questioning by officers from Madoc OPP detachment.

Mr. K Rejects Possible Pact Against China

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev today rejected the suggestion that there might one day be a Russian-American fleet-up, opposed to Communist China.

"That day will not come," he said.

Khrushchev was speaking during a two-hour interview at the Kremlin with Canadian newspaper magnate Roy Thomson.

He dismissed the idea of a "third force" European bloc as expounded by French President de Gaulle and said Russia was stronger than the "first, second and third forces" altogether.

He declared that there were no Soviet nuclear arms on Cuba and said a "certain number" of Soviet troops there were merely training the Cubans in the use of modern Soviet weapons.

Row Is Brewing Over Princess Staying at Home

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret began a quiet weekend in the country today while behind her in London a row built up over the cancellation of her visit to Paris.

Charles Pannel, Labor member of Parliament, said he plans to call on Prime Minister Macmillan Tuesday in the House of Commons for an explanation. Pannel said the cancellation, on government advice "is just stupid."

Correspondents were told that the scheduled Paris visit next month was called off because Margaret has duties at home while the Queen is touring Australia and New Zealand. But there was speculation that the cancellation was further evidence of the government's displeasure at the French veto barring Britain from Common Market membership.

The row might break in Parliament even before Tuesday. Harold Wilson, front-runner for the Labor party leadership, was reported considering raising the matter when he opens a debate on the Common Market on Monday.

NOT HER CHOICE

There was a growing feeling in London that Princess Margaret would have gone through with the projected visit had it been left to her. The announcement from Kensington Palace specified the cancellation was made on government advice.

Since it is the prime minister's duty to advise the Royal Family on such matters, the announcement appeared to lay the blame on the doorstep of 10 Downing Street.

In Whitehall, it was asserted, however, that the move was not a snub for President de Gaulle who has been blamed for torpedoing Britain's hopes of joining the Common Market.

Princess Margaret, in a gay white coat and high black boots, left London airport Friday night accompanied by her husband, Lord Snowdon, to spend the weekend with friends at Dowdeswell Manor, near Cheltenham, in the west of England.

Passport Has Number Issued In Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian passport found in a Sydney, Australia, graveyard during investigation of Soviet spying in that country has the same number as one issued in Canada Sept. 6, 1960, to Andrew Huha, who lived in Toronto at that time.

An official of the external affairs department said Friday that if the passport found is valid it is the one issued to Huha, a naturalized Canadian of Czechoslovakian origin who had lived in Canada since 1927. However, the official said it is not known whether the passport is a forgery.

While Canada keeps no record of persons leaving for other countries, the department understood that Huha left after obtaining a passport. He was issued a passpor on presentation of a valid certificate of Canadian identification.

The department now is attempting to learn who happened to Huha.

As a result of the Australian investigation, Soviet diplomat Ivan S. Filipov was ordered Thursday to leave Australia within seven days after being charged with making "elaborate preparations for espionage."

The Canadian passport was found in the graveyard by a woman whom Skripov believed he was working for him. The woman actually was working for Australian counter - espionage.

Huha's sister-in-law said in Toronto Friday that Huha left Toronto in October, 1960, and is believed living in his native Czechoslovakia. Mr. and Mrs. John Huha, the missing man's brother and sister-in-law, moved here with Andrew 36 years ago from their native village of Lizel, near the Russian border in Czechoslovakia.

Andrew's wife, Annie, who also came to Canada at that time, returned to Czechoslovakia with their son, George, in 1962, Mrs. Huha said. Andrew left to rejoin his wife and son after making several trips from Toronto to Ottawa during 1960 to see Russian embassy officials, she added.

"As far as we know he is living with his wife and son in Lizel," she said.

Around The Tee

Play will open early on Monday morning and continue until Tuesday evening, when the women's section of the Quinte Curling Club will hold their annual 'spiel for The Ontario Intelligencer bonspiel trophy, miniatures and the accompanying prizes. This spiel has attracted rinks from all sections of the district and Mrs. Fran Millar from Kingston will be on hand with her rink to try and make it three wins in a row, but it is understood the competition will be a little stiffer this year. There are a number of classy rinks entered from the RCAF, including one skipped by Mrs. Bowdery, while Napanee and Picton will send their cards. Trenton has entered a couple of rinks, while the local entries are well groomed for the long grind.

During the spiel the women will enjoy a tea hour, a spiel and banquet and superb hospitality. The icemaker, Jack Clearwater, is planning special preparations under the direction of the ice chairman, Everett Bleeks, to have especially fast ice. The public is invited to watch the game and will be interested in the qualities of the women broom wielders.

A rink from the Quinte Club of Mrs. Nina Gault, Mrs. Lee Beare, Mrs. Jessie Baker with Mrs. Hazel McNevin as skip, journeyed to Napanee on Monday last and came home with the two-game lead. They play on Tuesday another rink of Mrs. Nina Gault, Mrs. Ruth Mayhew, Mrs. Anne Staines and Mrs. Hazel McNevin as skip, won the three-game lead for the day. It is not often that a skip can get in the prize money two days in succession.

A week from today the big Victoria and Grey Trust spiel, sponsored by the local branch, will be played at the Quinte Club. This is an invitation spiel and some fine rinks are expected to be in the competition. On the same Saturday a ladies' men's spiel is being conducted by the Trenton Curling Club, and a couple of rinks from the local club will be on hand.

Same Old Pattern, But Good

The government of Premier John Roberts of Ontario has brought down its first budget. Even a cursory perusal will serve to show that nothing new has been added since the days of Premier Leslie Frost.

In an election year it was, as might have been anticipated, an election budget, offering the time-tested formula of a promise of higher expenditures and lower taxes. But this was in the Frost style. One of the major tax concessions, for example, was that the sales tax would not apply to purchases under 21 cents. Previously the exemption limit had been 17 cents. A tuppenny change like this can hardly be described as an orgy of bribing the voters with their own money.

The Robarts regime is as like the Frost regime as two peas in a pod. Solid and sober in the point where many would describe it as unimaginative, it goes stolidly along its way, whittling away at the province's problems, adding a few miles of super-highway here, a bridge or causeway there, a few million dollars more for universities, a modest $5,000,000 start in a 20-year program of acquiring shoreline property and parks. There is little in its program to evoke enthusiasm.

All one can say for it is that, if the rest of Canada and of the world were as well governed as is Ontario, viewers with alarm would have to work overtime to justify their pessimism.

Appeal Denied

Ohio's pardon and parole commission has voted, four to nothing, against recommending any change in the sentence of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard.

Dr. Sheppard, you may recall, was the Cleveland osteopath who bludgeoned his pregnant wife to death because he was tired of her.

He would now like his second degree murder sentence commuted to manslaughter. This would make possible an earlier parole. In Ohio one has to spend at least ten years in jail, less time off for good behavior, if the authorities decide that bludgeoning one's pregnant wife to death is second degree murder, and not merely manslaughter.

The parole board's heartstrings were played upon by Mrs. Ariane Tebbenjohanns of West Dusseldorf, West Germany. Mrs. Tebbenjohanns is described as a tall, attractive, blonde divorcee. The pen, it seems, is not only mightier than the sword, but more powerful than the gun. Mrs. Tebbenjohanns and Sheppard started corresponding in 1960 and in a mere two years she was persuaded to come to the U.S. to visit her pen-pal in the pen. After a visit lasting 4½ hours, possibly over tea and crumpets or the Ohio equivalent, Mrs. Tebbenjohanns decided that she would like to marry Sheppard. This information was passed along to the Ohio pardon and parole commission as an additional reason why it should speed Sheppard's parole by commutation of his sentence.

If this had worked, we might have seen a whole new profession opening for women, rescuing prisoners from durance vile, though whether it would have been held in higher esteem than another older "profession" we would not venture to judge.

Frying Pan to Firing Squad

In Sverdlovsk, in Russia, two restaurant men have been sentenced to be shot, because they skimped on fat in frying meat patties and pocketed the money saved.

The Western world, of course, will be shocked by such barbarity.

The shock will be enhanced when it is learned that the saving in fat was the result of an invention which made it possible to reduce the amount specified in regulations.

This twists the tails of two of the West's sacred cows, an adoration of inventions and a detestation of regulations.

The truth of the matter is, though, that the two Russian restaurant men will not be shot for skimping the fat, but for pocketing the money they saved.

Here, of course, the inventor would have been entitled to rich rewards, either by reducing the cost of the patties and selling them at the old price, as the Russians did, or by patenting the machine and sharing its profit-making potential with others in exchange for part of the loot. In Russia, however, the restaurant men were state employees. They will be shot for stealing from the state.

Liberal Lambert Lining-up Liaisons for New Campaign

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—The Federal Liberals, in their high councils of war here in the Capital this weekend, are frantically working on battle plans for the election that has burst so suddenly upon them.

The rally was scheduled weeks before the writ fell in on Parliament Tuesday night, but they are going ahead with it on the basis that never were plans, policy and firm platform, firmly spelled out, so urgently required as now.

So the gathering of the Liberal high command has turned into a hurry-hurry emergency operation, with two separate but closely linked groups sweating out tactics and strategy for the campaign even now getting into high and possibly hysterical gear.

The party's "front-men," the practising professional politicians who make the speeches and shake the voters' hands are sweating over policy and platform decisions in open debate.

And the Liberal "Backroom Boys," the organization man, are stewing over campaigns, advertising and publicity, campaign itineraries and transport and other practical questions in skull sessions behind closed doors.

Shuttling between the two groups are the half dozen key Liberals, the captains of the party, who will have to bear ultimate responsibility for the final decisions. Lester B. Pearson, of course, Paul Martin, Jack Pickersgill, Senator Ross Macdonald, Allistair Cherrier and Walter Gordon.

GLORY ROAD

One of the bigger figures in the Liberal "Backroom" is Senator Norman Lambert, the old original political "organization man."

He was in business, and with stunning success, long before such organizers as "Miracle Men" Allister Grosart and Dalton Camp made the Conservative "Backroom," or Keith Davey of the Liberals came down the political pike.

Norman Lambert did better than any of the younger breed of "organization men," for he and his boss, former Prime Minister Mackenzie King, put the Liberal show on the road for a record 22-year-long run.

From 1930 through to '49, Norman Lambert was a one-man political band, successfully playing the role of National Organizer, Executive Secretary, Director of Public Relations, National Campaign Manager, and any other political headquarters title you might care to mention.

And it was in those 19 years, that "Organization Man" Lambert and Prime Minister Mackenzie King hit the political glory road.

Together, they constructed such a smoothly efficient apparatus as was able to purr along quietly through the 1957 without a major breakdown.

The secret of Norman Lambert has confided since, that it had interchangeable parts. Any part could serve a Provincial machine as Federal.

In fact, it was the success, in the intricate field of Federal Liberal Premier Mitchell Hepburn that really put it into high gear.

By the time "Mitch" fell out with the Federal Liberals, the Provincial Liberal party, as a unit, was running in overdrive, and nobody or nothing — war, conscription, sales, extronomical tax rates, George Drew, or even the embittered Ontario Liberals could stop it.

Norman Lambert started the organization from scratch, Drew was a Conservative, the Federation until he came along, and with Mackenzie King's enthusiastic blessing, put it together.

Of necessity, he recruited, even conscripted, Federal Liberals, their leaders and their organizations and made the Federal operation a national team effort.

Since then, and especially in more recent years, the Liberals have perhaps fashioning their Federal operation after the successful style of Conservative ex-gauleiter-extraordinaire, Allister Grosart — and he still is a power — have withdrawn from their provincial allies.

In Quebec, the withdrawal has become as complete as to be almost isolation.

BACK TO THE GRASS

It long has been Senator Lambert's conviction that the old Federal-Provincial team must be rebuilt.

The party, he is convinced — and he does not differentiate between the Federal and Provincial wings — simply cannot be run from an Ottawa command post.

The best that Federal Liberal headquarters in the Capital can do is to operate as a central clearing house for the party, functioning as the active, working channel of communication and co-operation between all groups, regional, provincial and national. The assignment would be to advise, counsel, liaise, coreciate, co-operate, but not boss.

This essentially is what the "Backroom Boys" are hearing this weekend from this old original "organization man," the one who showed them how in the first place.

They will be listening, too; for they, like the Conservatives, know that what went wrong for both parties last June was in the big Central provinces.

In Ontario, the Conservative Provincial organization under Premier Roberts simply was not the sage old senator, it simply rolling the party's Ottawa brass to get back into the provincial grass.

Protest Labor Loss Of Representation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

The Belleville and District Labor Council would appreciate it if you would print the enclosed copy of a letter sent by us to Mayor A. McLean Haig, Mayor of the City of Belleville by the Belleville and District Labor Council.

The letter is self explanatory.

Daisy La Rue
Secretary,
Belleville and District Labor Council.

Canadian Labor Congress.

Mayor A. McLean Haig,
City Hall.

Dear Sir:

I have been instructed to inform you that the Belleville and District Labor Council was very much concerned by your letter of December 17th, in which you informed the Labor Council that in the position of the Labor Council representative on the Belleville General Hospital Board had been filled by someone other than a representative of organized labor.

I have been instructed to bring your attention to the fact that the Labor Council was assured permanent and continuous representation on the Board of Belleville General Hospital on assurance of support, which was given, in the raising of funds to expand, remodel and improve the hospital in the early 1950's. It is also a matter of record that the labor representative on the Board has served the community well in that capacity.

Needless to say an assurance of possible representatives at some hypothetical time in the future does nothing to restore the faith of organized labor in the promises of the Council. We strongly urge that the Council reconsider a decision which may have been hastily made before some members of Council were aware of all of the circumstances.

Trusting that this matter will be settled in a manner which assures all that this community honors its commitments to citizens and organizations [illegible]

Daisy La Rue
Secretary,
Belleville and District Labor Council,

Canadian Labor Congress.

Opposes Proposal To Demclish Old Y

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

May I use a small space in your paper to express my consternation and regret at the possibility of the YMCA being demolished for a parking lot.

In spite of all the enthusiasm displayed to encourage the fund-raising campaign for the new "Y", to be a social club for the whole family, we are losing sight of the original intentions in the formation of the Young Men's Christian Association, and it still will not replace the lack of accessibility and convenience. Also there has always been the need for more room at the "Y" for the female population, both young and old. Why not a "Y" for the boys, auditorium and possibly a cafeteria, where smaller groups could make use of the facilities?

If Belleville aims to consider herself a forward-looking community, a good city in which to live, the council and the Planning and Development Committee would do well to re-consider any decision to scrap this building. To compare, the City of Toronto would not tear down its Central "Y" for a parking lot just to satisfy the merchants in that area. Also, consider the renovations done in the old Mutual Street Arena, again, not torn down, but made into a big recreation centre, including a curling floor, auditorium and restaurant, being used by the business people during their lunch hour.

Apropos of the necessary parking regulations for apartments, just where are the tenants of the new Bridgeview Apts. going to park all their cars?

It is just possible that Ex-Alderman Jones was not so far wrong when he said that it was time for a change at City Hall.

For the sake of argument, I hope that some other citizens will voice an opinion or two, before it is too late for regrets, and we have to pay higher taxes to create a deficit, on the open space for Front Street stores.

E. N. Gibson.

Speaking to an open meeting of the Women's Canadian Club in the Sunday School rooms of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the distinguished soldier-traveller, Major H. G. This challenge is being answered by Anglo-Saxon who are now moving into position in all corners of the world." The key to the tremendous change in world geography during the past three years, Major Scott said, was due to certain ideas which dominated leading countries of the world. Germany with her idea for revenge for defeat and restoration of colonies; Japan dominated by her idea of expansion and imperial conquest; Italy doesn't count. And Britain, the U.S.A. and France imbued with the idea there would be no more war.

Two great blunders committed by Germany and Japan practically saved the world, he said. Germany's despising attitude toward the courage of the British people and Japan's attack upon China, when, had she adopted a different policy in 1925, she might have won China to her side. With all plans for peace 'at their disposal, Japan and Germany deliberately planned violence, robbery and aggression, and their schemes were carried out from start to finish with calculated cruelty not witnessed since the days of

Doctor Says Medication Will Not Cure Cataracts

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am told I have a cataract on one eye.

Have you ever heard of drops put in the eye to cure a cataract? If an operation is necessary, is it serious? — F.M.

We're all sensitive about our eyes and eyesight. If it's a refraction error and can be corrected by glasses, we don't think much about it. But an "operation on the eye"? That sounds alarming.

Actually, as now performed, it isn't bad although I guess hardly anybody really enjoys going to a hospital. (There have been times when I have found it very restful, though.)

Modern eye anesthetics eliminate pain, and sedatives are used before and after the surgery to take care of the natural nervousness. It's an operation demanding skill, but I don't think I'd call it a serious one except for that.

Then after the eye is healed, lenses are fitted to direct the light rays to the proper part of the retina, the only way for the natural lens in the eye before the "cataract" clouded it.

The new lenses may be spectacles, or may be contact lenses which are coming into greater use for this purpose.

A cataract actually is a chemical change which causes the lens of the eye to become cloudy, thus gradually preventing sufficient light from passing through.

To date there is no medicine which will correct this. There have been claims from time to time. Some people were in fact taken in their claims. Others were deliberately offering their so-called remedies because they knew gullible people would pay money for them in hope of avoiding surgery.

However, medication can be helpful to this extent. Since the problem essentially is that the lens, as it clouds, does not admit enough light, drugs which dilate the pupil will permit some added light to pass through.

In the right case, and at the right time, this can be helpful. The time varies because there is great variation in the rate at which the cataract turns cloudy — sometimes fast, sometimes slow. In some cases, it may not ever impair eyesight. But cataracts never get better, and if you can't see adequately, surgical removal is the only answer.

I'm often asked when this should be done. It used to be the custom to have cataracts to "ripen," but these days the decision depends rather on the ease of improving vision.

A person who needs to use his eyes for close work should have surgery much sooner than the person who doesn't. I've known plenty of people who, after the operation, vehemently wondered why they had put it off so long.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a varicose ulcer near the ankle and it doesn't seem to heal. Please tell me what to do. — M.P.

There is no hope of being able to heal that type of ulcer without medical attention, and then it isn't easy unless proper steps are taken to correct the varicose veins — the basic cause of the trouble.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is Sjogren's syndrome and what causes it? — J.D.W.

It's a condition in which there is a decreased secretion of moisture — in the eyes, in the mouth, insufficient saliva, and similar dryness of nose, throat, stomach and other mucous membranes. The skin becomes very dry, there is loss of hair, eyes are sensitive to light, and there is difficulty in swallowing and general weakness. The cause is not know, I regret to say.

Fall My leaflet, "The Lost Secret of Reducing," tells how to get rid of it the easy way. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 16, Dunkirk, Hill, enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover cost of handling.

Got Million For Nothing

Victoria Times

A Washington report reveals astonishing subsidies granted to three American farmers One, to a Mississippi cotton grower, amounted to $1,167,500. A second gave an Arizona cotton grower $400,000, and the third, a Louisiana rice grower, $1,460,902.

The remarkable feature of these payments is that they were made by the government to the farmers for not growing cotton or rice. This is the obvious extension ad absurdum of the soil bank idea, or its equivalent.

No payments of similar size have been given Canadian farmers, for the ways of subsidies, despite the importance of the farm vote here, as in the United States.

On the other hand some Canadians will be wondering whose pamphs are being buttered by the vast surplus of the dairy products for which taxpayers' money is being spent while poundage in Canadian storage grows and grows and grows.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A chef tells me that long before mankind loses the use of its legs or even before national eyesight declines due to the strain of TV and driving in traffic, the people of North America will lose their taste buds.

"All we do is swallow," he says. "We don't chew any more. The function of teeth was not merely to reduce food to a swallowable pulp. It was also to extract the flavor of food for the enjoyment of the taste buds.

All that chefs are required to do now is inject some primitive flavor, like sweet or sour or salty, to some quickly swallowable substance; and away it goes.

The sophistication of the taste buds, which was the heritage of ancient man as well as modern European like the French, Italians, and Scandinavians, is disappearing in North America.

"For example, well-fed people wouldn't think of buying any beef except the tenderloin. The roast, or the steaks, like sirloin or porterhouse. Well-aged, these cuts are tender, and quickly browned; the less chewing, the more elite. They don't know that we chefs know, or what people of less pretention know, that the brisket and beef chuck, roasted, or corned, is a more tasty cut than all your fillets."

Goodness Always Rewarded In God's Own Time and Way

By Dr. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Is Goodness Rewarded? This is a question which I venture to think has been asked at some time by every adult person.

Perhaps like Job we have considered the seemingly undeserved calamities which have befallen us and have concluded: "It profiteth a man nothing that he should delight himself with God." Or it may be that the apparent good fortune of the ungodly has stirred us to ask with Jeremiah: "Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper?" Or more likely it has been at the moment when we felt the tug of temptation that we have asked, Does it pay to be good?

Since it is a question prompted by our weaker moods, perhaps the first point to be raised is, is it proper to ask whether goodness pays? Does not the very nature of goodness derive from the fact that it is done without thought of reward? Does not the incentive of profit run contrary to the general content of Jesus' teaching? How can the thought of prizes and pay keep company with the Cross? The followers of Jesus were bidden by Him "to lend, hoping for nothing again"; they were told to love enemies and not merely those who loved them in return; they were to throw in their lot with a homeless leafer, who promised no financial pay.

"REWARD SHALL BE GREAT"

Yet, strangely enough, Jesus, the preacher of disinterested love, talked very frequently of rewards. His promises form a quite considerable portion of His Gospel. The subtle paradox of Jesus' position shows itself to me in the way He links the call for uncalculating service with counsel, "Let your light so the expectation of reward shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father who is in heaven." Listen: "If ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thanks have ye? Even sinners lend to sinners, to receive again as much. But love your enemies and do them good, never despairing, and your reward shall be great."

Our Lord's reference to rewards and profit occurs in the gospels again and again. Certainly it would seem clear that there is a legitimate place for the factor of reward in the following of Christ. And the reason is not far to seek. Vital human effort cannot be sustained without the feeling that the work done is worth while. Every sane person wants to know whether his effort and sacrifice have value to someone, somewhere. A missionary in Africa, a painter at his easing, a digger in the ditch, a salesman at the counter are spurred on only if they feel that their work counts for something.

Knowing this innate desire of men, Jesus used it in His appeal for great tasks and heavy sacrifices. He summoned His followers to the service of a Heavenly Father whom He portrayed as more eager than an earthly parent to reward His children, a Father who is such a faithful Guarantor of values that those who serve Him should be "steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work for the Lord for as much as they know their labor is not vain in the Lord."

Yes, the Bible sometimes means that there is a Christian profit motive. But we must be on our guard lest this reference mean that selfish. For whom are we seeking the profit?

GREAT SATISFACTION

Recently I said to a surgeon, "It must be a great satisfaction to think of the persons whose lives you have saved. That must be far more than any monetary reward." The surgeon, who is a very devout Norwegian, replied, "I think of Christ's words, 'Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, you have done it unto me.' My friend the doctor is no doubt human enough to desire some professional recognition and some financial reward for his services, but more than that he is concerned to cure his patients, and still more he feels his deepest satisfaction in the thought that he is serving God.

And if we are to keep confidence in the godly profit motive,

Bulletins From Birdland

OWLETS

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

Whereas the eggs of nearly all wild birds are colored or speckled in some way, those of owls, whatever the species (these are over a dozen in Canada), are always pure white. The reason can be guessed. There is no necessity for camouflage because there is little chance of their being seen at all. The majority of owls build in holes in trees (often cavities made by woodpeckers) or in a bank; for good reasons the rest are not likely to be disturbed.

The great horned, great grey, and the snowy owl are formidable birds and well able to protect their property. The great horned, whose domestic affairs may begin in February, sometimes builds in caves or hollow trees but usually chooses the ready-made home of a red-tailed hawk, an eagle, heron, or crow. The nests of both great grey and snowy owls are in the far north where there is little chance of observation or danger though the one is in a tree and the other on the ground.

HOMES ARE HIDDEN

The home of a long-eared is almost completely hidden in a coniferous tree; the eggs of a short-eared are placed in a depression in the ground shielded by a clump of grass or weeds.

Our expression "egg-shaped" assuredly did not originate from the eggs of owls which are much nearer cylindrical. Placed as they generally are in holes they cannot roll away.

Like the eggs thedowny owlets ally become are always snowy white. Should we be fortunate enough to find a nest sufficiently exposed for us to really see, we cannot but notice the great difference in sizes. This is because owlets are born on different days — sometimes with several days in between — so they vary greatly in age.

GET VOTE RIGHTS

Canadian women received the right to vote in federal elections in 1917. Women's suffrage was only received in Belgium in 1948.

ART'S TORCH-BEARER: AGNES ETHERINGTON

"The highest and most difficult achievement of Art is not to make us laugh or cry or to rouse our lust or our anger but to do as Nature does . . . fill us with a sense of wonderment." —Flaubert.

"In my day, artists were the cameras for newspapers", an elderly gentleman in reminiscent mood, said the other day, while we were browsing about the newly opened Agnes Etherington Art Centre, in Kingston. "That's how I got started, as an artist, I mean. With a newspaper in New York. To cover an assignment, I would rush to the scene, sketch it, then madly rush it back to the office, to be printed.

"Don't think that wasn't good training. It was the best. Wonderful for memory. I got so I could look at anything once and draw it quite accurately. One time, in London, I was told to do the interior of a large bank. Attempting to do so, I was informed by an attendent: 'It's not permitted, sir'. So, at regular set and well-spaced intervals, I would enter the bank; memorize a section, then rush out to where an taxi stood ready and waiting with my drawing materials.

In it, I did my drawing from memory."I repeated this performance, until the whole interior was completed, and as I remember, the result was accepted and well rewarded by a raise.

"I had another experience, of the same sort of thing, when I was assigned to make a sketch of J.P. Morgan's home. To get near the place seemed an impossibility, with watchmen all over. To complete it, I had to jump back and forth over a high iron-wrought fence. But what of it? Like everything else, painting requires lots of work and effort. For me, that's part of it. I like it. The old saying 'Freedom is pleasure without pain' is very true, as far as I'm concerned.

"Yes, those days were good for acquiring skill. But an Art Centre like this is marvelous. I'd like to study here, even at my age. Degas, if you remember, once said that he had spent a fortune on acquiring technique, go out and spend another sous on craftmanship. And he's right".

ART'S TORCH BEARER

As we wandered about this fine Georgian red brick residence built in 1872, with its $175,000 addition of 9,000 square feet of exhibiting and inhibition space, with fluorescent and incadescent lighting, controlled by a 50-foot connecting glazed gallery, to show different exhibits (such as old silver, now being shown) our mind strayed to slip away from "coldfact". Granted that this is a monument to an 82-year history of Fine Art at Queen's University and the Kingston community, opened in October.

Granted that art tradition in Kingston springs from early excellence in 1830 at the city hall. Granted that a city art school, entitled Chapters of the Royal branch of the Mechanic's Institute was financed by $100 grant from the Ontario government since 1884.

That an art department at Queen's was established in 1924 with Goodrich Roberts, as first resident artist, was financed by a Carnegie grant. That by 1938 a full credit course was available under Professor Andre Bieler as resident artist. What, we wondered, was the "gilding light" that brought all this to pass?

And we found, it was largely due to a dream held high by a woman's great love for the arts. So great was her love for music, art and beauty, she devoted her spare time (while her husband fulfilled his duties at the University just across the street, as dean of medicine) organizing and fostering a love for the arts in her community.

For Mrs. Frederick Etherington, the former Agnes Richardson was creator both of the original Arts and Music Club founded in the early 1920's and the Kingston Art Association which evolved from it. Through her counsel, a bequest of her brother, George Taylor Richardson, killed in World War I, was developed into a Memorial Fund, which supports many of the University's art and music activities. Until her death in 1953, Mrs. Etherington "was the guiding light of art in Kingston."

The traditional link between the community and University was provided by Dr. R. G. Trotter, the first chairman of the University art Committee and the president of the Kingston Art Association.

"Agnes Etherington's Inspiration and support must be present in everything we do today, declared Principal J. A. Corry, of Queen's in his remarks at the opening ceremony performed by Mrs. Benidickson, a niece of Agnes Etherington.

"She served an honored and long association with art and music at Queen's and in Kingston", said Andre Bieler, now head of Art at the University, and about whom, Principal Corry pointed out, had organized the first conference of Canadian Artists and held it in Kingston. Out of this meeting, by slaps, came the Canadian Arts Council, which in turn gave impetus for the Canada Council which established the contribution that the University has made to the building and "to given us further proof of the vision o fthose who campaigned for it, created it and guide its policy . . ."

Thus has a length of dream been tossed to others by one who held it high and lofty enough to become a living reality: Agnes Etherington of Kingston.

Uniondale WI Hears Farm Forum Program

6TH SIDNEY — Mrs. George Pollard was hostess to the ladies of Uniondale Women's Institute on Monday evening, with 19 in attendance.

The president, Mrs. E. Anderson opened the meeting in the usual manner. During the business period it was decided that the W.I. would accept the honor of being hostesses for the Junior Farmers' banquet in Frankford on February 22 and the menu committee met on Thursday evening at the president's home to make arrangements.

Mrs. George Burkitt was in charge of the program which was based on the "A.C.W.W. Conference in Australia". Four of the ladies, Mrs. Grills, Mrs. Bob Burkitt, Mrs. Bob Mallory and Mrs. M. Mallory gave quotes from important speakers at the conference held in Melbourne. Some of these were "We must not rely on supply food to underdeveloped countries but we must teach them to help themselves." Friendship is a stepping stone to help people in underprivileged countries. Leisure time can be used to study on the people of these countries and thus gain an understanding of their needs."

At nine o'clock the radio was turned on and the ladies listened to the special Farm Forum program originating in Toronto from the CBC studios. For discussions three groups were formed and the following are the findings: "We must maintain a voice in the UN by aiding our consultants moneywise and in turn glean information from them to inform the public of our needs and activities. We must be friendly to students from other countries. We must make our contacts from other countries a two-way affair—teach and learn. We are interested in the world food shortage, the proper placing of food surpluses and the health and welfare of other nations."

As a Women's Institute, members can contribute to scholarships and provide for students coming to this country to learn better techniques for canning and preserving foods; to send trained persons nel to help with problems in other countries; to teach them to help themselves, and in the international exchange program.

A bounteous lunch was served by the lunch committee, Mesdames E. Sine, J. Rose, R. Mallory, W. Rose and the hostess.

Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Anderson with Mesdames J. Morris, C. Frost, M. Dafoe and B. Bush as the lunch committee.

A BIB by any other name is still a bib, and your son may not be overly fond of wearing such a babyish object. But there are times when a dashing dribbler would be disastrous, and protection is essential. Bring out a bandana, tie it around his neck wrangler style. MAIL CALL

Question: I've just received prints of my wedding pictures. Many candid shots were taken at the reception. I've shown the pictures to many friends and relatives who were there and were photographed. Now, a number of them have requested prints. I'm having pictures of the wedding party made up for our parents and attendants and plan to give each a photograph as a memento. Naturally we'll pay for these. Much as I'd like to give a picture to each of the guests who were photographed, we just can't afford it. When they ask for prints, what should I say to make it clear they may have them, but at their own expense? — Mrs. D.D., Wilmington, Del.

Answer: The simplest thing to do is give interested persons the name and address of the photographer and the number of the negative and tell them they may order the prints directly from him.

QUESTION:

Do you have a recipe for cooking stuffed chicken breasts? . . . Mrs. E. Smith.

ANSWER:

I have not tried this recipe. It comes from a dependable source, sounds good and is exactly what you request.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Beef Brisket Boiled with Herbs; Made Mustard; Fine Noodles (boiled in brisket broth); Italian Onions with Cheese Sauce; Spinach and Cucumber Salad Vinaigrette; Canned Peaches with Soft Custard; Tea.

STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS (serves 6):

6 boned chicken breasts, 6 slices boiled ham, MSG (accent).

Wipe dry the chicken breasts; flatten to double their area by pounding with rolling pin. Shake MSG over both sides; cover with slice of ham. Let stand while preparing dressing, as follows:

8 slices cubed white bread, (crusts on), ¼ teaspoon sage or rosemary, 1/3 cup soft butter, 1 teaspoon grated onion.

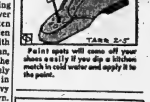
Combine ingredients, mixing with a fork. Divide evenly over ham. Roll up neatly and fasten with small skewers or wooden picks. Season on all sides with salt and pepper. In a frying pan, heat ¼ cup butter. Saute the chicken breasts until nicely browned on all sides. Place in baking pan; cover with heavy foil, securely folded down. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour, or until very tender. Serve.

For a chef's elegant finish, make sauce in same frying pan used to brown the chicken, as follows:

2 to 4 tablespoons butter (see below), 4 green onions, with tops, chopped, ½ lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced.

Add enough butter to frying pan to make ¼ cup. In this, saute the mushrooms and onions, slowly, until barely soft, not brown, about 5 minutes.

4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon paprika, 1 cup chicken broth, ½ cup sherry (optional), 1 cup dairy sour cream.



Blend flour and seasonings into mushrooms and onions. Add broth; stir and cook until thickened and smooth. Add sherry, if used, simmer with occasional stirring for 5 minutes. Add sour cream; reheat thoroughly but do not boil. Pour over chicken on platter, or pass in gravy boat.

NOTE:

All preparations for the chicken, up to the baking period, may be done ahead of time. Keep covered with foil and refrigerated until cooking time. Sauce may be made in advance, up to adding the sour cream. Reheat over hot water in double boiler, then add sour cream.

I know you will not mind me asking you to send your address next time you require something, and a stamped envelope.

Bilingualism in Canada More Cordially Accepted Than It Was 10 Years Ago

MONTREAL (CP) — Helene Baillargeon, host of the CBC children's program Chez Helene, says bilingualism in Canada "is much more cordially accepted than it was 10 years ago."

The show has run on a Monday-to-Friday schedule on English television, combining entertainment for English-speaking tots with French - language teaching.

The result is that while Mrs. Baillargeon is celebrated in French-Canada as a folksinger, she is best known in English-speaking regions as a vivacious teacher of French.

"Children get to love the French language because it is given to them only with songs and stories," she says. "Tiny tots have no prejudice against the French language. And later on, when they come to it in their school work, they will accept it because their memories of the language are happy ones."

True to the modern idea of teaching a language by speaking it, Mrs. Baillargeon uses no English on her afternoon show. It raised problems.

MUST KEEP MOVING

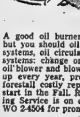
"I felt this was a big handicap. I was not even able to say 'yes' in programs. That's why my eyes and my hands are so busy while I speak. I always keep in mind that my audience is English-speaking. But regardless of language, children are a wonderful audience. . . .

"The script must be lively, and we must do supposedly spontaneous things easily. Being a mother myself has helped me. I know from telling stories to my three children that they must take part; it makes them feel important. I can't let their interest stray for a minute or I won't get it back."

Despite the demands of TV, Mrs. Baillargeon manages to find time for her first love—folksinging.

Last fall she and other French - Canadian artists presented a successful concert in New York's Town Hall. During the summer she represented Canada at the International Concert of Folklorists in Czechoslovakia and has been invited to return with her company of French-language dancers and musicians.

A year ago, while in California, she and Alan Mills made several long-playing records for Disques Select entitled Chansons en Francais, published by the Idylwild Arts Foundation.



In Canada she has made records for the CBC International Service, distributed throughout Latin America and Europe, and Dominion Folkways.

Les Editions du Jour, Montreal, has published Vive la Canadienne, a collection of 77 folksongs edited by Mrs. Baillargeon with a preface by Marius Barbeau of the National Museum, Ottawa, a leading authority on Canadian folk music.

OYSTERS ROCKEFELLER:

Set out a shallow baking dish and fill ¼ inches deep with rock salt. Prepare 2 cups white sauce as follows: melt in saucepan over low heat 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon seasoning (to taste) and few grains pepper.

Heat until mixture bubbles. Remove from heat. Add gradually, stirring in 2 cups milk. Cook rapidly, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Cook 1-2 minutes longer. Remove thickened sauce from heat and vigorously stir about 3 tablespoons hot sauce into 1 egg, slightly beaten.

Immediately return to mixture in pan and cook over low heat 1-2 minutes, stirring. Set sauce aside; keep it warm. Thaw partially and cook contents of 2-12 oz. packages frozen chopped spinach. Meanwhile, place flat side of shell up and open (insert tip of oyster knife between edges of shell opposite hinges) 2 doz. oysters. Loosen oysters from top shells and place on deep half shells. Arrange shells in prepared baking dish. Discard top shells. Sprinkle over oysters, ¼ teaspoon on each 2 tablespoons sherry.

Set baking dish aside. Melt in heavy skillet over low heat 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add and cook over medium heat until mixture is transparent. 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion.

Thoroughly drain cooked spinach; blend with 2 table-spoons of the sauce and 1 tablespoon mixture from spoon worcestershire sauce; ½ tsp drop tabasco sauce; ¼ teaspoon salt; few grains nutmeg; and few grains pepper.

Mix with onion in skillet and heat mixture 2-3 minutes. Spoon spinach mixture over oysters; then spoon remaining sauce over spinach mixture. Sprinkle over sauce grated parmesan cheese.

Aruba Well off Beaten Path But Has Wild, Stark Appeal

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Aruba, N.W.I. — There are no thin barres, rocky, windswept Caribbean outpost of the Netherlands two outstanding landmarks.

One is a geological curiosity known as the Haystack, a pyramidal hill prominence that rises incongruously from somewhere that is nowhere. As the only distinct hill on the island, it is visible from almost everywhere.

The other landmark is the Aruba Caribbean Hotel, an eight-story child of bachelor Morris E. De Leeuw, the ebullient board chairman of Executive House, Inc., a Chicago based firm of hotel operators. De Waskin is the kind of old fashioned entrepreneur who never listens to people who tell him they know better, and he always was money.

In truth, no one in his right mind other than De Waskin would have ever conceived a hotel here, let alone making a success of it. The island is removed well off the tourist path. In the nether reaches of the Caribbean, it is a few miles north of Venezuela and west of Curacao. Hardly anyone goes to Caracas and those who go to Curacao.

Outside of the odd cruise ship the island is visited from the United States indirectly by KLM and Eastern Air on the coasting of De Waskin — only by Trans Caribbean Airways, an airline that flops in when the spirit moves it.

Aruba used to be a big oil refining and shipping port, and still is to some extent, but after the war its importance diminished and it became something of a backwater.

NOT MUCH TO DO

Day in and day out for centuries, the sun has baked its little pastel concrete houses, the northeast trades have bent its curious divi-divi trees into the southwest, and the warm blue Caribbean has refined its beaches to the color and consistency of face powder. There isn't much to do but pop into little Oranjestad on a morning and buy watches at the institution known as Spritzer and Fuhrmann, or take advantage of the cheapest 86 proof liquor prices in the Indies.

This may or may not be reason enough to be lured by a sixty story luxury hotel with a Las Vegas type casino and cherries jubilee on the menu. It stands out like the Haystack, or the Taj Mahal on Broad Street. But De Waskin has spent all the way to the bank, would tell you it's a monument to free enterprise and travel promotion. And it is.

For those who can get off their patios for a while, it's a beautiful island in a wild, stark appeal quite unlike any other in the Caribbean. It is, for example, dotted with fields of huge boulders, almost a trade mark of the place, where they congregate with particular surrealistic abandon, there is a strange, eerie, and the setting is like that for one of Hollywood's cowboy-and-Indian shootouts.

The outback bears other marked resemblances to the American southwest, with a cactus thrown in. Cactuses grow erect and prolific, and take root to reading DW. They are chopped up and transplanted for fences. They are as common as palm trees are rare.

If the north coast area known as Prins, a misplaced coconut grove flourishes and while sand dunes stand out like piles of snow. Where the road turns off to the caves of Quadirikiri, wild donkeys and goats graze on the reluctant scrub plains, glowering with insolent independence at the tourists.

SUN STREAMS IN

The caves may be the only ones in the world where sunglasses are advisable. Time and vagrant seas have worn holes in the shallow ceilings, and the sun streams in. Combined with water and rocks, it has sculpted and pockmarked the limestone in moonscape colors and patterns.

Color pops up in other unfamiliar ways that are emphasized by Aruba's unusual topography. Sometimes there are moonbows at night. All the buildings are painted the bright colors beloved of the Dutch, and they lighten the island's face everywhere. Bougainvillea is kind of miniature urban sprawl, they make it difficult to tell where the village ends and the "cunucu" — countryside — begins.

Along the dramatically barren north coast, swept clean by the wind of everything but sand and rocks, the pounding ocean is seemingly bluer. The rocky coves and rock formations — including two seacarved natural bridges — are bright as desert scenery.

Aruba's few ruins are near here too. The brooding shell of an old gold mill stands on a cliff overlooking the windward side. Seeming to peer mysteriously out to sea, it was inevitably nicknamed Pirate's Castle.

But except by prospectors like De Waskin or Spritzer and Fuhrmann, gold no longer is mined on Aruba.

'Children's Books' Topic At H-S Meet

The regular meeting of King George Home and School was held last Monday, and was opened by the president, Mrs. C. Calkin The "Fun Fair", scheduled for March was thoroughly explained by Mrs. H. Hutt, who is again convening this project.

Mr. H. R. Moorcroft, the principal, spoke briefly on several important matters, and introduced two new members of the staff.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Roulet of the Quinte Public Library staff. Mrs. Roulet is a former primary teacher, a graduate of the Froebel Educational Institute of London University, and was formerly in charge of the subject of Children's Books — Grades 1 to 8."

Mrs. Roulet pointed out that very young children, even two and three-year-olds can become very interested in books, and encouraged parents to continue reading to their children, even after they had learned to read well themselves. Mrs. Roulet concluded with a delightful fairy story. The interest shown in this talk was evident as parents looked over and discussed the excellent display of books.

Mrs. Roulet was introduced by Mrs. W. Cone and thanked by Mrs. N. McKibbon.

The senior attendance banner was won by Mr. Alfred Hooper and the junior banner by Miss McConnell's.

Catholic P.T.A. Groups Hear Noted Speaker

On Monday evening, the Parent-Teacher Association of St. Michael's Academy had as guests many of the members of the Catholic Parent-Teacher Associations of Belleville and district to hear a distinguished speaker, Reverend R. W. Harrigan, pastor of Holy Family Parish, Hamilton. He was introduced by Mr. Douglas Stork, chairman of the program committee of St. Michael's P.T.A.

An entertaining introduction set the key-note in style for a remarkable exposition of the main points in organizing and successfully maintaining Parent-Teacher Associations on the local level.

Highlighted by flashes of humor such as had won his audience at the start, the informal address gave his hearers the benefit of Father Harrigan's years of experience in P.T.A. work as school teacher, principal and pastor. Calling for a five-minute representation from each of the main groups - - clergy, teachers, trustees and parents - - he demonstrated by an amusing and unique device the necessity of each agent in an integrated association, since only his own responsibility but also that of the other agents in the project. The main objectives of members of the Catholic Parent-Teacher Association is the better education of the children.

From the encyclical, "On Christian Education of Youth," Father Harrigan quoted, "Education concerning as a whole, in the order of nature and of grace, belongs necessarily to the home, the school and to the state, each in due proportion but coordinated," He credited Archbishop John C. Cody, Bishop of London, with originating C.P.T.A. in 1948 when he proposed the idea as a project, with teachers doing the spade work towards its development.

The speaker pointed out that any organization which does not stick to its purpose is going to be in trouble. The idea of initiating P.T.A. is objected in some areas because reports of such misfortune are heard. However, insufficient knowledge of its objectives may cause it to be classed as "just another organization and where there are already too many organizations." Actually we have P.T.A. that we may better educate our children - - "we" includes the fathers and mothers.

PARENTS' TRUSTEE

To stress a point Father Harrigan continued, "Parents, did you ever present at the lecture out the number of hours that children are under your care and supervision compared with the number of hours they are under the care and supervision of "school-keep"? I like to have the association called "The Federation of Catholic Teachers and Teachers of Ontario.' Maybe that would emphasize the fact that father and mother are teachers."

Commenting on the goodly number of men present at the meeting, the speaker referred to the mistaken notion in some places that P.T.A. is a "Mothers' Club." He stated that organizations have remarked appreciatively on the number of men on the association's executive.

Programming is an important factor, both men and women should participate so that programs will have a broader appeal.

Father Harrigan stated, "You have capable people in your own groups who can help each other. You do not have to bring in experts all the time. An active program committee composed of a member from the executive, working with the principal and the spiritual director could, with a little ingenuity, develop a very active program for the year."

As an aid to parents in the problem of educating their children and exercising their God-given authority over them, Father Harrigan referred to the CPTA film library from which material can be had for the asking.

TRIBUTE TO TRUSTEES

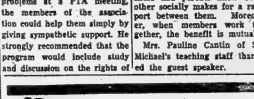
There was a special tribute to school trustees, who without remuneration, give of their time, labor and administrative ability to help solve the many problems confronted by separate schools. Although it can be pointed out the necessity of leaving the administrative end of education to the trustees, he suggested that by inviting them to speak of their problems at a PTA meeting, the members of the associations would help them simply by giving sympathetic support. He strongly recommended that the program would include study and discussion on the rights of parents in the education of their children and their right to choose their schools.

Some comments were made regarding the pros and cons of parent and teacher interviews concerning the school child during an open-house meeting. Reference was made to other means by which parents and teachers might arrange for such interviews.

In concluding his talk, Father Harrigan emphasized one of the main advantages of PTA: "The very fact that teachers and parents have come to other socially makes for a rapport between them. Moreover, when members work together, the benefit is mutual."



Mrs. Pauline Cantin of St. Michael's teaching staff thanked the guest speaker.

WEIGHT-WATCHER'S BIT

I wish I knew how to refuse a drink without sounding like a real square. I don't really like the taste of the stuff.

You might try the weight-watcher's bit.

How do you mean "weight-watcher's bit"?

It's really very simple. All you have to do is point out that a couple of drinks have more calories than a cream puff or a piece of pie. Then tell them you're on a diet.

Is that really true?

Of course it's true. Alcohol is practically all calories.

That's pretty smart! Nobody wants to get fat. It's such a wonderful reason for not drinking that probably all the girls will be using it. You know Mother, occasionally you do come up with a really bright idea.

DO YOU KNOW:

—that eight ounces of beer or one-and-a-half ounces of whisky, rum or gin contains more calories than a candy bar?

—that nutritionally alcohol resembles pure fat or starch in that it supplies only calories?

—that if alcohol replaces too much of a normal diet the resulting imbalance may lead to malnutrition?

—that you can get scientifically dependable information about alcohol and its effects by writing to:—

Margaret Visit Cancellation Example of Snubmanship

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The decision to cancel Princess Margaret's scheduled visit to Paris appears to be a shining example of snubmanship.

The aim of the apparent snub, obviously is French President Charles de Gaulle, villain of the Brussels Common Market negotiations as far as the cold-shouldered British are concerned.

The reason given the public for cancellation of Margaret's trip was that her presence in Britain is necessary during the Queen's absence on a visit to New Zealand and Australia—because Margaret is a member of the Council of State.

But it holds little water, first because the Paris visit was not announced until months after it was known the Queen would be away at the time, and second because only two members of the Council of State are required for a meeting. Three others — the Queen Mother, the Duke of Gloucester and Prince William — of Gloucester, are all would-have been at home while Margaret was in Paris.

And, of course, if necessary, the princess could have flown from Paris to London in little more than an hour.

SOME MPs ANGRY

Some members of Parliament, presuming the cancellation is something of a retaliation by Prime Minister Macmillan for de Gaulle's veto of the British Common Market application, are angry that a member of the royal family should appear to be used as a pawn in a political disagreement.

They say they will question Macmillan on the subject next week in Parliament.

The cabinet in general, and Macmillan in particular, still are smoldering over de Gaulle's attitude toward the Common Market issue.

If the main aim of the Margaret decision is a slam at de Gaulle, then it seems unfortunate that it hits also at the French people—notorious fans of the royal family who see Margaret as a glittering romantic figure and who certainly would have given her an enthusiastic welcome.

There are suggestions that the affair will be interpreted as an indication the British no longer can take a political setback without losing their temper. But few who know Macmillan would regard him as a man given to childish temper tantrums.

MIGHT BE MISLEADING

A more acceptable suggestion is that the government fears the presence of the princess in Paris would give the world a misleading impression that all is forgiven, that goodwill has been restored.

De Gaulle, having got his own way in the Common Market, would no doubt be delighted with such a turn of events.

He probably looked forward to the opportunity of presenting to his people the picture of their tall president and the petite British princess, joined in friendship over a convivial luncheon in her honor.

This is not to be, however. With one stroke, the British have hit de Gaulle right where he lives. Where others might have ranted and sputtered in righteous indignation, the British, without any angry word, have taken the French president down a peg.

Beware of Improper Timing

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The mixture of fuel and air which is fed to your engine's combustion chambers is ignited by a timed spark or electrical charge that jumps across plug electrodes. When this spark is not properly timed, all sorts of troublesome conditions may be invited. Engine miss, sub-par pep and power, loss of good gas mileage, rough idle at low speeds, and overheating can result. If timing is too advanced, spark knock or ping usually develops . . . and there is the added danger of engine damage.

In many cases, worn, dirty or badly gapped ignition points are to blame when spark timing isn't precise. If the point gap is too narrow, timing will be retarded . . . and when the gap between points is too wide, then spark timing can be too far advanced.

From N.P.: "What about automatic transmission bands. Do they require adjustments of any kind under normal conditions?"

(A) They often do. In fact, band adjustment checks every 10 or 15 thousand miles are recommended on many maintenance schedules.

I.G. writes: "Less than 1,000 miles after a grease job, the ball joints of my car ran dry of lubricant. Why so soon?"

(A) It could be due to wheel unbalance. This can cause a constant vibration, sufficient to shake lubricant out of the ball joints.

A.H. asks: "My car already seems hard to start. Would it help if I switched to a super-premium grade of gas?"

(A) No, but it will probably do a lot of good to have the batter, choke, plugs and points checked over.

From M.N.: "In all your writings about lubrication, you've never given advice about the plenging box — or at least I haven't seen it. After the last two car inspections I've had to have this lubricated; otherwise I would've known there was such a need."

(A) This is important, as you say. Steering box lubricant should be checked at 2,500 to 3,000 mile intervals.

sometimes suppressed and sometimes tolerated by Nasser.

ORDERS CRACKDOWN

The junta ordered a crackdown on the Communists. And through the night an order was repeatedly broadcast to the police and the National Guard to "annihilate" Communist agents.

If the Communists managed to get their supporters on to the streets, bloody rioting might lead to still another government turnover.

The junta named a transitional president and cabinet but kept supreme power for itself. Abdel Salm Mohammed Aref, an outspoken supporter of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, will be president "until the end of the transitional period," said a communique broadcast by Baghdad radio. Aref was a co-leader of the bloody revolution that had brought Kassem to power 4½ years ago but later was imprisoned by him for a reported assassination attempt.

Col. Ahmed Hassan Bakr was named to head the cabinet as prime minister. Bakr had been discharged from the army by Kassem for suspected participation in a revolt against him in 1959.

TAKES OVER POWER

The six-man junta is headed by Col. Abdel Karim Mustafa took for itself the powers of commander-in-chief of the armed forces, a position that was held by Kassem and normally would have gone to the new president. The move suggested that Aref might be a figurehead.

In Cairo, President Nasser hailed the revolt as a victory for the "Arab struggle." The U.A.R. and its Yemen satellite quickly recognized the new regime, and Nasserites obviously viewed the coup as a boost for their dream of Middle East supremacy.

trying to picture Liberal Leader Pearson as being on the American side. This official said that while he hoped Canada's firm determination to run its own affairs will be demonstrated, he would not like to see Canadians led on a Yankee-baiting orgy. Mr. Diefenbaker himself, outlining his thoughts on the campaign Wednesday night, said the Conservatives have a plan for Canada's next five years.

It was, in his words: "A plan that will develop the economy, a plan to round out Confederation, to assure a strong Canada economically and politically, whose security will be protected without the loss of sovereignty and without the imposition of any other country or countries; a Canada which, while interdependent will be independent."

"Our policies will be made in Canada."

DEAR DORIS—We have a girl who is 21 years old now. She has very poor vision. At present she is helping her uncle in his hardware store, but she simply loathes the work as all she can do is fill shelves and carry parcels.

Could you suggest what she could do, or where I could write for information regarding a vocation which would be suitable for her?—WITS' END.

DEAR WITS' END—The Canadian National Institute for the Blind takes an interest in girls like yours. Every day they are helping to find the right niche for young people with poor vision. Write to them or go and see them at 468 Union Street, Kingston.

DEAR DORIS—What steps can be taken when a person is not caring for a nine-months-old baby properly? My brother-in-law's wife doesn't even keep her baby clean. Different people have been out there and there are never any clean diapers, she just pins on anything when she runs out; towels, baby blankets or anything handy. The house looks like a pigsty.

She has a pile of clothes stacked in an old shed that are just rotting away because she's too lazy to wash them. Her husband has tried to help her but he has become disgusted with it all. Now he has started drinking. Things are just going from bad to worse. Could the Welfare be asked to pay a visit and maybe shock her into smartening up?—BABY LOVER.

DEAR BABY LOVER—Someone had better shock her. There are laws against child neglect; and health authorities will come running when they hear about it. Reach for the nearest phone.

(Is it a point of etiquette that's bothering you? Ask Doris about it—and remember that stamped, self-addressed envelope!)

tions men employed by the government "to refurbish the tarnished image of its cabinet ministers."

He said the cost of "this new era in image making" should be included in next year's estimates.

"Apparently this government feels that each of its individual members has an image that is so frayed at the edges that each minister must have some public relations done for him."

Ray Edwards (L—Wentworth) objected to the House considering the department's spending program without the department's 1962 annual report being tabled. Without the report debate would be only "a secondrate job."

Mr. Cathcart said the report is being printed and it will be tabled before the House progresses.

L. P. Spence (L—Kent East) wanted to know what the government was doing about U.S. weather broadcasts that talk about cold air approaching from Canada. He was afraid the cold weather had scared away potential tourists.

"We are working on that one," replied Mr. Cathcart.

Thousand Teen-Agers Will Try to Be Bilingual for One Month Next Summer

By REPORD MacDOUGALL
MONTREAL (CP)—One thousand teen-agers will try to be bilingual for one month next summer.

In a student exchange program now being organized by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and Visites Interprovinciales, 500 French speaking teen-agers will barrels the linguistic fence to see how the other half lives.

Organizers say that, judging from a similar program last year, the teen-agers will find the experiences both enjoyable and enlightening.

"English - speaking students often find French as dead a language as Latin," says Dennis Flack, one of the organizers of the program. "When they see French signs, stores and TV programs they're amazed and much more motivated to learn French."

The students, selected by their high school teachers, are between 15 and 19. And they are carefully paired — girls with girls and boys with boys according to their backgrounds and interests.

English - speaking students spend the first two weeks of July with their French-speaking partners, then the latter return the visit during the last two weeks.

"We try to match students as best we can," says Mr. Flack. "If we put a student from a rich family into a home where the standard of living is lower, or if we match a city boy with a country boy, a personality conflict might result which would defeat the whole purpose of the exchange."

In the last six years, the program has involved only Quebec and Ontario. This year it aims at being truly national by including students from Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver and elsewhere.

"But transportation costs are the big problem with the national idea," Mr. Flack says. "It only cost teen-agers about $20 when the program involved just Quebec and Ontario."

Room and board is taken care of by the respective parents.

Does it work?

"An overwhelming yes," Mr. Flack answered.

A questionnaire sent to the 858 students who participated last year, the majority said they liked their partner and approved their knowledge of the other language.

Meg and Jim have such simple tastes...
Jim Gordon operates a machine and tool shop—nothing big, but large enough to support this brand-new automatic drill press. He's also just bought a handsome new run-about that he and Meg had seen advertised recently.
Now in both cases, to avoid borrowing, their dealers recommended that they use "purchase credit" through Traders Preferred Credit Plan. And so the Gordons are paying back out of the extra income the new drill press helps produce. Their savings are intact and their credit at the bank is untouched. The monthly payment plan was carefully explained to them down to the last detail . . . including the life insurance on the unpaid balance.
When you are in the market for an automobile or something new for your home or business, you'll find responsible businessmen in every community who can offer you the low-cost Traders Preferred Credit Plan. Not every dealer displays the Traders symbol. Look for the one who does . . . he has a reputation for fairness and integrity. ## THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. P.V. — We're stunned by her decision to become a nun.

Mrs. E.T. — They must let her decide about her own life.

Mrs. P.V. — We have an only daughter. She is 19 and in her second year at college. We expected her to become engaged to her steady beau this summer, and eventually get married and make grandparents of us.

Imagine the state we're in now that she's sprung the news on us that she's broken off with her boy friend, wants to quit school, and become a postulant in a convent! We're a religious family, but nobody has gone so far as to join a monastic order. All we can figure is that someone from the church brainwashed her in a weak moment. My husband is a wreck over this turn of events.

We keep hoping Ruth will reconsider. But my sisters and others say we should resign ourselves to having her become a nun.

Mrs. E.T. — They should leave the girl alone. I know my sister and brother-in-law have had high hopes for Ruth. She's a bright, beautiful girl, and the apple of their eye. At one time she wanted to be a doctor, but was since entering college she hasn't mentioned that and hasn't shown much enthusiasm for anything. Now that I know why, I can understand the pressure she is under and I'm trying to get my sister to stop moaning. Instead she should feel proud to have a daughter who wants to serve selflessly through the church.

The trouble is that Ruth's parents are trying to live her life for her. She has other ideas. She's old enough to know what appeals to her. And if she changes her mind, she can come home.

The Council: In order to round out a helpful answer for this family, we queried friends whose daughters had faced them with the same announcement as Ruth's. What we say here is a composite of actual experience plus general psychological slants.

Mrs. V. would never forgive herself if her "carrying-on" forced her daughter to abandon her plans and pursue a course of life pleasing to her parents but unappealing to her. They'd see the problem more clearly if they looked neither to the right nor to the left but squarely into the eyes (and heart, if possible) of their child. Never mind the parents down the block who have grandchildren. Never mind the neighbor's daughter who has just been appointed vice-president of a Fifth Avenue department store. What would make Ruth happy? That's the answer to concentrate upon.

She herself feels that this is what she wants to be — a professed nun. The only valid comment for a parent might be, "Why not take a year out in order to be sure?" Ruth might spend that year holding down a job, mainly to test her precision for the disciplined, dedicated life of the convent. She's only 19 and may agree to seek deeper experience in the outside world before taking the vows which limit this.

But once she is absolutely certain that her peace and happiness lie in joining a holy Order, there should be nothing but pride and encouragement from the parental corner. Suppose Ruth became a doctor and was miserable? Suppose she contracted a wretched marriage? Then her parents would have something to be in a "state" about. Instead, they'll be able to watch her move happily, playing a vital role in the world, and enjoying it more each year.

As Mrs. T., her aunt, reminds us, the decision is not irrevocable. There are many points along the way where Ruth can drop out. Meanwhile, her family will see her and be in touch with her on frequent occasions, for many of the Orders — the Dominican for one — have lenient rules on that. As for grandchildren, we quote the father of a nun who is teaching 2nd grade and "has" 29 children: "She adores them, they love her. When we visit her class we see we have more 'grandchildren' than any of our friends! And we rejoice to be the parents of this beautiful soul who is living exactly the sort of life she wants to live.

Newfoundland Fishermen Giving Eye to Elusive Eel To Increase Their Income

By JAMES BUSSEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland fishermen are giving an eye to the elusive eel with the idea of increasing their incomes.

The province's production of eels has been small in the past. Few fishermen were interested in trapping eels, and they have been lowest on the list of Newfoundland's fish exports.

Interest was stirred last fall however when the Dutch motor vessel Mercurius made an experimental trip to the Atlantic provinces for a cargo of live eels for European markets.

After picking up 90,000 pounds of eels in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the Mercurius was scheduled to sail for Dildo on Newfoundland's Trinity Bay, where another 30,000 pounds awaited shipment.

However, fishermen on the Burin Peninsula became interested, and the ship was diverted to Grand Bank, Nfld., where an additional 5,000 pounds of eels was ready for shipment. It was the first big shipment of eels ever made from the south coast area.

GOOD PROSPECTS

Prospects appear good for a profitable eel fishery in Newfoundland's ponds, of thousands of them enter the rivers from the sea each year, and are of the type sought by restaurants in the United States and Europe. They can be exported live, pickled or smoked.

Eels abound in Newfoundland streams and lakes, where they are the enemies of trout and salmon hatching in the inland waters. Because of this, eels may be taken at any time of year.

To date, Conception Bay has been Newfoundland's most prolific eel producing area, especially in the Clarke's Beach—Spaniards Bay district. Here the wide and shallow rivers contain an abundance of eel grass and other food on which eels thrive.

Catches from this area formerly were bought and processed by Arctic Fisheries Company plant at Dildo. The old method was to quick-freeze the eels, pack and ship them in a frozen state to markets in Europe.

Recently however a large market for smoked eels has developed in Europe, and at least one Newfoundland businessman, Walter Thistle of St. John's, is experimenting with production of smoked eels for this market.

Newfoundland once tried to find a market for eels in the United States and mainland Canada but found only a small demand, mainly from Europeans who had settled in the larger centres.

Now this market is increasing, along with that in Europe, and with fishermen getting about five cents a pound for their catches the eel at last is wriggling into the Newfoundland fishing economy.

Car Production Up Slightly Over Last Week

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian motor vehicle production this week totalled 12,802 vehicles compared with 12,679 last week, says the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Output consisted of 10,906 cars compared with 10,941, and 1,897 trucks compared with 2,138.

Production to date this year totals 74,172 vehicles compared with 55,019 in the corresponding period last year, made up of 63,642 cars compared with 47,087 and 10,530 trucks compared with 7,932.

Car production by companies this week and this year to date, with figures for last week and for the corresponding period last year in brackets, was:

American Motors 666 (740), 4,105 (2,082); Chrysler 1,505 (1,880), 8,277 (4,984); Ford 2,917 (2,422), 16,163 (12,435); General Motors 5,641 (5,733), 34,198 (27,100); Studebaker 177 (151), 861 (546).

servants will receive pay increases totalling $3,650,000, and there'll also be increases ranging from $1,000 to $3,500 a year for members of the legislature.

Throughout Mr. Bennett's budget speech was an undercurrent of optimism about business prospects. Private capital had entered B.C. in "massive" doses and B.C.'s business activity was at a pace-setting level.

PREMIER INVESTS

In Quebec, Mr. Lesage mentioned — explaining a point during study of a bill affecting credit unions—that he had invested "a few dollars" in a mutual fund. It was handy "for premiers who do not have the right to play the stock market."

He later referred to Mr. Johnson's purchase of shares in Quebec Natural Gas Corporation which had been criticized by a royal commission because the corporation had bought the publicly - owned Montreal natural gas system.

Mr. Johnson charged it was "more immoral" to buy mutual funds because such funds could in turn invest in companies doing business with the government. Mr. Lesage replied that he had nothing to do with the fund's administration.

Mr. Johnson accused the premier of "camouflaging" his investments and, when he was ordered to withdraw, revised it to say that the "premier fixes it so his right hand doesn't know what his left hand is doing."

Dear Henry: I am a girl 13 and I like a boy 12 years old. He is cute but he is about 6 inches shorter than I am. My problem is should I forget about this boy (if I could) and find another one 13 or 14 years old, or should I continue liking this boy although everyone would be saying that Im robbing the cradle?

He is in Grade 5 (failed a couple of times) and I'm in Grade 8. He doesn't seem to mind the idea of going with a girl a year older than him. I like him quite a lot but I don't know what should, I do.—Lyn.

Dear Lyn: I don't think there is anything wrong with you robbing the cradle. A few inches doesn't matter. But the problem is tough. Your boy friend is still in the cradle compared to you. Three inches wouldn't matter but three grades do. I'd say that you better quit with this boy and let him get his mind on some school work.—Henry.

Dear Henry: We are two girls of 11, our names are Elizabeth and Karin. The first problem is that we want to live together. Karin is going to move with her father. How can we live together? Prices were slightly lower in the bond markets this week and trading more active.

Day money started the week at 3⅝ per cent but eased to 3½ by the end of the week, and was in better supply.

The treasury bill average increased slightly to 3.72 per cent on 91-day bills and 3.85 per cent on 182-day bills, compared with 3.65 and 3.77 respectively last week.

In Government of Canada issues, the 3¼ per cent, 1965, closed around 98.35; the 3½, 1968, at 97.30; the 3½, 1976, at 103½; and the 4½, 1983, at 92¾.

In provincials, main interest centred in the new Ontario Hydro issue. It consisted of two maturities for a total of $60,000,000—a five per cent, March 1, 1971, offered at par to yield five per cent and a 5¼ per cent, March 1, 1983, offered at 99½ to yield 5.30 per cent.

The corporate market was quiet and slightly easier, with the last new Price Brothers 5½, 1982, closing around 102¼ and Bell Telephone 5½, 1982, at 101¼.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Veteran tournament campaigners that they are, the Trail Smoke Eaters, Canada's representatives at the world tournament in Stockholm next month, are taking the home-country exhibition lesson in their stride.

A lot of hockey men across the country are not too enthusiastic over the Smokies' chances of bringing back the world bacon, but the fact cannot be denied the Trailies are going into global battle with their eyes wide open.

They haven't been too impressive in their Canadian exhibition tour to date. They had trouble defeating the Powell River intermediates and the Winnipeg Maroons beat them 5-3 last Tuesday night. They had a tough time beating Saskatoon 8-7 and Thursday night went down to defeat at the hands of the Waterloo Tigers who somehow managed to get enough players for the tilt, including "imports" from Galt and Woodstock.

But on the other side of the ledger the Smokies, who are "orphans" as far as a league is concerned, did not fare so badly in exhibition tilts with the Western Hockey Professional League.

In passing it might be noted that the Smokies, after Sugar Jones folded, depended entirely on exhibition games to keep in shape. They won just one of four from the Spokane Flyers but dropped three to Vancouver, two by one goal. They defeated the Seattle Totems.

"Much was said about our defeats," grumbled Smokies' coach Bobby Kromm. "When we whipped Spokane 4-1 there was not a line published. When Vancouver trimmed us 7-2 the next night the wires were hot."

Kromm is philosophical about the outcome of the world tournament. "There is none of this 'Don't worry, we'll bring back the title to Canada' about him, or the tournament veterans on the Smokies' roster.

"We're going to play tough hockey, the way we do at home all the way up to the red line," he says. "But we have no illusions that anything but international rules will be any good beyond that. Those penalties can kill you". . . (So can those referees, bud.)

Kromm feels the tournament will resolve itself into a four-nation battle with Canada, Russia, Czechoslokia and Sweden fighting it out for the global bauble. He feels that if the Smokies can get by Sweden, the defending champions, Canada's chances are good. "But the Swedes will be tough. They're in their own backyard and will give other clubs a terrific battle."

The tournament-wise Trailers know what they will be up against. It will be a "cut-throat" series, not by any stretch of imagination a best-of-seven series where lost ground can be regained. Kromm figures it will be no close that the winner will have lost at least one game. And there is always the chances of a tie with goal averages deciding the issue.

He believes the current edition of the Smokies is better balanced than the 1961 club that played in the world tourney. But he is on the lookout for reinforcements. He has a few holes to plug yet before he will be satisfied.

His bid for topflight assistance was thwarted by National Hockey League clubs. He had hoped to land Bert Olmstead, who was more than willing to help, but the New York Rangers blocked his reinstatement. Johnny McMillan was all set to join the Smokies, but the Toronto Maple Leafs Punch Imlach refused to release the player.

Kromm has his eye on Tommy Walker of the Windsor Bulldogs, the OHA senior "A" league's top scorer. He hopes to conduct him during the Smokies' sojourn in Western Ontario.

Arctic Indians May Get Chance For Olympics

OTTAWA (CP)—Two young Indians from the Arctic—one of them a woman of about 23 who is the mother of five children—may get a chance to earn a berth on Canada's cross-country Olympic skiing team.

The two are Ben Charlie and Martha Kudlak from the Lockheed Lake of the Yantakuthin (People of the Lakes) Indians at Old Crow, a tiny settlement on the Porcupine River in the Yukon near the Alaska border, about 80 miles inside the Arctic Circle.

Trained for the last three years by an Oblate missionary known here only as Father Mouchet, a former Swiss Army ski instructor, the pair are reported to have recorded cross-country times as good or better than some of the top Canadian contenders.

Frank Cooke, who is selecting the cross-country team for the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, said Friday night he has told Father Mouchet that if he can arrange to get them to Ottawa by Feb. 14, they will be taken to the three qualifying races.

First of these is the U.S. national 15-kilometre race at Franconia, N.H., Feb. 16 and 17. Then comes the North American champions h i p s at Crested Butte, Colo., Feb. 23 and 24 and finally the Canadian senior cross-country meet at Penetanguishene, Ont., March 16-17.

All contenders for the Olympic team must take part in these three events and there be assessed and selected, Cooke said.

Cooke said one report from Whitehorse said Ben Charlie finished 15 kilometres in 55.8 minutes. Though comparisons are difficult because of differences in courses, Finnish-born Canadian ace Antero Rauhanen has turned in 63.04 minutes over the same distance.

BRITONS WIN

Meets World Champion Miler In L.A. ★★★★★

Kidd's Chances Slim To Beat Snell

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Unless he scores an upset win over a world champion, Canada's Bruce Kidd, wonder boy of the track, may see his perfect record shattered tonight.

Kidd, unbeaten in seven races this season, faced world record-holder Peter Snell of New Zealand in the mile at the Los Angeles Times indoor games.

Because Kidd is primarily a runner who specializes in two- and three-mile distances, he isn't given much of a chance against the fleet New Zealander.

This, however, doesn't bother Fred Foot, Kidd's coach.

"Bruce has a chance to beat Snell," says Foot, "He's sharp and Snell has been off for some time."

SET UP OUTDOORS

Snell, making his first indoor appearance of the current season, would rather be outdoors. His set outdoors, is three minutes, 54.4 seconds. He says he has no intention of trying to eclipse the United States indoor mark tonight.

Little Jim Beatty, who set the indoor mark at 3:58.9 here last season, will watch this one from the stands.

Kidd's best mile, run outdoors last summer at Toronto, is 4:08.7. Snell, however, doesn't seem concerned with the fact Kidd is among the star-studded field.

"Jim Grelle," says Snell, "will be the man to worry about tonight."

A sellout crowd of 14,000 is expected and another Torontonian, Bill Crothers, is in one of the other feature events. Almost unbeatable at 1,000 yards this season, he faces Russia's great half - miler, Valeri Bulyshev, in a race that is being heralded as one which could produce a world mark.

Russia's amazing Valery Brumel, the world's greatest high jumper, will attempt to make it eight victories in a row over the best in the U.S.

WELLINGTON (Special) — Wellington took a one-game lead in their two-of-three OMHA Juvenile "D" playdown series by whipping Warkworth 10-1 here last night.

Second game of the series is slated for Warkworth next Saturday.

Tommy Lavender put on a one-man scoring performance for the Wellington team, scoring six goals and picking up an assist on another. George Bulgajewski with two, Gary Lavender and Don McNeil scored with McNeil also earning four assists.

Vancouver Canucks bowed 5-3 to San Francisco Seals Friday night in the Western Hockey League.

Veteran Nick Mickoski scored what proved to be the winning goal late in the third period, his second of the night. Al Nicholson also scored twice for the Seals. Orland Kurtenbach added a single.

Bob Kabel, Dave Duke and Buddy Boone scored for Vancouver.

The home ice advantage of Maple Leaf Gardens will be working for Toronto in tonight's battle with their rivals for second place in the National Hockey League.

Both Montreal and Toronto have 58 points, five behind the league - leading Chicago Black Hawks.

Toronto has won three of its last four home games against Montreal this season, while breaking even, 2-2, at the Montreal Forum.

Coach Toe Blake of Montreal may put regular netminder Jacques Plante and injured defenceman Tom Johnson into action in a bid to beat the odds. Blake said Plante looked okay in a workout with the team Friday and he would assign him to the Toronto Telme, despite Plante's earlier statement in New York that his hip and groin injuries would keep him on the sidelines for at least another week.

On Sunday Montreal visits the lowly Boston Bruins, who have won only 10 of their 52 games this season, and Toronto tangles with Detroit Red Wings.

The only other weekend action is a pair of home-and-home games between Chicago and New York, offering the Hawks a chance to put first place almost out of reach.

District Tourney Slated

Unbeaten in four dual meets, Moira Secondary School's Trojans are favored to win the COSSA Quinte District's first wrestling meet slated for Campbellford High School next Wednesday.

Olympic style wrestling was added to Ontario secondary schools sports agenda this year and has "caught on" with student athletes and bodies.

At least five schools in the Quinte district of COSSA have adopted the sport. These are Moira, BCI, Albert College, Norwood High School and Campbellford High School. Others may be added later.

Other districts of the Ontario Federation of Secondary Schools have taken up wrestling with such success that an OFSSA championship tournament will be held at West Hill Collegiate Institute, Scarboro, Ont., on March 1 and 2nd.

The five schools mentioned with possibly others will battle for Quinte COSSA honors at Campbellford. The meet gets underway at one o'clock and is expected to finish around six o'clock.

There are thirteen weight classes. Trophies will be awarded to individual champions. A team trophy donated by Mayor Tanner of Campbellford will be awarded to the team aggregating the highest score.

A first-place winner adds ten points to his team score; second place, seven points; third place, four points and fourth place, two points. A win by a fall adds a point to the team score.

The winner of the Quinte COSSA meet goes to the COSSA meet being held in Anderson High School, Whitby on Saturday, Feb. 23.

The COSSA winner naturally goes to the OFSSA meet at Scarboro.

Picton Rally Beats RCAF

PICTON (Special) — The Picton Macs scored seven straight goals, four of them in the third period, as they came from behind a five-goal deficit to down the RCAF Globetrotters 9-7 in Trenton last night.

The game was the first in a best-of-seven Lakeshore Intermediate semi-final series. The clubs play in Picton Tuesday, in Trenton Friday, and back in Picton next Saturday night.

The Globetrotters looked like winners in a walkaway when they took a 5-1 lead in the first heat and upped that margin to 7-2 at the 14.34 mark of the second period.

The Macs got moving seconds later and could not be stopped. Faulkner scored twice and Barry once before the period ended to make it a 7-5 game going into the third.

Picton drew all four penalties in the third heat but the sentences failed to slow the Macs.

Jones got one goal at 2.06 and another at 4.00 to tie it 7-7. MacDonald potted the winner at 14.16 and Hull added the clincher into an open net at 19.54.

One of the Macs goals came with the club two men short.

Sid Faulkner scored three Picton goals with Dave Jones potting two and helping on one. Ron Hull and Keith MacDonald got a goal and assist each, "Wiener" St. Denis and Barry a goal apiece, Fat Gilmour three assists, Jim Guernsey, Bob Fawcett and Dave two, Mulholland and Beatty one.

Blanchard and Scott triggered two goals apiece for the RCAF. Mathieson and Gosselin each had one and one while McKinnon also scored. Peterson drew three assists, St. Pierre two, Lewis, Currie and Gebhardt one each.

Picton collected seven of the game's 11 penalties.

Rough, Rugged Battle

Juniors Shut Out Petes 5-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Belleville Juniors chalked up their first shutout of the OHA Eastern Junior hockey league schedule here last night when they blanked Peterborough Petes 5-0 in a game highlighted by 134 minutes in penalties and a full scale brawl late in the third period.

The locals scored one goal in the first period, one in the second and three in the third, despite being outshot by the Monarchs 39-23.

Sammy Haskill played out on suspension game in the Belleville net to trap his shutout. He pulled off about four terrific stop clutch saves and held the visitors at bay almost single-handed when the losers had all the play for 12 minutes in a row in the second period.

After a rough first period, when each team picked up six penalties, the game settled down somewhat in the second only to break loose in grand style at 16.39 of the third heat.

Bob Ethier and Pete Byer ignited the free-for-all when they started dishing knees after a whistle. They wrestled to the ice and were broken up several times. Ethier drew two majors, a misconduct and a game misconduct for his part, Shearer of the Petes getting a major and game misconduct, Goodfellow, of Belleville, slashing major and Haskill a misconduct.

Paul Webb of the Monsens engaged in several stick swinging tilts, speared Goodfellow and in general kept the brawl going but he was missed completely when the penalties were dished out. Belleville's Ted Rowland, who earlier had a major and three minors, was the calmest player on the ice during the brawl, trying to keep the other players separated. Ethier's second major and the game misconduct were given because he refused to break up the fight when ordered, according to referees Tim Williams and Bill Scarrow.

The night's total added up to 74 minutes for Belleville, including a game misconduct, three misconducts and four majors. Peterborough got 60 minutes, including a game misconduct, two misconducts and two majors.

As well as losing the game, the visitors lost forward Marty Winslow with a broken collar bone. He crashed into the end boards while racing for a loose puck midway through the third period and was taken to hospital here.

Hockeywise, Stu Muirhead scored the first goal at 1.54 of the first on a pretty wing shot while using Richards as a decoy. Gary Reid circled the net and scored from the side late in the second period with the teams playing five aside.

Reid bagged his second goal from the blue line, aided by Gary Duvall and Gerry Jones, at the 1.40 mark of the third. Don Goodfellow completed a three-way play with Les Moreau and Cliff McGuinness at 10.16 and John Harkness, just recovering from a broken jaw, wrapped it up when he scored on a breakaway following the big donnybrook.

PETERBOROUGH: Hexe, Marchen, Tapping, Milburn, Winslow, Self, Webb, Goudy, Walsh Armour, Shearer, Bean, Byer, LeBarr, Thompson.

BELLEVILLE: Haskill, Zakos, Duvall, Muirhead, Jones, Rowland, Ethier, Rutherford, Harkness Richards, Moreau, McGrimmon, Goodfellow, Hageman.

Referees — Tim Williams and Bill Scarrow.

Flyers Take Petes 3-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It has been a good week for Niagara Falls Flyers, leaders in the Ontario Hockey Association provincial Junior A group.

The Flyers finished off a perfect three-win week at Niagara Falls Friday night by defeating Peterborough Petes 3-1 to maintain their seven-point spread over the second-place Montreal Junior Canadiens.

The Canadiens meanwhile, prevented the Flyers from increasing their margin by edging the last-place Guelph Royals 4-3 at Guelph.

Niagara Falls has 55 points and Montreal 48. Hamilton Red Wings are third with 46 and Peterborough next with 44. St. Catharines has 32 and cellar-dwelling Guelph 19.

Niagara Falls started its big week with a 10-3 romp over Guelph Tuesday night and a 6-4 whitewash job on Peterborough Thursday night.

SPOT A LEAD

In Friday night's game, the Flyers spotted the Petes a 1-0 first-period lead on a 20-foot sizzler by Ron Naud that beat goalie George Gardner cleanly. League-leading scorer Wayne Maxner fired the deadlocking goal in the second period and the Flyers took control of the game. In the final 40 minutes, the Petes managed only seven shots on goal.

Maxner has 78 points, two more than Pit Martin of Hamilton Red Wings.

Ron Schock made it 2-1 for the Flyers before the period ended and Gary Harmer, third member of the Maxner-Schock-Harmer line, scored the insurance tally in the final period on a rebound from defenceman Ron Hergott.

World Title To Czechs Says Yanks

MOSCOW (AP)—After seeing their team trounced by two leading contenders for the world hockey title, the U.S. coach predicts Czechoslovakia will take the championship tournament month at Stockholm.

The Soviet Union's powerful squad routed the Americans here Saturday, two days after the Czechs whipped the U.S. 10-2 at Prague.

American coach Harry Cleverly of Wellesley, Mass., picked Czechoslovakia as the likely champion in the world tournament, adding that the U.S. probably would fight it out for fourth with Canada behind the Czechs, Russian and Swedes.

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

EDMONTON (CP) — Ontario skaters won the Canadian junior dance and junior pairs events Friday night to bring the province's champion total at the 1963 Canadian figure skating championships to three.

Bunne Lilley and John Booker of Toronto earned the junior dance crown with 191.3 points. The junior pairs title went to Linda Ann Ward and Neil Carpenter of Galt, Ont. They collected 48.6 points.

Sandra Marie Sanders, 16, a Toronto school girl, won the junior women's championship Wednesday, first day of the three-day competition.

A free skating display by Jim Humphrey, 14, of North Vancouver averted an Ontario sweep of the four junior titles decided so far at the championships.

Humphrey won the junior men's crown. His free skating protected a lead from Cranston of Lachine, Que., was third.

Miss Lilley, 18, and Booker, 22, a graduate student at U. of T., topped three other couples in the junior dance. Lynn Matthews and Bryon Topping of Toronto were second with 127.7 points and Judith Ann Richardson and Brian Ralph, also of Toronto, finished third with 122.9 points.

In the pairs, Miss Ward, 18 and Carpenter, 18, who have been skating together for eight years, were opposed by three couples. Wendy Warne and Jim Watters of Vancouver finished second with 44.8 points and Susan and Paul Rushnergard of Toronto were third with 42.3.

Defending champion Wendy Griner, 18, of Toronto took the lead after compulsory figures in the senior women's championship with 760.6 points. Miss Griner has won the women's crown the last three years. Shirra Kenworthy, 19, of Vancouver, was second with 744.5 points. Miss Burka, 16, Toronto, runner-up to Miss Griner last year, was third with 716.9.

Only the first round of the senior dance one of the five couples, Donna Lee and Richard Dunlap of Calgary, was eliminated. In the running were Marilyn Carter and Brian Armitage of Toronto; Paulette Doan and Ken Ormsby, also of Toronto; Crawford and Judith Leitch, Lethbridge, another Toronto pair; and Donna Lee and John Mitchell of Vancouver.

The Mitchells were runners-up last year in the event.

Tackle Mountain Slalom Sunday

Worlds' Top Skiers Poised

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—Twenty-two of the world's top professional skiers are ready to tackle a wicked chute-and-trees mountainside known as Waterfall Run.

The Sunday event will be a slalom race for $5,000 in prize money. First prize is $2,000, second $1,000 and third $500, with lesser amounts paid out as the placings get lower. Top Canadian is assured of at least $300.

Most of the pros were to take their first look at Waterfall Run today. If some blanch, no one will be surprised.

The run suits its name. Starting gate for the 33-gate course faces a dropoff of 42 degrees and the course does not level out much after that. About 1,000 feet long with a vertical drop of 450 feet, the gradient stays at about one-in-two, just about maintaining the 42-degree incline.

The first man in the race, Swiss stylist Andreas Rubi, is to shoot through the starting gate at 1 p.m. EST. Second run of the combined-time event will start at 3 p.m.

FAVORITE AMONG PREVIOUS VICTORS

The two previous winners are favored—but the two previous pro slalom events held near this town 72 miles north of Toronto were not held on Waterfall Run.

Stein Eriksen, born in Oslo and operator of a ski school in Aspen Highlands, Colo., won the 1961 race.

Heli Schaller, a native Austrian living in Kimberley, B.C., won last year.

Eriksen's record is impressive. He won the giant slalom in the 1952 Olympics and took second place in the slalom. He has held the Norwegian championship three times.

Schaller, 25, also can prove his abilities. When he was 16 he won the Austrian junior championship and later the Swiss Alpine and downhill championships and the Norwegian giant slalom title. He was a member of the Austrian national team in 1961.

Will Be A "Rerun"

'Gonna End Like Last One Only Shorter' Says Liston

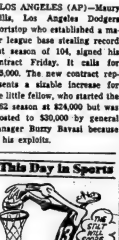
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston arrived Friday with a prediction that he would regain his belt out Floyd Patterson in the first round of their April 4 rematch here.

"Folks who see the movies of this fight are going to holler: 'Hey, this is a rerun'," Liston said, "because it's gonna end just like the last one."

"Except," he added, "this one is going to be shorter. I missed the first two punches in the other fight."

After meeting Patterson, Liston said he would like to take on Cassius Clay, the lastalking young heavyweight who has been naming the round in which he beats all of his opponents.

"I'd like to fight him this summer," Liston said.



Liston plans to be an active champion. He won't stay a "hit-and-the-month" campaign like former champion Joe Louis, "but I want to fight somebody about every three months."

"My trouble will be finding the fighters to meet me," Liston said. "I've cleaned 'em all out. I guess I'll have to go back over the list."

WILLS SIGNS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Maury Wills, Los Angeles Dodgers' shortstop who established a major league base stealing record last season at 104, signed his contract Friday. It calls for $45,000. The new contract represents a sizable increase for the little fellow, who started the 1962 season at $24,000 but was boosted to $30,000 by general manager Buzzy Bavasi because of his exploits.

This Day In Sports

'Big Three' Close Behind

Hebert Tops Phoenix By Stroke

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Veteran Jay Hebert, who has gone 2½ years without winning a golf tournament, carried a shaky one-stroke lead into the third round of the $35,000 Phoenix Open today.

The game's big three—Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus—were breathing down his neck.

Hebert, with back-to-back 67s, was 10 under par at 134 for 36 holes over the 6,879-yard desert course at the Arizona Country Club.

A stroke away was Palmer, who bolstered the defence of his two consecutive championships by matching Hebert's 67 Friday.

Player was another stroke back at 136. Nicklaus, who beat Player in a playoff in the Palm Springs tournament Monday, was in a group at 137 along with Dick Hart, Gardner Dickinson, Johnny Pott and Tommy Bolt.

LEONARD AT 140

Stan Leonard of Vancouver was the star stroker of the pack, punched with six others at 140. He had rounds of 69 and 71.

Al Balding of Toronto had 70-71—145, Jerry Magee of Toronto 72-74—146, Jack Blasegear of Val Marie, Sask., 74-73—147, and Bob Panasiuk of Toronto 77-77—154.

Hebert posted his second five-under-par 67 on the strength of seven birdies, two over - par holes and nine pars Friday, spectacularly than Palmer got his.

The aggressive Arnie, modern golf's greatest money winner, sank a 50-foot putt for an eagle three on the 490-yard first hole. He nearly aced the 140-yard No. 3. His tee shot landed three feet past the backpin drive it across the cup. The ball wobbled at the edge but didn't fall. Then he missed the three-foot putt coming back and took a par three.

That was typical of Palmer's putting for the tournament so far, with the exception of the 50-footer. He has rimmed so many cups he can't keep count of them. Player, who shared the first-round lead with Hebert and Nicklaus, dropped back with a 69.

"Trots" Wagers Up 40 Per Cent

Tracks Betting Set Records

OTTAWA (CP)—Betting on harness races took an impressive leap to record levels during the 1962 racing season, the federal agriculture department reports. Handle accounted for practically all of it.

In the eight provinces where federal authorities supervise the pari - mutuel betting, total wagering reached $36,892,708—up by $10,400,000 from the previous year. Quebec and Newfoundland are not included.

During the season 76 racing associations ran 6,836 races on 803 days of harness racing. In 1961 there were 6,312 races over 3,524 races and a 668-day total. Attendance at all racing were issued separately two months ago. They showed an all-Canada betting total of $143,525,392, an increase of $6,760,520 from the year before and a record.

On a percentage basis, however, the rise in harness betting was far more impressive. It rose by 23 per cent as against 5 per cent with about five per cent in flat racing.

In Ontario alone the 1962 betting on harness horses almost reached the eight-province figure of 1961. The province reported $26,220,828 collected at the betting windows, up $10,- 220,176 in a year.

Largest amount wagered last season in Ontario was $7,017,- at Old Woodbine in Toronto where a 14-day race meet took in a daily average of $277,682. Smallest was at a one-day meet in Newington, Ont., where bets totalled $226.

Indians Win Over Bears, Move Up

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Springfield Indians' muscle line is working so well the team has moved into first place in the American Hockey League playoffs.

Defencemen Bob McCord, Ted Harris and Bill White make up the line and Friday night they helped the Indians end a 5-game field pushed its winning streak to three games with a 7-2 victory over Hershey Bears.

The late-season spurt has moved the Indians to within one point of the fourth-place Baltimore Clippers and to within four of Hershey, which holds the No. 3 playoff spot in the Eastern Division. With scoring punch provided by Sweeney in addition after a three-game absence, the Indians may be ready for a drive to the playoffs.

Sweeney, who had surrendered the scoring lead to Hershey's Willie Marshall during his absence, regained the top spot by collecting his 19th goal of the season and two assists. He has 63 points to 62 for Marshall, who was limited to an assist Friday night.

The only other league action was Pittsburgh's 7-2 victory by Baltimore over Pittsburgh Hornets, with Ted Hampson, Mel Pearson and Don McGregor each scoring two goals and Jean Ratelle, just sent down by New York Rangers of the National League, collecting one. Howie Menard picked up both Pittsburgh goals.

Bruce Cline scored two Springfield goals. Jimmy Anderson and Brian Kilrea added singles. Dick Meissner and Pete Conacher were the Hershey marksmen.

Quinte COSSA Basketball

Belleville Collegiate hoopsters finished the Bay of Quinte schedule last night by sweeping two of three games from their counterparts from Trenton High School. The Belleville juniors won their fifth game in five starts by a 57-38. The win tied them with Quinte point-wise but their points scored on the season count them first place honors. The seniors came on top of a 54-42 to finish in second spot while the lowly bantams dropped a 27-22 verdict to finish out of the playoffs.

The juniors were never threatened. The "Tigers" seemed unsure of themselves and were guilty of violations on many occasions although they played good ball in fits and starts.

Murray Swan was back in the groove hitting for 22 points and playing an inspired defensive game. Ron Walsh was good for 13 for the victors.

Hockley and Wirtzak with 13 and 7 were high men for the Tigers.

In the bantam affair Ross Drysdale sparked the homesters with a 17 - point effort. Jim Parodi contributed for 11 in the winning cause.

SENIOR GAME

The Collegians led the game in its entirety and were never seriously threatened. Terry McCabe controlled both backboards and was top scorer of the night with a brilliant 25 point effort.

The teams were feeling each other out in the first quarter streaking passing rather than shooting. BCI led 16-9 at the end of the period. Play picked up in the second quarter. Action was heavy under both baskets and the shooting eyes sharpened. BCI outscored the luckless Trentonians 17-12 to move into a 31-21 lead at the half time break. The third period was a replica of the first as the contestants managed to score a mere 13 points between them.

The final period was the fastest and by far the best of the evening. Checking was close and the rebounding rugged as they ground it out on even terms with BCI taking a scanty 15-15 lead in the scoring department.

McCabe with his 25 was the best for the winners. Bob Chick played an excellent game, setting up many field goals and scoring 13 points himself. Bob Williams hit for 11.

Trenton's Fred Wannamaker was second only to McCabe. His accurate shots and jumpers earned him 22 points. Karl Bowman had 8.

Star Of 'Stoney Burke' Had Art as First Love

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The casual visitor would scarcely expect to see Jackie Kreiger and Van Gogh in the dressing room of Jack Lord, rugged star of the rodeo series, Stoney Burke.

But they are there. Five of his art works are owned by the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

He is not the kind of guy you would expect as star of an action series. He's rugged, also a rugged individualist.

Art came first for the handsome New Yorker. As John Joseph Patrick Ryan, he was chosen the best high school art student of the year, got his degree in art at New York University. He had a couple of starvation years in the garret, then gave it up.

He was called to Washington to illustrate a book for a maritime service—he had been in sea for five years, earned a mate's commission. He took part in some training films, found he liked acting. Back in New York he talked himself into Sandy Meisner's dramatic class and sold Cadillacs by day.

"I was earning $18,000 a year when I quit," he said. "They thought I was nuts. I was being groomed as one of the top salesmen in the company, but it did not matter to me. I told them I was quitting because I had to do what I had to do."

Another lean period But Ralph Bellamy gave him a role on his television series on the basis of the training films. He started clicking in TV, playing (Cat on a Hot Tin Roof) and films (God's Little Acre).

"I did about eight pictures and somehow got typed as a heavy," he said. "Type casting is a vicious thing out here, and I was determined to break it. For eight months I didn't work. I changed agents three times and I never could convince them that I was serious about not doing heavies."

Lord—it's a family name I took because John J. Ryan sounded like a retired police commissioner—also turned down 20 television series, including Ben Casey and Wagon Train.

Then along came Stoney Burke, a hard-hitting hour about life on the rodeo circuit Lord liked the upbeat nature of the role and the devotion to story values of the producer, playwright Leslie Stevens.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Russian high jumper Valeri Brumel practises gymnastics, lifts weights, throws the discus and javelin, puts the shot and broad jumps. He also sprints and goes on weary, cross-country jaunts.

Czech Emil Zatopek believes gymnastics should be part of the training routine of young track and field athletes. He's also a devotee of discus and javelin throwing for track men.

Australian Herb Elliott ate meals of nuts, raisins and dates, quaffed yogurt and plowed endlessly through sand dunes in his track training.

Englishman Chris Chataway gained international fame when he carelessly told a reporter that he trained on cigarettes and beer Maybe he was kidding, and track buffs say he was, but he became a pretty good beer salesman after sparkling track career.

Are these guys nuts?

Well, Brumel has jumped seven feet, 5½ inches and that's higher than anyone else in the world. Zatopek won three gold medals all by himself in the 1952 Olympics. In the 5,000 and 10,000 metres and marathon.

Elliott won two gold medals and still is known as track's golden boy He created the four-minute barrier in times set world records for the mile and 1,500 metres and won Olympic and British Empire Games gold medals.

This seems to us to Bruce Kidd. He runs That's it.

There is no fancy business about his training techniques. He doesn't propel his body around bars. He doesn't throw things or fill his stomach with nuts, dates and raisins. He likes a drink stuck after a workout. And he'll take a beer any time.

"There's no substitute for just plain, old-fashioned running as far as I can see," the 20-year-old Toronto distance runner said after an hour's workout session the other night. "Running is the only form of training I've ever had and maybe I'm wrong.

"You know," he added with a twinkle in his eye, "I can't even touch my toes." He can, of course, but his remarks are a clue to the mental makeup and approach to track of this precocious young man who, in the studied opinion of world observers, has the potential to wreck the record books.

TECHNIQUES SIMILAR

Kidd is by no means critical of the training techniques of these proven champions.

"I had a theory about running," he said, "and a year ago when I was in California for a meet I talked to Murray Halberg about techniques. I found that his and those of my coach, Fred Foot, and myself, were about the same.

"That is to run and run and run."

No one can find fault with this. Hlberg, 29-year-old New Zealander, holds the world record for three miles. He won the Olympic 5,000 metres in 1960 and the British Empire Games three miles in 1958 and again in 1962.

And Halberg is in the same stable with Peter Snell, a fellow New Zealander who holds world marks for the 880 yards and the mile and is Olympic and British Empire Games gold medallist They train together.

Kidd says he hasn't the time to take a whirl at gymnastics, put the shot, throw the discus and javelin and so on. A second-year student at the University of Toronto, he runs about an hour before school each morning, another hour or more in the evening and then studies.

NO WIFE

He has beaten everybody in Canada in North America in the mile and three miles the last couple of years He won the six miles and was third in the three miles at Perth in November, and since then hasn't lost a race in the North American indoors.

Tonight (Saturday) at Los Angeles, he is entered in the mile and four men who have broken four minutes. They are Snell (3:54.4), Jim Beatty, Los Angeles (3:56.6), Cary Weisiger, San Jose, Calif. (3:58.2) and Bill Baldwin, Lawrence, Kansas (3:59).

All of these were made outdoors, where it is four laps against 12, and Kidd's best is 4:01.4.

He wants to become Canada's first four-minute miler "I'm go to run.

Crothers To Race in New York

NEW YORK (CP)— Bill Crothers, 22-year-old University of Toronto senior who is unbeaten in the half-mile and 1,000-yard distances this season, apparently has decided to pass up the university senior prom next Friday in favor of a Mi dison Square Garden track meet.

The New York Athletic Club, sponsor of the indoor meet here, said Crothers filed an entry form Friday for the half-mile competition in which he will meet Russian Valery Bulishev who won the half-mile at Toronto here a week ago.

A spokesman said Crothers had considered passing the NYAC fames to attend the Prom.

Bruce Kidd, 19-year-old University of Toronto sophomore, has entered the two-mile run in the same meet.

Both run for the East York Track Club and Crothers is expected to anchor a club two-mile relay team in addition to running the half-mile.

Not Yet Able To Question Fleming's Son

OTTAWA (CP) — Police say they have not yet been able to question 20-year-old Donald Watson Fleming about the February 2 shooting incident in which he was wounded in the chest by a shotgun blast.

"I am very interested in having a talk with the boy," Police Chief Walter Mtheux of South Hull, Que., said Friday. However, this hadn't been possible yet because the hospital said the patient was still under sedation.

The condition of the youth, son of Justice Minister Fleming, was listed Friday as fair and still slowly improving in Ottawa Civic Hospital.

The incident occurred early last Saturday in the South Hull home of family friends of Mrs. Jayne Perley-Robertson, where he has been a boarder.

Dr. David Hooper declined Friday to discuss his patient's condition with reporters and said information should come from the hospital or family. Chief Mtheux said he was waiting for Dr. Hooper's permission before questioning the patient.

Smokies Beaten By Maroons

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Trail Smoke Eaters hardly looked like world championship material Friday night as they suffered their fourth defeat in six pre-tournament games.

Chatham Maroons of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series were the latest victors over Canada's bopes in next month's world hockey tournaments in Stockholm.

About 2,300 fans saw the Maroons snap a 2-2 tie late in the third period and go on to take a 4-2 win.

It was the Smokies' second loss in as many nights on their tour of Eastern Canada.

The lowly Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers defeated them 6-4 in Kitchener Thursday night.

BATTLE TO TIE

The team fought to a 1-1 tie in the first period Friday night, 3-3 at the last period. Jim Connelly, who also scored in the first period, fired the insurance marker when the Smokies' open net at 19:35 after coach Bobby Kromm took out goaltender Seth Martin in favor of an extra attacker.

The Maroons picked up five of the nine penalties in the game which was played under international rules.

Both goalies turned in fine performances, Martin in the March of Dimes game and Trail net minder Jim Kowalchuk and Chatham's Al Bennett 24.

Canada Outdoors

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — Long regarded by a few, it now is evident to all that private groups control some of the best hunting and angling territory in Quebec through leases.

It is a delicate control, however, subject to governmental whim. And the present whim is to open more land to the public.

"About 25,000 square miles of the most accessible land is leased," says Jean Duguay, chief of the Forest Protection Service.

Possibly 2,000 private clubs have angling and hunting rights on some of the best salmon, moose, deer and migratory bird country in Quebec.

Someone hooted "impossible" last year after Gerard D. Levesque had recently given out fisheries minister, promised to have a map drawn up of the leased club territory.

But after more than a year of work, his department has created and authorized 20 crown territories on a series of 20 maps that call for $5 each.

COLUMNIST APPLAUDS

The project has drawn applause, notably from Izaak Hunter, Les Montreal Star's "fish and game columnist." He says:

"Scores of thousands of anglers and hunters will bless the minister for it. They will be able to go fishing and hunting without getting or being run out of an area as trespassers on private leases.

"They will be saved time, expense and humiliation. The map will put a stop to the all-too-common practice of some dodgy in - the - manger outfitters and private boardholders of posting areas to which they have no right. . . .

The map shows the poorer country in Saguenay north of Quebec City and the excellent deer country north of Montreal to be heavily leased.

Northeast of Quebec City, seigniorial lands stretching to the Saguenay River along the St. Lawrence control fishing and hunting rights.

FEW NEW LEASES

The seigniorial lands—mostly granted by King Louis XIV of France—cannot be touched by the government unless it buys them outright, but the leases can be revoked.

Government policy in the last two years has resulted in almost no new leases being issued and some being cancelled.

The government also has cropped many lease areas, trying to cut them down to less than 50 square miles with a membership of at least one per square mile. One 25 - member club has an area of 100 square miles.

Cost of hunting and angling rights on crown land is $20 a square mile, or $10 for the right to fish only or hunt only. It used to be a $5 rental per square mile for one or the other.

While many clubs have done excellent work in conservation and protection, others—usually made up of poorer members—have not been able to do so well. The richer clubs have often spent heavy amounts on club buildings, dams, whirls and other improvements that the government must make recompense for if it revokes their leases.

TIMBER LEASES CLOSED

The maps show the locations of all the private clubs and the 262 seigniories.

Only timber leases are not shown and, technically, the public has a right to hunt and fish on timber leases.

The pulp and paper companies have an obligation to protect these leases against fire. They also build roads, entirely at their own expense, and must keep them up. If a hunter is injured on one of these roads, it is the company's responsibility.

This has resulted in angry hunters and anglers being turned away at timber lease gates and a flow of protests to the government.

Both sides have valid arguments here, says Mr. Duguay, and the government is studying the situation and trying to arrive at legislation that will improve it.

Accuse Daughter Of Theft From Her Father

QUEBEC (CP) — Judge Paul Roy is to render judgment March 22 in the case of Mrs. Orvila Marier, accused of stealing $6,940 from her 83-year-old father.

The money was removed from a jar kept in the basement of the Marier home while the father, Joseph Gariepy, was living with the Mariers. After a family quarrel, he moved upstairs to live with another daughter, Mrs. Michel Beaupre, and when the jar was sent to him he discovered it contained only $100 of $6,940 he had in it, Gariepy testified Friday.

Abbe Arthur Papillon, parish priest of St. Ubald, Que., appeared Friday to testify in the case. Thursday, Judge Paul Roy issued a warrant ordering the priest brought to court after defence lawyer Alexander Lesage said Father Papillon had not answered a summons earlier and did not want to testify. Father Papillon explained Friday that the first summons had come too late for him to answer it.

Father Papillon's testimony was that he knew of Gariepy as a religious man, who contributed money to support a Negro studying at a Quebec seminary.

Orvila Marier, husband of Mr. Gariepy's daughter, testified that the basement was accessible to other people.

Violets From Seed or Cutting

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

First, to answer two questions. Can African violets be allergic to certain people? (A) No. There is some other fault if they do not bloom. (Q) Can fluorinated water harm, or kill African violets? (A) No. Ohio State University has made a study of fluoride poisoning in violets. They report that the amount of fluorides used in city water will do no harm.

It takes about the same time to bring a violet plant into bloom whether it starts from a seed, or a cutting. It is almost a year before either are good bloom size plants.

With cuttings you can propogate more of the kinds you have on hand. With choice selected seed you will have a whole new collection.

The seed is small and should be sown thinly on violet soil, a mix of half sand and peat moss, or a mix of perlite and moss.

Perlite is ash from a volcano and contains no nutrients, but holds water well. Peat moss takes a long time to soak up moisture if it has been stored dry. Soak over night in hot water before mixing it with sand, or perlite. Spagnum moss is the best peat to use. It is fiberous and loose textured and does not pack hard.

USE WIDE SHALLOW POT

Use a wide shallow pot such as a bulb pan rather than the tall pots. Set the pot in a pan of warm water and allow moisture to soak up until surface is moist but not wet. Mark off top in one inch squares and place one seed at each intersection. This is better than scattering seeds. Do not cover with soil. Lay a pane of glass on top of pot or cover with clear plastic tied down.

Once a day turn the glass, or plastic to avoid excess dampness. In two or three weeks the seedlings will emerge. Take off glass and place in good light. Temperature should be at least 65 degrees better 70. Water from below with warm water. Do hot keep wet, just damp.

When plants are one inch high and have a small tuft of leaves transplant to small pots. Cut a V in the popsickle stick and use this to lift the plants. Keep the plants together on a tray or wide shallow pan. They are easier to care for and seem to do better in groups. Each shares the humidity created by the damp soil. When temperatures are low keep the humidity down too. A chilly damp atmosphere is not to their liking.

AS DAYS LENTHEN

As the days lengthen and sun liquid fertilizer every 2 weeks, liquid fertilizer every twi weeks. In summer a south or west window is too bright. They will grow in good north light but an east window seems the best of all.

For cutting take fresh mature leaves. Insert in above mix or perlite after dipping one inch of stem in rootone. Have the medium damp and put pot in plastic bag, close top. There should be a few small holes for air. The bag will maintain humidity and can be used until the plants are well established. New plants will take three to six weeks to start. Some plants are quite slow to root and make new leaves.

When plants are well established cut off the leaf stem just above new plant. Leaf can be used again if in good condition. Some leaves will produce three plants in this way.

The Golden Years

Fur Flying Again as Readers Take Rap at Complaining Wife

By THOMAS COLLINS

The fur is flying again.

It's because of that fetter appearing here from "Mrs. Golden Years" to her husband's boss, complaining that he sent her man home — and without training him to wash dishes.

Listen to what readers are saying:

"It is odd how selfish old women like Mrs. Golden Years can remain in the world. If her husband should pass away tomorrow, I would be willing to bet that she would make so much fuss one would think she was the only widow in the world. I've seen that type before . . ." — Mr. F.M.C.

"Maybe the husband of Mrs. Golden Years will be the last to go. Then he will have a few happy years free from her nagging and complaining. Wives who complain about their retired husbands' being home make me sick." — Mrs. L.G.Y.

"What is this ungrateful wife doing. Begrudging her retired husband the right to be in his own home all day, to take an occasional nap and watch TV? Hasn't she been having that right all these years while he supported her? I hope my husband and build up his ego. A man needs more assuring from his wife when he retires than at any other time in his life." — Mrs. C.C.

SHE NAPPED TOO

"That old shrew who wrote you — how many naps did she take during the 40 years her husband was working for a living? . . ." — Mr. W.C.R.

"Mrs. Golden Years might like to know that a company figures it is giving the wife something not imposing a burden on her — when it sends her husband home in retirement. We could be wrong, but has she ever figured that she could be, too?" — A Boss.

"If Mrs. Golden Years doesn't want that husband of hers around will you please let me know. And don't write — telegraph. If he is as good as he sounds I will pay his transportation to my house, and I suspect there are a thousand other widows who have lost their good husbands who would feel the same." — Mrs. X.Y.Z.

"A wife who has let a husband support her for 40 years doesn't have to be beholden — she has kept the home, helped rear the children, and played a vital role. But when such a wife complains when such a man retires and comes home to rest, as Mrs. Golden Years did, then something is wrong with this world." — Mr. R.J.C.

"LOOK IN MIRROR"

"The wife who wanted the boss to take her husband back should go look at herself in the mirror and ask herself where she would be without that husband, and his pension. It's a pity wives can't appreciate a husband until he is gone." — Mrs. G.R.T.

"Mrs. Golden Years is what I call a 'precious housekeeper,' and she makes me sick." — Mrs. R.T.S.

"I won't let my husband drink beer since he came home, but you might tell Mrs. Golden Years that this guy of mine is the greatest treasure I've got, that he can watch TV and take naps, and drop ashes on the rug and grind them in with his heel, and grin, and do anything he wants. He's my man, and as I look around among my widowed friends, men aren't too plentiful. I think Mrs. Golden Years needs some vitamins. Or something." — Mrs. B.R.L.

Thomasburg

Ten tables of cards were in play and the winners were as follows: First "42" — Mr. William Geen and Mrs. Harold Geen of Thomasburg; for euchre — Mrs. Reg. Reid of Tweed and Mr. Charles Smith of Thomasburg. Mrs. Fred Leal of Tweed won the door prize. There will be another card party held in the near future.

Yesterday was a frosty Friday, but work still went on, in this case shifting telephone lines from the east side of John Street to the west, and the man carrying on is Bill McMechan of the Bell Telephone Company, in Belleville. New poles for the combined service were installed during the fall, and the new service will be operative in the spring. Similar work will be done on George St., William St., Ann St. and Charles St.

Churchill Minister Of Defence

PM Appoints McCutcheon To Succeed Hees

Lambert New Minister Of Veterans' Affairs

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Gordon Churchill was appointed today as Canada's new minister of national defence and Senator Wallace McCutcheon was named trade minister as Prime Minister Diefenbaker reorganized a ministry shaken by three resignations last week.

Marcel Lambert, 45-year-old MP for Edmonton West and Speaker of the Commons in the last Parliament, took over the veterans' affairs portfolio held by Mr. Churchill from October, 1960, until today's reorganization.

Mr. Diefenbaker, announcing the appointments as he left his home for the airport to keep a Toronto speaking engagement, said other appointments would be announced shortly.

He said these would involve appointments from Quebec and other provinces.

In announcing Senator McCutcheon's appointment he said he had chosen a man who would keep the economy rising as it has been rising.

Senator McCutcheon, former managing director of E. P. Taylor's big Argus Corporation, was first brought into the cabinet Aug. 9, 1962, as minister without portfolio and given the task of planning for Canada's economic future. He later was put in charge of implementing recommendations of the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

HEES, SEVNY RESIGN

Left vacant, at least for the time being, was the portfolio of associate defence minister, vacated Saturday by the resignation of Pierre Sevigny. Resigning along with Mr. Sevigny Saturday was the trade minister, George Hees.

The two of them followed by less than a week departure of Douglas Harkness as minister of national defence — all over disagreement with the prime minister on the question of nuclear arms for Canadian forces.

Appointment of Senator McCutcheon, 56 - year - old cigar-smoking financier, was the one real surprise in today's announcement. Last week, despite his reported denials, he had been linked with a group of ministers reported on the point of resigning.

Mr. Churchill, 64, teacher and lawyer before he became a close personal friend of Mr. Diefenbaker for many years, is a veteran of both World Wars. He was trade minister in the first

TRENTON YUKON INTERCEPTED OVER SPAIN

'Just Routine' Say Officials of RCAF

PISA, Italy — An RCAF Yukon transport plane from Trenton, carrying Canadian soldiers to United Nations duty in Egypt and the Congo was intercepted high over Spain today by two unidentified jet fighters. The fighters, probably Spanish or American, were clearly seen in the moonlight by passengers aboard the giant air transport.

However, RCAF officials at Trenton this morning dismissed the incident as a routine occurrence.

"It could happen anytime," a spokesman told the Ontario Intelligencer. "When aircraft are given a diplomatic clearance over certain countries they are often intercepted in flight simply for identification purposes."

The Yukon piloted by Squadron Leader Al MacKenzie, of 437 Squadron, Transport Command, flew out of Trenton early last night with 55 passengers aboard.

The Yukon was lit up like a Christmas tree and crew members said all proper identification signals had been transmitted. Sqdn. Ldr. Al MacKenzie of Montreal, the pilot, said:

"I've heard of this happening before, but it's the first time it has happened to me.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — A powerful tribe has clamped a food blockade on Leopoldville in a battle with the central government for control of the capital. Diplomats fear rioting may set in as food prices increases in the city.

Leopoldville was neutralized in November as a federal capital for The Congo, but the Bakongo who live in the region claim the city.

LIBERAL PARTY PLATFORM FOR FREER TRADE

Would Try to Win Wider Markets

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal party's trade platform in the election campaign, as outlined by one of party Leader Pearson's close advisers, can be summed up as "freer trade to win wider markets."

The Liberals advocate gearing Canada's trade policy closely to President Kennedy's tariff-cutting powers.

The hoped-for goal is a multination effort that would reduce tariff barriers not only on both sides of the North Atlantic but throughout the free world.

"World trading with a minimum of obstruction between nations and between groups of nations is certainly what we need today," Mr. Pearson said in a recent speech at London, Ont. "No country needs it more than Canada."

Almost the same quotations can be found in speeches by Conservative government members. Are Conservative and Liberal policies the same?

SAME BUT DIFFERENT

The same—but with a difference, is the reply of one Liberal spokesman.

The Liberals, he said, would work more vigorously to get meaningful international tariff cuts in the multilateral negotiations due next year, based on the premise of freer trade laid out by the U.S. Trade Expansion Act.

Another difference was the Liberal advocacy of government help to tide over Canadian industries adversely affected by cuts in Canadian tariffs, plus measures to give a helpful push to industries able to take advantage of new export openings.

The spokesman said the Liberals are not advocating tariff-cut membership in any trade group.

Some confusion on this point

Iraq Regime Still Fighting Red Holdouts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraqi troops fought Communist holdouts in Baghdad and the major port of Basra today but appeared to be in control of the country.

To prove that overthrown premier Abdel Karim Kassem really is dead, the rebels showed his body on television. Travellers said he was tried in the rubble of his office by a drumhead court Saturday, forced to sit on a sofa and machine-gunned.

Reports to Tehran from frontier posts said armored columns invaded Basra Prison Sunday and freed about 1,500 Communists and criminals. The government was reported withdrawing forces from the border with Kuwait and moving them to Basra to fight the Communists.

In Baghdad, Communists were reported staging only a small arms fire in heavily populated areas. Raiding parties fired on their houses with rifles and so-calibre machine-guns.

Members of the country's new people's guard, formed under revolt leader Col. Abdel Karim Kassem, were reported to have joined Iraqi regular troops fighting.

Mustafa heads a six - man junta which announced Saturday the appointment of transitional president Abdul Salem Mohammed Aref and a cabinet but kept supreme powers for itself.

Mr. Hees, who says he does not plan to run for re-election in Toronto Broadview, will leave on 22 for a three-week tour of European ski resorts. (CP Wirephoto)

Hees and Sevigny Resign Cabinet Posts Over Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Why did George Hees, seemingly destined to reach the top in his chosen career of politics, resign Saturday from the cabinet and announce he will not be a candidate in the April 8 federal election?

Why did he resign as trade minister on a question of principle after saying only last Thursday that a reported challenge to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's leadership was "over, done, cleaned up and finished with — and very successfully so?"

Associates say simply that the handsome, 46-year-old six-footer felt that understanding he was given in a closed party caucus of MPs and senators last Wednesday were not being fulfilled and appeared unlikely to be fulfilled...He told a friend, in the light of that, "I cannot, in honor, stay on."

Mr. Hees, who left Ottawa Saturday for a weekend of skiing, was not available for comment, spelled out the points of difference concisely in his letter of resignation. He wanted a change in the government's defence policy and change in attitude on relations with the United States.

What of Pierre Sevigny, who shared Mr. Hees in the resignation move Saturday: He left the portfolio of associate minister of national defence, and also had been acting defence minister since the resignation last week end of Douglas Harkness?

Although a junior member of the cabinet, Mr. Sevigny had an undoubted zest for politics, a natural inclination since his father had served in Sir Robert Borden's government during the First World War.

Like Mr. Hees, he mentioned defence policies and anti-Americanism but went further by saying he could not accept Mr. Diefenbaker's "opinions concerning our senior service officers."

Mr. Hees apparently went through an agonizing few days reaching his decision. After it was all over, he was no longer the affable, communicative, friendly man he had been for years under any and all circumstances. Instead he was tight-lipped, drawn and showed signs of strain.

Mr. Hees, and possibly an-

Mob Of 500 Unarmed Men Rushing Pile Of Cordwood Fired Upon By Settlers

9 Strikers Wounded by Fusillade; Police Escape Injury, Arrest 19

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—Three striking loggers were killed and nine others taken to hospital with gunshot wounds following a shooting skirmish involving loggers and independent bushworkers near here.

Nineteen independent loggers were arrested after the shooting. Ten rifles, two shotguns and a revolver were seized.

No charges have yet been laid.

Witnesses said the strikers were shot at Reesor Siding about 37 miles west of here when they attempted to push over a pile of cord wood, stockpiled by independent loggers.

Staff Inspector Ralph Taylor, commissioner of provincial police headquarters at Kapuskasing said that about 500 loggers approached the pile of logs, on private property.

He said about 12 police tried to hold them back but were unsuccessful.

OPEN FIRE

"Then the settlers (the independent loggers) opened fire with rifles and shotguns," he said.

"One of the dead men stood next to one of my men and two constables were brushed by shells."

"We didn't know they had guns. We never expected anything like this," he said.

He said the striking loggers were not armed with clubs or anything."

Two men were killed instantly and one died en route to hospital.

Dead are Leo Fortier, 32, his brother Irenee, 25, and A. Drouin, age unknown.

Treated at hospital were Albert Martel, Joseph Rolly, Daniel Tremblay, Joseph Fortier, Leo Ouimette and Oliva Bernard. Police said three others were injured but not taken to hospital.

A nurse said one of the dead men was "riddled like a sieve" from the hips down.

Insp. Taylor said the police did not use their guns. They had received orders earlier not to use weapons.

After the shooting 13 more officers and the available OPP in the area—were called to the scene.

The shooting ended as suddenly as it had begun and the striking loggers returned to their parked off both sides of Highway 11.

Insp. Taylor said he was afraid there would be retaliation, "and we have an awful big territory to patrol if this thing spreads."

The loggers, who have been striking Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company since August 31, Jan. 14 to support demands for a new contract, cut wood around Kapuskasing, about 75 miles northeast of Timmins.

Undercurrents of potential violence have run through the long strike which began Jan. 14 when company and union negotiators were unable to reach agreement on a new contract to replace one that expired August 31.

POLICE PATROL AREA

A special unit of 25 provincial police officers has been patrolling the area since late January but up until today there had been no reports of violence though there had been claims that union pickets were molesting independent cutters.

The union woodcutters and haulers — eight of seven camps — have been roaming roads in the area, and spokesmen for the Spruce Falls company have charged they were terrorizing the small operators.

Some 90 settlers, farmers and small contractors comprise the independents, spread over a stretch of about 90 miles between Fauquier and Hearst.

The strikers are members of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers' Union, a branch of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (CLC).

TRADE SURPLUS SECOND TIME IN DECADE

U.S. Business Up, Great Britain Down

OTTAWA (CP)—For the second time in a decade Canada had a trade surplus last year, due largely to a striking increase in business with the United States. Trade with Britain went down.

The bureau of statistics today reported an over-all gain in total trade of eight per cent to $12,616,100,000. Exports advanced 7.7 per cent to $6,347,800,000 while imports rose at a slightly faster rate of 8.6 per cent to $6,268,300,000.

Both three figures are record highs.

Net result was a Canadian merchandise trade surplus of $79,500,000, the second one in a row. In 1961 the surplus was $124,100,000, the first surplus since 1952.

The devalued dollar-pegged in mid-May at 92½ cents in terms of the U.S. dollar—was attributed by the bureau for part of the increase in both export and import values. But it said "a significant gain" also was recorded in the real physical volume.

NEWSPRINT WAS TOP

Newsprint remained Canada's biggest-selling product in world markets, despite a slight decline in sales. Wheat was next, followed by motor cars, wood pulp and sizable gains, Nickel and aluminum, crude oil which took a big jump, then iron ore, copper and uranium.

The United States became an even greater market for Canadian products in 1962, taking 59 per cent of all this country's exports against 56 per cent in 1961. Britain's share dropped fractionally to 14.7 per cent. The rest of the Commonwealth took

Asian Flu Wave Hits Eastern U.S.; Leapfrogs Inland Far as Kansas

WASHINGTON (AP)—A shock wave of Asian flu is hitting the Eastern United States and leapfrogging inland as far as Kansas.

Public health officials can't say for sure, but odds are that it will spread in local outbreaks across the country.

In a sampling of 108 U.S. cities, the public health service reports that pneumonia - influenza deaths have been running over the epidemic threshold for four weeks.

Especially vulnerable are the elderly, the chronically ill and pregnant women.

Asian influenza is one of the "A" type influenza viruses which seem to strike every two or three years. It was first seen in the winter of 1957-58. There was some forewarning when it appeared in Japan and named. Vaccines were hurriedly made against the virus and distributed widely.

Officials believe that the vaccines took the top off the epidemic that year—but it was still of great porportions. A wave of the disease in the fall of 1957 was associated with 39,300 "excess deaths" above the normal death rate.

What Impact Will Turmoil Last Week Have on Election?

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP)—What impact will last week's political turmoil have on the April 8 general election?

Only Canada's 10,000,000 eligible voters have the answer to that question, a compelling one in political circles in Ottawa as they look back on a week in which three cabinet ministers resigned and there was talk of an attempt to remove the prime minister from office.

Then there was the key event of the week, the one that made an election mandatory the defeat in the Commons of the minority Diefenbaker administration in two non-confidence votes when Liberal, Social Credit and New Democratic Party members voted against the Conservatives.

Probably most startling were the resignations Saturday of George Hees as trade minister and Pierre Sevigny as associate defence minister — mainly because they were considered the Conservatives appeared to have closed ranks after Douglas Harkness resigned as defence minister Feb. 3.

Despite the turmoil, at week's end Prime Minister Diefenbaker appeared still firmly in control of the Conservative party.

Each resignation posed a challenge to his leadership and to his direction of his party's policies. But it was the challenging ministers, not Mr. Diefenbaker, who had to give way.

People in close touch with Conservative affairs say the resignations, while something of a shocker, seem likely to galvanize the party into more intensive efforts than ever in the coming campaign.

During the weekend there was an almost constant parade of cabinet ministers and others to the prime minister's residence at 24 Sussex Street. Cabinet ministers and other key party figures were seen about their offices and around the city, holding conferences and discussions.

The chief issue on which the three cabinet ministers resigned — nuclear warheads for Canadian forces in NATO and NORAD — appeared as likely to deny the Conservative line against immediate acquisition and against any plan for arming them on Canadian soil.

Mr. Hees and Mr. Sevigny indicated another point — their desire for assurance that an anti-American issue not be introduced into the election campaign.

Mr. Sevigny said in his letter of resignation that any "so-called pro-Canadian policy . . . can only be interpreted as anti-Americanism. . . ."

Mr. Diefenbaker has been emphasizing the pro-Canadian line in recent speeches.

Party sources expect this line also to harden, pointing to another remark by Mr. Diefenbaker that this has been Conservative policy for years.

There is no tendency on the part of the Liberals, the official Opposition in the last Parliament, to assume that the resignations might weaken the Conservatives to the extent of assuring a Liberal victory.

Lee E. Grills Spikes Rumor About Retiring

Mr. Lee E. Grills, Progressive Conservative member for Hastings South in the last three sessions of Parliament at Ottawa, today spiked rumor to the effect that he would not offer himself as party candidate in the forthcoming election campaign.

"There is no truth in the rumor," stated Mr. Grills. "I don't know what the rumor can be based on."

"Possibly it is wishful thinking on the part of the opposition."

Mr. Grills said his name would go before the riding convention when it was called to name a candidate for the April 8th election.

Plans for the riding convention are being finalized but no definite date for the meeting has yet been set, according to Mr. Grills.

Nuclear Debate Goes Back Four Years

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Four years ago this month Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced that the Canadian government had made up its mind to acquire nuclear warheads from the United States.

Thus the government ignited the long fuse which reached the political powderkeg last week with the resignations of three cabinet ministers. All three said they quit because they wanted Canada to obtain the warheads and Mr. Diefenbaker had not yet acted to carry out the decision.

The resignations of Defence Minister Harkness and Associate Minister Hees and Associate Defence Minister Sevigny capped many months of controversy, both public and private, over the Great Nuclear Decision.

Its origins go back to September, 1958, when Mr. Diefenbaker and his cabinet made a decision to obtain the Bomarc-B, anti-aircraft missile. It is effective only with a nuclear tip.

Later the government bought the CF-104 low-level strike plane for the RCAF in Europe, the Honest John artillery rocket for the Canadian Army's brigade in West Germany and the CF-101B Voodoo jet interceptor for RCAF Air Defence Command.

On Feb. 20, 1959, Mr. Diefenbaker said a decision would be made to get nuclear warheads.

As the months dragged on, the government made statements on the subject from time to time but steered clear of definite announcements of when it would obtain warheads.

Again and again, the opposition groups in the Commons sought a clear-cut declaration of the government's intentions.

The smouldering fuse was fanned to flame last month.

On Jan. 3 Gen. Lauris Norstad, retired NATO commander, made a visit to Ottawa and told a press conference that Europe cannot fulfil its NATO commitments unless it accepts nuclear warheads for forces in Central Europe.

On Jan. 25 Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson said in the Commons Canada must obtain warheads now for its forces both at home and abroad. But then seek to negotiate a "more appropriate role" in the defensive alliances.

Mr. Diefenbaker, following the Liberal leader to the Commons debate, reported that Canada had been negotiating with the U.S. for warheads and he also said the government does not want to expand the "nuclear family."

At no time in his speech did the prime minister say flatly whether Canada was accepting or rejecting a nuclear role for its forces.

Three days later, Mr. Harkness issued a press statement interpreting Mr. Diefenbaker's speech as a pro-nuclear statement. The prime minister followed up by saying his speech was clear and did not require clarification.

Jan. 30 the U.S. state department put out a press release criticizing Canadian defence policy and contradicting many of the things Mr. Diefenbaker had said in his commons speech.

That action by the U.S. drew bitter comment from Mr. Diefenbaker and all other opposition party leaders in the commons the next day. They were unanimous in denouncing it as an unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs.

Mr. Harkness blew the lid off the situation Feb. 3 with his resignation, making it clear that he was at odds with Mr. Diefenbaker on the nuclear question. He added that he believed most Canadians share his views and that the government could not be re-elected on its present defence policy.

The next night the three opposition parties united to defeat the minority government's Conservative forces, winning two non-confidence votes.

Mr. Diefenbaker went to Governor-General Vanier and advised him to dissolve Parliament for an April 8 general election.

On Wednesday, the day of dissolution, Mr. Diefenbaker attended a party caucus. His ministers and followers were smiling to report that the rest of the cabinet was solidly behind the prime minister.

Saturday Mr. Hees and Mr. Sevigny announced they had resigned.

Both ex-ministers deplored a trend towards anti-Americanism in the government's defence of its nuclear indecision.

Their argument ran that Canada has announced a decision to acquire nuclear warheads and made commitments to provide part of the nuclear force for NATO and NORAD. Neither had been carried out.

Pleads Guilty To Three Counts Of False Claims

Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning warned he might consider heavier penalties for breaches of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

The warning came as the third case of false jobless benefits claims was brought before his court since Friday.

Pleading guilty to three counts of false claims was 23-year-old Lorne Brant, 105 Centre Street, Belleville.

He was fined $15 and costs on each charge, payable within a month with an alternative of one month in jail.

Unemployment Insurance Commission investigator Eric Naylor told the magistrate Brant had drawn $143 from two employers over three weeks and reported only $18 which received $108 in benefits, only part of which had been paid back in restitution.

In handing down the sentence Magistrate Wills said he was concerned over a record number of similar cases that had come before local courts. The reference was to a succession of guilty charges laid by federal government investigators in the past month in Belleville, Madoc and Trenton.

All the charges originated with claims made to the National Employment Service Bureau in Belleville.

VIOLENCE THREATENED

MOSHI, Tanganyika (Reuters)—An African leader has threatened the "use of violence if necessary" in Southern Rhodesia because of the arrest of nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo Saturday. Rev. N. Sithole, national chairman of Southern Rhodesia's banned Zimbabwe African Peoples Union told a press conference the arrest of former party leader Nkomo made an "Algerian-type situation inevitable" in the British colony.

Lots of Food, Good Crop Of Fawns Should Ensure Good Hunting This Fall

Deer hunting should be good in Hastings county next year. Snow conditions in the bush are light, there is lots of food for the deer, and a good crop of fawns is expected by the Department of Lands and Forests.

Deer don't stand still to be counted any more than they do to be shot, so keeping track of the herd is a bit of a detective operation. Frank Cheshire, staff biologist of the Lands and Forests station at Tweed, heads it. With cooperation from other departmental services, especially the conservation officers, he gathers the information the deer leave behind them.

Conservation officers learn where the deer concentrate for the winter. Usually these concentration areas are the same, year after year, and represent about one-tenth the area the same deer would cover in the summer.

Although the conservation officer may never actually see the deer, he can keep track of the food supply, and he can estimate the number of deer from the tracks in the area. He learns of the presence of predators from the tracks too, and can often predict serious trouble in the herd before it happens.

STATIONS ADD INFORMATION

Snow stations, 11 of them in the Tweed district, add more information. As long as the snow is less than 20 inches deep, the deer can move freely outside their yards, and there is little danger of starvation. This winter the situation is good, with less than 19 inches at Bancroft, and much less through the rest of the district.

Some of the most valuable information comes from those hunting the deer shot by hunters.

Last year, for instance, about 33 percent of the kills were fawns, which indicates that the deer are reproducing well. The normal kill of fawns is about 29 percent, and anything less than this figure indicates that hunters may be wasting effort in the years ahead.

The condition of the older deer is important too. Hard winter conditions and food shortages will usually show first on the fawns, because they are not strong enough to compete with the adults for food. But when very old deer, more than four years old, are in top condition, it usually means the herd is living in luxury.

CONDITION JUDGED

As staff biologist, Frank Cheshire puts all this information together to indicate the general condition of the deer herd. If the condition is good, he tries to keep it that way. If it is poor, he takes steps to improve it.

Recommendations for hunting regulations are one tool. If the deer have had a rough winter or if their reproduction rate is down, then hunting pressure can be reduced until they recover. On the other hand, a surplus of deer in an area may call for increased hunting pressure to avert starvation.

Timber management is important too. Cutting can increase an area's capacity to support deer, by stimulating the growth of young trees and shrubs, on which the deer feed. Planting of coniferous trees in hardwood bush helps too, because the deer often spend the day resting under conifers. Ideal conditions include deciduous and coniferous brush with plenty of clearings.

Several good winters, a high rate of reproduction and adequate food supplies have brought most deer herds in the Tweed area up to full strength this year. Unless a disaster such as a bad blizzard or forest fire interferes, the hunting next year should be just about right.

patterned after a settlement with Abitibi Power and Paper Company, which provides a 40-hour week instead of the present 44, and a six-cents-an-hour wage increase over the next two years.

The striking loggers have been cutting 350,000 cords a year for the company, whose paper plant is located here. The independents have been supplying another 110,000 cords.

GAINED SUPPORT

The strike ostensibly began as a wildcat affair originating individually in the woods camps manned by the union, but it quickly gained the backing of the big Kapuskasing-based Local 2995 of the union, whose officers now are engaged in discussions under government mediation.

The Ontario government named Prof. Bora Laskin of the University of Toronto law faculty, a prominent labor-management relations expert, as special mediator in the dispute.

During the past weekend, union and management met for two days in Toronto but there was no announcement of any progress.

Prof. Laskin said Sunday the talks had not "reached a stage where I can say anything."

BUSINESS DROPS OFF

Meanwhile, some businessmen here have complained that business has fallen off 50 per cent during the strike period. Some stores in the area have cut off credit.

Mayor Norman S. Gaunt of Kapuskasing, Spruce Falls employee, has stated that 1,000 settlers face starvation because of the strike.

They were granted permission by the Ontario lands and forests department to cut 100 cords of pulpwood each to sell to the company plant here. Because of heavy muskeg conditions in the bush, the pulp can only be hauled to the mills about this time, when the ground is frozen.

Many of the settlers' families live on credit from September until the first pulpwood payment received in January.

Mayor Grant was quoted as saying Jan. 24:

"These settlers are getting so desperate they are going into the bush with guns, and they will shoot anyone who tries to interfere with their cutting."

Various independent cutters have complained of being restrained by force from taking their hauls to the mill.

POLICE CAREFUL

OPP Insp. Ralph Crozier, head of the reinforced provincial police detachment here, has asked his force's main job is to prevent harm to anyone. The police had to be careful not to incite trouble, he said.

Plead Guilty To Robbery Of Elderly Man

MADOC (Special) — Three young men pleaded guilty here this morning of robbing an elderly Ivanhoe district farmer early Saturday of $300.

Remanded a week while officials prepare a pre-sentence report for the court were: John Cannon, 18, Trenton; Theodore McCumber, 19, of Frankford, and 21-year-old Ralph Lorne McCumber, of Stirling.

All three were charged before Magistrate R. E. Jackson with robbery and violence. They were arrested in Trenton early Saturday morning, while police searched for three men who robbed 72-year-old Jack Douglas at his farmstead, a mile east of Ivanhoe.

The robbery took place after the trio scuffled with the farmer, who had the money in a bag in his pocket.

Wise Moderation

President Kennedy of the U.S. has barred shipment of government-financed cargoes on any ship which has been to Cuba since Jan. 1.

There can be no quarrel with this action. Most governments are extremely careful not to deal with firms which aid their enemies at home. Surely, then, any government has the right to refrain from providing business to firms which are aiding an inimical regime abroad.

Many people, though, and this will include a considerable number who consider themselves true friends of the U.S., will be delighted that this regulation aimed at hampering trade with Cuba, does not go as far as the sweeping proposals first advanced by the Kennedy administration last fall.

There is all the difference in the world between forcing a firm to choose between two customers, as the present regulation does, and following a policy which would have amounted virtually to an economic blockade.

While House sources do not say that second thoughts have dictated this change in course, instead they indicate that the tougher proposals are now deemed unnecessary, because of diplomatic successes in reducing trade with Cuba. In the present state of public opinion in the U.S. with respect to Cuba, this explanation is understandable. One might hope, however, that the Kennedy administration will not decide later that stiffer regulations are needed. It is doubtful whether any tougher policy would not do the U.S. more harm than good. It would arouse the understandable resentment of maritime powers, when depend in large measure on the earnings of their shipping for balancing their international trade accounts.

How Will You Vote?

With the calling of the federal election by Prime Minister Diefenbaker Canadians will be making their second trip to the federal polling booths within a 12-month period. This is certainly the democratic process being worked with much vigor—perhaps overly much.

It has oft been said that the people get the government which they deserve. We do not care to argue the pros and cons of the 25th Parliament, but it would behoove the Canadian voter to take a close look at his federal political scene, a much closer look than, perhaps, he has been accustomed to making. Now, more than ever before, an informed, knowledgeable electorate is required.

We do not contend that Canadians in the past have been exactly frivolous in their voting techniques, but almost any person experienced in the business of vote-getting will agree that many people allow their decisions to be swayed by trivialities.

One may like the way one candidate dresses, another may not. One candidate may receive votes because some like his personality. Another may lose votes because some don't like his looks.

This sort of thing might go well in the kindergarten mock parliament but certainly not on the federal scene or the provincial or municipal scenes for that matter.

Every eligible voter should make it his business to find out, as best he can, just what are the issues and to form his own personal opinion as to which party can best handle them.

In this age of rapid change and urgent movement the private individual citizen must fulfill the responsibility of casting his vote intelligently.

Paper-Work Monster Spawned

A new hydra-headed, bureaucratic monster is in the process of being born in Ottawa. It is a new federal agency, set up under the Corporations and Labor Unions Returns Act, to assemble information on the extent of foreign control of corporations and unions in Canada.

This information processing chore involves the gathering and correlation of detailed data from 40,000 Canadian corporations and 300 labor unions.

Thus the mountain of Ottawa-inspired paperwork grows. Not only will a vast new army of bureaucrats have to be recruited to compile the information, but in addition, the corporations and unions concerned will have to expend many thousands of valuable man hours filling out a new series of forms.

One may certainly hope that, unlike so many of the government's other information gathering and assembling efforts, the new Return Act agency will succeed in accomplishing a bit more than proving statistically of course, that war is hell, sin is bad and that foreign-owned corporations and unions are foreign owned.

Writer Says Mark Twain 'Sick Comic'

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"I can't understand the rise of those 'sick comics,'" said a man the other day. "They attack everything, and they're against everything. They seem to take a perverse pleasure in turning all our traditional values upside down."

As a matter of fact, I happened to be reading the comments of a previous "sick comic" not long ago. His bitterness, his cynicism, his rancor, his iconoclasm, were evident in everything he said.

He was irreligious: "All religions issue Bibles against Satan, and say the most injurious things against him, but we never take their side."

He was misanthropic: "All that I care to know is that a man is a human being—that is enough for me; he can't be any worse."

He was contemptuous of the American success story: "All you need for success is ignorance and confidence, and then success is sure."

He despised our social conventions: "Good breeding consists in concealing how much we think of ourselves and how little we think of others."

He despised our political system: "About all we get sinding fools in town on our side, and ain't that a big enough majority for any man?"

He deprecated our American institutions: "In our country we have 'blue laws' and 'red-light districts.' precious things: freedom of speech, freedom of conscience, and the prudence never to practise either."

He attacked our civic life: "In the first place God made idiots; this was for practice; then he made school boards."

He maligned the U. S. Congress: "It could probably be shown by facts and figures that there is no distinctively native American criminal class except Congress."

He derided ecclesiastical authority: "A man is accepted into the church for what he believes, and he is turned out for what he knows."

He perverted our moral axioms: "The moral sense enables one to censure others; — and avoid it; the immoral sense enables one to perceive immediately — and practise it."

He expressed contempt for old age: "Well enough for old folks to rise early, and think what is done so many mean things all their lives they can't sleep anyhow."

He scorned the pretensions of friendship: "It takes your enemy and your friend, working together to hurt you to the heart, the one to slander you and the other to get the credit for it."

The name of this sick comic? America's favorite for a century. The funloving, irrepressible, national figure, Mark Twain.

Crow Better As Emblem

Sault (Mich.) Evening News

It seems unlikely that the crow will ever replace the bald eagle as the national symbol of the United States. The crow is not half so noble looking; it is not the color associated with doom, and it has often been the butt of jokes.

And yet it is a fact that fact is that rather good arguments can be advanced in behalf of the crow as the American bird. For one thing, it appears to be a good deal smarter than the eagle. And though it does eat other birds of their eggs, it is not given to the piracy of snatching food caught by others, as the eagle is.

The crow has a remarkable talent for functioning just out of gun range. Far from being close to extinction, like the eagle, the crow thrives almost everywhere in the nation—this though predators every one takes a crack at it from time to time.

What speaks well for the crow as national emblem, since being nimble enough to survive in a world mined with atomic bombs is essential to nations these days.

Ever since the legions of ancient Rome bore the eagle on their standards this bird has been symbolic of power and conquest. At least the latter half of this symbolic meaning is uncharacteristic of America. The crow on the other hand might be taken to symbolize survival—and not mere survival but flourishing growth — through the exercise of co-operative intelligence.

None of this will cut any ice, as the saying goes; the eagle is going to remain the American national emblem. Still, the crow is a mighty interesting bird. It even makes a good-looking addition to the diet, now and then.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 11th, 1943

Inspection of entertainment places throughout the city with the view of determining whether adequate fire protection measures and sufficient fire exits have been provided is continuing, it was stated this morning by Fire Chief Lynch. The inspection of dance halls and other public buildings was ordered by the Ontario Fire Marshal's department as the result of the recent high death toll in fires at St. John and Boston.

After eleven hours tie-up in the taxi service at Trenton from 9 a.m. till 7 p.m. taxis resumed their normal business. There was great excitement at the Trenton Air Station on Tuesday morning when it was found that there were no taxis available, due to an order from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at Brockville that taxis operating after Feb. 2nd, unless reverting to fares charged in 1941, would be subject to prosecution. Officials of the town and the Air Force kept the wires hot between here and Trenton, and about 6.30 in the evening the Transit Controller at Toronto, ordered the taxi owners back to work and a representative is being sent to meet them in Trenton in a day or two.

Twin calves may not be a rarity in agricultural circles but when it happens twice within a period of two days, it is something for the book. Mr. Carl Feiming, Ivanhoe farmer, was proud of the feat of a member of his herd when she produced two healthy heifer calves on the 30th., but prider turned to amazement when another cow duplicated the feat the next day.

30 YEARS AGO

February 11th, 1933

The South-End Athletic Club entertained at a social gathering last evening. Some forty members were present and an enjoyable time was passed in playing euchre. The first prize was won by Mr. Ellis and the second prize was won by Mr. Kimmerly.

An afternoon tea was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. O. Adams on Ann Street under the auspices of Christ Thomas' Church Parochial Guild.

A number of ice-sailing boats were on the bay on Sunday afternoon: it was a fine day for the sport and several spirited races took place.

Mr. Walter H. Reeves of this city, internationally known judge of all breeds of dogs, once more has been honored by the Canadian Kennel Club in being elected a director of the association for the year 1933.

40 YEARS AGO

Manager Forbes is to be congratulated on bringing the thrilling mystery play "The Cat and the Canary" to the Grand Opera House. The play last evening was most enjoyable.

The Bank of Montreal shortly will remove its Belleville office from the corner of Victoria Avenue and Pinnacle St. to the building at the northeast corner of Bridge and Front St. which was occupied by the former Merchants Bank. The building which the bank is vacating has been the combined office and manager's residence for many years.

About Wolves And Monsters

Brantford Expositor

A philosopher used to be defined as one who went about searching for truth, and while Pontius Pilate's famous question, "What is truth?" still awaits clear answers, the philosophers and their kindred, the scientists, earnestly pursue the quest for facts and knowledge.

In a way therefore, Allen E. Etlinger of Halifax is a philosopher, a scientist and a reporter—and into one. His hobby is tracking down unlikely-seeming stories to find out what's in them.

Thus he has been to Lock Ness to look for the Monster, to Ireland to interview a leprechaun (also taking a side jaunt to see if any leprechauns were about), and to many other places. His latest call was at North Bay, where he tracked down a newspaper report that a man having been attacked by a timber wolf.

On the basis of evidence, Mr. Etlinger (whose regular occupation is that of superintendent of a hospital for the mentally ill) was disposed to doubt the accuracy of accounts of men being attacked by wolves from a belly chunk of some hungry, wild beast. However, in this case the report proved factual.

A farmer residing about 40 miles northwest of North Bay had hidden into one. His dog Mr. Etlinger finds that this incident by no means substantiates the flesh-creeping folklore, because this particular wolf was suffering from rabies. Even a rabid moose will attack a lion.

It is a bit shocking, all the same, to hear Mr. Etlinger say that he doesn't believe Legend of Nessie the Loch Ness Monster to be nothing more than a legend. More shocking still, to some, is his comment that even the residents of Loch Ness don't believe it."

Perhaps he should have said that the scientific search of the Loch has at least come up with indications that there is something strange there.

At that, the mere fact that the residents of Loch Ness regard the Monster as nothing but a tourist-attracting fable is not conclusive. For instance, there are, believe it or not, Scots who detest porridge and abhor haggis. And Mr. Etlinger can find that out for himself, if he has not already done so. But it certainly does not constitute any denial that porridge and haggis are Scotland's national dishes.

Cat Is Hard To Regulate

Baltimore Sun

The Washington county delegation has asked the Legislature to pass a bill allowing the county to license and regulate its cats, a mystifying document. Very few people have ever attempted to regulate a cat over a long period to regulate a cat and those who try find the contest unsatisfactory. It is the prospect for Washington county commissioners and for its learned and enlightened legislative delegation, we doubt that even they can regulate cats, which are essentially outlaws.

House Bill 68, however, is very precise. It provides for the taking into custody and disposition of "certain cats" (shades of G. Ellis Mercey and his brushes with Scotland Yard) and for the operation of a pet pound. The bill does not, never, of course, seem a cat pound, or beard one, nor do we want to. Such words are fatal, the mind's ear rings, at the very idea. Nor do we want to be around when the commissioners officers of the law, attempt to impound the cats, a distressing and time-consuming task. The bill is very explicit on this point: cats must be taken into custody when they are found "away from the premises of the owner." Others else are cats normally found?

Even a cat lover does not want to claim ownership of cats, but the truth is that privilege is inherent in the nature of the beast. They do not allow themselves to be patronized, but consent to live with a human as a sort of one-sided parasite. They take kindly to no sort of control. As Dr. R. Walter Riehl has observed when a cat licence was suggested for the city, the cops have enough to do without calling, "kitty, kitty" down alleys.

Child Capacity

St. Catharines Standard

In regard to teaching French to English speaking children at an early age, the noted brain surgeon, Dr. Wilder Penfield, said recently: "The child's brain before the age of 10 has a very special capacity for the learning of languages and lasses in later years." And whoever tried his advice has found it to be worthy.

Fun to Hear Snow Squeak

Montreal Gazette

One of the few delights for many is the recent cold days is to hear the snow squeak under their footsteps. Those who live in the country always are more likely to hear it. But people in the suburbs, or in a big city, know it as one of the real sounds of a Canadian winter.

What you should look for squeezable to the ear is hard to explain. Most squeaks are far from pleasant. But this sound from beneath the feet, a sort of voice of the snow, heard on a clear Canadian winter's night, under the stars, is something that is one of the lessons of childhood, and it never ceases to be full of wonder.

This squeak under the feet may be heard with amazement by visitors from other lands who come for the first time into a Canadian winter. It was one of the strange things that Rt. Rev. Ashton Oxenden, the second Anglican Bishop of Montreal, found worth describing for his readers, when he wrote an account of his first winter in Canada.

In 1840 he had come to this city from his "sweet Kentish rectory," when past his sixtieth year. The squeaking snow could be heard to good advantage on the snowy streets of Montreal in the 1840's. In fact the streets were then so snowy that they had to be made necessary to take with him a stout stick, spiked at the end, when he went for a walk. He also had his overshoes spiked with "creepers."

Mr. Ed Fenton of Oshawa spent the weekend here with friends.

Mr. Arthur McGinnis and Mr. Charles J. Bowell are spending a few days in Ottawa.

The Rev. L. Lawrence, rector of Christ Church, is spending today in Napanee and will address a meeting this evening at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene.

Pregnancy Possibilities Diminish With Years

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the possibility of pregnancy in later years?

What is the average age for a woman to start and finish menses? Do women in their 30's ever go through the change of life?

How long after she appears to have ceased periods is she still in danger of becoming pregnant?

Please comment on the following:

1 — A woman who said she had had a period in five years yet became pregnant and at 54 had a beautiful normal daughter.

2 — There was a write-up a few years ago which said a woman in Arkansas who never had a child became pregnant at 65.

3 — How much possibility does a woman of 60 have of becoming pregnant? Is there any age when she is incapable from becoming so? There are so many old wives' tales. — M.E.N.

Guess I'll have to break my good resolution. I'd resolved not to pay any attention to letters about "how old must a woman be, before she is absolutely sure of not becoming pregnant."

I've answered it many times already. But every time I do, the same question comes right back again. What is the fun of some of my readers just trying to see if I'll change my mind?

Well, I won't — not under different facts appear.

The basic facts: Chances of pregnancy decline as the years pass.

There is no special age, but for all practical purposes, pregnancy will not occur one year after the last period.

The average age for menopause is about 45. It can be several years earlier or several years later.

It is possible for menopause to occur in the 30's but it is rare.

When I say rare, I mean rare. And generally there is something unusual about the case, or health is impaired. Generally, but not always.

For a fine example of a dog hit up from the U.S. Vital Statistics for 1961 (there may be a later figure but I didn't find it, and I don't think there would be much difference anyway) —

Only one baby in 20,000 in that year was born to a mother who was 50 years old or over.

Doesn't that sort of convince the doubters?

There are cases of women who, not reaching menopause until a good bit later than average have had babies at the age of 47 or 48, despite all the rumors, it is difficult, and so far as I have ascertained it has been impossible, to get proof of pregnancy later than 50.

As to the woman who said she hadn't had a period in five years yet "had a baby at 54," all I can say is this: Who is she? Where is she? I've never yet seen a factual answer to this.

A woman in Arkansas having baby at 65? I'm from Missouri!

Possibility of pregnancy past 50? About as much chance as there is of me winning the high jump in the next Olympics.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it O.K. to soak a wool blanket in ice water and place on a person's bare chest to reduce fever? — W.D.

I'd call it a rather drastic method, a shock to the patient, and messy besides. Sponging with tepid water; cold cloths on the forehead; and immersing the wrists in cool water are simpler and easier methods.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is uremic poisoning? — Mrs. S.J.

It results from faulty functioning of the kidneys. Uric acid and certain other waste products are wastes which the kidneys filter out and normally discharge in urine. When a man ing prevents removal of these toxic materials, uremic poisoning results.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay free from them? For answers, read Dr. Molner's helpful booklet, How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed. For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a 25c coin and self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

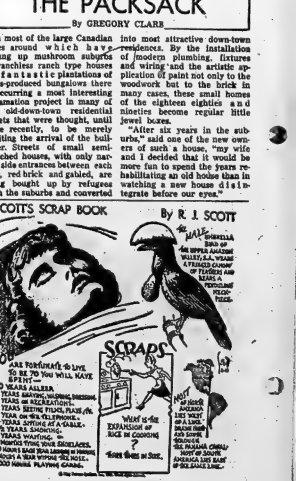
Feb. 11, 1963 . . .

A report that laid down the principles which shaped Britain's colonial policy and which led to the union of Upper and Lower Canada was laid before the British Parliament 124 years ago today—Feb. 11, 1839. The report was presented by the Earl of Durham who had been sent to Canada in 1838 as governor - general and as head of a commissioner, with almost dictatorial powers. Durham died in 1840, five days after peace assent was given to a bill uniting Upper and Lower Canada.

1918—Delegates of the League of Nations held its opening session in London.



1940 — Thirty thousand New Zealand and Australian troops arrived in Suez during the Second World War.

Not six years in the suburbs," said one of the new owners of such a house, "my wife and I decided that it would be more fun to spend the years rehabilitating an old house than in watching a new one disintegrate before our eyes."

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Strong speculative activity highlighted morning stock market action today, pushing the first-hour trading total above the 2,000,000-share mark.

Foremost in the penny mines pack was Deer Horn, last week's favorite. On a turnover topping 400,000 shares, the stock rose two cents to 88 cents.

Croinor Pershing, Associated Arcadia and Canadian Astoria all showed modest gains and heavy volume. Lynch Run slipped a penny to 20 cents.

Industrials, meanwhile, were listless, easing fractionally on index. Abitibi, Aluminium, CPR, Imperial Oil and Intergrovincial Pipe Line all dipped in a ⅛ to ⅜ range.

Banks were the major weakening factor, with all five listed issues showing fractional losses.

Gainers included Consolidated Paper and Bell Telephone, both ahead ¼ and Canadian Celanese, up ⅛ to 43¾.

On the exchange index, industrials dipped .15 to 383.48 and base metals .50 to 197.99. Golds rose .03 to 92.42 and western oils .12 to 114.35. The 11 a.m. volume was 2,172,000 shares compared with 730,000 at the same time Friday.

Among base metals, Falconbridge fell ¼ and Noranda ⅜, while International Nickel rose ⅛ and Hudson Bay Mining ¼. Western oils were quiet.

18 Workers in Glen Miller Mill Given Watches as Members of 25-Year Club

GLEN MILLER (Staff) — Time was of the essence here Sunday night as one of the Quinte district's oldest industries honored a group of veteran employees.

A total of 18 workers with a quarter-century or more service to the Miller Brothers Company Limited paper mill were presented with gold watches to become the first members of the company's Twenty-Five Year Club.

Among them the members of the new club have contributed a total of four and a half centuries in terms of years to the company—which has only a marginal turn over in its labor force.

This was a fact noted by the key figure of the evening—company president H. J. Campbell.

For Mr. Campbell, himself a life-long employee with the mill, the event had a double-barrelled significance. Among the company veterans to whom he presented the anniversary time pieces was his father Murdoch Campbell, who started with the mill in 1906.

However, the evening was kept exclusively to reminiscences. Mr. Campbell also seized the opportunity for a pep-talk on the company's future.

"We are facing increasing competition in all fields of packaging," he told the employees.

CAN GIVE SERVICE

"We have to keep convincing them that our product is first in superior quality; is more economical to use and that we can give service," said Mr. Campbell.

"The whole aim is for better and quicker production, and at an economical price to give us all a decent living wage," he said, outlinging various phases of company re-organization.

"Production must be kept up, but the quality must be even better."

Among the new plant plans being put into action was one to encourage safety measures within the mill — a recent holder of a national safety award from the industry.

To encourage safety, the company is now introducing a scheme whereby the employee with the best safety record at the year's end will be eligible to win a $200 bond.

MEMBERS HONORED

"I think that should be of interest — but it doesn't mean you go around pushing your neighbour into machinery," quipped Mr. Campbell amid laughter from his audience.

The presentations of the watches were jointly shared by the company and its union organization — local 489 of the United Paper Makers and Paper Workers.

The founding members of the Twenty-five club who received their watches last night were: Murdoch Campbell, Milton W. Andison, James B. Ireland, Orvell Patrick, J. Blain Young, Charles Ireland, Vincent Brennan, William Chard, John Cole, Ernest Collier, Harold Collier, John Ferguson, Orvan Galbraith, James Genereaux, James Green, Kent Orr, Elwood Peterson and George Wickens.

Faithful employees with 25 years' service received gold watches. Mr. H. Campbell, president, presented the tokens for veteran service. Those honored were: seated, left to right: M. Campbell, J. B. Ireland, O. Patrick, G. Gainforth, K. Orr, G. Wickens, J. Ferguson. Back row, left to right: H. Campbell, E. Collier, E. Peterson, J. Green, H. Collier, W. Chard, J. Genereaux, J. B. Young, C. Ireland, J. Cole, V. Brennan, M. W. Andison.

TRENTON — Winner in the junior division of this year's Legion branch public speaking contest held in the Trenton Legion Hall Friday night, was Mary Skerl of St. Peter's school. Runner-up was Tom Parkinson of College St. School. Contestants were drawn from Grades One to Six in Trenton and district schools.

Robert Wright, contest chairman, welcomed the capacity crowd and commented on the interest in public speaking demonstrated by the Legion in the past few years.

Students taking part chose their own subjects this year. This is the second year participants have been given freedom of choice in subject matter.

Others taking part were: Roger Forchuk and Donna Aziz from Queen Elizabeth School; Judy Preston and Nancy Tufford from Harts' Corners School; Sandra McKay, Dufferin School; Susan Fielding and Geoffrey Weaver, Prince Charles School; Judith Bax, College St. School; Joanne Kozorig, St. Peter's School; John Mattysse and Martin Van Haiten, Calvin Christian School.

The senior contest, (Grades Seven to 13) will be held on Feb. 14.

SHORT OF SHAMROCKS

DUBLIN (AP) — The severe winter has wiped out most of Ireland's shamrock crop, and it's a pour outlook for St. Patrick's Day in the United States. "We fly out a ton of shamrocks every ye r," said one American pilot. "This year our suppliers say we just can't have it."

The only remaining director of Miller Bros. reorganization in 1921, Mr. Murdoch Campbell, vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the firm, was honored by his son, Hubert, who became president last August.

Ukrainian Archbishop Released by Soviet Union

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John has announced that Soviet authorities have released Ukrainian Archbishop Josyf Slipyi, (pronounced: Yosif Slepee) who was sentenced to a forced labor camp in Siberia in 1945.

There was immediate speculation that an opening up of Vatican-Soviet relations might be in the offing.

Pope John personally announced Archbishop Slipyi's release after the 70-year-old archbishop arrived in Rome and received a papal audience.

"From East Europe there came last night a most touching consolation, for which we are most thankful to the Lord," the pope said Sunday during an audience with Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini.

The bearded archbishop was brought to Vatican City Sunday. Vatican sources said the Pope was visibly moved as the two embraced at the doorway of the private papal apartment.

Archbishop Slipyi had not been heard from in years. The last public mention of him here was in February, 1958, when the Vatican daily, L'Osservatore Romano, said it had learned the archbishop was working in an old people's home at Muklikova, central Siberia.

There was no information here about the date of the archbishop's release, the reason for it, nor his mode of travel across Europe to Italy. Vatican officials refused to comment on whether negotiations had preceded the release.

Informants said the archbishop was confined in a remote region of Asia when word reached him that he was to be released. He was known to have been transferred from one location to another in Siberia in 1957 after Soviet authorities accused him of communicating with Ukrainian clergy through secret pastoral letters. Vatican sources said the archbishop refused in 1960 to align himself with the Russian Orthodox Church and becomes a possible successor to Patriarch Alexis.

Archbishop Slipyi was born in the eastern Ukraine, was ordained in 1917, a few months after the Bolshevik Revolution, and became a bishop in 1939. His see was Lvov (Lwow), a Polish city ceded to the Ukraine in 1945.

Next Sunday is his 71st birthday and a special celebration is planned at the Pontifical Oriental Institute. Authorities at the Ukrainian seminary in Rome said the observance had been planned weeks ago to honor Archbishop Slipyi in absentia without any idea that the archbishop would be released.

Vatican sources expressed belief Archbishop Slipyi may be one of three prelates made cardinals "in pectore"—in his breast, or in secret—by Pope John in 1960. Only the Pope knows who the secret cardinals are but all are said to be from Iron Curtain lands.

the moonlight they must have been able to read our letters easily."

The transport later landed at Pisa, a UN staging area, without further incident. It goes on Tuesday to Leopoldville in The Congo, while another RCAF plane goes to El Arish in Egypt.

Most of the troops are signallers and ordnance personnel.

The flight was proceeding over Spain because RCAF flights with UN troops are barred over France and Portugal.

The French have refused to allow Canadian flights in support of the UN since the UN operation began. Portugal is similarly uncooperative because of Canadian - Portugese differences over Angola.

Winter Oven Dinner

by Mary Moore

An oven dinner seemed so appropriate for everyone of us was perishing cold from the nationwide deep freeze.

I had been wanting to try a Fryoch recipe for baking fillets of sole so I bought a pound package (59c). While I was at the frozen food counter I found fresh frozen zucchini and further on, lovely new pink rhubarb.

Result? This Oven Dinner.

(Note: Make the rhubarb dessert below first.)

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Curried Beef Heart; Fluffy Rice; Julienne Carrots; Celery, Olives and Gherkins; Steamed Carrot Pudding; Hard Sauce or Brown Sugar Sauce; Coffee.

BAKED FILLETS OF SOLE AU GRATIN (serves 4):

Thaw sole fillets enough to permit separating them. Arrange them in an overlapping layer in bottom of unbuttered shallow baking dish. Pour over them this Thin Cheese Sauce: Melt 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, blend in 1 tablespoon flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Now stir in ½ cup warm water, and ½ cup milk until thick. Add ¼ pound (half of a half-pound package) sliced processs cheese and stir over low heat until cheese is melting. Pour evenly over sole fillets in baking dish. Bake 20 to 30 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. until sauce is bubbling and golden.

NOTE: Time depends on whether or not any frost is in the fillets.

PINK RHUBARB CRISP (serves 6):

4 cups washed and chopped (¾"), new pink rhubarb, 2 or 3 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup light brown sugar, ¼ or 1-3 cup butter or margarine.

Turn the chopped rhubarb into medium baking dish, but as you add it, sprinkle the white sugar through it. Combine the flour, salt and brown sugar in bowl and cut the butter or margarine into them with pastry blender until it looks like coarse meal. Sprinkle this mixture evenly over rhubarb and pat gently. Sprinkle top with nutmeg or mace or cinnamon. Bake 45 to 60 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. until topping is golden brown and rhubarb juice is bubbling up through it at edges. Serve warm with milk.

Since the oven was on I cooked the fresh frozen zucchini in it too. I lipped the frozen block of zucchini into a baking dish just big enough to hold it and added 3 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons butter and a sprinkle of salt. Covered, it took 25 minutes to thaw and cook at 375 deg. Fahr. I put it in the oven immediately after the sole filets so both were both ready for the table at the same time.

To start this meal we had small bowls of Navy Bean Soup (see Thursday) so we were too full for a salad.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

AN IMPORTANT SOCIAL ASSET

Do you have a hard time remembering names?

If you do, then you're a member of a large fellowship — or so it seemed to me at a party I attended last week. I had never met most of the people and was introduced far and wide — so far and wide that the name echoing back to me during the course of the evening must have bounced off Telstar. It had little resemblance to "Lewis," but some of the variations were astronomical.

During the evening I was addressed as Mrs. Lukes, Mrs. Lawe, Mrs. Loose, Mrs. Less, Mrs. Lucie, Mrs. List and Mrs. Clark. The last was the contribution of a man with some historical reference, so he should be given "A" for effort, even though he got his word associations slightly mixed up. Actually, though, he makes the grade more easily than a woman I know who has called me "Peggy" for years. I've never had the heart to disillusion her. She claims to have a remarkable memory for names, so I'll have to stand pat on Peggy, so she won't lose face among her following.

While I haven't lost any sleep over losing my identity so completely, my experience proves that many people don't listen very closely to names when they're introduced, even though they're slipping up on an important social grace when they don't.

Being able to remember names is an accomplishment that takes concentration and practice. One way to do it is to repeat the name of the person when you first meet him. Instead of saying "How do you do?" say "How do you do, Mr. Smith." Then try to slip it in a few times during your ensuing conversation, so it really registers.

Another advantage of repeating the name is that the other person — or the one making the introduction — can correct you on the spot in case you heard it wrong. If my friend had only concentrated a little harder two years ago when we first met, I wouldn't be a Peggy today instead of a Pat.

If, despite your best efforts, the name still escapes you later in the evening, there's still hope. You can always corner the host and ask him what the man's name is before you get into a situation where you have to use it again.

Let's hope, though, that your host is a little better at remembering names than the one at the party I attended. I couldn't help but hear another guest, who had promptly forgotten my name the minute it was introduced, ask my host in a stage whisper to refresh his memory.

"Oh," he crooned, "that's Mrs. Lute." Incorrect, but swivelly melodic.

Artist Known Simply as 'A Lady'

TORONTO (CP) — Canadiana enthusiasts may soon have another theme to add to their collecting lists—that of a woman artist who recorded the Canadian scene in the early 1800s.

Until last summer, this artist was known simply as "a lady"—her signature that appeared on a small book of illustrated poetry called "A Peep at the Pantomimes, or "Scenes on the Ice, to Which is Annexed a Polar Pastoral."

A visitor to the Osborne collection of children's books at the Central Public Library here said last summer that an accessor, Lady Mary Love, daughter of Thomas Heathside of Saint John, N.B.; was the illustrator of the book.

Judith St. John, curator of the Osborne collection, says the 40 hand-colored illustrations in the 56-page book have always been a puzzle.

"Experts have told us that the Arctic tools, equipment and dress are authentic in detail, but we could find no record of a woman travelling in the Eastern Arctic during the 1820s."

Clues that Lady Love may have visited northern Canada, however, have been found in the 1903 edition of "Types of Canadian Women" by Henry James Morgan. In a biographical akrtch, Mr. Morgan reports Lady Love had seen "much of the world with her husband" and also that she had "a great taste for music and drawing."

And in the Montreal Gazette of March 12, 1841, an article regretting Lady Love's departure from that city stated that she had made "finely executed and numerous views of various scenes in the Eastern Townships and other parts of the province."

That article also hinted that Lady Love had resided in many different places in Canada with her husband, Lt.-Gen. James Frederick Love who was once lieutenant-governor of Jersey and whose name was mentioned in 1858 in connection with the governor - generalship of Canada.

Miss St. John hopes that more information on the illustrator and also the author of the book's verses will be brought to light during a library exhibit called "The North West Passage, 1534-1859" which ends March 2.

JOHNSTOWN U.C.W.

JOHNSTOWN — The February meeting of the Johnstown branch of the U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Burrel Hamilton with 12 members and two visitors present.

Mrs. Alex Vandervoort called the meeting to order and turned it over to Mrs. Kenneth Gore and Mrs. H. Russell who were in charge of the devotional period.

During the business session it was announced that the Johnstown bazaar would be held on the 29th of May in the evening, in the Orange hall. It was also decided to have a rummage sale and a home-baking table with the date to be set later. A thank-you letter was received from Ernest Bunn for flowers sent to him while in the hospital. Mrs. E. Clapp gave the 1963 study book to groups when three different questions were discussed — "Religion versus God", "The Struggle Against Idolatory" and "What is Real Religion?" Mrs. J. Hamilton contributed a selection of favorite hymns on the electric organ.

A fine lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

FARMER BROWN'S FRIED CHICKEN

Set out a large, heavy skillet and a shallow baking pan.

Clean, rinse and pat dry with absorbent paper 1 frying chicken, 2½ to 3 lbs. ready-to-cook weight. Disjoint and cut into serving-size pieces. (If chicken is frozen, thaw according to directions on package).

To coat chicken evenly, shake 2 or 3 pieces at a time in a plastic bag containing a mixture of ½ cup flour; 1 teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon seasoning, and ½ teaspoon pepper.

Heat in the skillet over medium heat, fat or cooking oil at least ½-inch depth. Starting with meaty pieces of chicken, place them skin-side down in the skillet. Put in less meaty pieces as others brown. To brown all sides, turn pieces as necessary with two spoons or tongs. When chicken is evenly browned, place in the shallow baking pan one layer deep.

Combine ½ cup milk or cream; 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Pour butter mixture over chicken and bake uncovered at 325 degrees F. for 45 to 60 minutes, or until thickest pieces of chicken are tender when pierced with fork. To crisp evenly turn chicken once and if it appears dry, drizzle on a small amount of milk or cream. Make 4 servings.

Morality Play Discussed by Ch: Rho Club

The February 5th meeting of Christ Church Rho Fellowship repeating the Chi Rho Fellowship was opened with members sing Prayer.

The president, Rich Rosbotham, led a discussion on the fate of the morality play "Totentanz", (Dance of Death). The director, the Rev. Michael Caswell, told the group how several outside centres had expressed the wish to have the play come to their town. After a lively discussion it was decided to take it to several of the bandier places.

Following this, Al Gardiner gave a report on the recent vestry meeting. The members were encouraged to help the church as much and more, as in the past year. A letter from the church wardens was read disclosing plans for the coming year. Also read was a letter from the wardens thanking the Chi Rho members for their contribution of money toward the funds of the parish.

Mr. Rosbotham reminded the club members to be thinking of ideas for the program to be held at the Home for the Aged later this year.

Jean James' group will be in charge of the program for the next two meetings. Weather conditions permitting the next meeting will be in the form of an old-fashioned sleigh ride.

The meeting was turned over to the chaplain, Mr. Caswell, who gave an interesting and enlightening talk on the bases of the Ten Commandments. This subject will be continued for the spring meetings. This is a subject which caused and will cause a great deal of discussion and will bring out many different points of view.

Refreshments were served and another enjoyable meeting was closed by the benediction said by Mr. Caswell.

It is hoped that any young people of the church will come to their meetings. Come and bring a friend.

Woman Over 80 Is Still Expert at Hooking Mats

By JAMES H. HUSSEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

ROCK HARBOR, Mild. (CP) — Dear old, windy day last autumn, Mrs. Sarah Brown emerged from her home in this tiny north coast fishing settlement and hung some of her most prized handiwork on the clothesline.

Mrs. Brown, now over 80, is such an expert at hooking and poking mats. Like many older Newfoundland women in the outports, she cherishes her hand-made heirlooms as a city woman might care for her costliest carpet.

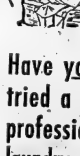
Long ago she learned that, aside from a once-a-year soaking and scrubbing in salt water down on the shore, all that is needed to keep the mats clean is an occasional airing. And it's just as important that the day chosen for airing be overcast as wet as windy. The sun might make the colors fade.

So Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Mary Brown and other mat-makers think about their work, one need only glance around the living room. Her finest handmade masterpiece won't be found there. They are carefully packed away in trunks or packing cases.

SAVED FOR SUNDAYS

And while the extra-special mats are kept to be shown to favored visitors and others are never walked on, there are other almost - as - prized floral arrangements that are spread on floors only on Sundays, or on some special occasion such as the visit of a minister or doctor.

Mat-making was once common in every cove, harbor and small town in Newfoundland but all but disappeared from the larger settlements. And even in some tiny communities like it, has given way to television as a way to spend the long, fall and winter evenings.



Mothers and their daughters usually do the designing and hooking while the younger children, their chores and lessons finished for the day, are assigned the task of ripping apart discarded garments of various colors and cutting the pieces of fabric into strips. It's often necessary to dye some pieces of cloth when certain colors aren't available.

Brin or burlap bags are laced tightly into a wooden frame. With the blunt end of an old-fashioned can holder and a bottle of homemade dye, or possibly a carpenter's pencil, the pattern is traced.

PROUD OF DESIGNS

Brin already stamped with a pattern can be bought in most places but the majority of mat-makers take pride in creating their own designs. Designs may range from a group of simple squares to full-rigged schooners or local scenes.

Liberal Party

was created through reports of one part of Mr. Pearson's London speech. News stories emphasized a reference by Mr. Pearson to a "continental common market" between Canada and the United States. This would involve eventual complete free trade between the two, plus a common tariff on goods from other countries.

DINNEY URGES IDEA

Mr. Pearson didn't advocate this. It was simply listed as one of three hypothetical approaches — expressed in the form of rhetorical questions—in the event Britain was unable to join the European Common Market.

The spokesman said Mr. Pearson sees a Canada - U.S. common market as a less likely possibility than either of the other two ideas. And he emphasized that Mr. Pearson did not say that any of the three should be adopted.

One was the idea of a new Commonwealth trade arrangement, which Mr. Pearson described as "difficult" in the present Commonwealth and "impossible" if it excluded the U.S. from any new trade benefits. The second suggestion—U.S. association with such a Commonwealth trade plan — would also be difficult, he said, because of U.S. trade ties with other countries.

What it all boils down to, said the spokesman, is the fact that any new trade initiative must involve many countries, with tariff deals made on a multilateral basis.

Economic or trade union with the U.S has been opposed in speeches by other prominent Liberals, including Walter Gordon and Paul Martin. Mr. Pearson agreed as much in the London speech, when he said that if Canada isn't willing to pay the necessary economic and political price of maintaining its identity, "we'll be lost in the greater North American mass of the United States."

The Liberal view is that industrial development in Canada could best be achieved, not by higher tariff protection, but by a combination of industrial stimulants at home and wider export markets won in international tariffs negotiations.

Halloway

HALLOWAY — Congratulations are extended to Mr. Donald Hoffman on being awarded the Osmose Wood Preserving Company of Canada Scholarship. Donald is attending the University of New Brunswick and is specializing in Forestry.

Later in the evening they visited Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison's, along with Mrs. Herb Townsend and Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend and extended birthday felicitations to Mr. Garrison who was observing his 80th birthday on the Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bay, Centenary.

Mr. and Mrs. John Vance attended the banquet held in the Masonic Temple, Belleville, on Saturday evening in connection with the Transport Safety Association awards night. Mr. Vance had a safe driving record of seven years and received due recognition.

Mrs. Vance was a winner of one of the door prizes that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider called on Mrs. W. A. Cranston on Sunday afternoon and also spent the supper hour and evening with Mr. and Mrs. George Read, all of Belleville.

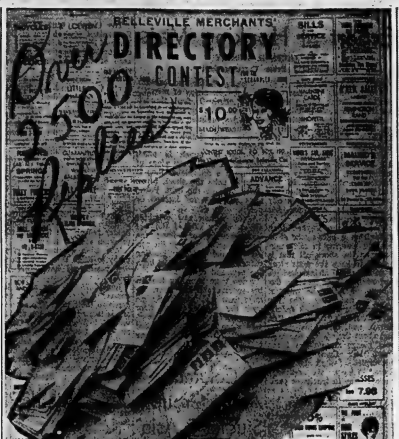
Mesdames E. Hough, G. Roth, F. Wellman, Charles Huffman, B. McMullen and E. Snider attended the first annual meeting of the United Church Women of the Belleville Presbyterial held in Picton United Church on January 31.

A number of relatives of the Kelly family attended a house warming at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kelly, of Foxboro, recently.

Mr. John Vance accompanied by his brother Donald Lee Vance spent last Sunday visiting relatives in London, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Snider called on Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wilson, of Foxboro, one evening recently.

Mrs. Roscoe Robson was hostess to the members of the Bethel-Zion Women's Institute meeting on Tuesday evening.



A special radio farm forum program was heard followed with discussion on same led by Mrs. Robson.

On Saturday evening, a number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Denyes in honor of the newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Denyes.

A social evening was enjoyed at which time an especially prepared book for the bride and bridegroom was passed around and created much amusement. Mr. E. Hanley was chairman for a fine program which consisted of: readings by Mrs. Floyd Tryon, Mrs. E. Hough and Mrs. F. Wellman; vocal solos by Miss Marilyn Kennedy and Mrs. R. Hough.

Mrs. Ed Emmerson read an appropriate address and the honored couple were presented with a lovely French Provincial chair, upholstered in green, a saidwich and relish tray, and a two-tier serving plate in hammered aluminum.

Sincere thanks and appreciation were expressed by the young couple after which refreshments were served.

The above picture shows a few of the replies received last week in the Belleville Merchants' Directory Contest.

The winner last yeek: Miss Pearl Brown, Hastings County Home, Belleville.

MANY GET POWER

Electrical service is available to 85 per cent of farms in Ontario—many of them in remote northern areas.

Trade Surplus

5.3 per cent, a slight gain.

In a statement prepared before his resignation as trade minister on Saturday, George Hees noted the substantial improvement in Canada's trade position since the record high deficit of about $700,000,000 in 1958.

Though the trade surplus was smaller than a year earlier, he observed that in the fourth quarter of 1962 there was improvement as exports were up six per cent from the same period of 1961 and imports fell by 1.5 per cent.

EXPORTS HIGHER TO U.S.

Most striking feature of today's report was Canada's trading position with the United States. Canadian exports to the U.S. advanced 16.5 per cent to $3,744,700,000. Imports from the U.S., rose 11.5 per cent to $4,309,700,000. Thus Canada bought $565,000,000 more from the U.S. than she sold there, a slight drop from the 1961 trade deficit of $949,500,000.

Canada bric to its trade surplus with Britain, in fact increasing it to $358,900,000 from $303,000,000 in 1961. Exports to Britain dropped fractionally to $919,900,000 from $921,200,000. But imports from Britain were down nine per cent to $561,000,000 from $618,200,000 a year earlier.

The export balance with the rest of the commonwealth was cut to $10,400,000 from $39,300,000.

PRESENTS GOBLETS

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage Saturday night presented clever wine goblets and $100 awards to the six winners in the Montreal Men's Press Club competition for outstanding journalistic achievement in 1962. Winners were Al Palmer, the Gazette, spot news reporting; Dink Carroll, The Gazette, sports writing; Peter Desbarats, the Montreal Star, feature writing; George Gay, the Montreal Star, spot news photography; Yves Michaud, La Patrie, editorial writing; Michel Saint-Jean, freelancer, feature photography.

Happy Though Married!

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I have no complaints although I have been married nearly thirty-eight years. I have a wonderful husband who is most patient and kind. He is not perfect, but I am sure I wouldn't know how to live with one that was. I just thank God daily for giving me such a mate.

My advice is to make Christ the head of your homes and hearts and then there will not be room for all the fault-finding and nagging. Don't be afraid or too proud to say "I'm sorry," even though you may feel that you are in the right.—HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED.

DEAR HAPPY—Nice going. You are lucky—but you are also very wise.

DEAR DORIS—I was so surprised to get a letter from Mrs. P. and others wanting to help.

I did get in touch with the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society. Got books on arthritis and learned more about what to eat and what to avoid. She is also helping me with drugs.

Then I won $30 at bingo. I meant it for shoes, but when someone had to go to hospital I was glad to spend some of it for some things she needed to wear in hospital.

My dear, I was on the spot when I wrote to you. Your help was wonderful.—STILL ALIVE AND KICKING.

DEAR STILL ALIVE—Not my help. The help of CARS and some of our fine readers. Glad you passed it on.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ZELDA — People label others with the faults they see in themselves. I suspect he is himself preoccupied with sex. Could be his parents who made him this way, made him ashamed of sex, curious about its indulgence. You are too easy-going to cope alone, but with a counsellor's help you might help him see daylight.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The upsurge in interest in secondary schools wrestling probably prompted the three-teen question, "Who started this cool muscle-jiving?"

It began back in prehistoric days when the original Fred Flintstone waged hand-to-hand combat for self-preservation against wild animals or to protect his latest cave-chirob Wilma against the would-be amours of local Barneys.

The first published wrestling match was engraved on a stone-slab by the Sumerians, an ancient tribe who were around some 5,000 years ago. It was found in the ruins of a temple near Baghdad and shows two wrestlers, each with holds on the other's hips.

Restaurants had not been invented so the Greeks who had words for everything but little action, tired of discustossing and bull-throwing and took up wrestling.

They invented the catch-as-catch-can style before President Zeus, of the Mount Olympus Wrestling Association set down some rules. The original style was panty-waisty. You could wrek freak fingers, gouge eyeballs and throttle an opponent into oblivion.

Grecian fans sent in complaints. "Get rid of that Greecy kid stuff," they howled. "Give us some real 60-minute workouts, then compare wrestlers."

So Zeus inaugurated the Pancratium, a rough-and-tumble style with no holds barred except kissing an opponent. Contestants could grapple, bite, gouge, clinch, struggle, pench, kick and pluck chest fillings and eyebrows.

Came the Romans who rendered the Greek version and inaugurated the present-day Greco-Roman style. The ancient Jews produced mighty wrestlers, the top boy being voted "most outstanding athlete."

Wrestling was a royal attraction in the days following the Christian era and the sport drew top billing in monarchial binges. International tournaments were featured during the Middle Ages. France and England were bitter enemies in wrestling, as well as love, gambling and fighting.

In a 1518 truce when their nations' archers quit playing darts with each others torsos, King Francis I of France and King Henry VIIIth, who could pin a well-roasted chicken in one fall, were watching a Francis-Anglo wrestling match.

"Enry's 'Arries were getting the best of Frankie's Froggies. Henzy, a new widower since his latest queen was found the night before with "er 'ead tooked underneath 'er shin," was in high spirits. He ordered mild-and-bitters for all ranks and gin-and-cloves for the winners.

Francis stood so much. Finally, he grabbed Henry and inaugurated the first royal wrestling bout. But the pair of kings drew a full house and the match ended in a draw and beakers of mulled ale.

England developed many styles of wrestling some rougher than others. Predominant were the Lancashire, Cornish and Devon types. At an annual elimination day in London the winner was given a ram, the loser a gamecock. The judges? The contestants and the sponsor.

The Irish had their own style much more brutal than others. The Scottish favored the Lanes style—the roughest in England. The French permitted holds only from the waist up. The Germans did all their wrestling on the ground.

Gigantic Sumo wrestlers were the pride of Japan for a long time preceding the Christian era. Sons of Sumo wrestlers married Sumo wrestlers' daughters for more than 20 centuries. Mating produced sons of tremendous bulk. Exceptional for Nippons they reached 5-9 in height and weighed between 300-400 pounds.

Christopher Columbus brought Spanish ships, onions and wrestlers to America. But his mat matadors couldn't even qualify for the all-American honors. The Indians had been winning them for centuries before Chris took his all-expense paid cruise.

Wrestling became popular in the United States under Greco-Roman rules. One day a Cleveland millworker, Tom Jenkins adopted an American-style catch-as-catch-can. In other words everything was legal except actual strangling.

Then came the Goich-Hackenschmidt era. In 1913 Goich ran out of worthy opponents and quit the ring. Later was inaugurated today's "Variety Hour" and then developed the long line of Gorgeous Georges, Masked Marvels, Swedish Angels, "Bessie", Sweet Daddies, Farmer Boys, Humpty-Dumpiys, Mighty Atlas's and whatnot.

That answer your question, boys?

COMPLETE SWEEP

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union made it a three-game sweep over the U.S. amateur hockey team Sunday by overwhelming the touring Americans 10-2. The final game triumph was scored by a Soviet junior team picked from various hockey clubs. In the previous two games, selected Soviet national teams defeated the Americans 12-0 and 12-3.

Hawks Win, Tie; Howe Shares Lead ★★★★★

'Pocket' Pilots Habs Into 2nd Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At this point in his career, it can be reasonably assumed Henri Richard will never reach the same levels of scoring brilliance as his big brother, Maurice, in the National Hockey League.

But the little guy—he weighs only 150 pounds—has an irrepressible style of play that gives him more of the puck than most players.

And every now and again he shows something of the Rocket's dramatic timing for the payoff round the nets.

In weekend play he came up with three big ones to carry the Montreal Canadiens to a pair of ties, hit a personal plateau of 20 goals for the season and edged closer to the select 200-goal circle as a career mark.

The two points gave Canadiens a total of 60 and boosted them ahead of Toronto for second place in the standings behind Chicago Black Hawks.

CAPS COMEBACK

Sunday night in Boston the Pocket Rocket scored twice in the final period to salvage a 5-5 tie against the Boston Bruins.

Against the Maple Leafs in Toronto Saturday night his goal with 58 seconds to play produced a 3-3 stand-off.

The Black Hawks whipped New York Rangers 4-2 at home Sunday night while the Red Wings edged Toronto 3-1 in Detroit.

A 3-3 tie between Chicago and New York Saturday—before 15,925 fans, the largest NHL matinee crowd in Madison Square Garden history — rounded out the weekend schedule.

Chicago emerged with a six-point cushion in the standings over Montreal followed by Toronto with 59 points and Detroit with 57. The Rangers have 40 and Boston 34.

In Boston Sunday night, Montreal built a 3-1 first-period lead on goals by Bernie Geoffrion, Claude Provencher and Jean Beliveau after Dean Prentice of the Bruins opened the scoring.

BRUINS RUN AHEAD

Then goals by Guy Gendron, Charlie Burns and Tom Williams in a 3½-minute span sent Boston ahead 4-3 in the second period.

One of Leo Boivin's rare scoring efforts made it 5-3 early in the third period before Richard clicked at 16:37 and again at 8:17 on a pair of 20-footers.

Jacques Plante, Montreal's ailing goalie, made only 14 stops while his Boston counterpart Ed Johnston turned back 33.

Chicago spotted New York first-period goals by Leon Rochefort and Camille Henry—it was the Eel's 23rd of the campaign —then came on with two in each of the next two periods. Len Lunde, Bobby Hull, Reg Fleming and Murray Balfour the goalgetters.

The win extended Chicago's remarkable mastery over New York this season. In 12 games the Black Hawks have won 10 and tied two.

HOWE SHOWS WAY

Gordie Howe's 27th goal of the season—he's now just 15 shy of Maurice Richard's all - time mark of 544 — and a payoff thrust by rookie Eddie Joyal powered Detroit to the win over Toronto.

Howe's effort gave him a total of 56 points, tying him with Boston's Johnny Bucyk for individual point honors.

Joyal, called up from a farm club, potted the winner at 2:13 of the final period with both clubs short a man it was his first NHL goal.

Tim Horton's shot was deflected into the Detroit net by Ron Stewart for Toronto's lone goal late in the final period.

The Canadiens yanked Plante in favor of a sixth attacker against Toronto and it paid off with Richard's tie - maker at 19:02.

The Leafs went ahead earlier in the period on Red Kelly's goal. Dickie Moore and Bill Hicks scored for Montreal in the second period after Toronto pushed ahead 2-0 in the first on goals by Dave Keon and Stew art, both coming while the Leafs were short-handed.

In New York Saturday, Chicago got goals from Hull, Ab McDonald and Balfour while Henry scored twice for New York and Harry Howell added another on a 70-foot shot.

The schedule resumes Tuesday night with New York at Boston. Detroit is at Toronto the following night.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit's Gordie Howe scored a goal and an assist in the Red Wings' only weekend game and moved into a tie for the National Hockey League scoring lead with Boston's Johnny Bucyk.

Bucyk was held pointless Sunday night as Boston and Montreal played to a 5-5 tie. He has 22 goals and 34 assists.

Howe's goal, in Detroit's 2-1 win over Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday, was his 27th of the season, tying him for the leadership in that department with Toronto's Frank Mahovlich.

Mahovlich, held pointless in two weekend games, fell back in the scoring race to a tie for fourth place with 27 goals and 27 assists.

Jean Beliveau, continuing to set the pace with assists, moved into third place with 34 points —13 goals and 42 assists.

Tied with Mahovlich with 56 points is Chicago's Stan Mikita, who managed only one assist in Chicago's tie. He has 22 goals and 32 assists.

Montreal's Henri Richard drew a big move, getting three goals and an assist to move into a tie for sixth place with New York's Andy Bathgate and Boston's Murray Oliver, all with 53 points.

Richard has 20 goals and 33 assists. Bathgate picked up two assists during the weekend for a 24-29 record while Oliver was blanked. His mark is 20 goals and 33 assists.

WINS DERBY

QUEBEC (CP)—Keith Bryar of Laconia, N.H., Sunday won the Quebec International Derby with a time of six hours one minute and five seconds over the 100-mile course. Bryar won $1,100 and the Quebec Winter Carnival Trophy for his victory in the three-lap event. Raymond Garneau of St. Emile, Que., was second with a time of six hours 12 minutes and 44 seconds.

Mysterious Ailment Persists

Plante Career May Be Finished

By PAUL RINSTEAD

TORONTO (CP) — Unless a mysterious ailment disappears, the illustrious career of Jacques Plante, hockey's most prominent goaltender over the last 10 years, may be at an end.

Plante, 34, has suffered pains in his right hip and thigh for the last two months and his condition is becoming worse each game.

He made his return to the National Hockey League here Saturday night after an absence of three games and helped Montreal Canadiens to a 3-3 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

But Plante was slow getting up after making saves in the third period and admitted later in the dressing room that his condition isn't good.

"It hurts every time I do the splits," said Plante.

Bill Head, team physiotherapist, said he is still trying to determine the cause of Plante's ailment and thinks it might be a defect in his footwear or skates.

GETTING WORSE

"He's unbalanced somewhere in here," said Head, placing his hands on his hips. "And his condition keeps getting worse. It's something that's continually being aggravated."

Plante, winner of the Vezina Trophy six times in the last seven seasons as the NHL's best goaltender, was forced out of the lineup early in the season and again last week. His career has also been interrupted by an asthmati: condition in the past and his close-cropped hair now is flecked with grey.

"Do you feel ready to play again?" Plante was asked.

"I don't know," he answered. "It hurts all the time and then goes numb. I can't feel anything in my leg now."

"But," he added, pointing towards coach Toe Blake. "it's up to him—he's the boss."

COACH CONCERNED

Blake too, is concerned about Plante. He said the matter is in Head's hands but added: "I just hope it isn't a case of goaltender's nerves."

In Plante's absence, Cesare Maniago filled in as Canadiens' goaltender.

"We'll keep Maniago with the team," said Blake. "But if Jacques is able to play regularly we'll farm him (Maniago) out so he can play regularly."

Blake has no intention of alternating goaltenders to give Plante extra rest.

Indonesia Blasts Olympics

JAKARTA (AP)—After more than a day of silence, Indonesia delivered a slashing attack against the International Olympic Committee for barring it from the 1964 Olympics.

Sports Minister Dr. Maladi, in a statement Saturday, accused the IOC executive committee members of being "stooges of Formosa and Israel imperialists, capitalists and colonialists in general."

The IOC decision is not based on honest and just considerations. It was far from the true spirit of the Olympic movement and a conspicuous demonstration of how the influential tramps on the ideals of the Olympic principles which they designed themselves in the IOC charter."

Maladi said a clique headed by G. D. Sondhi of India was responsible for the ouster.

Indonesia was barred from the Asian Games by the IOC in Lausanne Thursday because Indonesia excluded Nationalist China and Israel from last year's Asian Games here.

Kelso Wins, Earnings Top Million

NEW YORK (CP)—Bohemia Stable's Kelso swept past the field turning into the stretch and thundered to a convincing 2¼-length triumph in the $58,300 Seminole Handicap at Miami's Hialeah Park Saturday.

Kelso was second, Sensitivo third and Jaiper fourth.

Kelso ran the 1¼ miles in one minute 48 4-5 seconds. Second choice with the crowd of 25,873, Kelso paid $6.20, $3.80 and $2.80. Ridan, the 6-to-5 favorite, returned $2.90 and $2.30. Sensitivo paid $2.60.

Kelso earned $37,820, bringing his total earnings to $1,051,250. At Arcadia, Calif., Physician caught Crimson Satan in the stretch and won the $58,000 San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita Park. Physician earned $35,500.

Game was third, leaving the well - regarded Crozier fourth. The time for the 1¼ miles was one minute 51 seconds.

Physician returned $17.20, $5.60 and $3.60. Crimson Satan $3.40 and $2.80 and Game $4.80.

Wins Indoor 880

Abbie Shatters U.S. Mark

BALTIMORE (CP)— Abby Hoffman of Toronto, who turned 16 today, shattered a United States indoor record for 880 yards Saturday night — but didn't earn any pats on the back from her coach.

Abby, fast becoming a Canadian woman counterpart of Bruce Kidd, dazzled them in the Sunspaers 17th annual All Eastern indoor games, but failed to impress coach Paul Foce.

She knocked 2.7 seconds off the old record with a time of two minutes, 13.7 seconds.

"She can do a lot better than that," said Foce, coach of the Toronto Olympic Club. "Abby has run 2:10.8 outdoors with ease. She should be able to do it in 2:04."

The old record—2:17.4 — was set last year by Sandra Knott of Cleveland who finished a distant second to Abby Saturday.

Another Canadian, Jim Irons of Brampton, Ont., won the mile in 4:10.9, defeating Vic Zwolak and Pat Traynor of Villanova University and Hyke Van Der Wal of Hamilton who now runs for Nebraska State University.

Dave Ellis of Toronto placed second in the two-mile run to winner Michel Bernard of France who was clocked in 8:54.

N.H.L. Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Henri Richard, Montreal's centre who scored two goals to give his team a 5-5 tie against Boston Sunday and assisted on the 3-3 tie against Toronto Saturday.

Camille Henry, whose two goals Saturday helped New York gain a 3-3 tie against Chicago and who scored another Sunday in a losing cause as Chicago beat the Rangers 4-2.

Gordie Howe, who got a goal and an assist Sunday as Detroit edged Toronto 2-1.

Bobby Hull who scored two goals and two assists as the Black Hawks picked up three of a possible four points in weekend action.

Norwegian Skier Sets Leap Record

FAULN, Sweden (AP)—Toralf Engan, Norway's world champion, soared 372 feet four inches in a record leap for the Kaelviken Jump Sunday and easily won the jumping competition of the International Swedish Ski Games.

His point total of 242.5 based on both style and distance of his two jumps—the other was 269 feet—was the highest ever recorded on the hill.

Four Canadians finished near the bottom of the list of 54 competitors. The Canadians were Keare Lien, Revelstoke, B.C., 161.7 points; Seppo Ruhanen, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., 158.3; John M c I p e e, Revelstoke, B.C., 152.7; and Max Pelt, Verdun, Que., 152.1. Their placings were 48th, 49th, 51st and 52nd respectively.

Skating Champions Eye N.A. Titles

Griner, McPherson Win Singles

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

EDMONTON (CP)—Don McPherson of Stratford, and Toronto's Wendy Griner were crowned king and queen of Canadian figure skating Saturday after three days of fierce competition in which there were no major upsets.

McPherson, a unanimous choice, took the men's singles title which was vacated this year by Donald Jackson of Oshawa, last year's world champion who turned professional.

runner-up last year, earned 1,273.50 points.

Miss Griner, 18, took the women's singles title for the fourth year in succession and easily disposed of Petra Burka, 16, of Toronto, who was expected to give her stiff competition.

Wendy took a substantial lead after completing compulsory figures Friday, then beat Petra Saturday in free skating, Petra's strongest event. She had 1,326.4 points and was also a unanimous choice.

In the pairs competition, fighting for the vacant crown of world champions Maria and Otto Jelinek of Bronte, Ont., who also have become professionals—it was almost a toss-up.

Debbi Wilkes and Guy Revell of Unionville, Ont., squeezed past Vivian Benjardin and Maurice Lafrance of Sudbury, now skating out of Toronto, on the judges' vote.

The Desjardin-Lafrance team was second to the Jelineks last year but finished behind Miss Wilkes and Revell in world competition. This was to have been the rubber match.

They were tied in points—but judges gave the Unionville team the nod.

In dance competition, Paulette Doan and Ken Ormsby of Toronto were picked first by all five judges.

The two junior titles were decided Thursday and Friday. Jeannie Marie Sanders, 16, Toronto, won the junior women's title; Jim Humphrey, 14, Vancouver, took the junior men's crown. Doan and Ken Ormsby of Toronto were picked first by all five judges.

The two junior titles were decided Thursday and Friday. Jeannie Marie Sanders, 16, Toronto, won the junior women's title; Jim Humphrey, 14, Vancouver, took the junior men's crown. Doan and Ken Ormsby of Toronto were picked first by all five judges.

Following the competition Saturday, officials of the Canadian Figure Skating Association picked an 18-member team to represent Canada at the North American and world championships.

North American titles will be decided in Vancouver after a two-day competition Friday and Saturday.

The world championships will be at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, Feb. 27 to March 2.

Members of the team: Men—McPherson, Don Knight, Don Dasdas, Ont.; Bill Neale, Fort Erie, Ont. Women — Griner, Burka, Shirra Kenworthy, Vancouver.

Pairs — Wilkes and Revell, Desjardins and Lafrance, Ward and Carpenter.

Dance — Doan and Ormsby, Donna Dasdas and John Mitchell, Vancouver; Carole Forrest and Kevin Lethbridge, Toronto.

Kidd Sixth In Indoor Mile

Crothers Scores Brilliant Win At L.A.

By JIM BACON

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Some of the world's top track and field stars travelled half-way around the globe for Saturday's Los Angeles Times indoor games—and some may wish they had stayed home.

United States high jumper John Thomas beat Russia's world record - holder, Valery Brumel, and Jim Grelle of the U.S. surprisingly won going away from New Zealand's Peter Snell in the mile.

Toronto's Bruce Kidd, who was undefeated this indoor track season, but mostly at longer distances, finished sixth in the field of seven. Kidd, 19, who specializes in two- and three-mile runs, was running his first major mile race.

However, Kidd's University of Toronto running-mate, Bill Crothers, came up with a spectacular win in the 1,000-yard event.

The bespectacled Crothers put on a blazing kick in the final two laps and finished in two minutes, 13.8 seconds. He was expected to get stiff opposition from Russia's Valeri Bulishev, but Bulishev, an 880-yard specialist, tired badly and finished fourth.

Only one of the visitors from far away, Soviet broad-jumper Igor Ter-Ovanesyan, managed to win a first place before the 13,459 fans.

Ter-Ovanesyan leaped 26 feet, three inches, making it two victories in a row over Ralph Boston, top American broad jumper whose best effort was 26½ feet.

Thomas and Brumel each jumped 7¼ but Thomas won first place because of fewer misses at the lower heights.

The long-striding Grelle got well in front of Snell at the three-quarter mark and never was threatened. The winning time was a slow four minutes, 4.7 seconds.

It was the first defeat since 1961 in the mile for Snell, who has the world record of 3:54.4

Meet In New York Today

Larks Feel Out Pop Ivy

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Frank (Pop) Ivy, Houston Oilers head coach, confirms that Montreal Alouettes have been in touch with him about the Canadian Football League team's jobs as head coach and general manager.

Geoff Carrique, Alouettes director, said Saturday that several directors along with Ted Workman, the club's president, would meet Ivy in New York today.

Although he would not comment on the New-York meeting Ivy confirmed Sunday that both he and Oilers president Bud Adams have been contacted by Workman.

Perry Moss held both the general manager and head coach's job at Montreal before resigning last month. The attraction of the dual job is expected to be a strong factor in influencing Ivy.

"Fred Workman called me recently," Ivy said from his home in Norman, Okla. "He did not offer me the job but we did we talk terms. I told him to get in touch with Bud before doing anything."

The 46-year-old Ivy enjoyed his greatest success in Canada, where his Edmonton Eskimos from 1954-57 won the Grey Cup three times.

Thornton Wins Over Pastrani

NEW YORK (AP) — Wayne Thornton, a rabid - mannered youth from California who turns 20 in the ring, is the latest sensation of the boxing set.

"The best fighter I've seen out of California since Fred Apostoli," said matchmaker Teddy Brenner.

Thornton's sizzling body slams earned him an upset and unanimous 10-round decision over veteran Willie Pastrano in a televised bout at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

As a reward for his eye-catching triumph, the unranked newcomer will get a return bout with Pastrano or a match with either Henry Hank of Detroit or Mauro Mina of Peru at the Garden next month.

Pastrano weighed 176 pounds, Thornton 175.

BREAKS RECORD

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Satoko Tanaka of Japan shattered the world's record for the women's 220-yard and Maestro backstroke Sunday in a dual meet with a powerful New South Wales team. The 21-year-old Olympic veteran swam the distance in two minutes 29.8 seconds, slashing 3.5 seconds off the 220-yard mark and two full seconds off the 200-meter mark held by Linda Ludgrove of Britain.

Soccer Team Sues Fan

LONDON (AP)—Northampton Town soccer team has announced it is suing a spectator who ran on to the field and fought with the players during Saturday's game against Queen's Park Rangers.

The Third Division match was won 3-1 by Northampton.

Brian Bedford of the Rangers was receiving treatment for a kick on the head when several fans leaped over the railings.

A struggle followed and two Northampton players were hurt. Right-back Theo Foley suffered a cut mouth and two black eyes and centre-half Terry Branston got a blow on the head.

After a holdup of several minutes, police escorted a man off the pitch.

Rain Halts Golf at Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A torrential rain, accompanied by high winds and hail, forced a day's postponement of the final round in the $35,000 Phoenix open golf tournament.

Weather permitting, the round will be played today.

Arnold Palmer, the defending champion, is leading by one stroke after 54 holes of play with a 13-under-par 202. Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus are at 204 and Billy Casper and Gardner Dickinson at 205.

Al Balding of Toronto and Stan Leonard of Vancouver are 10 strokes off the pace, each with 215. Balding had a 70 Saturday and Leonard a 75.

Twenty-three early starters had finished before the storm started but all scores were cancelled and everyone will have to start all over when play is resumed.

TAKES GRAND PRIX

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Australia's Jack Brabham, driving a Brabham, won the Australian Grand Prix Sunday, covering 100 miles over 45 laps in 76 minutes 34.1 seconds. He had an average speed of 79.57 m.p.h. Brabham was followed by Britain's John Surtees in a Lola Climax.

Frontenacs Win Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

International Hockey League teams came out a poor second in their interlocking weekend games with Eastern Professional League clubs. The IHL managed only a tie in four games.

Kingston Frontenacs, in second place in the EPHL, beat Charles Knighte of the IHL 5-3 Saturday night and Minneapolis Millers 4-1 Sunday night for a weekend sweep on their road trip.

Fort Wayne Komets ended a three-game EPHL tour, losing 6-2 Saturday to the EPHL leaders, Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Sunday to the third-place Sudbury Wolves 3-3 Sunday.

In the only all-EPHL battle, the last-place Clinton Loyals surprised Hull-Ottawa with a 4-1 defeat at Hull Sunday.

The Saturday-Sunday games went on as scheduled despite a strike of members of the International Union of Operating Engineers (Ind.) who set up picket lines. About 700 persons —compared with average attendance of 2,000—crossed the picket lines.

No violence was reported, but Mayor Bill Ellis of Sudbury has vowed as he crossed the lines, "not as a hockey fan but as mayor to investigate the situation."

Garry Jarrett of Sudbury scored after goalie Gerry Cheevers had been pulled in favor of a sixth attacker, giving Sudbury the tie. Fort Wayne already was a man short because of a penalty. Gord Labossiere and Dave McComb got the other Sudbury goals. Norm Waslowski scored two goals for Fort Wayne and Ted Wright the other.

Hawks Tie Baby Habs

Red Wings Edge Petes 2-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings are continuing their drive for the Ontario Hockey Association provincial Junior A group.

They started the season at Memorial Cup champions but, weakened by the graduation of three entire first-string defence, appeared sure bets to end up out of the playoffs.

Then they moved up to fourth place, first struggling for space in front of St. Catharines Black Hawks, the fifth - place club, then narrowing the margin behind Peterborough Petes.

Sunday the Wings edged the Petes 2-1 and moved to within a point of second-place Montreal Canadiens, who were held to a 5-5 tie by St. Catharines.

Paul Henderson, who with Pat Martin provides most of the scoring punch for Hamilton, scored his 41st goal of the season in the second period for the winner. Dennis Polonich gave Hamilton a 1-0 lead in the first period, but Bryan Campbell tied it less than a minute later.

St. Catharines staged a five-goal comeback that belied its fifth - place position. Montreal had taken a 5-1 lead before St. Catharines rallied. The tying goal came after coach Ken Campbell pulled Black Hawk goalie Jim Horton for a sixth attacker and Fred Stanfield scored. Stanfield and John Brenneman each scored twice. Other Black Hawk goals were scored by Dennis Hull and Ken Hodge.

Montreal scorers were Andre Boudrias and Germain Gagnon, with two apiece, Norm Dennis and Johnny Taylor.

In OHA Metro Junior A play, Toronto Neil McNeil Maroons, runaway leaders, defeated Oshawa 5-4 and Toronto Marlboros and Whitby Dunlops tied 3-3. Neil McNeil has a 13-point margin over Marlboros.

Victory Worth $1,700

Knudson Wins At Panama

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Young George Knudson of Toronto shot a one-over-par 73 Sunday and won the Panama Open golf tournament, first stop on the Caribbean tour, with a 72-hole total of 280. The victory was worth $1,300.

Knudson, who was disqualified in this tournament last year because of an incorrect score, won by four strokes over Ernie Vossler of Oklahoma City and Joe Jimenez of Manhattan, Kan., each with 284.

Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla., the defending champion, and Dow Finsterwald of Miami were a stroke back at 285.

Knudson, 25, who won two tournaments on the Caribbean circuit last season, was in little trouble. He had 18-hole scores of 71 and 67 his first two days out and shot a 69 Saturday to establish a four-stroke lead going into the final round.

Boston Girl Wins U.S. Skate Crown

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Pretty Lorraine Hanlon of Boston captured the senior ladies' title Sunday in the final event of the four-day U.S. figure skating championships.

The victory by Miss Hanlon and an earlier gold dance triumph by Sally Schantz, also of Boston, and Stan Urban of Buffalo gave the Skating Club of Boston its second team title in three years.

Miss Hanlon, 17, runner-up to retired Barbara Ann Roles Purdey of Arcadia, Calif., last year, skated to a solid lead in figures and maintained it with an artistic free skating program.

Tommy Litt of Hershey, Pa., won the senior men's championship Saturday night with a faultless free skating performance.

The 17-year-old Litt came from third place in Friday's compulsory school figures to overtake both Scott Ethan Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., and Monty Hoyt of Denver, Colo.

Allen placed second and Hoyt, the defending champion and the leader in figures, finished third.

Spy Business in Pretty Sad Fix on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The spy business is in a pretty sad fix, as far as television entertainment goes.

Take, for example, the unimaginative goings on during Sunday's Two Faces of Treason on NBC:

It was a tale about a hesitant, unambitious army corporal called to reluctant cloak and dagger duty because he resembled a deceased foreign agent—who met his reward crossing against a red light.

The clever foreign agents identified each other by flashing laundry tickets. Finally, our reluctant hero got away with his masquerade by pretending he has amnesia.

There's nothing more fascinating than a rip - roaring, fast paced and slick espionage tale. But it's been a long, long time since we've seen one on television — except on the late late show. They require special skill, the kind possessed by Eric Ambler, who can write them, and Alfred Hitchcock, who can direct them.

Never - leave - well - enough-alone department: The March 19 Judy Garland Show has been retitled by CBS. Its new name is Judy Garland and Her Guests, Phil Silvers and Robert Goulet.

Raymond Burr Back at Work In Court After Operation

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"It was something of a miracle," said Raymond Burr. "I haven't felt so good in 20 years."

Burr was back at his six-year-old role as television's Perry Mason after a serious operation which required four weeks of guest stars to sub for him in court.

The actor was operated on a few weeks ago for intestinal polyps, and he has been quoted as saying that they were cancerous. However, he has declined any further statements beyond declaring that he was fortunate in all regards.

"If you do have a growth, you are lucky to have it in the intestinal region," he remarked. "If you have it on the liver or some other vital organ, you're in trouble. But with the intestine only some of the troubled area needs to be snipped out and you're OK."

APPENDIX BURST

Burr's problem began in his boyhood.

"First came an appendectomy when I was young," he said. "The appendix burst when I was sailing up a river, and it was nine hours before I got to a hospital. Later I had to have another operation to cure the obstruction caused by scar tissue.

"I always got it in the same place. I was wounded there when I was at Okinawa. That's how I first got fat. Lying on my back for nine months in a naval hospital."

Burr came out of the navy a lumbering 340 pounds and has battled excess poundage ever since. He picked up a few pounds while recovering from the operation. Taking them off is routine for him by now.

Even his co-workers on the Perry Mason show are amazed at his fast comeback.

"I was walking around four hours after the operation," he said.

Gananoque Defeats Picton 8-6

PICTON (Special) — Gananoque Islanders fought an uphill battle all the way to dump the Picton Merchants 8-6 in an OHA Eastern Junior League game played at Gananoque Sunday afternoon.

Picton led several times 2-0, and 3-1 in the first period and 3-4 as late as 13.30 in the third beat before the Islanders pulled out the decision. Hall tied it for Gananoque at 12.32 of the third, 5-5, and Winston Liddell scored two quick goals, at 13.05 and 13.29, to push the winners ahead to stay.

Picton still continued to fight and Stacey cut the lead to 7-6 at 14.30 before Murray added another for the Islanders to wrap it up at 15.26.

There were no less than 94 penalties called in the rough game and all but one of them were minors. The winners' McGlade drew a misconduct in the third heat. Picton collected 16 minors and Gananoque 17.

Gananoque outshot the Merchants 51-36 overall and 19-6 in the third period, when the shorthanded visitors put out of steam.

Pete McIntrop, with three goals and two assists, and Winston Liddell, with three goals and one helper, starred for the Islanders. Hall earned a goal and two assists while Pritchard collected one of each.

Carl Stacey paced Picton with two goals and one assist while George Sainsbury also scored twice. Harold Haddock got one and one, Bob Brown, one goal, Larry Pero two assists and Gary Haennel one.

Picton meets Cobourg in one half of the Junior "C" semi-final playoffs, with the first game slated for Picton this Thursday night at 8.30.

Careful, Cass You Came Awful Close

MIAMI (AP) — The Herald says Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston came close to tangling physically Saturday in an exchange of gymnasium jibes.

Herald sports writer Pat Putnam reports that heavyweight champion Liston, here to defend his title April 4 against ex-titlist Floyd Patterson, dropped into a Miami Beach gym to watch a workout by Clay, who may be a future Liston opponent.

Putnam said Clay yelled "Get him out of here, that bum is spying on me."

Liston roared "What have I got to spy on you for? You're no fighter," and offered Clay $100 a round to be his sparmate.

"You get in that ring and we'll fight for free right now," Putnam quoted Clay as saying, but others present averted that.

Astrological Forecast

For February 12
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Better to wait for final results of recent efforts. Means don't try to anticipate or force issues. Be patient. Realize necessity of proper timing. Let others think they are making decisions.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Check historical facts. Realize complete story has yet to be told. Don't be arbitrary. Leave room for concession. Means be charming, diplomatic, sympathetic. If you look for trouble — you'll find it!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Vitality, enthusiasm are key factors today. No matter what you do, "look alive!" Show others you believe in your own assertions. Certainly no time to back down, nor to be excessively timid. Be sure, confident — romantic!

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): If you've had some trying days, emotionally speaking, settle down. Look beyond immediate indications. New cycle is underway. Make the most of it. Be original, imaginative — hopeful!

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Fine time for hobbies, pleasures, love. Good for visits, social activities. Get that Leo mind working! You can produce money-making idea, and renew old friendship. But you must take initiative.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You may want too much, too quickly. Could lead you into trap of extravagance. Take it easy! You will get what you go after. But don't try riding off in all directions at once. Use Virgo sense of discrimination.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Advice offered by friend may be impractical. Don't be talked into spending too much money for personal vanity. Win your way with quality, not quantity. Be discreet with affairs of heart.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Keys today are entertainment, reading, attention to member of opposite sex. Very active day. Genial, Virgo individuals dominate much of your time. Give cheerfully. You're being watched!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Today fine for turning aspirations to realities. Put over point of view. Refuse to take "No" for an answer. Means be persistent. Fight for beliefs. Avoid brooding. Accept challenge.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Your thoughts tend to "wander." But you could hit upon idea which solves key problem. Fine day for creative dreaming. Day features progress, surprises. You may be directly involved.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Show true colors. Be loyal, humorous, dynamic. Those in authority ask for extra effort. Give it! Moon aspect means you have "public" on your side. Be specific, frank — and use Aquarius imagination!

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Better for finishing than for attempting new projects. Spread influence. Act with eye toward dignity, grace. Avoid sudden decisions. Be honest with yourself, analyze emotional burden.

If Today is Your Birthday ... you are extremely delightful, charming and perceptive. But if you discover you have been "used" or taken advantage of — then look out! You let the chips fall where they may.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks supplied the surprise of a busy weekend in the Western Hockey League.

The Canucks, winless for almost a month, dumped the mighty Portland Buckaroos Saturday night right in the Buckaroos' backyard.

San Francisco Seals were walloped 6-0 by Spokane Comets on Friday night and then Edmonton Flyers and Calgary Stampeders tripped the Los Angeles Blades 5-3.

The Seals have won only league night, 4-3 to Seattle Totems, and the Blades dumped the Comets 5-2.

Dave Duke scored twice for Vancouver, Bryan Hextall, Lorne Popein, Howie Hughes and Ron Hutchinson once apiece. Bill Saunders, Ken Laufman and Gerry Goyer were the Portland scorers.

Harry Ottenbreit, Max Mellnik, Dick Lamoureaux, Gerry Brisson, Steve Witiuk and Ray Cullen scored goals for Spokane against San Francisco.

Calgary marksmen were Eric Sutcliffe with two, Fred Hucal, Jack Hendrickson and Milan Marcetta. Leo Labine, Stan Maxwell and Bruce Carmichael scored for the Blades.

Gayle Fisher, Bob Barlow, Don Ward and Don Chipple scored Seattle's goals Sunday night. Ed Panagabko and Moe Mantha replied for the Seals.

Labine and Willie O'Ree paced Los Angeles against Spokane with two goals apiece and the other marksman was Ed Slankamenac. Whitlock and Topoli scored for the Comets.

SENTENCED TO DEATH

cabinet formed by Mr. Diefenbaker in 1957 and shifted to the less onerous veterans affairs post in the fall of 1960 in a major cabinet shuffle.

He has been government House leader in the Commons since mid-1962, responsible for directing the day-to-day business.

Not included in today's announcement was Gordon Chapman, 55-year-old industrialist and MP for Waterloo South in the last Parliament, who was reported as a possibility for the trade post.

'DRAGS FEET'

Both Mr. Hees and Mr. Sevigny in letters of resignation Saturday indicated a belief that the government is dragging its feet on commitments to acquire nuclear arms for Canadian forces.

Both also expressed concern that the government is heading into the campaign for the April 8 general election on an anti-American theme which will damage relations with the United States, wreck free world defensive unity and injure Canada economically.

Mr. Hees, 52, was the cabinet's fourth senior minister, ranking behind External Affairs Minister Green, Justice Minister Fleming and the prime minister.

An MP since 1950 and often mentioned as a possible successor to Mr. Diefenbaker, he said he would not run in this election. Out of office since 1957 after his executive assistant, Mel Jack, one of the most vigorous minis-

Mr. Sevigny, 45, is the son of a former Conservative cabinet minister and was active in the most effective campaigns. An officer in the army during the Second World War, he won the right leg above the knee in the Normandy drive.

REACTION CAME QUICK

The resignations, coming as the political parties made plans for the start of the campaign, brought quick reaction from Mr. Diefenbaker's political opponents.

Liberal leader Pearson said they confirm, despite earlier denials, deep divisions in the cabinet which would appear to be threatening breakup of the government.

Social Credit leader Thompson said they present a conservative Conservative party in a shambles. He said lack of leadership by Mr. Diefenbaker destroyed the last Parliament which dissolved Wednesday and Mr. Diefenbaker can no longer lead his party to oblivion.

In New York Alta., Sunday, Mr. Thompson indicated he might be willing to lead a coalition of Social Credites and Anti - Diefenbaker Progressive Conservatives in the April election.

He was commenting on a report published in Toronto which said such a coalition is afoot to organize the coalition. Mr. Thompson said the idea "might be an alternative to the prospect of another minority government after the election, but added that any such movement is outside the Social Credit organization. The party was established in Calgary, said there are plans to draft Mr. Thompson as leader of the new group.

"There has not been any official approach made to me," he said. "Other than that no comment."

Democratic Leader Douglas said the government would have collapsed by results of the election if it hadn't been defeated in Parliament. He said its downfall resulted from Mr. Diefenbaker's refusal to come out either for or against nuclear warheads.

CLIMATE TENSIONS, STRAINS

Saturday's resignations climaxed weeks of tension and strains. After Mr. Harkness resigned because, he said, his views favoring acquiring defensive nuclear arms could not be reconciled with Mr. Diefenbaker's, the caucus of MPs and the cabinet considered the government's policy.

Mr. Hees said in his letter he outlined then "why I consider that our present defence policy does not adequately meet international commitments or provide for the security of our country."

"I have also stated clearly that I consider the present attitude of the government cannot but lead to a deterioration of our relations with the United States. This is a fact which I expressed would lead to changes in policy which would permit us to remain a true friend of the government. However, since that time there has been no indication of such changes.

"I feel these matters to be of vital importance to the welfare and security of our country and therefore I have no alternative but to tender my resignation as a member of your cabinet."

CITES SENIOR OFFICERS

Mr. Sevigny's letter introduced only one note — an indication of dis agreement with Mr. Diefenbaker regarding senior armed forces officers.

"I cannot accept your opinions concerning our senior service officers," his letter said. "They are able, experienced men who are dedicated to the cause of peace and the maximum of a strong defence and they deserve respect and support."

Mr. Sevigny gave no elaboration of this point in his letter. But in a press conference Sunday he indicated this referred to statements by the prime minister in the House of Commons on Jan. 22 and again on Feb. 5. Mr. Diefenbaker used quotations to emphasize that the views of the military authorities is to defend and the civil authority to decide.

Mr. Sevigny's letter said he shares Mr. Diefenbaker's view that Canada has a commitment to the two defensive arrangements —NATO and NORAD. While aspiring to succeed Mr. Harkness, he said he could do so "only if our people accept both our commitments and the principle in which I believe."

"This is a matter under present conditions and I cannot support what I consider to be an obscure course of action."

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, large and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Carol S. — We'll marry anyway, but we'd prefer my mother's consent.

Mrs. G.S. — What's the rush? She should wait till he graduates at least.

Carol S.—Although we're both in high school, we're so much in love that we want to get married. I'm 16 and he's 18. We're not worried about finances. We'll both work.

I'd like my mother's consent to this, and also her cooperation. We're not asking her for money, just for some sympathy. After last night my mother thing is just nonsense, and shuts me up whenever I try to make her understand.

She won't think it's nonsense if she gets word some day that we're living together as man and wife, where marriage is permitted at this age, without a parent's consent. But I hope we don't have to do that.

Mrs. G.S. — Thank God there's no emergency reason for your haste. Your parents are still in her third year of high school. Why can't they wait? The boy has a year to go before graduation. He has no real preparation for a job. And neither of them have any idea of what marriage is all about. It's more than hugging and kissing.

What does Carol know about keeping house, for example? Has she certainly can't live with me. We have a small apartment.

Can't see why she can't be like other girls her age — stick to her studies until she graduates. Then she'll be better prepared for anything, whether it's marriage or a job or college.

How can I consent to a tragedy?

The Council: What is this thing called "love" by teenagers? It's a brew of cobwebs, moonbeams, fireworks, and movie stars! It's compounded of many ingredients, most of which are foreign to what it isn't! For love is primarily giving. It's plain day-to-day, nose-to-grindstone drudgery. And how much has a teenager who should still be busy growing and getting and gathering strength, how much has he or she to give?

Carol should heed her ma, as well as the statistics. Marriage at this point would be a matter of merely going through the motions of adults without being adults. Fortunately there's a no-shotgun-angle to her teenage marriage plan. (Some figures at hand reveal that 40 percent of such marriages involve a pregnancy, and of these 33 per cent are followed or abandoned after five years. The offspring of these unions, the study continues, are later land in our foster-homes, prisons, hospitals and mental institutions.)

Her best bet now would be to see her beau less often. This would entail some self-discipline on the part of both young people. But it is a real expression of love, for it means standing on your own two feet, not as loved one to breathe and grow.

If Carol and her swain feel the way about each other after a few years, after each has put a diploma or at least a "means to livelihood" under their belts, then their marriage might have some meaning. Right now it would represent an escape from boredom, an exhibitionistic bid for attention, or self-dramatizing form of rebellion.

Mrs. S. is handling this crisis sensibly. She's not ruling out the hazards. She emphasizes the alternatives. She holds fast to the refusal to condone sex. Carol wishes to be "foolhardy and reckless, if she proceeds with her threat to elope, since I can never turn on her mother later with that familiar reproach, 'Why didn't you stop me?'"

Bears Dump Aces 4-3, Bisons Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim Pappin and Bob Dillabough, two of the younger performers in the American Hockey League, lost their tempers Sunday night—and some money.

Pappin, with Rochester Americans, and Dillabough, in his first season with Pittsburgh Hornets, engaged in a wild, wrestling brawl at Rochester and both received match misconducts.

The penalties, for deliberate intent to injure, carry automatic fines of $100 and possible suspension.

Rochester climbed into a tie with first place in the Western division with the Hornets by winning 3-2.

In other Sunday action, Buffalo Bisons defeated Quebec Aces 4-3 on Jim Pappin's goal with Val-Mond Vezina assisting. Pro-vidence Reds topped Baltimore Clippers 4-3 and Hershey Bears dumped Quebec Aces 4-3 in overtime.

Toronto downed Cleveland Barons 4-1 Saturday night. Rochester romped to a 9-1 win over Pittsburgh and Springfield blanked Providence 3-0.

Habs to Drop Hull-Ottawa

BOSTON (CP)—Frank Selke, managing director of Montreal Canadiens, says that if attendance doesn't pick up in the Eastern Professional Hockey League, Montreal's Hull-Ottawa farm club will be dropped.

Attendances at EPHL games have not been good this season and Selke said his National League Canadiens can't stand the big losses.

"It's obvious if the people in Canada don't want the EPHL we'll have to discontinue it," said Selke. "We want to stay in Hull-Ottawa as long as we can—Ottawa should be in a major hockey league.

"It isn't large enough to support NHL hockey, but it should be large enough to support an EPHL team."

Selke said the efforts of Sam Pollock, director of Montreal's farm system and general-manager of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, have been in vain.

"Sammy's worked himself to a frazzle there," said Selke. "He's given Hull-Ottawa Memorial Cup champions and EPHL champions—so whose fault is it?"

Selke said New York Rangers lost $150,000 in two years while sponsoring Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers, but this season moved to Sudbury as sponsors of Sudbury Wolves.

"I don't know how they're doing at Sudbury," said Selke. "But if the Lions at Ottawa don't smarten up we'll have to move out of there."

other 11 cabinet ministers, is understood to have felt strongly that Canada should honor commitments to accept nuclear warheads for defence tactical weapons for Canadian forces in NATO and NORAD.

His position was basically that announced recently for the Liberal party by Lester B. Pearson, although he did not necessarily share Mr. Pearson's view that after meeting its commitments Canada should seek to negotiate a role in continental and collective defence "more realistic than the present one."

It is reported also that Mr. Hees felt that if the Conservatives sounded an anti-American battle cry in the election campaign it would set Canada back two or three decades economically.

The resignation crisis had been brewing for months, say friends of the men concerned.

They gave this picture:

There were differences of long standing within the cabinet on the question of acquiring nuclear warheads. Those in favor felt strongly that it would not serve the needs of continental defence to have them stored on the U.S. border, to be rushed into Canada for service if needed. They wanted them on the spot.

INJECT NEW ELEMENT

Several weeks ago, a new element was injected into the situation when word came from Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson that his group would keep the minority Conservative government in office for at least eight months if it would table its spending estimates for the 1963-64 fiscal year, bring down a budget and adopt expansionist policies.

That set the stage for events of last week when, on Monday, the Liberals moved a no-confidence motion in the Commons and Social Credit followed with another, so phrased that all three opposition parties could vote for it.

Tuesday morning Mr. Hees saw Mr. Diefenbaker to discuss his worries, particularly on nuclear policy. He had not discussed the matter previously with any other member of the cabinet.

Later that morning a group of ministers met in Mr. Hees' office. Word at the time was that they were planning to ask Mr. Diefenbaker to poll his cabinet on the idea of resigning his post and turning the office of prime minister over to Finance Minister Nowlan on an interim basis.

SOUGHT COMPROMISE

This is understood now to have been an over-simplification. Sources say the meeting was organized to explore whether any compromise position could be worked out to save the government from defeat on the two non - confidence motions scheduled for a vote in the Commons that night.

During the meeting word came from Mr. Thompson that a new condition had been added as the price of continued Social Credit voting support.

The new condition—attributed to Social Credit Premier Manning of Alberta—was that Mr. Diefenbaker resign his office. It is reported that the prime minister was kept informed of the talks through an intermediary.

Wednesday morning, after defeat of the government in the Commons the previous night, the Conservatives held their closed caucus.

Mr. Hees, caucus chairman, insisted at the outset he would have to resign unless the government took steps to meet commitments to obtain nuclear warheads and unless he received assurance there'd be no anti-American election campaign. Otherwise, "I can't, in honor, stay here," he is quoted as saying.

GOT ASSURANCE

He said to have held back on his resignation on the assurance that it would be possible to find common ground between the conflicting views on nuclear warheads and also after assurance that said - Americanism would not be an element in the campaign.

Some other cabinet ministers, similarly said to be preparing to resign, also held back.

By Friday, Mr. Hees is said to have felt that no steps were being taken to find the common ground on the nuclear question and he was unable to obtain assurance that there would be.

He saw Mr. Diefenbaker on this point and was told the election campaign would be pro-Canadian, not anti-American. He didn't feel this went far enough. In this talk, Mr. Diefenbaker is reported to have expressed confidence he would win 160 or 170 of the 265 Commons seats in the election.

DIDN'T SHARE VIEWS

Mr. Hees went to his Commons office and told one associate he would have to resign. Mr. Sevigny came along later and said he felt he should resign. The two ministers conferred during Friday evening and called in Transport Minister Balcer for a talk since it had been reported he might resign. However, he didn't share their views on the nuclear warheads issue.

During the evening, Mr. Hees and Mr. Sevigny conferred by phone with two cabinet associates and gave assurance that they would not announce their resignations until well after they saw the prime minister.

They went to Mr. Diefenbaker's home Saturday morning. The conversation is reported to have had some heated aspects and harsh words were spoken. They left and shortly after 1 p.m. distributed photostatic copies of their letters of resignation, in both English and French.

Their political futures are uncertain.

Mr. Sevigny hasn't indicated whether he will be a candidate in his Longueuil riding in the April 8 election.

Mr. Hees said he will not be a candidate and it is understood he will return to political activity only if he is invited.

Defence Policy Final Decisions Impossible Now

Diefenbaker

P.M. Outlines Stand At Toronto Luncheon

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, arguing that defence policy is not a clear-cut "black and white" question, says that final decisions can't be made at this time.

"You talk to me about finality. Why, the decisions of today are wrong tomorrow," he said in a luncheon speech to some 1,500 businessmen Monday.

Referring to the issue of nuclear weapons for Canadian forces in NATO, he said the Anglo - American Nassau agreement has produced "a completely new concept of defence" which requires Canada's role to be reviewed at the NATO ministerial meeting at Ottawa in May.

The problem would take "a great deal of discussion" and any decision now might well have to be changed in the light of what takes place in May.

"An earlier decision would be premature."

DISCUSSES BOMARC

On the question of obtaining nuclear warheads for Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles in Canada, he said Canada is continuing negotiations to have ready access to them "in case of need."

In these negotiations, the government "will insist that in Canada's sovereignty and rights as a nation will be upheld at all times."

As for Canada's NATO commitments, he said, "we have carried out our commitments and are not in default in any particular."

Members of Toronto's Canadian and Empire Clubs and the Toronto Board of Trade crowded two large convention rooms in the Royal York Hotel to hear the prime minister's first public speech since his government's defeat in the Commons last week and the cabinet crisis in which three ministers resigned.

With him at the head table were Trade Minister McCutcheon and Defence Minister Churchill, appointed to the cabinet Monday. Justice Minister Fleming and Labor Minister Starr were also present.

REFERS TO TRANSITIONS

Mr. Diefenbaker made a smiling reference in his speech to "transitions" which have taken place and added that in view of the unanimity of the three daily Toronto newspapers editorially, the Conservative visit here was like Daniel entering the lion's den.

"But it was an amateur performance compared to mine," he said. "But Daniel, he came out all right in the end."

His speaking engagement was arranged several weeks ago, be-

PEARSON CLAIMS CANADA MUST HONOR PLEDGES

Liberal Leader Outlines Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson says Canada can strengthen her influence within the NATO alliance by honoring pledges made to its partners.

This would give Canada a greater say in the defence and foreign policy decisions of the Western community of nations, he told the Liberal party's national council Monday night.

From that position it could "move into the forefront" of efforts at the United Nations to bring about disarmament and reduce international tensions.

Mr. Pearson, addressing some 700 cheering supporters in the keynote address of the council's two-day campaign conference, castigated the Conservative government for failing to fulfil commitments to equip certain segments of Canada's armed forces with nuclear weapons.

SERVICES DEMORALIZED

This has demoralized the armed services," deceived Canada's allies, and undermined the good name of Canada abroad. It has undermined both collective security and collective action directed toward world peace, he said.

Mr. Pearson said Canada must not become inward - looking and be deployed any "irresponsible appeal to patriotism, based on emotional confu-

Paper Strike Talks Collapse

NEW YORK (AP)—Publishers of New York's nine closed newspapers say a contract settlement with 3,000 striking printers "will be extremely difficult if not impossible" to achieve through normal collective bargaining and "a long test of economic strength is probable."

The Publishers Association of New York City issued the statement Monday night after the collapse of talks between publishers and printers.

Prospects of Test Ban Treaty Now More Encouraging - Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy marked the resumption of disarmament talks today by saying prospects of agreement on a nuclear test ban treaty seem more hopeful than what, more encouraging."

In a statement to be read at the sessions in Geneva by William C. Foster, chief of the U.S. arms control and disarmament agency, Kennedy said "we look with hope" to the 17-nation negotiations.

"The present moment does not lie within easy reach," he said. But he added that he is more encouraged about the possibility of a test ban treaty "because of the assurance by the Soviet Union of the principle of on-site inspection" aimed at underground explosions to help conduct experimental nuclear blasts.

At the same time, "very important questions remain to be worked out" before a ban could be put into effect.

The president said difficulties in reaching agreement at Geneva "can only be resolved if all parties face them in a spirit of willingness to negotiate—if there is a genuine spirit of cooperation, coupled with a firm resolve to reverse the present

RACE CHARTERS UNDER SCRUTINY IN LEGISLATURE

NDP Leader Leads Debate

TORONTO (CP) — Charges that Progressive Conservative party supporters, including Ontario's future lieutenant-governor, are linked with government allocation of revived raceway charters have been made by NDP Leader MacDonald.

The provincial NDP leader told the legislature Monday that Hon. Earl Rowe, who will become lieutenant-governor March 1, used illegal procedures in obtaining racing charters. Mr. Rowe has served as leader of the Ontario Conservative party and as federal member for Dufferin-Simcoe.

"I think it is a rather shocking thing to find that a man occupying these questionable procedures should, since that time, have been appointed to high office in the province of Ontario," Mr. MacDonald said.

The charges came up in debate on 1962-64 spring estimates for the provincial secretary's department which has to approve the racing charters.

Mr. MacDonald said Provincial Secretary John Yaremko was an "accomplice in what in effect is a fraud" in accepting false information during the session.

He said Mr. Rowe had revived the old charters for the new Windsor Raceway.

QUOTES STORY

Mr. MacDonald, quoting from a news story written by Donald O'Hearn in the Hamilton Spectator, said Mr. Rowe and his partner Lennox held seven old racing charters.

He said the oldest of the charters was the Clinton Driving

Queen Reads Throne Speech In New Zealand

WELLINGTON (CP-Reuters) — The speech from the throne, read by the Queen in opening a special session of Parliament here, said today that the New Zealand government is confident that the Commonwealth could cope with new conditions such as the development of the Common Market.

It also said the movement "among the countries of Western Europe toward closer economic and political association has important implications for New Zealand and all other Commonwealth countries."

But the speech said the government is "fully confident of the Commonwealth's capacity to cope with conditions without losing either its cohesion or the multi - racial partnership by which it is distinguished."

Tories Certain to Endorse Macmillan Program on ECM

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan appeared certain to win parliamentary endorsement today of his program to counter the effects of the French veto barring Britain from the Common Market.

The House of Commons, winding up a two-day debate on Britain's economic future, was scheduled to vote late in the day on a Labor party motion of no confidence. With the Conservatives holding a 100 - vote margin over the opposition, there virtually was no chance that Macmillan's government would fall on the issue.

Opening the debate Monday Macmillan roundly denounced President de Gaulle of France for blocking Britain's way, then outlined a series of broad steps he is planning to fill the void caused by the collapsed negotiations.

Among them:

1. A Commonwealth trade ministers conference to be held in London in April or May to stimulate business.

2. The government intends to drive for a world commodity agreements, a cut in tariffs and freer trade generally.

3. Britain will seek closer trading co-operation with the United States, her friends in Europe and other countries.

Macmillan warned that the policies of the de Gaulle government could threaten Western alliance and drive the U.S. into isolation.

The prime minister said he will have an opportunity to see Canadian Prime Minister Diefenbaker in London at the end of this month, when the Canadian leader is due to be made a freeman of the city of London, and he hopes that Prime Ministers Robert Menzies and Keith Holyoake of Australia and New Zealand respectively, will be able to come.

New Image of Federal Cabinet Being Shaped

OTTAWA (CP)—The Diefenbaker government appears to be aiming at projecting a new image as the federal ministry after a week of crisis which brought three resignations from the cabinet.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker raised the issue of defence minister Churchill as defence minister, Senator Wallace McCutcheon as trade minister and former Commons speaker Marcel Lambert as veterans minister.

Senator McCutcheon's appointment was a big surprise. He had been considered among ministers thought to be on the point of resigning with former trade minister Hees and associate defence minister Sevigny last weekend.

Now there are indications Senator McCutcheon may seek election to the Commons in the April 8 general election and resign from the upper chamber. His entry into the cabinet last August as minister without portfolio was widely regarded as a bid by the prime minister for confidence of the business community of which Senator McCutcheon was a prominent member.

The 56-year-old former vice-president and managing director of E. P. Taylor's Argus Corporation takes the reins of a key federal department.

"We wanted a strong man and able to keep the economy rising," Mr. Diefenbaker said in

Private Conduct of Banks Not Admitted by Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice T. G. Norris says he isn't interested in who sleeps where at home of Hal C. Banks of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

The Vancouver jurist ruled Monday against evidence about the bedroom activities in Mr. Banks's suburban Pointe Claire home on Montreal Island.

Judge said on many occasions that I am not concerned with the private conduct of witnesses in this inquiry—save to the extent that such entails improper burdens on union funds or relates to some other matter pertinent to the main issues before us," he said.

Maurice Wright, lawyer for the Canadian Labor Congress, wanted to get into the bedroom issue during his questioning of former SIU handyman Louis Vallieres at the 96th session of the federal investigation of Great Lakes labor strife and shipping practices.

"What I propose to prove through this witness is that the woman identified by the commission as Josie Charlebois as being his mistress," Wright said.

Mr. Vallieres, 48 - year - old Montrealer, said he did odd jobs around Mr. Banks' home in 1952, 1955 and 1956 and was paid personally by the union leader. However, when he did the same type of work for a two-month period in 1959 he was on the SIU payroll for $100 a week.

Mr. Wright argued that the evidence challenged the credibility of Mr. Banks, who had testified that he never shared his bedroom with Miss Charlebois.

Mr. Banks had testified that he retained Miss Charlebois as his housekeeper and his nurse and that she accompanied him on some out-of-town union trips as a nurse to treat an old back injury, with the SIU covering

PAY INCREASES FOR ELECTION WORKERS GIVEN

Approved by P.M. At Dissolution

OTTAWA (CP)—The official election workers will get paid more this year.

Fee increases were approved by Prime Minister Diefenbaker's cabinet Feb. 6 — the same day he dissolved Parliament and called the April 8 election.

The higher payments, first increase since January, 1958, had been recommended by chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay the previous day.

He estimates this action will be a major factor in raising the cost of the election to about $13,752,000. This would be nearly $2,000,000 more than the $10,800,000 cost of the 1962 general election.

That is only the cost in public funds. The four major parties and their candidates will spend millions more.

NEARLY ALL BENEFIT

Nearly all the appointed election workers will benefit from the increases—enumerators, returning officers, deputy returning officers, poll clerks and others.

There are due to 300,000 of them. About 80 per cent are women.

Some examples of higher fees:

Enumerators will get a raise of $7 to $32 in their basic fee. No change was made in the amount they get for each name added to the voters' list—9 cents for urban enumerators, 12 cents for rural ones.

Deputy returning officers will get $18 instead of $10 as before for his nomination day work. Voting day work will get him $22 instead of $20. The same raise applies to services rendered at the official addition of the votes.

Pre-election payments to returning officers also were raised. They now

Parole Breach Brings Youths 6 Months Each

Breach of probation sent two Belleville youths to jail for six months this morning.

Clifford Rozell, 17, and 23-year-old Terry Bennett both pleaded guilty to breaking recognizance before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Rozell, originally charged with false pretences, was put on suspended sentence last month, when he promised to attend a Toronto trades school.

Bennett was put on probation January 7 after pleading guilty to a break-in at the Belleville Curling Club.

The magistrate told Rozell this morning he originally had intended sending him to jail on the false pretences charge.

"Thanks to some of your friends pleading for you," he told the youth, "I gave you a chance to make amends for your conduct."

"You have not taken advantage of the conditions that were imposed on you to enable what we wanted done. The only thing now is to award the sentence which would have been awarded originally."

Among the probation conditions imposed on Bennett and other teenagers convicted of the curling club break-in was an 11 p.m. curfew.

Inspector J. B. McLauchlan said today police records showed he failed to observe the nightly deadline on several occasions. He also had been involved in a beverage room fracas.

"In other words, it was a complete defiance of the conditions," commented the magistrate.

Republican Party Formed At Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A new political party formed here advocates that Canada become an independent republic and abolish all ties with the British Monarchy while retaining membership in the Commonwealth.

German-born Fred Reiner, recently named leader of the New Canada and North American Union Party, said Monday membership doesn't yet extend outside Metropolitan Toronto but he is confident it will grow. He gave no figure on the number of members.

Mr. Reiner, a suburban North York construction superintendent, said the party was formed too late to enter candidates in the April 8 federal general election.

Other policies include abolition of federal elections and the Senate. Provincial parliaments would continue to function in their present forms but the federal House would be made up of elected provincial legislators. The federal-provincial legislators would also represent Canada in the North American Union.

The party would nationalize all resources, business and industry.

Parking Fine Is Endorsed By Magistrate

Parking on a rush-hour route in downtown Belleville brought a $4.50 fine for a motorist — and comment from Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning.

The motorist was served a summons for parking on Bridge Street East's north side during the 4-6 p.m. evening rush hour.

"I am glad to see some of these," said the magistrate as he endorsed the fine.

He said he had personally noticed many cars parked in the area forbidden by city by-law.

"And they get away with it," he added.

More Charges Laid Against Marmora Men

More charges of burglary against a group of Marmora men has caused a two-day postponement of their sentences in Belleville magistrate's court.

John Bainbridge, Glen Irwin Grey, Frederick O'Shea and Ross Allan Lake were scheduled to be sentenced today on various charges involving breakins in the Belleville-Campbellford-Marmora area.

All were arrested after police searches in the Marmora area turned up a cache of stolen goods from the burglaries.

Friday, Lake also pleaded guilty to a further series of thefts from cottages at Crowe Lake, near Marmora, and theft of a steer.

This morning police introduced two other charges of breakins at Peterborough district service stations against Bainbridge, one of them a joint count charge against Grey and O'Shea. All pleaded guilty to the offences. Goods taken in both break-ins totalled nearly $600.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills wanted to know if this was the last of the police charges against the men.

"I would like to have some finality before I dispose of it," said the magistrate, "I was going to sentence them this morning. In view of that they are going to have to wait until Thursday.

Liberal Party Organizer Resigns Post

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) —Howard Parvin, a 30-year-old Liberal party organizer in the area, Monday announced his resignation from the party because Liberal Leader Lester Pearson has "relegated his duties as leader to United States interests such as General Lauris Norstad."

Mr. Parvin, who described himself as area representative of the Peace River Liberal Association, apparently was referring to the Liberal party stand on nuclear weapons recently announced by Mr. Pearson.

Girls Hold Party at 'Y'

Yesterday afternoon the Girls' Gre-Y Club at the Belleville YMCA held a Valentine Party as part of their regular weekly meeting. Prior to their own celebration, however, the club members prepared their service projects by making the sick children at the Belleville General Hospital enjoy St. Valentine's Day.

Alone and unaided, public school students of Belleville's King George School have discovered a mathematical tenet — and making it work.

The youngsters, acting on the logic that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line, have found their own bypass to main thoroughfares reconstruction project. But their detour could end in court.

Spot of the bother is the North Front Street overpass — now sealed off until early summer for widening. Consequently, traffic — vehicular and pedestrian — is being re-routed east of the project. However, the children find the new by-pass — and thereby hangs the tale of possible trouble.

Each day the youngsters are taking a straight line to the school across the main CNR line. This brings them almost to the backdoor of their own building.

This morning it also brought a squad of city police acting on complaints from the railroad.

As officers moved to prevent them making the crossing this morning, a group of youngsters took off like pellets from a scatter gun.

The problem is regarded as serious, and is now being dealt with seriously by police.

"The only way to make guards up there would be prohibitive", Chief Constable Ross Hayes today, after the skirmish. "So we have decided to enforce the law to the letter."

A meeting of city officials and traffic police last night decided to publish a warning and back it up.

"The streets in this area will now be policed and the law enforced" warned the inspector.

Boards Reach Agreement On Pupils Caught in Squeeze

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Education, separately and the East Northumberland High School Board have come to an amicable agreement about the students who might be caught in an annexation "squeeze."

If annexation takes place after June of this year, students who start to school in one area next September will very well find themselves considered part of the Trenton school area before the school year is out. As such, their parents might ordinarily be expected to pay for them in the time at the school where they started off the year. In the case of East Northumberland the board has agreed to waive fees for the "in-between" period. The arrangement between the two boards was announced at last night's meeting of the Trenton board.

Garnet school principal John Carswell told the board that it would need five additional teachers next September. The new addition to the school will be in use by then.

Two additional teachers for Trenton's public schools will be needed, says public school supervising principal V. P. Carswell. School population now stands at 2,079. Estimated population for next September is 2,153. "Annexation," says Mr. Carswell, "is expected to add 200 students to the public school total."

CONSIDER NEW CLASS

Mr. Carswell told the board last night that an opportunity class for Dufferin school was being considered. This would bring to four the special classes in the town's public school set-up.

Mr. Carswell said that last month's reports from public school principals were generally good. Attendance percentage was 94.65 and this was good for January, he said. Staffs are working well and harmoniously. Students are taking advantage of the skating rinks at the various schools and some schools have had skating parties.

James Amm, principal at Prince Charles School, said in his report that the children at the school had found a new use for the tall bushes on the playground. The bushland is used as a hideout for those students interested in ambushing other, unwary students, and treating them to a face wash in snow. Please remove the bushes, says Mr. Amm.

Percy Bierness, principal at Dufferin public school, still has the school's ancient museum on his mind. Last month, he asked that some decision about the dusty owls and furry wood creatures occupying show cases in the hall, be made. He hoped in his report last night that the board would soon come to some decision as to the fate of the museum.

2 Local Rinks In Running For Grand Prize

The visiting and local curlers in the women's bonspiel at the Quinte Curling Club are nearing the end of the round robin to be distributed. As usual the strong rinks are still in the competition for the Ontario Intelligencer trophy and miniatures and the final game will attract a large gallery. Mrs. Fran Millar and her rink from Kingston, which has won the trophy on two consecutive occasions are again favored to win the event but a local rink skipped by Anne Acton is the dark horse and could upset the perennial champions.

The curling both afternoon and evening on Monday was fortified and quite exciting in several of the matches. Unfortunately the draw brought together local rinks and one had to be defeated but the girls took it all in good part and as a part of the game. Jane Sheppard and her rink are still in the running for the grand prize and it will be quite a scramble before the winner is decided.

The women are having a wonderful time in a social way and everything that can be arranged for their comfort has been provided by the committee headed by Mrs. Vera Fairman and ably assisted by Mrs. Agnes Walker and the other members of the committee. Splendid cooperation has been established and the reports of the games have been given promptly for publication. The draw has been one of the best spiels sponsored by the women since the club was formed and plans are being made for a bigger and better spiel next season and to which many more rinks will be signified their intention of attending. Results of the games to date are:

Report Failure Of Plot to Oust Adenauer

BONN (Reuters)—Two independent West German newspapers today print frontpage reports of an alleged "conspiracy" to force Chancellor Konrad Adenauer out of office last week.

The Dusseldorf Der Mittag and the Hamburg Bild say that members of the opposition Liberal Democratic party and the Free Democrats, Adenauer's minority coalition partners, failed in their attempt to unseat the chancellor through a "constructive vote of no confidence."

The reports say the "rebels," motivated by "difficulties in the European policy," had unsuccessfully approached both Vice-Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder in a bid to get one of them as Adenauer's successor.

P.M. Favors Red Ensign as National Flag

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has hinted he favors the Canadian Red Ensign as a distinctive national flag.

In a luncheon speech he referred to the federal-provincial conference on biculturalism that he proposed last week to the provincial premiers.

The conference would consider, among other things, the choice of a flag and other national symbols.

"As for me, gentlemen, the Red Ensign means much," Mr. Diefenbaker said, but added: "Others haven't that view."

He said that one of the questions in Canada's future is whether the country will "become prey to separatism."

"Are we going to break the country up into nine provinces and one state within a state?"

The prime minister said his goal is: "One Canada—not a state within a state."

New Approach to Teaching In Certain Subjects Is Outlined at Convention

A new approach to public school mathematics and the importance of proper training to correct arithmetic handicaps in early elementary school grades were outlined yesterday as members of the Belleville Teachers' Institute held their annual convention in Belleville.

During the morning teachers visited the Ontario School for the Deaf where they viewed classroom "technique while the afternoon session was held at Bay Harry J. Clarke Public School.

All teachers from Belleville public schools attended the convention sessions where they were welcomed by Institute president Mrs. Thelis Spafford.

Special speakers for the afternoon included Peterborough Teachers' College Principal W. C. McClure who outlined the new approach to elementary school mathematics which is expected will enable grade 11 pupils to do up to grade VII work taught by conventional methods.

The new approach to mathematics is now under study by the Ontario Department of Education and is hoped will soon be introduced into elementary schools.

Miss Harrison, who talked on the gastly correction of speech defects, is supervisor of special education for the township of Scarborough. She was accompanied to Belleville by her assistant Mrs. Mary Campbell.

Mrs. Spafford as president of the Belleville Teachers' Association acted as general chairman for the session.

Introductory remarks were made by Lt.-Col. Kells, superintendent and chief inspector for Belleville public schools, and by Inspector J. M. Cousins.

monwealth prime ministers conference," Macmillan told the House.

"What we must do in the Commonwealth fails into two categories. First, individual consultation, where special arrangements are under review or there are long agreements to be made or renewed; second, general consultation on any problem in which we can play a joint part."

Menzies said today he had received an invitation from Macmillan to visit London. "While I do not exclude the possibility of going," Menzies added, "it is quite impossible at this time to fix even an appropriate time." For one thing, the Queen and Prince Philip are due in Australia Feb. 18 for a six-week tour.

CHANCE TO TALK

Holyoake said a meeting with Macmillan "would give us both an opportunity to discuss many problems," especially those following the breakdown of the Market talks two weeks ago.

Macmillan in his major Commons speech said the government has no intention of mounting a second attempt to get Britain into the Common Market.

There is no clear-cut alternative plan, he said, but there are a number of individual measures "we can and will adopt," including greater emphasis on Commonwealth trade.

However, he insisted that no trade agreement among Commonwealth members as a whole would be an adequate substitute for entering the Common Market.

After Macmillan proposed his Commonwealth trade ministers meeting, Harold Wilson, the opposition foreign affairs spokesman, said it was just something for a session of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs, scheduled later in the summer.

FINDS NO POLICY

Wilson said that when the country studies Macmillan's speech it will find only a "certain amount of petulance and a complete vacuum of policies for the future."

West German Chancellor Adenauer said in an interview Monday that he feels certain Britain can gain admittance to the Common Market soon. He told a West Berlin newspaper he wants to emphasize that the Brussels talks on British entry were not broken off despite the deadlock posed by the French vote.

Adenauer appeared to be seeking to allay West German resentment against the French vote. This could snowball into parliamentary rejection of the treaty of co-operation that he signed with de Gaulle last month.

400 High School Teachers Receive Various Pointers From Experts at BCI Meet

How to become better high school teachers was the background theme of Monday's Professional Development Day program at Belleville Collegiate, where close to 400 district high school teachers received pointers on subjects ranging all the way from how to deal with the habitual loafer student to the reading of Latin poetry.

Over 380 teachers from District 23 (Quinte) of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Confederation, heard a detailed report on "The Reorganized Plan for Secondary Education in Ontario," and then took part in discussion groups covering practically every phase of high school curriculum activity.

District 23 takes in the area from east of Napanee to Brighton and from Prince Edward county to Stirling. Guest speaker for the day was A. H. McKague, assistant superintendent of Secondary Education for Ontario.

GUIDANCE IMPORTANT

Mr. McKague stressed the importance of proper guidance in the high schools, pointing out that in which they are most likely to find success.

He said that guidance teachers should be able to encourage students to go into industry and not into the world.

Looking to the future Mr. McKague said that in the years to come the population explosion would create an increased demand for food with the resulting demand for increased numbers of trained agricultural experts.

What to do with that percentage of high school students who found themselves unable to absorb academic courses was an ever-increasing problem, he said.

Mr. McKague said he was happy with the vocational schools already set up, but suggested that something further must be done with students falling within the vocational studies category.

High university admission requirements were cited by the speaker who said that the country was losing the services of many students whose high school standings made it impossible for them to go to university.

Mr. McKague offered no solution but felt this was one of the big problems in today's education.

'FEAR PHOBIA'

At the same time however a certain "fear phobia" was being developed by many students being urged on to higher education by parents and doting uncles.

He did not believe that grade 13 was a place where students stood to gain greatly by staying two years to get pass marks and suggested more schools such as Ryerson for students unable to readily take the higher secondary school grades.

Mr. McKague saw no easing off in the rapidly increasing costs of secondary school education.

There are now roughly 15,000 high school teachers in the province and it was estimated that due to increased school population an additional 3,000 high school teachers would be required each year.

The shortage of high school teachers was creating a problem for marking grade 13 papers each year.

Experienced teachers were required for marking these papers but high school principals in many instances were unwilling to release their best teachers early in June for this work.

EXPERIENCE

Today the average experience of high school teachers was less than six years and in some instances went as low as two and a half years, it was stated.

The Development Day program got underway with greetings from the district federation president Clarence McKague, of past Northumberland District High School, and from Bruce Pratt, chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

Also heard during opening ceremonies were E. Arnold Ort, principal of B.C.I.V.S., James D. McNabb, chairman of the provincial federation profession al development committee and Mrs. Ann Hall, a member of the provincial executive.

Following the address by the assistant superintendent of secondary education, the teachers broke up into discussion groups covering curriculum studies laying within their own fields.

Also during the afternoon teachers in the guidance section visited the Northern Electric plant where they were provided with the opportunity to familiarize themselves with student employment opportunities.

dangerous trend of the arms race."

Kennedy also said past discussions have indicated a mutual interest in seeking to eliminate "the risk of war by accident, miscalculation or failure of communication."

"This suggests," he said, "that now may be the time actively to pursue these matters."

He described the Geneva conference as facing "new opportunities for serious negotiations." And he said that if agreements can be reached and "coupled with further measures designed to contain the nuclear threat, then the more ambitious task of developing a broad range program for general and complete disarmament would surely proceed in an atmosphere of greater international confidence, stability and security."

Sun Life Had Billion Dollar Year in '62

Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada sold more than one billion dollars of life insurance in 1962 for the fourth consecutive year and will increase policy dividends in 1963 for the 14th consecutive year, Ross C. Bailey, Sun Life district supervisor in Belleville announced following the company's 92nd annual meeting.

Forward strides by the Sun Life during the past year also included the mutualization of the company, which was commenced in 1958 and completed in December 1962.

The Kingston Branch reported that Sun Life sales last year of $1,126,166,000 were higher than those of any other Canadian life company, and brought total insurance in force with the company to $10,840,722,000. This is an increase of 6.4 per cent over 1961. Of the total $6,263,630,000 is in Group life insurance and the balance in individual contracts.

During the year the company paid $180 million in policy benefits, of which two-thirds was paid to living policyholders and millions more went to the beneficiaries of deceased policyholders. Dividends to be paid on Sun Life policyholders in 1963 will be $46.3 million — five per cent more than the 1962 policy dividends.

Sun Life assets, invested in government and municipal bonds, corporate securities, mortgages and real estate, increased $102 million in 1962 to $2,583,033,000. Of this amount $690 million is in mortgages, mostly on residential properties.

Picton Woman Aided By Furniture, Cash After Fire

PICTON — A total of $725 in cash, along with a large quantity of furniture and other household necessities, has been presented to Miss Ethel Cowan, The Outlet, who recently lost her home, along with all contents, by fire.

While donations had been received by the chief presentation was made at a dance held in Cherry Valley hall. This benefit was arranged by Ameon Point Community Club, and funds were augmented by a draw at a number of groceries at Fennell's store.

Reeve of Athol township, Gordon Demorse, made the presentation, expressing the hope that the gifts would in part cover the loss sustained. In expressing appreciation Miss Cowan mentioned the many who had assisted at the time of the fire and those who, from a large area, had demonstrated their sympathy in a practical way.

"Words are inadequate to express my thanks and what all this means to me," she commented.

Spread of Flu Is Reported At Bancroft

BANCROFT, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Oswald Anderson, medical officer of health for this village 65 miles north of Peterborough, says a spread of influenza here has taken the lives of "four or five infants over the past three months."

Dr. Anderson said Monday he could not be certain whether flu fatalities had occurred outside Bancroft and that the number of cases "were not much higher than usual."

Dr. V. A. Lehnant, one of four physicians attending Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, said the outbreak is the worst in several years.

Most patients have been confined to hospital and several have been sent to Peterborough hospitals due to a shortage in beds here.

In Toronto, Dr. William G. Brown, Ontario deputy health minister, re-ported that two deaths attributed to influenza so far this year are no greater than for the same period last year.

He said provincial laboratories have isolated only Asian influenza virus from specimens sent in by physicians.

Fossil Egg 20 Million Years Old

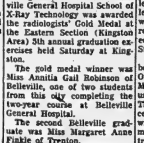
UTSUNOMIYA, Japan (AP)—A fossilized egg unearthed at a dinosaur nesting site is at least 20,000,000 years old, paleontologists estimated. No such find ever has been reported in Japan before.

The fossil is about the size of a hen's egg. Utsunomiya University geologists based their estimate of its age on the earth stratum where it was found. They are making further study of its age and nature.



MISS A. G. ROBINSON

Local Girl Gold Medalist In Radiology

A graduate from the Belleville General Hospital School of X-Ray Technology was awarded the radiologists' Gold Medal at the Eastern Section (Ontario Area) 39th annual graduation exercises held Saturday at Kingston.

The gold medal winner was Miss Annita Gail Robinson of Belleville, one of two students from this city completing the two-year course at Belleville General Hospital.

The second Belleville graduate was Miss Margaret Anne Finkle of Trenton.

MISS M. A. FINKLE

The gold medal, presented annually by radiologists from Belleville, Brockville, Kingston and Trenton, is awarded to the member of the graduating class thought best to combine outstanding scholarship, technical ability and professional conduct.

Normally in larger metropolitan centres only hospital holds its own graduation exercises for radiological technicians, but smaller hospitals group together to hold one combined graduation.

Hospitals in the Kingston area (in which Belleville is included) hold graduation exercises for radiological technicians at Kingston.

16 GRADUATES

Saturday's graduation was held at Etherington Hall at Queen's University with 16 graduates from Kingston, Brockville and Belleville receiving their diplomas.

The guest speaker was Dr. Jean Pierre Jean, of Montreal, chairman of the committee on qualifications for the Society of Radiological technicians.

Greetings were extended from Dr. Jean, Miss Jane Martin, R.T., president of the Canadian Society of Radiological Technicians and from J. S. Flannagan, R.T., president of the Ontario Society of Radiological Technicians.

Attending the exercises from Belleville were Dr. J. P. Loder, director of the radiological school at Belleville General Hospital, A. J. McIntosh, associate director at Belleville and members of the school staff.

Also attending were Dr. Alex Rota, director of pathology at B.G.H., Werner Deschenes, hospital administrator, and Alderman George Wishart, representing the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors.

The school for radiological technicians at Belleville has been operating for the past eight years with two students taken on each year for the two-year course.

Silk Screening Process Shown Rotary Club

"You can even print on water," said Nick Mika as he described the silk screen process of printing to local Rotarians yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte.

The advantage of the silk screen process, which originated in Japan and spread to North America and Europe, is that it can be applied to almost any type of material of almost any shape rather than being confined to paper had led by a rotary or flat press, said Mr. Mika.

The art or craft of silk screening was a closed shop process in North America several years ago when Mr. Mika decided he wished to get into the field. After a period of unsuccessful attempts to learn the process in various printing houses in North America he left Canada for Germany and learned the trade there. Once well versed in silk screening he returned to Canada and started his own firm on Dussek Street in this community.

The speaker showed a number of samples of his work. Miss Annita Gail Robinson of Belleville, one of two students from this city completing the two-year course at Belleville General Hospital.

The second Belleville graduate was Miss Margaret Anne Finkle of Trenton.

Miss Mika's business employs seven persons and he does work for Canadian firms from across Canada. He has also a substantial export business with a number of American customers.

Dr. Ross Bailey was introduced by Rotarian Roscoe Robson and thanked by club member Bill Finkle.

The meeting was conducted by club president Dr. Harry Burns.

The Lordly Touch

The BBC and Lord Boothby have apologised to Lord Beaverbrook for what, in the abject language of forced apologies everywhere and anywhere, is described as "a most unfortunate and completely unwarranted attack" in a radio program.

The Reuters despatch which reports this does not provide us with details of what counsel for Beaverbrook described as "a disgraceful attack." To do so would have been to repeat the libel, or whatever it was, and to have exposed Reuters, and, of course, all papers using its report, to similar action. That the report would have been actionable there is little doubt; otherwise the BBC and Lord Boothby would not have agreed to indemnify Lord Beaverbrook for his costs and to pay "a substantial sum by way of compensation" to the Canadian Veterans Association in Britain.

This last was a nice touch on "The Beaver's" part, for Lord Boothby had argued that it was desirable to pass an immigration bill to keep Canadians out of Britain. There must, of course, have been much more to Lord Boothby's remarks than this observed Lord Beaverbrook would not have obtained an apology. It seems likely, though, that Lord Boothby, and probably BBC officials, too, have merely been confirmed in the belief that Canadians are undesirable immigrants.

Only a Canadian, we suspect, would have raised an official fuss about whatever Boothby said about Beaverbrook. The latter is one of Britons go for denouncing one another would amaze most Canadians. So thick-skinned are they that they may even do it while facing each other before the same TV camera, smiling benignly and showing each other every courtesy while verbally butchering one another. One suspects they stroll out of the studio arm in arm, for a sherry at the club, a spot of tea at Lyons or a glass of bitter at the local. But the law, though the product of Britons, is written to ease the agonies of the thin-skinned—like Canadians.

Labor's Next Leader

Harold Wilson is likely to be the next leader of the British Labor Party. That makes him a potential prime minister of the United Kingdom and as such elevates him to a position of world significance.

The casual observer may consider this as another example of too little and too late. Wilson was one of the supporters of Nye Bevan. Had Bevan, instead of Hugh Gaitskell, been Labor's choice of a leader when Clement Attlee retired, the party's fortunes might have been different. Whether this would have been an improvement for the party or Britain, and perhaps for the world, or the reverse, nobody can say. But we may be certain that the stormy Bevan would have injected some controversial issues into the British political scene.

It is difficult to judge whether Wilson, as a Bevanite tempered by the passing of the years, would produce any real change in Labor's outlook—now distinguished from the British brand of concervatism by little more than a disagreement on the extent of welfare measures and the rate at which new ones should be introduced.

Of course, Wilson still has to win the runoff vote with George Brown, his nearest rival on the first ballot for the leadership. Still, Brown's chances look small, and that is significant, for he is a trade unionist, with the unionist's traditional conservative influence on the party's policies. Wilson, however, while a radical, is not an intellectual of the old school tie brand. True, he went to Oxford, but he preceded there from grammar school, or the state school, and not from one of the private "public" schools. But he was not that rare creature, a trade union radical in Bevan's style. Only 46 now, he was in Churchill's wartime coalition. Politics is his profession.

I get a little worried when I hear modern intellectuals deploring the vulgarity of the popular press. In a world of hyperized, synthetized, packaged entertainment, vulgarity is the salt of our society. In countries which have got furthest in presenting food, packaged. processed and hygienic—it all tastes much the same. It is not the popular press which lacks taste, but entertainment by automation and remote control—William Deedes, British Minister Without Portfolio.

We don't believe in neutralism. A neutral Canada would be completely out of line with the character of Canadians.—External Affairs Minister Howard Green.

No Reprisals Are Expected P.M. in Supreme Control

By RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — For that astoundingly naive "palace revolution" that is simply attempted—and spectacularly failed—to "dump Dief," as it was delicately put, there will be no reprisals.

Damage enough has been done the Conservative Party without the blunt instrument of vengeance being used to bludgeon it to destruction.

The Prime Minister — and he remains Prime Minister until the votes are counted and the ballots retire him to the Opposition — retains supreme power within the Cabinet.

If the onrushing April election sustains him, it would be time enough then to deal with any disloyalty within the ranks.

And by that time, those of his captains who were suspected of conspiring to sacrifice him should have won their way back into Cabinet confidence by the fight they will have waged to shrive what, by all the signs, will be the roughest, toughest, possibly dirtiest and most nationally disruptive election in more years than anybody cares to remember.

But for him to take political reprisals against them now would be to compound damage into disaster.

They are key men, not only in their ridings, of course, but in their regions which comprise large pockets of constituencies in several provinces, and so, essential, even Diefenbakin, in the campaign.

WHO, ME?:

The "rebels" in the Cabinet who schemed so amateurishly to dislodge Dief, have been on an assembly line of denials that such a "fantastic" thing, as they since have called it, ever really happened.

It was all a dream, they insist.

But those who were there and heard and saw it happen - - and it was, as they say, "fantastic" - - swear that it was no dream.

It was a nightmare.

When it was done, and the conspiracy had been shot down in flames by the angry rampaging Conservative backbenchers of the House, there were some who said that the Prime Minister would be wading around with ankle deep in blood, with heads rolling on the Cabinet floor.

Not so.

He wouldn't do it.

Not now, definitely.

And months later, either.

Mackenzie King, the great Liberal Prime Minister, had the same kind of abortive Cabinet conspiracy as Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

- Only worse.

And he survived it.

Without himself spilling any blood.

His Cabinet, or some of it, wanted conscription. Dief doesn't, or wouldn't, at the Ministers, demanded warheads for weapons systems already bought, paid for and installed.

ALMOST A CARBON

The "crunch" of the showdown cost Mackenzie King two members of his Cabinet, both by resignation, and for exactly opposite reasons Defence Minister Ralston because he wanted conscription, Air Minister Power because he didn't.

But nobody got hurt.

Dief and his ex-Defence Minister, Douglas Harkness, present a parallel 24 years later.

"Macking" beat back a rebellious Cabinet.

At one stage, when the pressure was almost unbearable, and there was talk of the Big Brass in National Defence headquarters marching up Parliament Hill to "take over," half the Cabinet was set to take a walk.

But they didn't.

And neither did the conspirators in the Diefenbaker Cabinet.

Both Prime Ministers - - tough, uncompromising, highly emotional, unpredictable. . . . but above all tough.

With that supreme power every Prime Minister holds, each had only to stand his ground and fight.

Both did.

Only history finally will say if both, or either were right.

The full verdict isn't in on Mackenzie King yet, and it will take years for the Jury-of-Time to file a final reading on John Diefenbaker.

Mackenzie King went on, after his Cabinet crisis, to win a hard election. Narrowly. His closest call.

Can Dief make history repeat?

There is this difference. He fights from a minority position. But then, Dief and the still hungry Conservatives are used to the hard, uphill climb.

Women Use 'Sixth Sense' To Navigate

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

While driving up to a ski resort for the weekend recently, I was reminded of a question put to Emily Post some years ago by a perplexed reader: "How should two married couples be seated in an automobile?"

Mrs. Post replied that it is customary for the wives to sit together on the back seat and the two men together on the front seat. Then, with a wild disregard for the melancholy truth, she added: "On a long tour, however, the wife of the driver usually sits beside her husband because he is used to counting on her for road map directions."

That rude noise you hear is the grim laughter bursting from the throats of a million motorists who have, at one time or early in their marital careers, entrusted the reading of the road map to the children navigator or their right.

Admirable as women are in many ways, they are notoriously deficient in a sense of direction, combining a minimum of observation with the maximum of optimism. A woman reading a road map is as hopelessly lost as a man involved in tatting instructions; and, moreover, she is basically hostile to the established axiom that a straight line is the shores distance between two points.

Even when a map is eschewed (a fine old word that requires constant watering), and she is asked to keep her little pink eye peeled for road signs, she doggedly misses every one by a hair. The feminine mind tends to wander in the direction of tall farmhouse curtains, spotted cows, fruit stands purveying homemade jellies, or some mysterious cerebration that closely resembles an hypnotic trance.

Where she really shines, however, is as-an ex post facto navigator. She can tell you how you lost, and she knows exactly how he went wrong; they should have turned at the old red barn and gone two miles east, then cut over past the memorial park. Any fool would have known both.

And doggone if she isn't right, since she, much to the discomfiture of the superior male, who has been so preoccupied with road numbers, directional signs, and short cuts, that he has missed the obvious path.

Mrs. Post was wrong when she said that the husband counts on his wife for roadmap directions. What he counts on her for is a much more fundamental task: placidly setting him right after she has let him make a fool of himself. Do you suppose she does it on purpose?

Mad Hatter On Budgets

Chicago Tribune

"Hatter," said Alice, "can you explain Walter W. Heller?"

"Certainly," said the Mad Hatter. "Who is he?"

"He is the government economist," said Alice, "who the other day that our $8,000,000,000 deficit is bad — he called it a 'deficit of weakness' that we increased it by cutting taxes, it would be a good deficit — a deficit of strength if a deficit is bad, how can a bigger one be good?"

"Curiously," said the Hatter. "The deficit we have came by mistake. The government had planned a surplus. Anything that the government doesn't plan is bad. The bigger one Mr. Heller is taking about would be created on purpose. Anything the government plans is good."

"I see," said Alice, although she didn't. "But that's not what Mr. Heller said. He said that with an $8,000,000,000 deficit, factories and workmen are idle, but with a bigger deficit they would be put to work."

"Naturally," said the Hatter. "If you offered me $1 for a hat, it wouldn't be enough, but if you offered $2.50, then I, too, would go to work."

"But I don't have a dollar," said Alice.

"That doesn't matter," said the Hatter. "Borrow it."

"From whom?"

"From yourself. Give yourself an I.O.U. and then, when you collect it, you'll have a dollar that you don't have to pay back."

"But," said Alice, "if borrowing money from myself is income that isn't taxed, why borrow $8,000,000,000 a year?"

"Don't be silly," said the Hatter. "You borrow almost $8,000,000,000 last year. "How can we move ahead if we keep borrowing the same old amount year after year? Why, the way you talk you'd have us in a magnetic field. It's obvious."

"But didn't the president tell us last year," asked Alice, "that this year was next year. He never said he would balance the budget this year."

"Listen," said Alice, "that I'm confused."

"You just don't understand economics," said the Hatter. "And by the way, where is that $2.50 you were going to give me?"

Are Children Programmed?

Ottawa Journal

Can a computer think? An editorial in Office Equipment and Methods magazine says that it can, and better than any human can. The magazine's editor writes;

"The most common piece of reason proffered to counter the notion that a machine can think is that all the thinking has been done for it in advance. The program of instructions and the problems have all been neatly ciphered and laid out so it can't go wrong. Like a car on tracks, you start it going and it keeps on to the end and stops. I wonder?

"The child in school is taught to add so he can solve certain problems. He is taught a set of invisible instructions by his teacher after he is taught by his teacher and so on back to the Arabs, the Hindus, the Romans, and Einsteins. The teachers have neither added nor taken away from the input, the instructions could be fed in far more efficiently. As it stands it takes about 15,000 manhours to program a youngster through Grade 13."

This argument might hold water as an indictment of what can go wrong with education.

But as evidence that computers can think it leaves some questions unanswered. If a computer were programmed full or Aristotle would it ever give out Desartes' if it were fed in full Locke would it ever give us Kierstein? It may be better than people are at learning what its teachers tell it, but could it ever stump its teachers or refute them?

Until we hear of a computer that wonders about words or dreams we will not be convinced.

Migraine Attacks Eased By a Number of Drugs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes migraine headaches and can they be prevented? I was 12 when I had my first one and it occurred only 15 minutes after I had bumped my head.

When I got one I first start seeing black spots, then white jagged lines appear for about 30 minutes. Then I can see again but I get terrible headaches and the light hurts my eyes. — R.H.

I've dealt with migraine headaches at great length in my booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." (A copy is available to anyone who sends 25 cents in coin to cover printing and handling costs and a unstamped, self-addressed envelope, to Dr. Molner, in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

The cause is not absolutely established, but it is known to involve an overdilation of the blood vessels in the brain.

These people, perfectionists who have to have everything just so, are the more usual victims of migraine and often tend to begin from the very early teens to the mid-30's. By the age of 35, most people have passed the "migraine age," but that's a long time to wait.

Stopping a migraine isn't often successful, but various drugs and their combinations can be based on ergotamine tartrate, can ward off or ease an attack — if taken in time.

This means that the patient must learn to recognize the signs that precede an attack. These vary from person to person. Being irritable or forgetful, or depressed or the sight of signs for some. Others notice that their fingers swell up. They may get ringing noises in the ears. Becoming too tired, or upset and angry, or a feeling of anxiety or pressure are things that help trigger an attack.

I doubt very much that the "bump on the head" had much to do with your first attack. Indirectly, it might be involved and perhaps worried you, and your nerves became tense, and you were at a age when susceptible people often begin having migrains. And there you were experiencing for the first time the prostrating sort of headache which, according to estimates, may afflict as many as 8,000,000 Americans.

The spots and flashes of light are quite common with migraine. Many people have a temporary "blind spots" for a short time. You ought to be interested in the headache booklet and, I feel pretty sure, will learn some genuinely useful tricks in the staffing off migraines.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had gall stones for 24 years and have gotten by until now. My side is very sore around the kidneys and under my ribs.

My doctor says to have the stones removed. My husband doesn't think it is worth while, or doesn't want to spend that much money. My daughter says it is mostly in my head.

The doctor urges surgery before I get an abscessed liver. X-rays show that the stones are quite large. — Mrs. M.F.O.

Dear Mrs. O.: You owe it to yourself become a doormat, but not a time to quit. Do as your doctor says. You have to live for comfort, besides avoiding what can become very serious — and cost your husband a lot more money. Make your plans with your doctor and stick to the hospital with as little delay as possible. You are the one in pain and the danger, and your family.

"Don't Quit Because Of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. ## THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A new restaurant recently opened with considerable fanfare. One of my cronies took his family for dinner there a few evenings later, and I asked him what it was like.

"Oh," he said, it's another of those one-time restaurants."

That is a pretty good description of a great many eating places in this country.

They are one-time establishments. Cities like New York are full of them. Always mushrooming, always good food, aloof waiters, high prices. The food is fine, the service perfect, the prices terrible.

They are one-time establishments. Cities like New York are full of them. Always mushrooming, always good food, aloof waiters, high prices. The food is fine, the service perfect, the prices terrible.

The chief fault in the fact that there is a very large transient trade in big cities, there are a good many people who are forced to become attached to the one good eating place for lunch and dinner. They want a little change.

It wasn't for these one-time that not be room in the good restaurants for the faithful.

The majority of their customers are passers-by, wellheeled transients one-timers.

There is need, according to a restaurant man I was talking to for such places.

I quote the fact that there is a very large transient trade in big cities, there are a good many people who are forced to become attached to the one good eating place for lunch and dinner. They want a little change.

It wasn't for these one-time that not be room in the good restaurants for the faithful.

But as evidence that computers can think it leaves some questions unanswered. If a computer were programmed full or Aristotle would it ever give out Desartes' if it were fed in full Locke would it ever give us Kierstein? It may be better than people are at learning what its teachers tell it, but could it ever stump its teachers or refute them?

Until we hear of a computer that wonders about words or dreams we will not be convinced.

Deer Horn, which traded more than 1,000,000 in each of the last two sessions, tumbled to 66 cents before reviving to 72, down two cents.

Associated Arcadia, another recent speculative attraction, slipped three cents to 69 cents, in moderate turnover.

Frobex, a newcomer to the penny pack, jumped 14 cents to 31.

Meanwhile, banks led the industrial list lower. Montreal dropped ¾, Nova Scotia and Toronto-Dominion ¼ each, and Royal and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ each.

Among base metals, International Nickel fell ¼ and Noranda ⅛. Hudson Bay Mining gained ¼.

Cardinal Rejects Freedom Offer On Conditions

ROME (Reuters)—The Rome newspaper Il Tempo says Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, Roman Catholic Primate of Hungary, rejected a free offer of freedom on condition that he give up his office and leave Hungary.

The cardinal has been living in the United States legation in Budapest, where he sought asylum during the 1956 uprising. He had been sentenced to life imprisonment by the Communist regime in 1949 and was released from prison during the short-lived revolt.

Only the Pope could tell him to yield his office as primate, the paper says.

Herchimer Ave. Hill Mecca Of Kiddies for Bob Sledding

The Belleville Parks Board and city council have been approached by parents in the East Belleville district to retain Herchimer Ave. hill as a winter playground for the kiddies.

And to add weight to their request they last week presented to city council a petition signed by over 1,200 names.

They claim the hill is the only remaining one on the east side of the city but the property has been purchased by a local builder who plans to subdivide and build houses.

Last week council lent a somewhat sympathetic ear to the request and referred the matter to the city parks board and recreation committee for a recommendation as whether the hill was suitable for preservation as a sled run.

COSTLY VENTURE

The feeling was that five or six lots would be required to provide a suitable downhill sled run.

And at the price of building lots today this could prove a costly venture.

But regardless of the feeling of city officials parents and kiddies in the East Belleville area feel that Herchimer Hill is well worth while.

Each weekend throughout the winter the hill is a mecca for hundreds of parents and kiddies who have a whale of a time sledding and skiing.

The hill slopes off toward the west and as a result snow remains on the hill for much longer than on hills which receive the full strength of the winter sun.

Parents claim that Herchimer hill is the only remaining slope east of the Moira River and is convenient for children, and also for families who might not have the necessary transportation to travel to slopes outside of the city.

At the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Architects, held in Toronto last weekend, William A. Watson, well-known Belleville architect, was elected chairman of the Registration Board, which passes on the qualification of everyone wishing to practise architecture in the province. Mr. Watson had been vice-chairman of the board for a number of years.

Four Killed In Light Plane At Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Four people died today when a light plane crashed into trees on the Niagara Parkway west of the Horseshoe Falls.

Police said the plane was wrecked so severely that blowtorches had to be used to free the bodies of two passengers.

The plane was Canadian-owned but police hesitated to identify those aboard.

The plane was a four-seater Piper tri-pacer registered with the St. Catharines Flying Club.

Two hydro employees who witnessed the crash said the plane appeared to drop straight down. The left wing was sheared off and the wreckage tore a six-foot-deep crater in the frozen earth.

Affectionately Yours

by Mary Moore

A heart-shaped pan can lead to a lot of baking fun.

I have two of them — borrowed from my sister — and in them I made a two-egg-two-layer cake with a luscious gooey filling. A whipped cream topping was decorated with quartered cherries.

Besides being lovely for a Valentine Party or for dessert for dinner on Valentine's day, it is an scrumptious quick cake. For good measure it includes a cream filling which is an all-purpose filling too. It exactly fills a two-layer cake to a thickness of about ¾". It is tender and soft yet keeps its shape without flowing out the sides.

So while I am featuring this cake for Valentine's Day here are recipes for cake and filling are basic and should be filled for the future.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Pot Roast of Beef; Rich Brown Gravy; Fluffy Mashed Potatoes; Medley of Vegetables: Sliced Celery, Sliced Carrots, Chopped Green Beans; Stewed Onions Prune with Lemon; Pouring Cream; Tea.

VALENTINE CAKE:

One-Bowl Batter — (2 small eggs), 2 cups sifted cake flour, 3 cup plus 2½ tablespoons sugar, 3½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder (or 4 teaspoons single-acting baking powder), ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup plus 1½ tablespoons soft shortening, ¾ cup plus 2 teaspoons milk, 2 small eggs, ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

Sift and measure cake flour. Return the measured flour to the sifter and add the sugar, baking powder and salt. Sift into mixing bowl. Add the soft shortening and all but ¼ cup of the milk and beat 300 strokes by hand (which I did to see how my arm stood up to it — not very well!) Or 2 minutes at low speed in electric mixer. Add unbeaten eggs, vanilla and remaining milk and beat 150 strokes or 1 minute at low speed. Pour into two standard heart-shaped pans, bottoms of which have been lined with buttered paper. Or into two 9" layer cake pans. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. My two heart-shaped pans required 22 minutes. Let stand on cake racks in pans 10 minutes before turning out on racks and cooling.

Make Cream Filling (good for filling cakes, cream puffs, tarts, cup cakes). 1 cup hot milk, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoons cornstarch, 1 large egg beaten, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine.

In top of double boiler mix together the sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in hot milk, over boiling water, until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes, stirring once or twice. Stir some into beaten egg and return to double boiler and stir 1 minute until thicker. Remove from heat and stir in butter and vanilla. Cool and chill.

When both cakes and filling are cold spread filling on 1 layer. Put on top layer. Whip ½ pint 32 per cent cream and spread a thin layer on top of cake. Spread or pipe remainder on sides and top edge of cake. Inside top border neatly cut line a red heart with quartered maraschino cherries or tiny red cinnamon candy hearts.

Serves 10 generously.

I also made a Valentine Torte — an angel pie type. See tomorrow.

Women Taking Over Pool Halls in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — With the owners of more and more billiard parlors in North America pruning top their establishments in campaigns to attract the ladies, it must be obvious to the men that any hopes of seeing pool halls remain a male domain are doomed.

But in Vancouver the women have already gone a step beyond merely invading the parlors. They've formed a league.

"There are 20 of us ranging in age from mid-20s to mid-60s," says founder Mrs. Ken Grant.

Since November they have been taking over 10 tables at a new billiard-bowling establishment one afternoon a week.

And just how serious they are about the game is indicated by the fact four of the ladies have their own cues, carried in leather cases and accorded the care a violinist would give his violin.

Mrs. Grant's cue, a two-piece job with a stock of ebony and point of polished maple, was a present from her husband.

She says several women's colleges in the United States include the game on their sports program, and foresees it becoming as popular among women as bowling.

"After all, 25 years ago bowling alleys carried the same reputation that the pool parlor is just shaking off."

Women's Activities

FRANKFORD—The general meeting of Frankford United Church Women was held on February 5th in Rose Lowery Hall.

Refreshments were served at the beginning of the meeting.

The theme for the evening was "Friendship and Visitation." The hostess was Mrs. Gordon Rose. The annual fall bazaar date is set for October.

Previous to the worship service, Mrs. Arnold Stickle was in charge of a skit, entitled "Who is Your Neighbor?" A discussion and volunteers for visitation were called upon. A poem was read by Mrs. Raymond Rowe.

The Worship service was opened by a poem by Mrs. F. Rabel.

Mrs. A. Stickle read the Scriptures, and Mrs. Walter Morrow favored with a solo, "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. F. Rabel gave a talk on the Lord's Prayer. The Rev. C. Judd closed the meeting.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

By pegg rogers

FASHION STARTS YOUNG

Recent studies reveal that the average female teen-ager on the North American Continent has a steady weekly income. This income is, for the most part, earned by baby-sitting and by after-school and weekend jobs. These young people, whose ages run from 13 to 19 are clothes conscious, but they sometimes mistake a fad for a lasting fashion. Many of them are far more conservative and careful in the spending of their hard-earned fashion dollars, than their older sisters.

A teenage "clinic" staged recently in Montreal unearthed a few overlooked facts about these young people. It is ridiculous to group girls as young as 13 with young ladies of 19, but that is the age grouping that the word teen-ager brings to mind. All merchants who cater to these young fashion customers are aware of the difficulty of appealing to each segment of this large market.

Here is our grouping of the teenage population — the 13 to 14 year old "preteen" the 15 to 16 year old "crowd" — and the 17 to 18 year old "set". After 18, a young lady is really a grown-up-fashion customer, but she still seeks fashion advice. All teen-agers, regardless of age, are conscious of their immature figures, of their, sometimes disturbed complexions and of the importance in conforming to the opinions of their particular "set", "crowd" or "gang".

The 13 to 14 year old girl is still, in the eyes of her parents, a little girl, although she knows better. She wears flared skirts, full-skirted dresses, with a little lower necklines than her younger sister's. The bodice of the dress can be slightly fitted and she prefers a short sleeve or the more confining three-quarter type. No sleeveless party dresses, however, since her arms are usually too long and much too thin.

The 15 to 16 year old group is extremely interested in all the latest fashion trends, but they still look for full skirts in party dresses. (These still awkward figures might have something to do with this). They are just at the age, when skin eruptions are common, so they avoid party dresses with a low back. As one of our researchers stated, girls of this age dressed in flying panels and over - sophisticated fashions, "look as though they were playing the fairy godmother in the school play"! This age group comes in all shapes and sizes, from the little size 5 to the stately Brunehilde of 5' 9". Only a few can walk gracefully in high heels, hence the popularity of the little Queen Ann heel — not a bad fashion for any age group.

The 17 to 18 year old group is beginning to learn about fashion "types". She likes to experiment with color and she yearns to wear stark black — sometimes she does. She wants a dateless crinoline, finding them a nuisance. She dislikes layers of net on the skirts of her party dresses, ("too puckered-up"), preferring soft, drapable fabrics, sometimes pleated, but always simple.

All teenagers may not know much about fashion, but they know what they like.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of the Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville Ont.

Arab Woman Israel's Queen Of Kitchen

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — A pretty Christian Arab woman from Nazareth has been proclaimed Israel's Queen of the Kitchen in the country's first competition designed to focus Israeli attention on cooking.

Crowning of the new queen, 26-year-old Mrs. Chile Mazzawi, mother of two, took place before an audience of 1,900 in Tel Aviv hotel. She and other finalists cooked their delicacies in front of the audience and submitted them to a jury of gourmets for judging.

Mrs. Mazzawi's winning "artichokes a la Israel" later was served by all Israeli hotels. Closely competing for the judges' palates was the "banana souffle of Mrs. Blanche Cohen of Tel Aviv, a former university lecturer who was runner-up.

Observers suggested the results of the competition indicated a profound change in the tastes of Israel's Jewry. Mrs. Mazzawi's artichoke dish triumphed over traditional Jewish delicacies submitted in preliminary competition.

One of the objectives of the organizers of the competition—Israel's tourist corporation—was to launch an attractive dish or dishes as Israel's national food, like Italian Pasta or English roast beef.

If Mrs. Mazzawi's creation reaches national status, Israel's hotels will be stuffed artichokes with a difference. Her recipe calls for artichokes to be fried in margarine, stuffed with a mixture of mutton, sheeps' tail and onions, and baked. Her master touch lies in the use of pinseeds and cinnamon for seasoning.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: Like several of my friends, I'm looking for a secretarial position and have a few interviews lined up. In discussing techniques with them, I mentioned I thought it would be nice to send a thank-you note after each interview expressing appreciation for the time and interest shown. A few of the other girls thought this would look as though we were bucking people up and that we were pushing too hard. They thought a more standoffish attitude would be more successful. What do you think about this? — M.L., Kew Gardens, N.Y.

Answer: A polite person always sends a thank-you note for a kindness or courtesy. In the case of a job-seeker, a note not only shows basic good manners, but good business sense. Go ahead and follow your own fine instincts.

Question: Shouldn't a man always remove his glove when shaking hands with a woman? I was very embarrassed when my husband and I were the proper woman of my acquaintance on the street and he failed to take off his glove when I introduced him to her. He said it was too cold and, besides, he didn't have time to get it off. I still think he should have removed it, or, at least, offered an apology. — Mrs. W.S., Albany, N.Y.

Answer: A man should, if possible, remove his glove to shake hands with a woman, but it's no great crime if he doesn't, especially if the woman is kept waiting while he maneuvers his hand out. An apology would have been out of order because he then would have been asking her to excuse an "error" he didn't commit and which she probably didn't notice anyway.

Question: I've been invited to a formal dance and bought a long silk gown with an all-over floral pattern. I assume my date will bring flowers, but I'm afraid nothing, aside from a small white flower, will look right. Would it be permissible to call and tell him I'd really prefer he forgets the flowers altogether? — B.A., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: It's customary for the gentleman to ask in advance what sort of dress his date is wearing and, very often, what flower she'd prefer. When he gives you this opening, then you may express your preference, but it would be bad form to bring the subject up first.

Question: My husband is a charming, gregarious host — in every respect except one. When he serves beer, he pokes a couple of holes in the lid and hands it out in the can. This, he says, is the only way the beer stays properly chilled to the last drop. This may be fine on a picnic or at the beach, but it won't convince me it's an appropriate way to serve it at home. Maybe a P.S. from you would help me out. — Mrs. R.A., New Rochelle, N.Y.

Answer: P.S.: Good quality beer mugs in pottery or pewter do an excellent job of keeping the brew at the right temperature and are certainly more pleasing to look at — and to drink from — than a punctured can. Insulated beverage cups are attractive and practical for beer service. Besides keeping the contents chilled, they don't "sweat" in the hand or leave rings on tables. A can may be practical to sip from outdoors, on occasion, but, in the dining room, guests should be offered something more gracious than mere lip service.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Herman Y. — Studying is only one of a dozen things I must do.

Mr. F.Y. — At 15, it should be at the top of the list.

Herman Y. — I wish my father would get off my neck about school. I'm 15 and a high school sophomore. I manage to get by, even though I'll never understand what geometry is all about. By luck I passed the mid-year exams, and I want to get to some of my other interests. I'm trying to perfect a pitching curve I figured out, and I'm helping a friend fix his motorcycle, and I like to keep up with the Hit Parade recordings. There's so much more to life than just doing homework.

But you wouldn't think so to listen to my folks. Now they're insisting that I stay in my room every night between eight and ten. I'll stay there, but I won't waste all that time studying.

Mr. F.Y. — How can you impress a boy with the wonderful changes that? These are Herman's precious years when there's really nothing to stop him from soaking up knowledge. It's never this easy again. And what chance will a kid have in the complicated world of the future, if he doesn't know anything? Maybe he can be a crooner for a while but even then he'll wind up paying his money out to the lawyers with the go-go education — the lawyers, writers, agents and accountants.

I'd be an accountant myself today instead of a ticket-agent. But I had to go to work when I was Herman's age. And I was always too tired to get much out of evening classes. Now is the time to put study first.

The Council: Mr. Y. is right, but being right isn't the same as being convincing. He and Herman need all the help they can get to bring his point to pulsating life. The point is clear: Just as his Dad goes to work each day to support the family, it's duty and never-mind pleasure; so Herman must regard school as his Main Occupation, and all else as duty and never-mind-pleasure. Everything else must fall into place around these cores, including the pursuit of pleasure, hobbies, housework, outside jobs, and sports. Never must any of these addenda be worked at instead of the one big assignment.

While Mr. Y. and his wife, as parents, can force this view upon Herman for a while by standing guard outside his room, by withholding privileges, by nagging and begging, they can certainly use any co-operation of teachers, community leaders, and other teen-agers to convince the vital message. For Herman must see for himself that youth's a-fleeting and time's a-wasting.

It's really the old story of the dilettante, Herman. He flits. His days are devoted to the delights of the moment. He avoids the pain of hard work, the restraint of postponement, so as to enjoy a deep solid pleasure later, one that has been truly earned. And he winds up the immoral amateur, master of nothing.

Your better course is to put first things first. That bicycle can wait to be fixed, or be fixed without your aid if the job cuts too deeply into your Main Occupation. You'll admit that you're not giving your school work your "all." We'll settle for giving it your almost all, leaving some of your attention for fun and socializing.

You won't like every course. This may be the teacher's fault as well as a matter of your own bent. But we urge you to get the most, rather than the least, out of them all because you only pass this way but once!

SIXTY YEARS APART—Miss Mary Guernsey of Picton, assistant head nurse at Belleville General Hospital graduated at Oshawa in 1960. She is helping care for Miss Hattie Peck of Albury, a nursing graduate at Kingston in 1900. Miss Peck has been in hospital since last October with a cracked hip.

Girl Guides, Brownies To Hold Tea

Tomorrow afternoon, Christ Church parish hall will be gaily decorated with Brownie "Sprites" on the occasion of the annual Girl Guide and Brownie Tea and Bake Sale sponsored by the Belleville Division of Guiding.

The tea that features a "Tea within a Tea", especially for Brownies, will be convened by Mrs. R. B. McCullock and co-convener, Mrs. W. A. Ironside.

This annual event provides the only funds the Belleville Division receives throughout the year to train leaders and to assist with camping expenses.

The profits from the bake tables, one for each district, remain in the locality to assist guiding, hence it is asked that every item sent to the church for sale, be clearly marked as to the bake table for which it is intended.

Miss Hattie Peck, Albury, Learning to Walk Again After Breaking Hip at 89

Hospitals attract some people, and Miss Hattie Peck, of Albury, seems to be one of these people. Eighty-nine years old now, she graduated as a nurse from Kingston General Hospital sixty three years ago. Since then, she has worked in hospitals in Ottawa, Canton, Ill., and in Paris, France, as an American Army nurse during the First World War. In Canton, she was administrator of the local hospital for five years and she originated the student nursing course there.

Now, she is in Belleville General Hospital, recovering from a cracked hip. The injury occurred in the hospital too; Miss Peck was visiting a friend in the same ward she is in now, when another woman asked for help to stand up. Miss Peck, who weighs less than 100 pounds offered the help, slipped and cracked her hip. That was December 18 of last year.

LEARNS TO WALK AGAIN

Now, she is resting in the hospital, learning to walk again and keeping the other patients and the nurses amused with her memories of France during the war, and of her student days in Kingston. She comments that the training at Kingston was pretty stiff in those days, and the Kingston graduates were accepted in hospitals throughout the U.S. with no further references. Only two or three nursing courses on the continent had such prestige at the time.

TRAINING IMPROVES

Miss Peck thinks today's nursing courses are better though, and she has great respect for the staff at B.G.H. She says the training has improved greatly even over the past ten years.

But she still wants to leave the hospital, and return to her family homestead, near the Albury church, on the south shore of the bay, where she can walk short distances, and she hopes to be discharged soon.

The hospital staff share her optimism. "She's spry as a sparrow", say Dr. Russell Scott. Four months in hospital haven't affected Miss Peck's respect for hospitals, or her sense of humor.

St. Michael's C.W.L. Presents Panel on Citizenship

On January 3rd, 1947, an historic ceremony took place in the Supreme Court of Canada when representatives of the provinces and of 19 different national origins, received certificates of Canadian citizenship. During the same week, ceremonies were held in leading cities at which representative people were recognized formally as "Canadian Citizens."

These ceremonies introduced the new status of the Canadian people, that of Canadian citizens which had become effective on New Year's Day, 1947, under the new Citizenship Act. At the regular monthly meeting of the St. Michael's Council of the Catholic Women's League, this subject was brought forth and discussed.

PANELISTS

The panelists, four members of the Catholic Women's League, were as follows: Mrs. V. Narusiviciue, originally from Lithuania; Mrs. E. D. Tomset, from England; Mrs. Stan Kvarda from Czechoslovakia and Mrs. A. Kaiser from Canada, all of whom had experienced the process of obtaining citizenship papers. The moderator was Mrs. Herbert Brown, citizenship and immigration secretary of the Kingston Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League.

Some features of the citizenship act were discussed, such as the steps by which an alien could become a Canadian citizen; also defined, was the status of married women. Before 1947 the acquisition or loss of Canadian citizenship for a married woman depended on the citizenship status of her husband, which were the circumstances of one of the panelists. With the new Citizenship Act, the married woman becomes autonomous in this respect. .

DOES NOT LOSE CITIZENSHIP

A Canadian woman who marries an alien does not lose her Canadian citizenship—thus the Act came into effect. The second underlying purpose in addition to the primary one of defining the status of Canadians who also stated, that highly important purpose; to promote unity among Canadians. Each panelist gave her reason for leaving her native country for the newly adopted land.

Mrs. Tomset explained the difference between an alien and a British subject in applying for citizenship, she also expressed the great future and opportunities in Canada for the coming generation.

REQUIREMENTS

Mrs. S. Kvarda outlined the requirements necessary for citizenship, also that there were no prescribed examinations by a judge, uniform throughout the country. Instead each individual judge determines the form and content of the examination in his particular court.

Mrs. Kaiser pointed out some exceptions to the five years of domicile in Canada to attain citizenship, such as for a person who has served outside of Canada in the armed forces, the alien wife of a Canadian citizen or for someone who had a place of domicile in Canada for twenty years immediately preceding January 1st, 1947.

The panel discussed the factors that contribute to prejudice, which the immigrants suffer in some communities, such as: the lack of communication owing to lack of a common language; unusual dress or customs on the part of the newcomers; failure on the part of the community to make any gestures of welcome to the newcomers.

Mrs. Kaiser answered in an informative manner to the question, integration of immigrants, is a two-way process, what is meant by this? How can an active sympathy be shown? There is much to learn from each other's culture and customs.

Mrs. Kvarda gave some effects on the adjustment to life in Canada for the immigrants, if they are excluded from social participation in the community, lonesomeness being the main handicap.

ENCOURAGEMENT NEEDED

Mrs. Narusiviciue pointed out that each organization can take to encourage the new Canadians in the community, A personal visit, an invitation to participate in other community affairs, to help them solve some of their problems, to encourage them to become Canadians. The moderator and panelists then read together the words that the immigrant pronounces, with Bible in hand as it is done in the court room when he takes the final step.

Mrs. Brown, who attended the last citizenship day at the court house, explained the entire proceedings including the reception tea held in the Armories sponsored by the two Chapters of the I.O.D.E., which she said, seemed to put the finishing touch to the end of a memorable day. "Let us resolve this year," she said, "to do what is expected of us from our organization of the Catholic Women's League, toward those members of the mystical body of Christ who have come away from their native country to our wonderful land."

TALKS ON GERMANY

In the beginning of the program, a young student from Nicholson Catholic College who recently won the diocese's public speaking contest, Miss Brigitte Koetz, gave an informative and most descriptive talk on her native country of Germany. So much so that she made her audience feel that Germany would be one of the first countries they would visit if they went abroad.

Mrs. H. Brown introduced the speaker, also gave a brief sketch as an outstanding student whose winning smile was probably the reason in getting top marks of the public speaking contest.

A appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Ben Burley to the moderator and panelists on behalf of all those present. Quite an enjoyable and informative program. Preceding the business meeting of the league took place with Mrs. J. Gallagher presiding.

DAY OF RECOLLECTION

Mrs. G. O'Connor read the correspondence. Spiritual convener Mrs. R. Rashotte reported on the recent recited for a deceased member at the funeral parlor and also mentioned the Day of Recollection to take place early in March in St. Michael's Church for the three Belleville parish council members.

Mrs. Joseph Whalen gave the financial report; Girl Guide and Brownie convener, Mrs. Jack O'Connor urged the members to attend the tea this week sponsored by the Girl Guides and Brownes of Belleville at Christ Church Parish Hall.

Mrs. J. Sheridan, Valentine Ball convener, stated that the tickets were going fast and that anyone wishing to reserve a table should do so well in advance.

The smorgasbord convener for the dance, Mrs. J. A. Boyle, reported that final donations had been requested.

It was announced that the C.W.L. Rummage Sale for the Nicholson Catholic College students was now over $1,200.

Mrs. J. Gallagher mentioned that a committee had been formed to study the possibility of abolishing the parish raffle and bazaar.

THANKS EXPRESSED

Mrs. K. J. Donaldson read a letter from the Reverend Lionel Dumont, O.M.I., from a mission in Saskatchewan, for which used clothing had been received, expressing his thanks and asking for continued support, as he says the Indian mission cannot operate alone as yet.

Right Rev. J. P. Sullivan enlightened the group on the Adoption Year Plan, launched recently by the Ontario Provincial Council of C.W.L. at a meeting in Toronto in January. Each diocese will have available to the parish councils, such campaign tools and materials as training records, slides, pamphlets, dodgers, posters and publicity kits. The C.W.L. has undertaken this all-out campaign in order to reach all Catholic families with the facts about adoption. A diocesan meeting is to take place on February 21st in Kingston at which all presidents, officers and interested members are asked to attend.

Mrs. L. Buckley presided at the piano.

Refreshments, prepared by Mrs. D. G. Burvill and Mrs. H. Gooding, were enjoyed by all who stayed for a social get-together.

PERSONALS

Glad Cane, Lorraine Cholidard, Tom Wardhaugh, Laurie Towner and Myrtle Peck assisted with the refreshments with Wal Waite as overseer.

The lunch tables were colorful with valentine cake and cookies and a delightful lunch was served by the Kiwanis ladies.

Vi Waite expressed grateful thanks to the ladies and to the Lions Club for transportation and also the Trenton driver.

(Photo by William C. Lamont, Toronto).

CROFT — HURST

A quiet, but lovely winter-time wedding was solemnized recently in Trinity College Chapel, Toronto, by the Reverend Canon Lockwood, when Frances Josephine Hurst, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Hurst became the bride of Ronald Spence Croft, of Toronto, son of Mrs. Croft, of Port Hope, and the late Mr. Croft. Tall white standards of white chrysanthemums and ferns formed a pretty background for the ceremony.

The wedding music was provided by the chapel organist, Mr. Sedgewick, of Toronto, which included variations of St. Anthony's Chorale by Haydn.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. William Hurst, the bride was radiantly lovely in her bronzed silk beige-champagne bridal gown, fashioned on empire lines, featuring an oval neckline and elbow-length sleeves, and an A-line skirt in knee length. She wore a white velvet headdress with shoulder-length veil of white silk net and carried a cascade bouquet of shattered pink carnations mingled with white tulle, and tied with pale pink satin streamers.

Her only attendant was Mrs. William Greaves, of Regina, Sask., as matron of honor, wearing a dark beige gown with fitted bodice and rounded neckline, and short sleeves. The skirt was full, and of knee length. She wore a matching headdress of velvet, and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. William Stevenson, of Oakville, as Mr. Richard Hurst of Guelph and Mr. James Hurst of Belleville, brothers of the bride, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the Algonquin room of the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, where the bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred by a one-tier, all-white wedding cake crested with a cluster of white roses, and rose petals. Tall white candles in silver holders, and the bride's bouquet completed the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received the guests, attired in wedgewood blue crepe with matching blue velvet hat and corsage of white carnations. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a navy blue crepe with silver-tone hat, and white carnation corsage.

For her wedding trip to Niagara, the bride chose a winter-white coat with matching taffeta hat.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Croft will reside in Toronto.

Guests were present from Stratford, Shanstead, Quebec; Rochester, N.Y.; Oakville, Belleville, and Canajoharie, N.Y.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at presentations from the staff of Moira Secondary School, of which she was a member, and the Girls' Athletic Association, at several miscellaneous showers, at the home of Miss Josephine Tickell, with Mrs. McKibbon as co-hostess; at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. W. Knudsen; at a miscellaneous shower at home of Mrs. Alan Burrows, as co-hostess; at a tea held by her mother; at a family dinner party held at the home of Mrs. Austin Walters, also at a kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. J. H. Forrester, mother of the matron of honor.

Answers to Cuban Problems Could Lie in Secret Letters Between Nikita, Kennedy

By STANLEY MESSLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is the present furore in the United States over Cuba based on bluff or substance? The answer may lie in the secret correspondence of Premier Khrushchev and President Kennedy.

In the last few weeks of controversy and confusion, an old drama has been played in Washington.

Critics rallied at the U.S. administration, crying that Soviet missiles and missile sites still remain in Cuba. The storm drove the administration into an unprecedented picture-show defence of its intelligence operations.

But, in the defence, the administration revealed a concern and an uneasiness—not about missiles and missile sites but about the removal of Soviet troops.

None of the published correspondence between Khrushchev and JFK openly contains any promise to remove Russian troops from Cuba. But the secret correspondence may contain such a promise.

KEATING LED CHARGE

Senator Kenneth B. Keating (Rep. N.Y.) took leadership of the critics during the drama. The public learned when he first spoke, for last Oct. 10 before the Cuban crisis he had warned that the Russians were building missile sites in Cuba. U.S. reconnaissance planes found them there a few days later.

In his most sensational charge, Keating told the Senate last Jan. 31 that "there is convincing, absolutely confirmed and undeniable evidence that the Soviets are substituting and guarding the medium - range missile sites which had previously been constructed in Cuba.

Other U.S. congressional critics chimed in. Representative Donald C. Bruce (Ind.) said 40 or more Soviet MIG missiles still remain in Cuba.

The congressional criticism had two overtones:

1. Politics. Most critics were Republicans. Most defenders were Democrats.

2. Cuban lobbying. Many of the congressional critics used information and statistics that paralleled information and statistics issued by a New York publicist for the Cuban underground. The Cuban underground would like U.S. government to come to its aid. Its publicist was busy in Washington during the drama.

Last week the Kennedy administration embarked on a major defence against the criticism.

PROOF SHOWN

The highlight: A two-hour radio and television briefing by the defence department. Pointing to aerial photos, John Hughes of the defence intelligence agency showed how the Russians had destroyed their intermediate- and medium-range missile sites on Cuba.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara reinforced the presentation, stating, "I am satisfied that there are no offensive weapons systems in Cuba, and I am satisfied of this beyond any reasonable doubt."

McNamara reported that Soviet weapons remain in Cuba, but he called them defensive. He said they include MiG jet fighters, short - range missiles and missile patrol boats. He also said that Cuba had 17,000 Russian troops and technicians, 5,000 fewer than it had during the crisis in October.

Then President Kennedy took over for the defence.

He told his press conference last Thursday that the Soviet military threat in Cuba has diminished and is, in fact, "substantially different from the kind of threat we faced in October when there were offensive missiles and planes present."

He added that "if obviously there were offensive missiles found in Cuba, contrary to Mr. Khrushchev's pledge, it would raise the greatest risks, much greater, in my opinion, than we faced in October" and the U.S. would find itself "again with the United States on the toe."

'OF CONCERN'

But the president acknowledged that "the continued presence of Soviet military personal is of concern to us." And he said that he had read "a statement of Mr. Khrushchev that these forces would be removed in due course ar due time."

This was nothing new. Both Kennedy and State Secretary Rusk had referred to this statement of Khrushchev before. It was reported to have come in a Nov. 20 letter from Khrushchev to Kennedy.

But the letter has not been made public. And so it is uncertain how firm Khrushchev made his promise or whether, in fact, it actually was a promise.

All evidence indicates that the presence of 17,000 Russians in Cuba may not be the major concern of the Kennedy administration. The administration may be more concerned about their presence tells about the intentions of Khrushchev.

If Khrushchev, in the secret correspondence made a firm commitment to remove the troops, the administration could be extremely concerned about the situation.

But if Khrushchev simply has said he would remove them after they had completed an assignment—such as training Cubans in handling Russian weapons — then the administration might be less concerned.

announcing his appointment shortly before flying to Toronto for a meeting of the Empire and Canadian Clubs.

The McCutcheon appointment is regarded as an important coup among Conservatives here in efforts to halt any failing away of business support with Mr. Hees' department.

Mr. Diefenbaker's trip to Toronto—carried out although he might have begged off after a week of intense political crisis—was intended as a demonstration of fighting spirit. As he remarked to his audience, it was like Daniel entering the lion's den but with this difference—Daniel was an amateur and he a professional.

Both Mr. Diefenbaker and his new defence minister, Mr. Churchill, met head on on the dominant issue raised by resignations of Mr. Hees, Mr. Sevigny and former defence minister Harkness who resigned Feb. 3.

Mr. Churchill, 64 - year - old lawyer, teacher and veteran of the First and Second World Wars, issued a statement that defence policy problems can be solved by men of goodwill working in a spirit of co-operation.

"I will be prepared to make a full statement regarding Canada's role in defence matters during the course of the next few days," he said.

Informed sources indicated that Mr. Churchill's object is to redefine Canada's defensive role to remove the government's defence policy from the terms under which it became the subject of controversy during last week's resignation crisis.

Mr. Lambert's appointment as senator as Alberta cabinet representative lost when Mr. Harkness resigned. A 44-year-old Second World War veteran and Rhodes Scholar, Mr. Lambert replied with a firm hand during the tumultuous 25th Parliament which was dissolved last Wednesday.

Race

Park Association formed in 1877. The youngest was formed 12 years later.

None had filed a provincial return since 1960, he said.

He said they were reviewed in 1961. Hating W. Earl Rowe as president and his son as secretary - treasurer.

On the Rideau-Carleton charter, Mr. MacDonald repeated statements made in the legislature last year. The charter used was that of the Grimsby Driving Park and Athletic Association incorporated in 1895.

Mr. MacDonald said this transaction was "clearly illegal from the word go since there were no shareholders. He said all the original shareholders and directors were dead, yet three men were found two years ago who were claimed to be "three survivors" of the old Grimsby company.

"Top money raisers of the Conservative party (were) involved in the deal," Mr. MacDonald claimed.

DEMANDS STATEMENT

Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury) started an exchange when he demanded a statement from Mr. Yaremko on "rumors" that the Liberal party secretary, R. J. Cudney, had refused to sign a department submission of a brief before the Ontario royal commission on crime, conducted last summer by Mr. Justice Roach.

Mr. Sopha said he understood the minister had "lost his temper" with his deputy at a meeting prior to submission of the brief.

Mr. Yaremko said he had not intended to make any reference to the Roach report until it was tabled in the House. He said the Liberal and NDP members were prejudging the findings of the royal commission.

Mr. MacDonald said he had made no reference to the report. He said one area of the provincial secretary's jurisdiction had been suggested to the judge as one to be included in the commission's investigation. But the judge had decided that administration of racing charters was outside the terms of reference.

Mr. MacDonald said the revival of old racing charters after years of non-use was "an illegal procedure."

"It's only the good Tories who can get them," he said.

Mr. Yaremko said that "it was established that all requirements" of the department's regulations had been complied with.

Premier John Robarts ordered the exchange to say 6,000 company charters had been processed by the department last year. He asked if the minister was "personally responsible" for each one.

Mr. MacDonald said the minister was responsible for what goes on in his department.

Wants to Take Dancing Lessons

DEAR DORIS—I was wondering if you could tell me where I can take lessons in dancing and how much it will cost. Some time ago I had to give up dancing for reasons of health. Now I can't seem to get back in time with the music.

Sitting them out makes me feel like a bigger fool than if I was up trying, but I hate to bring myself to ask a girl. Most of all I can't even get a girl to dance when I do ask her.—CAN'T DANCE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CAN'T—Take courage. The right teacher can analyze your dancing and make you sure-footed. Write again, enclosing your name and address on a stamped envelope for the address of such a life saver near where you are.

DEAR DORIS—Regarding your letter about interracial relationships.

We feel that those of us who are of a mind to be friendly with members of other races should do so, even to the extent of dating or marriage. It is only through such relationships that real headway can be made in the liberation of colored people from the bondage of a bigoted society.

You see, you state that when she is older "Sixteen" will make up her own mind; that although Indians are "fine" —such a glowing compliment, Miss Clark—she should not date them as a love of interracial status can cause trouble. What you don't seem to realize is that you are affecting her formulation of opinion.

Then to make chaos out of confusion, you say that after "Sixteen" has had other dates she can make some comparisons. Strange, but we were under the misguided impression that a comparison requires two or more situations of a similar or different qualities. How do you propose to compare dating a white with dating an Indian if you have never dated the Indian?

So we are forced to conclude that you are one of the large percentage of our Canadian society who are all for the advancement of colored people so long as it doesn't affect you; and all for complete integration so long as you and yours are not included.

Was ever an end, worth the achieving, achieved without someone being hurt?—SEVENTEEN AND EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD CAUCASIANS.

DEAR SEVENTEEN—Bless you for feeling strongly enough to write a letter. My task as counsellor is to help worried people to see all the facts. The young lady was blinded by love, her mother by concern for her daughter.

And who are we to push a lovelorn girl into a situation where she may get hurt, because of our ideal of racial equality?

DEAR DORIS—Mrs. S. L. struck a very responsive chord in my heart as I, too, once lived in the bush and know what it is to need something to keep the mind busy. The year I had malaria I needed a hobby I could carry on with with even flat on my back, and graphology seemed to be the ideal one.

I hate to discourage Mrs. S. L., but I learned my graphology from a series of expensive lessons in New York City, and now I wish I could take more of them. However, I have made a partial list of books on this subject using only those in my own library.—ALBERTAN.

DEAR ALBERTAN—The list is growing. Apparently more than you and I find handwriting intriguing. Anyone wanting the bibliography may have it by sending me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and saying so.

Defence Policy

fore the announcement of the April 8 federal election, and Mr. Diefenbaker said his commitments on defence policy would in no way have "any overtones of partisanship."

He did not repeat his previous criticism of the U.S. state department's press statement of two weeks ago criticizing Canada's defence policies, but in an indirect reference to the U.S. statement Defence Minister Bomarc missile batteries provided defence for Montreal and Toronto as well as the U.S.

"They are designed to protect the Strategic Air Command of the United States," he said emphatically.

CITES CHANGES

He said changing concepts in defence have been "the order of the day." Since 1950 more than $5,000,000,000 of British and U.S. weapons had become obsolescent.

The bomber threat, against which the Bomarc was designed, was "phasing out," replaced by intercontinental ballistic missiles against which the Bomarc was useless.

The prime minister said that when people ask him why so final decisions were made, "my answer is that decisions must be made."

This is not black and white. In this field there is a change."

The government had done everything possible to achieve disarmament while keeping the country's defences "secure and effective."

"If we do not attain agreement on disarmament, there is no victory possible in the event of a nuclear war."

WELCOMES SUGGESTION

Mr. Diefenbaker welcomed Monday's suggestion by British Prime Minister Macmillan for a Commonwealth meeting on trade shortly before the ministerial meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, expected in late spring or early summer.

He said Britain had promised to safeguard Commonwealth trade interests in its bid to join the European Common Market.

"They kept her out. I'm sorry for Britain. But she took her stand on behalf of the Commonwealth, in all parts of the Commonwealth we have to stand with her."

He expressed the hope that the approaching trade conferences will bring "a new era in international trade."

Mr. Diefenbaker said there is "incontrovertible evidence" of strong economic growth last year, and added: "The trend has been carried into 1963."

There had been an eight-per-cent rise in gross national product, the largest of any industrial nation in the free world. Employment last year was 170,000 higher than in 1961—a better increase than in any comparable country—while incomes had risen six per cent and corporation profits 10 per cent.

sion, played upon for political advantage.

The Conservatives' made - in - Canada policies would mean "Canada first—in economic insecurity; Canada first — in business stagnation."

Mr. Pearson said a master-servant relationship between Canada and the United States "would be as unpopular with the Americans as it is unthinkable to us."

"We will not show how broad our shoulders are by going around with a chip on them."

He urged his audience not to be misled by allegations that Liberal policy for the acquisition of nuclear weapons would prevent Canada from acting to bring about world peace and security.

As prime minister he would diligently pursue these objectives. "I give you my pledge on this."

The Liberal leader said the main issue in the election campaign is creation of a stable and responsible government for Canada. A Liberal government would give first priority to restoration of "purpose and direction in the management of our country's affairs." Second priority would go to strengthening national unity.

To keep Canada growing would require imagination and action, which could be obtained only by planning, he said. Canada must take a lead in progressive trade expansion programs. It was not enough to stand on the sidelines and attempt to benefit from the efforts of other countries.

Mr. Pearson said a liberal government would not allow itself to be pushed around by other countries.

"I don't recall that we were pushed around between 1940 and 1957," he said, referring to the last eight years of Liberal rule.

A few hours later Mr. Pearson spoke, the national council approved a policy declaration embodying the main points of his position on defence.

DESERONTO

Wants to Know Expenses of Police Car

DESERONTO — At the regular council meeting the town council was notified that A. Duffy, of the Quinte Area Emergency Measures Organization will be in Deseronto to address the council at the meeting on February 18th.

A resolution from the County of Wentworth asking that the government ban the use of mineral base detergents was concurred in and council will forward a copy of their resolution to the proper authorities.

The local firemen were granted the use of the town park for June 28 and 29th. A letter was received from a taxpayer, George Jackson, regarding the police department. In his letter Mr. Jackson asked what reason the police car had to be in Napanee, Belleville, Kingston, Bay Bay or Toronto. He also wanted to know what insurance is carried on passengers other than prisoners and the official duties of a policeman. He requested an investigation in regard to the expenses of the police car.

This letter was turned over to the committee for a report at the next regular meeting.

The chairman of the fire committee, H. Howard asked permission for the fire chief to give a report on the fire of last Friday when the home of H. Clare was burned to the ground.

The fire chief reported that the loss of the house was due to lack of water and advised council that the water main on Dundas Street West was useless for fire-fighting purposes. He advised that this matter had been brought to the attention of council several times during the past years. He told of the effort to secure water from the hydrant in front of the White Rose gas station and the poor flow that resulted even after the Public Utilities had done all they could to improve the supply. He said that it took some twenty-five minutes to fill the 500 gallon tank on the fire truck and there was not sufficient to supply a fire stream.

ALLOWED ASSISTANCE

Council passed a motion that the town clerk be allowed part time clerical assistance at his discretion.

After some discussion regarding the responsibility, Council decided to notify the Department of Highways about the condition of the highway at the railway crossing at the eastern end of the town. According to the mayor one motorist recently damaged a tire quite severely at the spot.

The Streets chairman advised that he had prices on tractors as the committee had decided a new tractor was necessary. The prices submitted were from a Belleville firm and were for gasoline tractors. On inquiry from another councillor the leader of A. E. Burley was also read. Council then moved that the committee secure prices on a diesel tractor.

Howard Vardy spoke briefly to council and asked about the gasoline expenditures for the police car. He stated that he had seen the town police cruiser on Highway 401 north of Toronto and on being questioned the date was set as some three years ago.

George Jackson then enquired about the police cruiser taking Councillor Howard and his wife to Oshawa. This was denied by Councillor Howard. Percy Brooks asked about the financial report stating that he has not seen one for the past three or four years. Reeve Lott advised Mr. Brooks that an auditors report is available at the town hall at any time. The clerk then told council that the auditors report will be published in the papers this year.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed and written for the working persons, who are not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Dept.

Many taxpayers each year will discover after they have mailed their returns, that an error has been made. The first thing they consider is filing another return immediately. This should not be done as both returns would be processed and two assessment notices issued by the tax department. The two returns would not come together until both had been processed and reached the taxpayers file.

Once a return has been filed, the department can make any number of adjustments to the assessment. Filing a second return only complicates matters for the department. When you discover you have made an error, wait until you receive an assessment notice from the department or other correspondence, then advise them of your error, as your original return cannot be located until after it has been processed and reaches the taxpayers file.

Never file an amended return unless specifically requested by the tax department. This applies in all cases, no matter if you failed to include a T4 slip, made an error in your personal exemption or omitted to attach a deductible receipt.

You should always keep a copy of your return and a record of the date it was mailed. The reason for this is, that due to the many thousands of returns sent by mail to Ottawa, there is always the possibility of one being lost.

If your return is lost in the mails, and you haven't a copy with the date of mailing, there is no way of your proving that you filed a return when the department requests one after April 30.

If you file after April 30 and have a balance owing, the department will assess a penalty for late filing. You get two blank copies of the return so use one for your own records.

The writer will answer an inquiry received provided a (5 cent) stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply is enclosed.

Question No. 1 — I received a second T4 slip for a few dollars earnings, after I mailed my return. What should I do?

Answer: Wait until you receive your assessment notice, then send it in and ask for an adjustment.

Question No. 2 — What protection does a taxpayer have, against a late filing penalty, if his return has been lost?

Answer: Always keep a copy and a record of the date it was mailed.

Food Production Is Not Keeping Pace With Growth Of Population in L. America

By FRANK BRUTTO

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — For years food production has not kept pace with the growth of population in Latin America —and the worst is yet to come. There are 200,000,000 mouths to feed now. In 30 years the number is expected to be 380,000,000.

The answer? Authorities agree that land reform, splitting up big estates where necessary and putting all available soil to better use, can make a dent in the problem. This is a keystone of the Alliance for Progress program which the United States is backing.

What, then, of land reform? Is it getting anywhere?

Reports from Associated Press bureaus show progress in spots, but in general little accomplished so far.

Argentina, once a prime supplier of wheat, has almost dropped out of the world market for this commodity. Brazil, which has replaced Argentina as Latin America's biggest agricultural producer, probably needs better land utilization.

Mexico, with a six-per-cent gain in agricultural produce in 25 years, has made notable progress. Venezuela is making some progress. But land reform is a tremendous problem for nearly all countries of Latin America.

NOT OVER CROWDED

Population density is not yet high in Latin America. The United Nations food and agriculture organization estimates that only about five per cent of the land has been brought under cultivation, compared with more than 10 per cent for the world as a whole. Farm efficiency is low.

From Associated Press bureaus came these details on the big problem:

Argentina — Deposed president Arturo Frondizi presented an agrarian reform bill in 1958 authorizing expropriation of land with payment for it. The bill never got out of committee.

The 1961-62 wheat crop was 15 per cent less than that of 1954-55. Nonetheless, 25 per cent of Argentina's foreign exchange is still earned through exports of meat and agricultural products.

Brazil — Only a fraction of Brazil's 3,288,050 square miles has ever felt the plow. As many as 32 plans for land reform have been presented in 13 years, but little has been done. President Joao Goulart has said: "Brazil needs agrarian reform, and we must guide it to a realistic, objective and democratic solution." If it does not come in this manner, it could come with violence. Eight per cent of the landowners hold 75 per cent of cultivated land. More than 60 per cent of Brazil's 70,000,000 people gain a living—often precarious — from farming.

Peru — Some Indian farm workers make only a penny a day. Little agricultural development has taken place since Francisco Pizarro of Spain conquered the country in 1475. Most of the arable land is held by a few wealthy owners who oppose reform.

Chile — A moderate agrarian reform plan is part of a major economic and social overhauling within the framework of the Alliance for Progress. Communists and socialists have attacked it as "too soft" and demanded outright expropriation. A government study shows four per cent of the landowners control 53 per cent of Chile's arable land.

Colombia—Land reform faces political opposition, peasant apathy and suffers from lack of training personnel to administer it. The law authorizes expropriation of private land not fully exploited.

Venezuela — Agrarian reform here, although far from complete, is one of the best in Latin America. Land titles have been granted 53,000 campesinos of an eligible 300,000 since President Romulo Betancourt took office in 1959 with the slogan "land for him who works it." One sign of success was a nine-per-cent agricultural produces increase in 1962.

pass the salt

Don't blame the salt when your car starts to rust out. Without it, winter driving would be even more of a nightmare. What you need is a car that's properly rustproofed. Like Rambler, with its exclusive Deep-Dip rustproofing.

In the Deep-Dip process, the entire car body is submerged into six separate tanks of cleansing solutions. Then the body is dipped to the roofline in primer paint. With seven times more galvanized metal on the car this year, Rambler has the most complete rustproofing in the world. It was developed especially for Canadian conditions, among the toughest anywhere.

As a matter of fact, Rambler has all your winter worries well in hand. You get an all-season coolant and a battery which are guaranteed unconditionally for two years. And there's an alternator that keeps the battery at peak performance because it charges even when the engine is idling.

What else?

There's a heater that's second cousin to a blast furnace. And the extra safety of self-adjusting Double Safety brakes. Front and rear brakes work independantly. If one set fails the other continues to operate. We feel it won't be long before this feature is compulsory on all cars. Don't wait, get it now on a Rambler.

When you come right down to it, every Rambler feature has been designed for "maximum usefulness to the user"—winter or summer. That's how we have earned our reputation for making the best Canadian-built car.

RARE, MEDIUM,- WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Joe Hockey Fan, the two-faced varlet, who turn-stiles lifeblood into the veins of the National Hockey League, and in much lesser degrees to other leaps, has been accused of apathy, lethargy, and non-support in the eastern part of the province.

In fact more serious charges of league slaughter may be laid at his door come the close of the curren puck-chasing season.

The Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and the Kingston Frontenacs charge that Ole Joe ain't dose right by their hockey NeHa this season and if he doesn't change his ways more or less pronto, their paths to hockey glory may lead to the grave.

In fact Frank Selke, Montreal Canadiens' managing director, came out flatfooted with the statement that "if attendance doesn't pick up in the EPHL, Montreal's Hull-Ottawa farm club will be dropped."

A few days ago, Wren Blair, his famous forelock heading for the half-staff position, "indicated" that the Boston Bruins might move the Kingston Frontenacs out of Kingston.

Blair said in a newspaper story that at the present rate of decline in fan support the Frontenacs will wind up $35,000 to $40,000 in the red.

He said the team operates on a budget of about $140,000. Playing 36 home dates the Frontenacs need an average gate of about $3,900, just to pay the bills. That requires an average of about 2,700 fans at every game.

The Frontenacs, the Kingston story says, have been averaging about 1300-1400 fans.

Down Montreal way, Selke places the blame of the situation squarely on the fans.. "It's obvious if the people of Canada don't want the EPHL," he said, "we'll have to discontinue it. We want to stay in Hull-Ottawa as long as we can—Ottawa should be in a major hockey league."

He said the efforts of Sam Pollock, director of the Canadiens' farm system and the Hull-Ottawa general manager, have been in vain. "He worked himself to a frazzle to give Hull-Ottawa Memorial Cup champions and EPHL champions—so whose fault is it?"

Blair states "the main reason for Kingston fans' apathy toward the Frontenacs and the EPHL traces to the absence of Tessier, Attersley and McCarthy, three personal friends and good hockey players." H-m-m-m.

He says he will battle the Boston Bruins in an effort to keep the Frontenacs in Kingston but in the face of a $40,000 deficit he can't see campaigning a lost cause. He says "If I cannot get the backing of the fans how can I hope to convince the Bruins to keep the club here."

The Boston club apparently, as the ebullient Mr. Blair says, "if you don't have any coils in the pasture, you sure won't have any horses in the corral," is trying to extend its minor clubs' farm system.

The orphaned Trenton Junior situation suddenly leaped from home-town publicity oblivion to front-page banner headlines last week with the announcement the "Bruins Offer to Back Junior 'B' Club."

The story splashed on the front page of the local newspaper quoted the manager of the Trenton juvenile and midget all-star teams as "holding out for and getting" from the Bruins' brass a five-year contract with the Bruins underwriting the operational costs of a junior "B" club up to a maximum of $10,000 per season.

In addition the Bruins will supply a first-class coach for the club who will act as special supervisor for all minor hockey in Trenton. An additional $1,000 will be paid the Trenton Minor Hockey Association. Teams in the TMHA to affiliate with the junior "B" club. At all times, Bruins will see to it that the junior club is kept at competitive strength.

The OHA may have something to say about the deal. In any event there could be some interesting developments.

Howe Goal Up On Last Year's Pace

27 Gives Him Scoring Leadership ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

MONTREAL (CP)—Detroit's indestructible Gordie Howe, who has figured among the top 10 scorers for 13 consecutive National Hockey League seasons, isn't losing any of his finesse.

In fact, he's one goal ahead of his pace at this point last year, the three-quarter mark of the league schedule.

Official NHL statistics released today show the Detroit right winger gained five points last week on two goals and three assists to tie Boston's Johnny Bucyk for the scoring leadership.

Both have 56 points, but Howe ranks first officially since he has scored 27 goals to Bucyk's 22.

Howe's 27 goals also tied him for most goals scored with Frank Mahovlich of Toronto.

The only other five-point gain last week was by Montreal's Henri Richard, who netted three goals and two assists and moved from an eighth-place tie into a tie for seventh with Andy Bathgate of New York.

JEAN LEADS HELPERS

Third in the scoring race with 55 points is Jean Beliveau of Canadiens, who leads the league in assists with 42.

Tied for fourth are three players—Mahovlich, who didn't gain a point; Stan Mikita of Chicago and Murray Oliver of Detroit, who added two assists each. All have 54 points.

Glenn Hall of Chicago increased his lead in the race for the Vezina Trophy, awarded annually to the goalie who plays most games for the team with fewest goals scored against it. Chicago's average of 2.42 goals-against is unchanged from last week. The team has allowed 126 goals in 52 games.

Runner-up Jacques Plante of Canadiens lost ground as Montreal's goals - against average slipped from 2.42 last week to 2.55. Fourteen goals were scored on Canadiens in their three games last week.

YOUNG LEADS SINNERS

Chicago leads in penalties with a total of 639 minutes and Howie Young of Detroit is the league's individual sinner with 177 minutes, more than one-fourth of his team's total.

At this present rate of almost four minutes-a game, the Red Wings defenceman is a cinch to break the NHL individual penalty record of 202 minutes, set by Montreal defenceman Lou Fontinato in 1958-59 while playing for New York.

Another record which may be on its way out is the mark for most tie games in one season, set at 22 by Toronto Maple Leafs in 1954-55.

Montreal now has 18 ties—Boston and Boston 17 each —with 53 of 70 games played.

Giants Can Field

All-Star Holdout Squad

NEW YORK (AP)—The balance is shifting slowly, but as of today the unsigned members of San Francisco Giants could probably give their more docile teammates a fearful whomping if they ever met in an intra-squad game.

Even without outfielder Willie McCovey, who came to terms Monday the malcontents constitute a formidable array. They include centre-fielder Willie Mays, first baseman Orlando Cepeda, pitchers Jack Sanford, Billy O'Dell, Juan Marichal and Don Larsen, outfielder Matty Alou and shortstop Jose Pagan.

All aren't equally serious problems. Mays, for example, is reported to have agreed to a contract of $100,000 that will be announced as soon as the National League champions can

Patterson To Train In Florida

NEW YORK (CP) — Floyd Patterson plans to go to Florida to finish his training five weeks before his return title fight with heavyweight champion Sonny Liston.

The fight is scheduled for April 4 or 11.

Dan Florio, the former champion's trainer, told The Associated Press of Patterson's plans in an interview Monday from Highland Mills, N.Y. Patterson owns a camp there.

"We haven't got a place to train in Florida yet," said Florio.

"Right now Floyd is working hard here. He's not doing much boxing, but he's going a lot of running and walking.

Good Chance, Says Magazine

Canada To Forfeit Harmsworth

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Yachting News says Canada stands a good chance this year of losing the Harmsworth Trophy, emblematic of world power-boat supremacy.

The monthly yachting publication says in its latest issue the Yachting Association of America has issued a challenge for the trophy to Canada's governing body, the Canadian Boating Federation.

The newspaper says the only boat in Canada which could "stand a chance against the challengers" is Miss Supertest III, which won the trophy for Canada in 1959, 1960 and 1961.

But Miss Supertest was retired by her owner, James Thompson of London, Ont., late in 1961. There were no challengers for the trophy in 1962.

The newspaper quotes R. R. Finlayson, president of the Canadian Boating Federation, as saying the approximately $100,000 needed to build a challenger for the trophy is not immediately available. Even if it were, it was too late to have a boat ready for late this summer, when the trophy is contested.

Accident Forces Retirement

Bobby Simpson Hangs Up Gear

OTTAWA (CP)—Veteran end Bobby Simpson has caught his last pass for Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference.

Simpson announced his retirement Monday following a cartruck smashup near Mattawa, last week in which he suffered a double fracture of the right arm and a dislocated hip.

"The doctor tells me that football is out of the question now because the hip injury is too dangerous to risk in a body contact sport," Simpson told reporters from his hospital bed.

Simpson, a native of Windsor, Ont., played 13 seasons of professional football, all of them with Rough Riders. He played on Grey Cup teams in 1951 and 1960 and was named to eastern and all-Canada all-star teams on numerous occasions.

WAS NEAR RECORD

He scored 388 points, 10 less than Virgil Wagner of Montreal Alouettes who holds the eastern scoring record.

Simpson said he had hoped to play this season and then decide whether to quit.

"I hate to see it end this way but there's nothing you can do about it."

Simpson, twice elected as an Ottawa alderman, also was an outstanding basketball player.

He was a member of Canada's basketball team in the 1952 Olympic Games at Helsinki, Finland, and rates that "as my greatest thrill" in sports.

Simpson owns a restaurant in Ottawa and has expressed a desire to coach after his playing career was over

After Fifth Defeat

Smokies Coach Worried

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Bobby Kromm of Trail Smoke Eaters had an obvious answer after his club, bound for the world hockey tournament in Sweden next month, Monday night suffered its fifth consecutive loss.

"Of course I'm concerned," he said. "I just can't explain this one."

He said the club played well against Windsor Bulldogs Sunday night, "when we did everything but score."

Now this one."

This one was a 3-1 loss to a college all - star team, a collection of players from the Eastern Intercollegiate League. Windsor beat Trail 3-2 after two other Ontario Hockey Association Senior A clubs took the Trail team's measure.

Kitchener - Waterloo Tigers dropped the Smoke Eaters 6-4 Thursday night and Chatham Maroons took a 4-2 win Friday. In two exhibition games on the Prairies before coming to Ontario, the Smoke Eaters lost to Winnipeg Maroons and beat Saskatoon Quakers. Trail has one game in Halifax before leaving for Europe.

The Canadian representatives in the world tournament were outhustled by the collegians, who led 1-0 after the first period and 3-1 after the second.

The Smoke Eaters tried to beat the collegians with a passing pattern, but some passes were intercepted and others went off target. On other occasions, their time-consuming combinations gave the all-stars time to regroup and break up the play.

Curlers' Charges Under Probe

SEATTLE (AP)—Threats of physical harm and a $300 bribe offer in connection with the Washington state championship curling matches during the weekend are under investigation.

Raymond Guertin of suburban Edmonds, captain of the winning rink, told detectives he was threatened last week in person and in several telephone calls. He said he was told to lose a match in the state trials or his family might be hurt.

Guertin ignored the threat and led his rink to the state title and a place in the national championships at Duluth, Minn., March 4-9. His wife and five children also received telephone threatened while the matches were on.

Dr. Frank Crealock of Seattle, whose team took fourth, was approached by a man Friday and offered $300 to "throw" a match. Crealock considered the offer a joke, but a friend reported it to police.

A detective was assigned to watch the matches.

Gross Tops Field in Senior 'A'

GALT (CP)—Windsor centre Irwin Gross racked up three goals and three assists in a single night against Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers to outpace the competition in the individual scoring race of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A division.

Gross boosted his total to 27 goals and a league-leading 39 assists for a total of 66 points, six more than second - place Bobby Brown, his linemate.

Brown and Tommy Walker, another linemate, lead goal-scorers with 34 each. Walker has 60 points.

Chatham centre Ted Power scored once during the week to maintain third place in the point chase with 65, one more than Lou Bendo of Windsor.

Al Bennett of Chatham Maroons, who has led all season in goaltenders' averages, slipped slightly during the week, surrendering five goals. Bennett's average is 2.71. Runner - up Wayne Rutledge of Windsor got a shutout and dropped his mark to 3.04.

"Louisville Lip" Lashes At Liston

Sonny, Cass In Spout Spar

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—From all the noise around Miami Beach, a tourist might get the idea that Sonny Liston is going to fight Cassius Clay April 4 rather than Floyd Patterson.

The heavyweight champion arrived Friday afternoon to start training and the town was quiet until Clay came in Friday night to move into a new Miami Beach home.

"I won't be here all the time," Clay said. "I've got a home here now, but a man like me is in great demand everywhere. I'll be popping in and out.

"First, I've got to go to New York to carry out my prediction on Doug Jones. Then, I'd like to come back to Miami and get ready for Liston, who will fall before me in eight rounds."

Clay, the No. 2 heavyweight contender, will fight Jones March 13.

Informed that Clay was in town, Liston's adviser, Jack Nilon, told the champion: "I'll get him for you for a boxing partner. We'll give him $10 a round."

"Aw, give him $25," Liston responded. "He can't last 30 seconds."

As expected, the remark touched off a burst of oratory from the fast-talking Cassius.

"This town is not big enough for both of us," said Clay.

"I have predicted that I will knock Liston out in eight. If he keeps popping off, I'm gonna cut it to six."

Liston forecasts that he will flatten both Patterson and Clay in the first round.

"If he hooks me in one round—or any round," Clay declared, "I will get down on my knees in the ring, kiss his feet and tell the world he's the greatest. Then I will catch the first jet out of the country."

Some observers think Clay isn't ready for Liston.

"Not ready?" howled Cassius. "I'm ready. I'm ready. My prophecies have come true. I'm the biggest talk in the fight world. If I'm not ready, who's ready?

"I'm a 205-pounder. I'm fast, rangy and colorful. Liston is willing to meet me after Patterson, we'll draw the biggest gate in history."

Several Others Sentenced

Basketball 'Fixer' Given 10 To 15 Years

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Molinas, a tall, handsome ex-basketball star who once reportedly earned $40,000 a year, was implicated, has been sentenced to 10 to 15 years in jail for masterminding a $70,000 fix on college basketball games.

"In my opinion, you are a completely immoral person," Judge Joseph Sarafite of State Supreme Court told the 30-year-old Molinas in passing sentence Monday. "You are the prime mover of the conspiracy and you were the person most responsible."

The sentencing of the six fool-ish Columbia University star and Fort Wayne professional player, along with two confessed bribers, was hailed by Walter Byers, executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, who said:

"We are indebted to the energies and efficiency of the law enforcement agencies of New York and appreciate of the attitude of the court itself."

Sentenced with Molinas, who was convicted Jan. 8 on five counts of bribery, were Joseph Sicari, 43, of New York and Philip LaCourt, 39, of Boston. Hacken, described as Molinas's chief lieutenant in the plot to fix 43 games between 1957 and 1961, was sentenced to 7½ to eight years.

LaCort, who pleaded guilty to fronting for a Boston gambling group, received 2½ to five years.

Aaron Wagman, 29, of New York, who had pleaded guilty to bribing nine players and making 27 bribe payoffs, received a suspended sentence of three to five years because he spent 23 months in jail as a material witness in testifying against Molinas and also faces a five-to-10 year term on a Florida conviction for football fixing.

Five other former players—Lou Brown, Charles Tucker, Jerry Vogel, Dan Quindzni and Dave Budin — received suspended sentences after co-operating with District Attorney Frank Hogan in his investigation.

Of the 47 players in 27 colleges approached by the ring, 33 admitted accepting bribes totalling some $70,000. Another $75,000 in bribes was rejected. The players were granted immunity from prosecution in return for their testimony before the grand jury.

Ivy Denies Larks Job Acceptance

HOUSTON (AP) — Frank (Pop) Ivy, Houston Oilers' head coach, denied Monday he has accepted a job as head coach and general manager of Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League. He refused to say if he had been offered the job after meeting more than three hours in New York with Alouette president Ted Workman and three members of his board of directors.

"I guess they invite me to see if I'm interested," he said. "No one likes to offer someone a job and then to be turned down. Actually, we never even discussed a contract."

These talks were strictly exploratory. I'll hear them out and then give it a little thought."

Newspaper Sports Staff Under Fire

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal grand jury has begun investigation of reports that former members of the Philadelphia Inquirer sports staff transmitted and sold horse race information to reputed gamblers.

More than 60 witnesses are under subpoena to appear this week or next. They include former Inquirer employees, Philadelphia police and social and restaurant club operators.

Edmund DePaul and Joseph Reiter, assistant U.S. attorneys, are directing the investigation.

Witnesses Monday included Fred Byrod, Inquirer sports editor. He was a government witness.

Four former copy boys and clerks at The Inquirer testified. Two others are under subpoena and will testify later.

All six had been dismissed by the newspaper after being questioned by the FBI.

Challenges AG To 50-Mile Hike

74-Year-Old Is Spry As Ever

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Johnny Coulon, world bantamweight boxing champion from 1909 to 1914, reached his 74th birthday today and challenged Attorney - General Robert Kennedy to a 50-mile hike.

The Toronto native is a classic example of what a physical fitness program followed through life can mean to a senior citizen.

"I see where Bobby Kennedy walked 50 miles in 17 hours," said Coulon, a rabid Democrat. "He's half my age and apparently in wonderful shape. But I would like for him to call me up and say: 'John, how would you like to walk 50 miles with me?' But I could do it in less than 17 hours."

Coulon, known as the Chicago Spider in his fighting days, and his wife, Marie, have operated a life gym on Chicago's South Side for 40 years Johnny is the instructor. Maria is the match maker. She has made well over 25,000 matches, amateur and professional.

KEEP AT IT

"I don't think much of a crash physical fitness program," said Coulon. "It is something that should be practiced through life.

"Then, while everybody else is catching a cab to go two or three miles, I walk. And not to save money. During a day in the gym, I bounce around 10 to 12 miles giving instructions."

Johnny, who helped teach such fighters as Tony Zale, Barney Ross and King Levinsky, stands 4 - feet - 11½ - inches and weighs 108 pounds, the same as in his fighting days.

He once had two 20-round title fights within 15 days and won both.

'Swingers' Are Fined $200 Each

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Dillabough of Pittsburgh Hornets and Jim Pappin of Rochester Americans were fined $200 each for their stick-swinging duel in an American Hockey League game in Rochester, N.Y., Sunday night.

League president James G. Balmer announced the fines Monday after receiving a report from referee Dalton McArthur.

Both players drew match misconduct penalties for deliberate intent to injure. The penalties call for automatic ejection from the game and $100 fines.

Balmer fined each an additional $100.

DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE

QUEBEC (CP)—About 25 persons were driven from a boarding house Monday night when fire raced through the structure. One person was slightly injured leaping from the three-storey building.

Johnny Carson Getting Two Big Stars for Monday's Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Carson, whose late evening programs have been notably light on big - name guests, has a powerhouse fair booked for next Monday: Joan Crawford and Robert Taylor. The former will receive an award, the latter will plug his adventure series in which he'll star on NBC next season.

CBS' Defenders, whose scripts showed signs of weakening earlier this season, is picking up steam again. Last Saturday's story about a faith healer suing a newspaper for libel was a gripping one — but the ending seemed just a handy way of wrapping it up. When all else fails, the heavy goes mad.

As a matter of fact, writers seem to have more trouble than usual finding satisfactory endings this season. Sunday night's Show of the Week, was a flagrant example. It sort of drifted off without a climax or until climax, just talk.

ABC's new Sunday afternoon game show, Almost Fun, obviously inspired by CBS' College Bowl, lavishes viewer participation. Where the average viewer merely sits awe struck at the knowledge of the bright student teams on the CBS show, he can often answer the much easier questions posed for the ABC old grad teams.

Recommended tonight:
Luxury Liner, NBC, 9:30-10:30
Dick Powell Theatre, drama along Grand Hotel lines.

As Caesar Sees It, ABC, 10:30-11—another of the monthly Sid Caesar short comedy specials.

IT DIDN'T TAKE LONG — Phil Lederhouse of Prince Albert, Sask., won the first of his four Canadian blind golfing championships six months after he took his first swing. Lederhouse, 45, seldom takes more than 100 strokes for 18 holes and averages more than 225 yards off the tee. An eye disease left him blind in 1933. (CP Photo).

Has Won Four Titles

Blind Golfer Real Champ

By BOB TRIMBEE

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Twelve years ago Phil Lederhouse was challenged by his girl friend to take up golf. He accepted. Four months later he was out on the course here taking his first swings.

By the fall of 1950 Lederhouse had entered his first championship, the inaugural Canadian Blind Golfers' Association tournament. Although he had never before played 18 holes he walked off with the title.

A week later he finished third in the North American championship at Hamilton.

In the years that followed, Lederhouse, a handsome, husky, good-natured native of Prince Albert, has almost become a living legend among Canadian blind golfers.

He won his fourth Canadian title last September and also his sixth consecutive Western Canadian and Saskatchewan championships. He has ranked among the leaders in each North American tournament and is among the favorites in the 1963 North American, scheduled for White Springs, N.Y., next September.

ALSO BOWLS

Lederhouse, who had normal vision until a mysterious ailment left him sightless "within a matter of minutes," said in an interview "I've never patted myself on the back for anything I've been able to do."

"I have an inside job and golf has been a godsend for me, allowing me to get outside every day of the summer and fall.

"I also bowl, but not as much as I golf and I was going to take up curling last year, but I broke my left hand and the season was over before I could start."

His wife Ruby, then a teacher for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind at Saskatoon, was the girl who provided Phil into taking up golf. She read an article about blind golfers in the United States and sent a copy to Phil along with the challenge.

Ruby, who then had 10 per cent vision, now is also totally blind.

Lederhouse, 46, said that when he got the challenge and decided to take up the sport he discussed the idea with Hubert Cooke, the professional at the golf club.

WON WITH 120

"The first Sunday the next May I went out to the course. Hubert and I went down to the practice green. He took a five iron and several balls and I started hitting them. After I hit a few he invited me to come back again. Pretty soon I was coming out every day.

"I had to play nine holes of golf to qualify for the Canadian at Hamilton and that was the only round I had played before the tournament. I won the title with 120 for 18 holes."

Lederhouse gives much of the credit for his success to Cooke. "He would blindfold himself to see what it was like. He always treated me as a sighted person and continually worked out ways in which I could improve my game."

When Lederhouse began golfing he and Cooke set a target of fourtig a course in 108, six strokes for each hole. Now Lederhouse seldom slips over 100 for 18 holes, and in winning the Canadian title in 1961 he established a world record 89 for blind golfers.

DRIVES OVER 200

In winning the Canadian title last September he fired rounds of 100 and 96 for a 36-hole Canadian record.

On the course Lederhouse retires for accuracy rather than distance, but off the tee his drives still travel between 225 and 250 yards.

During his first four years as a golfer, Cooke travelled with him. Cooke would line up the shot, telling Lederhouse where the green was and then place the club an inch behind the ball.

Since 1954, when Cooke suffered a mild heart attack, Prince Albert junior golfers have acted as Lederhouse's eyes.

"I think the success I've had has encouraged other sightless people to take up golf. When the provincial blind associations were organized in 1953 we had about seven blind golfers. Today there are 17 participating in championships."

SUNDECK AT BLIND

Lederhouse is the father of two boys, Bryan, 8, and Grant, 5, and a daughter, Lynda, 1. The children have normal sight.

Phil was a milkman when he lost his sight July 19, 1935, at the age of 20.

"I had normal vision at two minutes to five and by five o'clock I was blind. It was a mysterious ailment. I went to the Mayo clinic and to other specialists. Recently I was told that if I had an operation to remove adhesions from the optic nerves I might be able to see again. But it costs money and I've never accepted charity and I never will.

"Maybe if I'm lucky and win the Irish sweepstakes I would then have an operation. But I've never let being blind stop me. Until the Second World War I cut cordwood and dug gardens as a living. During the war I worked in a factory and later I went to work in a slaughterhouse. Now I have a canteen at the hospital here."

Van Johnson Admits He Had To Get Out of Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Sometimes you can stay in this town too long. You start to lose your confidence. That's when you've got to get out of Hollywood and see if you've still got what it takes."

Van Johnson was talking, the same brick-haired, movie-mad, boyish-looking Van Johnson who courted June Allyson and Esther Williams through many an MGM musical.

He's back starring in a Hollywood film after a four-year absence, during which he restored his confidence. It's a sentimental return since he's playing opposite Janet Leigh in Wives and Lovers.

REMEMBERS FIRST FILM

"Janet and I go way back," he said. "We were together in her first picture, Romance of Rosy Ridge in 1947.

"I remember the trouble they were having with her name. They had her as Janet Leigh, Janet Morrison, Jane Morrison and then some smart character suggested Janet Leigh.

"Finally I went up to Louis B. Mayer—I was always going to Louis B. for someone else, never myself. I told him the poor girl was confused; she couldn't she be Janet Leigh? What about Vivian Leigh?" he said. "What about Van Heflin?" said. So it was decided: Janet Leigh."

Van has the same infectious bounce from those golden MGM days, and he admitted that he had to hit the road to regain his enthusiasm. His feature career was ailing, and he lacked the discipline that he had learned in his early years on Broadway.

He got it back doing Music Man in London.

HAD TO TRAIN

"I thought I could just toss it off, but I found out otherwise," he said. "I really had to train to keep up the pace. I gave up booze and smoking. That was two years ago, and I haven't taken up either of them since."

Van returned here last year, played Music Man at the Cocoanut Grove, then toured in it, mining a mint in tents and outdoor theatres. A broadway play with Carroll Baker, Come on Strong, sparked the interest in his film career again.

"It only lasted four weeks," said the actor, "but Hal Wallis was there opening night and he offered me a five-picture deal. Which goes to show you, always do your best, even when you know the show isn't the greatest."

The new film puts him on the Paramount lot for the first time since he visited there in 1940.

Van is married to Evie Wynn but after 17 stormy years, the union is on the rocks. He displayed his wedding band and said, "Neither of us is in a hurry to do anything. Still being married is protection for both of us. Who knows what will happen."

...to learn why they're safer and give longer mileage too!

1. New, super-tough Diene tread rubber resists snagging and scaring—gives 20% longer tread life—and provides better traction, too. Firestone's exclusive 3-piece nodd connection eliminates the "dead" tread centre—gives you hundreds of extra safety traction edges.

2. Speedway-proved cord body has more cords to the inch. Cords are Safety-Fortified — a heat resisting process that reduces cord growth. Safety-tensioning protects the tire from dry rot, oxidation. These advanced tire building methods result from constant Firestone research.

3. Laminated Safety Liner gives Firestone tubeless tires the best possible protection from ply separation and air seepage. In the event of a puncture, it reduces air loss by holding the puncturing object. And because any air loss will be gradual, you are safer from blowout, too.

4. Micro-Silicone Cluber, made of solid filaments of nylon, absolutely impervious to the passage of air, provides a perfect seal at the bead. The cluber also prevents air from seeping into the tire body. Firestone achieves the perfect seal on every tubeless tire they build.

her airline and hotel expenses. Her lawyer Joseph Nuss, objecting to the line of questioning, said: "I would suggest that an inquiry looking into matters of urgency should delve into this particular ustion."

In the legal arguments about the evidence, Mr. Justice Norris asked the 23-year-old SIU counsel whether he was suggesting that Miss Charlebois was both mistress and nurse on out-of-port trips.

CALLS IT IRRELEVANT

"No," said Mr. Nuss. "I say she is his nurse all the time. If she is something else—assuming this—on other occasions it is irrelevant."

He argued that SIU funds were used only to pay her expenses as a nurse and that any other relationship was not relevant to the inquiry.

Mr. Justice Norris said he would not like to accept the proposition that an attendant of a nurse is "that she sleeps with her patient."

Mr. Nuss said his argument about who sleeps with whom was put forth "on a hypothetical basis."

After considering the argument, Mr. Justice Norris decided that evidence about the bedroom activities at the Banks home might possibly be unfair to the SIU leader and ruled that it would not be admitted.

evidence against the men.

He said: "I am not too happy about this (the shooting). It is a tragic occurrence and if further charges are warranted the men will be rearraigned."

Mr. Laforce said he believes a full investigation should be made into the whole set-up whereby settlers may cut 100 cords of pulpwood for the Crown land for sale to the Spruce Falls company.

"There's racketeering going on there" he said, declaring that certain amounts for settlers are issued to "practically any one who wants one."

He described this as a cheap source of pulpwood for the company, which was taking advantage of the situation.

Mr. Laforce also said it seems peculiar to him in the light of complaints that 30 men were hard up and could not obtain credit for groceries, that their $500 cash bail should have been put up immediately.

Officials did not disclose where the bail money came but Mr. Laforce said he understood it was raised by the Val Rita Co-operative to which this group of settlers belongs.

Discussing the shooting affair he said the Ontario Provincial Police members overnight and had been advised they were not carrying firearms and were not the private property when the shooting started. They were also advised that provincial police had discharged "some kind of a gun or some crackers" just before the fatal shooting started.

"I do not blame the police," he said. "It was possible that this would do some good but unfortunately it aggravated the settlers.

"There is no doubt that the settlers were prepared for the group. They had armed themselves and would shoot regardless of where the men were without regard to life or property."

The 18 settlers who were arrested were Rolanz Lacroix, Gilles Murray, Paul Coulonde, Florent Boucher, Victoria Chamondon. Francois Larouche, Victorin Larouche, Noel Brochu, Loc Nolet, Paul Clamondin, Herv Clamondon, Amadee Tanguay, Camille Crtton, Leopold Dallaire, Jean-Marie Dallaire, Germaine, Marc Dallaire, Leon Tremblay, Hebert Murray.

Irene Fortier, 26, her brother Joseph 32, and Fernand Drouin were killed when settlers opened fire on union men who raided a private railway siding 27 miles west of here. Nine settlers were injured.

The incident was part of a pattern of violence that has developed since about 1,500 woodcutters stopped work Jan. 14 to back up a demand for a new contract.

The raiding strikers, numbering about 400, were attempting to knock over stacks of pulpwood piled by some striking members of the co - op. They pulled up to the siding in 80 cars a short time before midnight. Twelve policemen, lined up at the site in expectation of violence, held them at bay for 20 minutes before they broke through.

GUNFIRE BURSTS OUT

Then the strikers surged through the linked policemen, apparently intent on knocking over stacks of pulpwood piled up by members of the Val Rita co-operative. A volley of gunfire from a nearby but where the settlers were camped fatally wounded three strikers and injured another nine.

Violence has been forecast by local community leaders, fearful of the union's demonstrations of strength and the increasing desperation of marginal farmers whose independent woodcutting is their primary source of winter-time income.

HAS THREE SIDES

Unlike most labor disputes, there are three clear sides in this strike:

The strikers—members of two locals, 2995 and 2633, of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (CLC) about 1,000 work in the bush north of Kapuskasing on Crown-owned land leased for 99 years by Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company, another 600 work at Longlac, 100 miles west of here, for Kimberly-Clark Pulp and Paper Company.

The companies — Kimberly-Clark and Spruce Falls, both subsidiaries of Kimberly-Clark Canada Limited, the Kleenex people. Spruce Falls is also partially owned by the New York Times, which took a third of its newsprint production before the New York newspaper strike began. The balance went to the Washington Star, Philadelphia Inquirer and Detroit News. Kimberly - Clark manufactures sulphate pulp—for use in fine paper—at Longlac.

The settlers—About 1,000 men, dirt farmers during the growing season, who supplement their meagre income by obtaining permits from the provincial government to cut up to 100 cords of wood on Crown Land for sale to Spruce Falls.

HITS COMMUNITIES

The strike at the Spruce Falls Company was hit hard at an 80-mile string of communities, many of them little more than crossroads on a northern stretch of the Trans-Canada Highway some 75 miles northwest of Timmins.

The area is largely French-speaking, populated by bush workers and farmers who left Quebec in years or generations past in search of better wages and better prospects. The three who died Monday were originally from the Gaspe, and all left wounded bear French-Canadian names.

The settlers, too, are mainly French and so are most of the small merchants who serve both strikers and settlers in bush communities as Moonbeam and Hearst, Val Rita and Opasatika, Kitigan and Legaye.

Independent logging lobber Joseph Tremblay of Hardy said more than 100 strikers raided his bush camp shortly after the strike began and ordered cutters out of the woods.

"If I was to start off with a truckload of pulp for the mill and had five carloads of provincial police with me, we would never make it," he said at one time.

Union organizers said they were keeping dozens of cars on the roads day and night to see that attempts to get lumber to the mill. But by the fourth day of the strike, local police had been reported to be tired up and the company managed to get only a few carloads of pulp—mostly from settlers—away from the strike scene.

FEAR MONEY LOSS

For the settlers, the passing of time is a disaster. They account for up to 175,000 cords of the estimated 450,000 cords cut annually by Spruce Falls, but they are paid only if the lumber is delivered to the mill. The lumber cannot be hauled from the bush after mild weather in early March has turned the ground to soggy muskeg.

G. M. Minard, president of the Spruce Falls Company, warned last week that the mill will close in mid-March unless the strike ends.

In a letter to Joseph Laforce, president of Local 2995, Mr. Minard said the company holds the union responsible for all losses and advised him against continuing "this unlawful strike and . . . the violence and lawlessness which the police are either unable or unwilling to prevent."

The company contends the strike is illegal because the union walked out while negotiations were still in progress under a government mediator.

The union maintains the men walked out without authorization, frustrated by a lack of progress in negotiations to replace a contract that had expired 5½ months before the strike.

The bushworkers want a contract similar to one signed by Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company, regarded as a police-set-ter provided for a reduction in the work week to 40 hours from 44 without loss of pay, plus other benefits.

Although no figures have been released, a company spokesman estimated the union members were getting $21 a day on average under the old contract, including those working at both piecework and piece rates.

In Kapuskasing, stores and other businesses report sales down as much as 80 per cent from last year.

Where two or three persons normally applied during a winter's week for relief—from the provincial welfare office, 34 applied in a two-week period in late January.

In the smaller communities, merchants began withholding credit from customers. They would normally carry the settlers until the first payments began coming in from wood deliveries, but the store owners complained that they themselves were being put on cash basis by suppliers.

Mr. Laforce, whose union is paying strike benefits to its members, offered to help any settlers in danger of going hungry. Some settlers are reported to have received food and fuel from the union.

De Gaulle Has Pushed Western Europe to Fork In Road of World History

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LONDON (AP) — For a dozen years Europe has tried to run away from her past, but it pursues her and haunts her.

Now she has reached an hour of decision. One man—Charles de Gaulle of France — has pushed Western Europe to a fork in the highway of world history.

She has two choices.

She can follow the road of every nation for itself, or she can try to surmount obstacles and continue pressing toward a distant goal of blending national self-interest with unity for the common welfare.

Within these broad alternatives are many possibilities which Europe eyes with mixed feelings of hope, dread and anger.

At stake are the future of the Atlantic alliance, the ideal of European union, the fate of the Common Market—and perhaps the whole course of the cold war.

SOUGHT INTEGRATION

Men who worked patiently for years to launch the Common Market viewed it as the predecessor of a Europe politically and economically integrated.

It was an attempt to drag Europe away from old habits, from the time when nations pursued only their own narrow interests.

Men who opposed the whole unity concept—they include both highly vocal and highly influential figures in many countries—pictured themselves as vastly relieved by de Gaulle's thumbs-down on British membership in the market.

They are relieved, they say, because they believe British success in the Brussels negotiations would have spelled U.S. domination of Western Europe.

Six nations make up the Common Market: France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. Their Brussels meeting was the beginning of a complex Atlantic crisis.

When de Gaulle vetoed Britain's entry he dealt a heavy blow to the morale of advocates of European unity. They denounced his decision as monstrous, as a danger to the whole Western world. But the results of the explosion have not yet crystallized.

FACT WITH GERMANY

While Europe's crisis was developing, de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Adenauer signed a treaty signalling French - German reconciliation. Within the context of a united Europe, this would have been hailed throughout the continent. But now there were new worries. Did it mean a Bonn-Paris axis aimed at dominating Europe and dragging her away from U.S. protection?

Eventually, the 87-year-old chancellor, under heavy pressure in his own government and from abroad, let it be known that he and most Germans favored British entry into the European community and that he considered German collaboration with Washington vital.

The patriarchal chancellor told the West German Bundestag (lower house) that de Gaulle had promised him Britain's entry would be discussed by Paris and Bonn as soon as the new French - West German treaty was ratified.

There is vast uncertainty in the West about the future. The question plaguing Europe and the United States: What happens next?

The worst, in the view of leaders of the five nations which opposed France at Brussels, will be that the Common Market will come apart, its members flying into one orbit or another.

MARKET COULD DISSOLVE

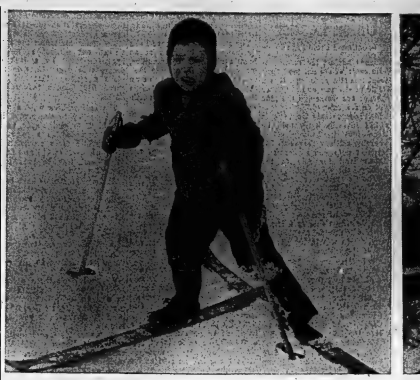
If one or more nations should break away, out of anger and resentment with the French or for other reasons arising from the crisis, that would kill the Common Market. It could happen.

Already there is a danger of slow paralysis in the Common Market's operations because the French action is delaying or cancelling decision - making meetings.

The five members who sided with Britain against de Gaulle can try to outflank French resistance by pushing on in co-operation with the British at least toward the goal of political collaboration.



Or the five can stay together with France and try to persuade the French to ease their granite opposition to Britain. This is being tried, but chances of de Gaulle changing his mind seem slim.

The five can content themselves with staying together with France in a six-nation community. They could let Britain go her own way with the "outer seven" nations of EFTA—the European Free Trade Association. A Common Market spokesman says this would confine the six to a "small fief" of inner Europe, subject to eventual domination by France and out of reach of U.S. influence.

The five could try to retaliate against France, compounding the damage. The Common Market, a going concern for some time, is too interdependent to permit action against one big, strong member. That could boomerang and hurt all of them.

Anger at France threatens slow paralysis for the Common Market. It presages resistance to French proposals by the five, and, conversely, French veto of actions by the others.

For the moment, the market may have reached a dead end, unable to do anything either positive or negative to resolve its dilemmas.

ALL WRAPPED UP — Four-and-a-half-year-old Allan Gagnon of Albert St., Belleville, tried skiing at Corbyville Sunday. But his skis couldn't agree on which direction he was going.

AND UNWRAPPED — Mrs. Jean Gagnon, Allan's mother, solved the problem. She removed the skis. The incident occurred on the Moira River, just above the dam at Corbyville.

China Rebuffs Soviet Overture For Peace Talks

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China rebuffed a Soviet overture for peace talks Monday, demanding that the Kremlin dump Yugoslavia as the price of such a meeting.

"There can be no reversing the verdict repudiating the modern revisionists of Yugoslavia," declared the Peking People's Daily, voice of the Chinese Communist party.

The comment, broadcast in part by Peking radio, obviously replied to the bid by the Soviet Communist party Sunday for talks by Soviet and Chinese authorities as a prelude to any world conference on the Communist rift. It hinted that the Russians seek a meeting between Premier Khrushchev and Mao Tze-tung.

Peking called two weeks ago for an international Communist gathering to stop a disunity trend which, it said, has brought the Red bloc to "the brink of the precipice." But the People's Daily hailed at Moscow's suggestion of a preliminary meeting between the Communist powers.

MUST NT DEVIATE

The paper insisted there must be no deviation from the theme set by the 1957 and 1960 Moscow meetings of Communist parties which denounced Yugoslav "revisionism" as the chief menace to communism.

The Soviet Communist party organ Pravda, in a long editorial Sunday, insisted that any world conference should be preceded by Soviet-Chinese talks to "clear away all the extraneous and irrelevant stuff."

Khrushchev and Mao last met in 1959 when the Soviet premier attended China's 10th anniversary celebration in Peking.

Say Red China Explodes First Nuclear Device

Paper Report Received With Some Scepticism

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The Indian Express says that Communist China exploded its first nuclear device Jan. 11.

The newspaper's report, however, was received with scepticism at seismological listening posts throughout the world.

Seismologists in New Delhi said the seismological observatory here had not recorded anything on the night of Jan. 11 even remotely attributable to a nuclear blast.

However, a month later on the night of Feb. 11 at 9 p.m. the observatory did record "surface waves of slight intensity," the origin of which was still not known. The observatory said the waves may have been caused by a small earthquake far away because New Delhi is in the earthquake belt.

HAVE NO EVIDENCE

Seismological stations in London and Sidney say about 15 seconds on the night of Jan. 11.

"Rattling sounds were also heard. Large illuminated clouds are reported to have been seen emerging from the Sinkiang desert about the same time.

"Tibetan refugees said the Chinese had undertaken extensive arrangements in Sinkiang to explore a nuclear device. No other confirmation is available here."

Kenjiro Shiga, director of the Japanese defence agency, said in Tokyo last month that the Japan-U.S. Consultative Security Committee had been told Jan. 19 that Communist China's first two nuclear bombs and would achieve full nuclear capacity within 10 years.

In London, the British Atomic Energy Authority said it has heard nothing official of any Chinese nuclear test. A spokesman said the Authority would be "surprised" if the Indian newspaper report was true.

In Toronto, the Central Meteorological Office said seismological stations throughout Japan have recorded "certain unusual vibrations likely to have been caused by a Chinese nuclear test."

But the Japanese seismologists said their report was not final and they still were checking their records.

In Geneva, some Western and non-aligned officials at the 17-nation Geneva disarmament talks said the Indian newspaper report was the first they had heard of a Chinese nuclear test.

WINTERMEYER WOULD CHANGE TAX STRUCTURES

Liberal Leader Opens Debate

TORONTO (CP)—Provincial and municipal tax structures would be completely reorganized by a liberal government, Liberal leader John Wintermeyer told the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

In a 12,000-word speech which opened debate on the 1963-64 budget, Mr Wintermeyer promised a Liberal government would undertake a "fundamental re-allocation of municipal municipal responsibilities in the fields of education, health, welfare, justice and roads."

These reforms would be expensive, but would be financed by the issue of four-year provincial savings bonds which would put their cost on a "self-supporting" basis in four years, he said.

The Liberal leader accused the government of presenting a budget similar to its 1943 budget and "tinkering with existing revenues and expenditures" instead of making needed "fundamental revisions" of policy. The Progressive Conservatives began their present tenure in office in 1943.

He said the budget, presented last week, "makes it abundantly clear that this government has no policy or program for economic growth."

BRINGS IN MOTION

Mr. Wintermeyer introduced a non-confidence motion criticizing the government for failing to:

-Establish "priorities of expenditure that would meet the urgent needs of the people and halt the haphazard and undirected growth of its bureaucracy;"

Failing to undertake needed reforms of education finances and planning for university expansion and training of staff;

Introduce a prepaid medical care insurance plan;

Reform provincial and municipal responsibilities and taxation;

Show "decisive leadership" in the solution of agricultural

Sulphur Queen Is Not First Ship To Vanish at Sea Without Trace

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Marine Sulphur Queen is not the first ship to vanish at sea.

Maritime history is generously sprinkled with reports of ships that disappeared, leaving no trace of crews and passengers.

Will the Sulphur Queen join the list?

The 15,000-ton tanker, with cargo of liquid sulphur, left Galveston, Tex., Feb. 3, for Norfolk, Va. an air and sea search, launched after the vessel and her 39 crewmen failed to reach port at noon last Thursday, has not turned up a trace.

There were no aircraft, no radio communications when the City of Glasgow left Liverpool for Philadelphia in March, 1854, with 480 passengers and crew aboard.

So did the Albany, which left Cork, Sept. 2, the same year, with 193 officers and men aboard.

The City of Boston sailed from New York with 177 passengers and crew Jan. 28, 1870, bound for Liverpool. She sailed into eternity.

Within the first three months of 1879, three British vessels dropped from sight. They were the Samaria, 48 men; Sirbion, 33 men, and Borneo, 45 men.

JOBLESS NUMBER WITHIN 4,000 OF YEAR AGO

127,000 Increase Said About Normal

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada increased by 127,000 from mid-December to a total 541,000 at mid-January, the bureau of statistics and labor department said today in a joint statement.

The jobless total was 4,000 less than the 545,000 unemployed in January last year.

The month's rise in unemployment—described as "about a normal change for the time of year"—pushed the jobless rate to 8.3 per cent of the labor force from 6.3 per cent in December. This compared with rates of 8.5 per cent a year earlier and 10.8 per cent two years ago.

The number of persons with jobs fell sharply by 204,000 between mid-December and mid-January to a total 5,956,000, as a result of seasonal slackening in outdoor activities and in retail trade, which had been busy before Christmas. But not all of this drop in jobs was reflected in unemployment figures since 77,000 persons dropped out of the labor market.

The January employment total was 82,000 higher than a year earlier.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

| | Jan. Dec. Jan. 1963 1962 1962 |
|---|---|
| Labor force | 6,497 6,574 6,409 |
| Employed | 5,956 6,160 5,864 |
| Unemployed | 541 414 545 |

The report said the month's drop in employment was about normal for the time of year, but added there was a smaller-than-average decline in non-farm employment while farm employment rose more than usual.

During the last few months, it said, there had been "a noticeable strengthening in employment for men, reflecting a better situation in goods-producing industries. But the lack of growth in some service industries had resulted in fewer job openings for women.

The month's 127,000 rise in jobless numbers was felt mainly among men. The number of unemployed men increased by 110,000 to 468,000, while unemployment among women rose by 17,000 to 73,000.

Of the 541,000 jobless, some 416,000—more than three-quarters of them—had been unemployed for three months or less. Another 71,000 had been seeking work from four to six months, and 54,000 for more than half a year.

Although the year - to - year gain in employment totalled 92,000, there was a rise of 129,000 in non - farm employment, with the largest gains in service, manufacturing and construction industries. Farm employment was 37,000 less than a year ago.

No Survivors as Airliner With 43 Aboard Crashes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Northwest Orient Airlines jet, bound from Miami to Chicago with 43 persons aboard, plunged into the vast, marshy Everglades soon after takeoff Tuesday and was not discovered for 6½ hours.

U.S. Coast Guardsmen, who spotted the Boeing 720-B from a helicopter, landed and found no indication that any of the 35 passengers and eight crew members had survived.

"It hit smack in the middle of a swamp," the copter crew said. "The fuselage was all busted up and consumed by fire."

It was not determined what knocked the plane out of the sky only minutes after it flew into squally weather that lashed Florida throughout the day.

Fishermen said they saw a fire ball in the sky.

Civil Aeronautics Board investigators, engaged in finding what caused the crash, and military personnel, who will bring out the bodies, headed into the swampy wilderness. The area, 40 mi the air over it, were closed to all but official groups. The crash scene is nine miles fro.n the nearest road.

Coast Guard Lt. , Cmdrs. James Dillon and W. C. Wallace, who spied the wreck near darkness, landed gingerly on boggy ground nearby and ex-

Iraqi Revolutionary Regime Now Reported in Control

BAGHDAD (AP)—Iraq's new military regime holds effective control of the oil-rich country although pockets of Communist resistance remain.

Baghdad, the capital, appears quiet and restrained, in sharp contrast to heavy firing which shook the city Monday night when national guardsmen were rooting out the Reds.

Revolutionary President Abdel Salam Mohammed Arif Tuesday let down the barriers which had barred foreign newspaper men since the military revolt Feb. 8 overthrew Premier Abdel Karim Kassem. Two planeloads of correspondents arrived and received friendlier treatment than old hands remembered under Kassem's suspicious regime.

All Baghdad shops were open for the second day in a row, except in Communist areas. Civilian cars and trucks hustled along the streets.

Military control was evident throughout the city. Soldiers seemed almost as numerous as civilians.

There were no firm estimates of the casualties in the fighting for the defence ministry, where Kassem fought for 20 hours until his ammunition ran out and he was captured.

One source said the attackers lost 15 men and Kassem's defenders 100 during the siege.

No one could tell how many Communists were killed in the mop-up operations following the coup.

In Tehran, the capital of neighboring Iran, the newspaper Kayhan International said Iraq's military rulers have opened truce talks with Kurdish tribal leaders who had waged a rebellion against Kassem since September, 1961.

The paper also said travellers reported the military regime has taken full control of Basra, Iraq's port on the Persian gulf. Heavy fighting had been reported there between Communists and forces who joined the revolution.

Request Made To Reduce Murder Charge

TORONTO (CP)—A request to reduce to non-capital murder a capital murder conviction against Clare Alexander McCorkell, 20, has been made before the Ontario Court of Appeal.

McCorkell was sentenced to be hanged Feb. 26 for smothering a three-year-old boy in a warehouse in New Toronto last April.

A non-capital murder conviction would mean life imprisonment. The easier court jury which convicted McCorkell that October strongly recommended mercy.

Defence Counsel Arthur Maloney argued before the five-member appeal court Tuesday that McCorkell had completed an indecent assault before he smothered Ronald McKay of Mr. Michael Atkinson, 2, in the warehouse basement.

Mr. Maloney noted that McCorkell had told police the deed was accidental. He also said McCorkell admitted molesting two of the youngsters and that he clamped his hands over their mouths to stop them from crying when the owner of the warehouse came downstairs.

RAPS U.S. TACTICS

GENEVA (CP-AP)—The Soviet Union, in introducing a proposal banning foreign nuclear bases, protested Tuesday against "measures taken by the United States in order to force nuclear weapons onto Canada."

Vasily Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, obviously was referring to the U.S. state department's recent public criticism of Canadian nuclear policy.

NEW PC CABINET TAKES OFFICE, PLANS ELECTION

Marcel Lambert Only New One

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, torn with dissension for more than a week, officially took on a new form Tuesday, held an apparently routine meeting, and tackled April 8 general election planning.

Three ministers were sworn into new portfolios, replacing former ministers George Hees in trade, Douglas Harkness in defence and Pierre Sevigny as associate defence minister.

Within minutes of the swearing-in ceremony at Government House, attended by Governor-General Vanier—who now has the title "right honorable" for life as the result of his appointment to the United Kingdom privy council—the reconstituted cabinet met in its accustomed place, the Canadian privy council chamber of Parliament Hill's East Block.

New at the cabinet table was Marcel Lambert, veterans minister, who was House Speaker of the troubled Parliament which was dissolved last week after the government was twice defeated on opposition non-confidence motions.

CHURCHILL PROMOTED

An old hand in a new role was Veterans Minister Churchill, moved up to the defence portfolio to replace Mr. Harkness. He is one of Mr. Diefenbaker's closest friends and trusted advisers who first entered the cabinet in 1957 as trade minister.

The new trade minister, Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon, a minister without portfolio since last August, who is normally a taciturn man, gave reporters a brief, cheerful interview after he went to the cabinet meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Reports of further cabinet resignations died away. Transport Minister Balcer was reported to have reaffirmed his intention to remain in support of the government's nuclear policy which he interprets as retaining an nuclear warheads on Canadian soil now.

Justice Minister Fleming said the government on published reports that he does not intend to seek re-election in the Toronto constituency he now holds, saying he would not say anything about reports' he had not seen.

Works Minister Fulton, due to retire next June from politics to move to British Columbia as provincial Conservative leader, attended the meeting. His departure date is uncertain.

400 Bushworkers Will Be Charged With Rioting

Arrests Unprecedented In Canadian History

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—Six independent log-cutting" settlers were arrested on non-capital murder charges Tuesday night and a small army of provincial police continued the roundup of 13 others on the same charges

The charges against the 19 settlers, as well as riot charges against some 400 striking bushworkers, follow the fatal shooting of three strikers in a clash early Monday.

Police, part of the force of 290 brought into Kapuskasing after the violence, were sent to neighboring small communities to round up the settlers first.

The mass arrests against the settlers and strikers are unprecedented in Canadian history.

A group of independent settlers opened fire on a mob of bushworkers Monday as it raided a camp at Reesor Siding, 37 miles west of here, in an apparent bid to knock over piles of cut lumber accumulated by the settlers.

Police said there were no indications that there would be resistance to the roundup of the remaining accused but said it might take some time because many of them live in relatively inaccessible areas of the bush and muskeg country. The weather was bad in northern areas today but an overnight flight now fail had begun.

Individual warrants were being issued today for the approximately 400 men charged with rioting but for the time being police were concentrating on arrests of those charged with the more serious offence.

Union officials said arrangements were being made to have the 400 surrender in groups of about 20 so that their court appearances would not overtax the limited facilities here.

NEW CHARGES LAID

Those charged with shooting with intent to wound, the 19 settlers were released Monday on $500 bail each. Less than 24 hours later, charges of non-capital murder were laid against them.

The bushworkers, members of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (CLC), had purposely not been charged at all. Provincial police said they have the names of all the approximately 400 who took part in the riot and the charges will be laid as soon as possible.

The settlers are being charged individually, the bushworkers jointly.

The 19 settlers face a mandatory life sentence on conviction of non-capital murder, a charge

DEFICIT COULD BE 600 MILLION FOR NEXT YEAR

Prediction Made By Tax Foundation

TORONTO (CP)—Based on present tax rates and expenditure programs, the Canadian Tax Foundation predicts a deficit in the fiscal year 1963-64 of at least $600,000,000 and perhaps as high as $800,000,000.

Deficit for the current 1962-63 fiscal year ending March 31, the foundation says, may approach $600,000,000 instead of the $370,000,000 forecast by the finance minister Oct. 22.

The foundation assumes that the gross national product will grow between three and four per cent in 1963 compared with the estimate of nearly eight per cent in 1962.

The foundation states: "Although the throne speech Sept. 27, 1962, stated that the objective of the government was 'a balanced budget,' it would appear that little progress can be made toward this goal in the coming year unless new taxes are introduced or spending cut back drastically.

"For the current fiscal year, the foundation says, it appears that revenue expectations announced by the finance minister Oct. 22 will be realized but the expenditure forecast may be a little low in the light of civil service pay increases, high interest rates and other developments.

The foundation's estimate of total budgetary revenue in 1963-64 is $6,040,000,000, while budgetary expenditures are estimated at from $6,650,000,000 to $6,850,000,000. Its estimates for 1962-63 are: Revenue $5,928,000,000; expenditures $6,525,000,000 to $6,625,000,000.

The 1962-63 figures compare with the finance minister's Oct. 22 revenue estimate at $5,930,000,000 and revised government estimates of $6,500,000,000.

The foundation was formed in 1945 as an independent tax research organization. Its governors are nominated each year by the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants and its work is supported by about 1,700 individuals and corporations

'Deliberate Refusal' by Ally Is Charged by U.S. Columnist

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Strategic Air Force asked permission to make some 660 Canadian overflights with nuclear weapons during the Cuban crisis but Defence Minister Diefenbaker government grant only eight, says U.S. newspaper columnist Marcus Childs in reviewing the Canada - U.S. nuclear controversy.

It would be hard to exaggerate the anger in the Pentagon and the White House, writes the St. Louis Post-Dispatch correspondent whose columns also appears in the Washington Post and a number of other newspapers. He gave "military sources" as the basis for his information.

At a time when the U.S. and Russia appeared at the brink of war in the Cuban crisis, Prime Minister Diefenbaker took four days to make up his mind on the U.S. Air Force request, he says.

This apparently was a reference to the fact that President Kennedy announced a naval blockade against Cuba on Oct. 22 and it was not until Oct. 25 that Diefenbaker announced

PCs Preparing to Accuse Pearson of Retreating From His Position on A-Arms

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservatives are preparing to accuse Liberal Leader Pearson of retreating from his Jan. 12 position on nuclear arms for Canadian forces, political sources say.

The accusation is based on statements by Mr. Pearson Jan. 12 in Toronto, Jan. 25 in Parliament and Tuesay at a press conference during the Liberal party's national council meeting.

In his Toronto speech, Mr. Pearson said the government "should end at once its evasion of responsibility by discharging the commitments it has already accepted for Canada. It can only do this by accepting nuclear warheads, for those defensive tactical weapons which cannot effectively be used without them, but which we have agreed to use."

At another point in the Jan. 12 speech, he said:

"The government should reexamine at once the whole basis of Canadian defence policy, "in particular, should discuss with the United States and with NATO a role for Canada in continental and collective defence which would be more realistic and effective for Canada than the present one."

"This examination would be concerned, among other things, with the necessity of building up NATO's conventional forces and the part Canada could play in this.

"However, until the present role is changed, a new Liberal government would put Canada's armed services in a position to discharge fully commitments undertaken for Canada by its predecessor."

USED SIMILAR WORDS

In Parliament, Mr. Pearson used almost precisely identical words:

"The government should end at once its evasion of responsibility by facing the commitments it has accepted for Canada and see it happens. I can only do this now by accepting nuclear warheads for certain defensive tactical weapons which cannot effectively be used without those warheads."

He added that a Liberal government would make a complete and thorough review of defence policy which could not be done overnight and which would require consultation with Canada's allies.

While keeping our pledges, we would seek a better and more effective defence role for Canada in the alliance, knowing that while this is necessary— and it will now take time—it is also necessary to honor the pledges we have undertaken until they are changed."

Mr. Pearson has denied that these statements mean renegotiation of a new defence role after accepting nuclear arms.

URGES DISCUSSIONS

At Tuesday's press conference, he said re-examination of defence policy should be carried on both inside and outside Parliament and within the Western alliance.

"What the results would be I don't know," he said, adding that he would hope for a "more appropriate" role for Canadian forces. The review might establish that a conventional role "may well be the best one."

Conservatives argue that Mr. Pearson intended to give the impression in the debate in Parliament that, while accepting nuclear warheads now, the Liberals favored changing Canada's continental and collective defence role to one that would not require the nuclear warheads.

His statements Tuesday, they say, refute efforts to appeal to two opposing viewpoints—those who favor a nuclear role and those opposed to the commitment to Ontario and Western Canada and the latter in Quebec.

The Liberal party's policy declaration on defence recalls its opposition to Canada's acquisition of Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles and Voodoo fighter-interceptors for former central CF-104 fighters and Honest John artillery rockets in NATO.

"But the missiles and aircraft were acquired," the statement says. "To accept defence policy clear weapons now is the only way to fulfil the role to which the government has committed Canadian forces."

Malaya Plans Arms Buildup

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuters)—The government today announced a plans for an "immediate" and "substantial" buildup of the armed forces because of Indonesia's "hostile attitude" toward the proposed Malaysia Federation.

The announcement was made by Malaya's deputy premier and defence minister, Tun Abdul Razak, in a statement issued after a cabinet meeting lasting several hours.

The announcement came as relations between Malaya and Indonesia continue to deteriorate as a result of their disputes over the British-backed plan to form the Malaysia Federation linking Malaya and Singapore with Borneo territories of Brunei, Sarawak and North Borneo.

City Solicitor Accuses Staff Of Lobbying

HAMILTON (CP) — Foster Rogar, city solicitor for the last five years, has accused members of his staff of collusion with city executives in interfering in his affairs.

He read a two-page prepared text at a city council meeting Tuesday night, saying he took exception to council always trying to direct who was best qualified for positions on his five-man staff.

He made the statement after Alderman Stanley Duddic asked why Mr. Roger had overlooked two members of his staff and hired a Toronto lawyer as assistant city solicitor.

Council voted to hire the Toronto lawyer, Clifford R. Delmary, head of the industrial development branch of Canada, Ontario region, by a 17-to-2 margin.

Mr. Roger said in his statement: "It appears to have become traditional in the legal department for certain members of the staff to lobby the council every time they cannot get their own way with the head of the department.

"There appears to have been an utter disregard for loyalty to either the department or the department head."

Civil Service Deals With Resolutions

At the recent meeting of the Civil Service Association of Ontario, held at the Ontario School for the Deaf, on Monday evening, Elgin Vader, president, gave a report on the annual meeting of the Association and dealt with 160 resolutions, including all phases of the Civil Service; group insurance; annual increments; superannuation; increase in fees; re-classification. It was pointed out that there would be no change in Group Insurance, which is available to Civil Servants only as long as they belong to the association, and that there was to be no change in membership fees in the association.

A motion was passed that a copy of the resolutions and the minutes of the annual meeting be sent to each department for its information.

Mr. Vader also announced that plans were well under way for the annual banquet which will be held in April at Club Canara, and the Belleville branch had been invited to a mixed bowling tournament in Guelph.

Representatives were present from the Department of Education, Lands and Forests, Welfare, Attorney General, and the Retail Sales Tax.

Further information on these and other classes are available from the YMCA.

Liquor Lounge For Gardens

TORONTO (CP)—A liquor lounge is to open in Maple Leaf Gardens next fall, Executive Vice-President Harold Ballard said Tuesday.

It won't mean much for the average hockey fan, however. Membership in what will be a "key club," will cost $250 a year plus a $100 initiation fee. It will be restricted to 1,000 persons.

A licence for the lounge was granted Monday to the Marlboro Athletic Club of the industrial space on the east side of the Gardens. Profits will be used for promotion of amateur hockey, said Mr. Ballard.

The lounge will be designed to resemble an old-fashion country store complete with pot-belly stoves and cracker barrels. Members will each have a key to let them through the door.

May Power Railways With Electricity

SARNIA (CP) — A Canadian National Railways executive says there is a possibility in the foreseeable future that Canada's railways will be powered by electricity.

Dr. O. M. Solandt, chief of the CNR's research and development department, said many railroads in the world are switching to electric power and there is "a distinct trend of thought toward this system in our country."

Speaking to the Sarnia Canadian Club, Dr. Solandt said the power to electrify the railroads would be bought from local grids making it unnecessary for railroads to build their own power plants.

Dr. Solandt also predicted an end to opposition by truckers to piggybacking — carrying truck trailers on railroad cars and said it was logical for railroads to concentrate on long hauls and for truckers to concentrate on short hauls.

De Gaulle Sees W. Europe, Without U.K. Strong Enough To Maintain Right Balance

In Charles de Gaulle's view of Europe, where does the Soviet Union fit? In the third of four articles on events in Europe, AP correspondent Edward Kennedy reports his findings after interviews in France, Germany, Britain and Belgium.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LONDON (AP)—Lofty Charles de Gaulle gazes grimly on the lands of ordinary mortals and sees a distant vision of history.

That probably had much to do with his activities in the last month, activities his critics say threaten to rip Europe to pieces.

His vision probably implied the tall, 73 - year - old French president to implant a kiss on the craggy cheek of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, sealing a treaty to end Franco-German blood-letting.

De Gaulle is pictured by proud-voiced Europeans as a villain playing Parisian roulette with Europe's future and making the Communists happy.

The Communists, indeed, were happy. De Gaulle's veto rocked the European Economic Community and threatened it with collapse. Britain's Macmillan's bid for membership. The Brussels meeting of foreign ministers of the European Common Market nations ended Jan. 29 with the West thrown into confusion.

COMMUNISTS WORRIED

But de Gaulle worries the Communists, too. Deeply suspicious of the Communists, he dismists fear de Gaulle's treaty with Adenauer is intended to strengthen the ties between Germany and eastern Europe.

De Gaulle insists he is faithful to the Atlantic alliance and determined. His purpose is to build a European confederation of entirely sovereign nations—with France, of course, playing the guiding, dominating role.

De Gaulle's vision of history freezes up in the eyes of Russians, as Europeans, will be forced into Europe's arms by a growing Soviet threat.

The time will come, de Gaulle has said, when Russia will find herself "face to face with the yellow masses of China, numberless and impervious to destructible and ambitious, building through iral and hardship a power which cannot be measured, casting her eyes about her on the open spaces (Siberia) over which one day she must spread."

PREDICTS SOVIET SHIFT

De Gaulle indicates a belief that Premier Khrushchev detests the Communist and will begin the shift westward. He professes to see Russia entering the country's war 10 years ago, and Khrushchev as possibly the best representative of the present-day Soviet Union.

These are de Gaulle's long-range views. He is a "free Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals, it is the whole of Europe which can balance the destiny of the world." But the equilibrium he speaks about will come to pass only when "Russia" stops poisoning the springs."

Meantime, de Gaulle is hard as a rock on negotiations with Russia, notably with regard to West Berlin and Germany's future.

This does not preclude a gesture to Moscow, perhaps a sudden de Gaulle visit to dramatize his view that Europe plays a powerful role between East and West. But de Gaulle is just as suspicious that the United States might deal with Russia over Europe's head as pro-unity Europeans are suspicious of a de Gaulle bargain with Khrushchev.

De Gaulle's views have been known for years, but European leaders were surprised that he would risk the whole structure of the Common Market in what may constitute an ultimatum to oppose Gaullism on continental Europe.

Macmillan Govt. Upheld By Wide Margin

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government continued in its post-Brussels planning today after defeating an opposition attacking the European Common Market policy.

The House of Commons vote on the censure motion moved Tuesday night was 333 to 227 at the end of a two-day debate.

The Labor party had charged the government lacked the determination to deal with Britain's problems because of the government's ability to deal with the political and economic situation following the Brussels breakdown.

OUTLINES PLANS

During the debate, Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, the government's chief Common Market negotiator, outlined measures aimed at keeping open "some door" to Europe following the French - engineered breakdown of the talks.

Heath made it clear Britain would not take the initiative to reopen Market negotiations on membership in place of the full membership it sought at Brussels.

He implied that the British answer to any offer of associate membership would depend on what it was.

However, Heath continued British will enlarge the channels of consultation and consultation with the six-nation Market.

Also, despite being excluded from full membership, Britain would attempt to co-ordinate its policies with the Market as much as possible. The British permanent mission at Common Market headquarters in Brussels would be enlarged.

Ontario Intelligencer Trophy Won by Kingston Rink For Third Consecutive Time

To win a main trophy at a women's bonspiel is a thrilling event and to take the same trophy the second year shows ability, but to win the same cup three times in a row since its inception borders on the miraculous. But this has happened to a rink from Kingston skipped by Mrs. Fran Millar with Mrs. Laurie Guest, Mrs. Dot Vince and Mrs. Carrie "Sparky" Cole as members. The rink won the beautiful Ontario Intelligencer trophy with miniatures being given to the respective members of the rink and the accompanying prizes at the annual Quinte women's bonspiel. She defeated an RCAF rink skipped by Mrs. Olive Keith, with Mrs. Gerry Gordon, Mrs. Audrey Moore and Mrs. Paula Philp as members in the final game. The presentation of the trophy was made by the city editor at the conclusion of play.

In the second event of the bonspiel Mrs. Helen Riley, with Mrs. Dorothy Bulmer, Mrs. Ethel Hudson, Mrs. Paula Farr from the Scarborough Club, defeated a Quinte rink skipped by Mrs. Mary Mott with Mrs. Louise Johnson, Mrs. Jean Smith and Mrs. Grace Carruthers as members in the final game. Another Quinte rink skipped by Mrs. Heather White with Mrs. Madge Cowley, Mrs. Joan Loder and Mrs. Elaine Hunter captured the third event defeating a Napanee rink skipped by Mrs. Jean Morrison with Mrs. Ethel Mills, Mrs. Mary Forbes and Mrs. Lillian Taylor as members.

SPONSORED BY QUINTE

The spiel was sponsored by the Women's Section of the Quinte Curling Club and ran under the chairmanship of Mrs. Vera Fairman with Mrs. Agnes Walker as convenor. There were two days of play in the spiel and the greetings of the city were expressed by Ald. Ben Corke, who threw the first rock to open the event. Harry Fuke kindly co-operated by being the umpire and director of the draw and this effort was notably handled. In the concluding remarks of the chairman Mrs. Fairman thanked especially Mrs. Helen McCorquodale and her committee for arrangements for refreshments and Mrs. Jean Loder for chairing the tea hour event. She also thanked the hostesses for the entertainment of the visiting curlers, the caretaker for the excellent ice during the spiel, all members of the committee and the Ontario Intelligencer for their sponsoring of the trophy and the publicity given the spiel.

STARTED TO ROLL

It looked in the early stages of the final match for the Ontario Intelligencer trophy there was going to be an upset for Mrs. Keith scored a big four on the first end of the ten-end final. Her early lead was soon cut when a three by Mrs. Millar on the second end and then the Kingston rink started to roll and there was no stopping them. Every member of the team was well, two ends were well directed by the skip and were a joyful gang when the last rock was thrown. The rink was not really extended except in one match where they were eight up and came home tied but the Kingston rink came through on the final end.

Mrs. Helen Riley was always in command in her game with Mrs. Mary Mott in the second event. Her rink curled well especially at the draw game and apparently got the ice before their opponents. In the third event, Mrs. Heather White had a real uphill fight until the middle frames when her rink broke out in front and was never headed. The curling throughout the spiel was of a high nature and the boys behind the glass got a few lessons in the art of drawing. The gallery throughout the matches was exceptionally large and keen interest was shown in some of the matches.

There was a spirit of fellowship prevailing throughout the spiel and made all the warmer by the beautiful decorations that were arranged about the clubhouse. Good-natured banter flowed through the lounge and the visiting curlers expressed their delight and praise for the committees who arranged such a fine bonspiel. They will be back next year. The results -

Manufacturers' Body Hears Municipal Affairs Head On Conflict of Interest

BATAWA — Municipal Affairs Minister J. W. Spooner spoke about conflict of interest in municipal affairs when he addressed the mid-winter meeting of the Quinte-St. Lawrence branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in the new recreation hall at Batawa last night.

The problem of imposing conflict of interest on elected member where personal business is concerned is one that is being studied not only in Ontario, he said, but in other provinces and by the United States and Commonwealth governments.

"But whatever legislation is passed, one thing is clear: any legislation will never be perfect," said the minister. "It will have perhaps faults and shortcomings, but this will not be necessarily so, since it will be the result of practical compromise among the various considerations underlying the need for such enactments."

Mr. Spooner said the criticisms on existing regulations covering "conflict of interest" were concentrated on three main aspects.

These were:

1. The disqualification provisions are neither stringent nor extensive enough so as to prevent abuse of the public trust.

2. These provisions are not set out clearly and specifically enough so as to give a clear answer in any given situation.

3. The method of unseating a disqualified municipal representative is an unsatisfactory inasmuch as the onus for initiating ouster proceedings is on the member himself involving via the courts with the consequent time and costs involved in such an action.

WANTS SUGGESTIONS

He said the department of municipal affairs would like to hear representations from persons or groups of persons who may have suggestions to offer that would help guide the department in any future legislation on the matter.

Besides about 60 manufacturers, municipal heads present at the dinner were Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton, Clerk-Comptroller O. W. Larry of Trenton, Reeve Frank Rusel of Frankford, Mayor William Mills of Kingston and Deputy-Mayor Ben Corke of Belleville.

Chairman for the evening was R. W. Sutton, president of the Kingston Shipyards Limited, who announced that the spring meeting of the Quinte-St. Lawrence branch has been scheduled for March 27th in Gananoque. The guest speaker will be Carl Pollock, president of the CMA.

False Claim About Earnings Brings Fine

TRENTON—In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Kenneth Dale of Trenton was found guilty of making false statements regarding his weekly earnings for a four weeks' period to officials at the local employment bureau and fined $40 by Magistrate T. Y. Wills on two counts. Dale was also ordered to pay court costs of $5.

The court presented evidence to the effect that Dale had earned $155.50 for the month while reporting to the employment office that his earnings had been nil. He received an overpayment of $69 in unemployment benefits.

Magistrate Wills told the court that while there had not been too many cases of this kind in Trenton, stiffer penalties would be invoked if it became a practice.

Sirve Trenton men, Eric Perry, Lawrence Ashley and Clarence Jones, were placed on two years' probation sentences and ordered to sign a good behavior bond by the magistrate when they were found guilty of illegal possession of goods taken from the Morton-Parker plant.

The three men were all employed by the silver-plating plant and the goods were taken over a two-year period.

Perry was charged with stealing silver plating scrap tin and between 70 and 80 pounds of scrap copper.

Perry, Ashley and Jones all pleaded guilty to having silver-plated and copper-plated articles in their possession.

In placing the men on a suspended sentence, Magistrate Wills said that stealing from an employer constituted a more serious offence than ordinary theft. He referred to the incidents as a "breach of trust."

Eighteen Years Ago

On Saturday, Hon. George Hees, Canada's minister of trade, handed his resignation to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Exactly eighteen years and six days earlier, on another February Saturday, Hees entered the national political picture as the result of another Cabinet split. Then, though, he was Major George Hees, freshly returned to Canada from the battlefields of Europe and appearing on a political platform to plead the case of his comrades who, he declared, were in dire need of reinforcements.

This may not have been Major Hees' first political address, but it certainly was the one which first brought his name to public attention in newspapers throughout Canada.

Appearing on the same platform with him was one J. G. Diefenbaker, member of Parliament for Lake Centre.

The place was Owen Sound. The occasion was the aftermath of the resignation of another defence minister, Hon. J. L. Ralston. Prime Minister Mackenzie King had appointed in his place Gen. A. G. L McNaughton and the latter was contesting a by-election in North Grey, made vacant by the resignation of the sitting Liberal member.

Opposing the two men were W. G. Case, a local man newly converted to the Progressive Conservative cause from Liberalism, and Air Vice Marshal A. E. Godfrey, CCF.

On Saturday, Feb. 3, 1945, at the final meeting of a torrid campaign, Major Hees and John Diefenbaker appeared together. Diefenbaker was the star of the show, but the testimony of a young officer fresh from the war carried great weight.

The following Monday W. G. Case was elected. He probably would have been if Major Hees and John Diefenbaker had not spoken in support of him. But together they were terrific.

W. G. Case is now dead; he was eventually defeated by a Liberal candidate but not before, as a new member to the House, he had contested the leadership convention against George Drew, after John Bracken had resigned leaving the party nothing more than a name.

And on Saturday, Feb. 9, 1963, Hees and Diefenbaker found themselves in the midst of a new Cabinet crisis, but in new roles.

The wheel turns.

Roadside Airports

"Landing strips alongside highways are being rolled out like welcome mats for the nation's nearly 100,000 private planes under a new government highway-landing strip program," writes Josephine Ripley in the Christian Science Monitor.

She is, of course, referring to developments in the United States, but we in Canada might well pay the U.S. the compliment of copying this plan.

Private planes are not as common-place in Canada, outside of the north country, as they are in the U.S., but the passing years are certain to produce an increase in their use. To date we may not have the same problem pushing us towards the adoption of this highway-landing strip solution, but we have another, and equally pressing, need. In the U.S. this plan is being advocated as a method of diverting private planes from crowded commercial airports. Here in Canada there are many areas where the development of private aviation is being hindered by the complete lack of suitable landing facilities.

It strikes us that Highway 401, and similar double-lane highways, provide an excellent opportunity to test this combination of air and road travel—it is one of the good points of the plan that once the passengers have left their plane they can speed on good roads to their ultimate destination in nearby towns. The right-of-way of our double-lane highways already provides many straight stretches cleared of trees and free from overhead wires. Some development work would be needed, of course, but the total cost ought to be well below that involved in developing landing strips completely divorced from the highways. If there is any disadvantage which makes itself immediately apparent, it is the question of safety. However, one may hope that mishaps could be prevented if proper safeguards were taken.

A strike is front-page headlines; a peaceful settlement hardly makes the papers at all. The public image of collective bargaining is almost entirely in terms of its discord rather than its concord. This is an area in which, reversing the older truism, good news is no news at all. —U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz.

Feels People Now Have Little Control

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In Mayor McLean Haig's discussion on civic government, it leaves us with a very capable man to admire on his topic of the development of municipal government from the early days of Britain, its adoption into the New World and the history and development of Belleville.

I agree that it is a sad state of affairs when the people do not show up to exercise the democratic right of nomination and vote without the influence of force. However in stating a natural tendency to forget to fill in the corners of the reasons why.

In the final place economy is more planned today than it ever was, economy should be planned on a development basis far into the future, however if the planning is developed for the sake

Yorkshire, the largest county in England, has a total area of about 6,090 square miles.

Irv Shulman New President Of Downtown Businessmen

"We must stick together if we are to remain alive — unity is vital to our businesses and the future of the downtown area," said Irving Shulman, first president of the newly-formed Downtown Businessmen's Association, following his election to office at the first annual meeting of the association held in the Columbus Hall yesterday evening.

Mr. Shulman advised that the groups aim was not to dictate policy but help further the progress of the community at large and the downtown area in particular. He stated that he, as president of the association, was prepared to work with any other group, even business interests outside the downtown area, if the end result were to make Belleville a more prosperous community.

The new president called for the co-operation and help of the associations members. The forthcoming year was most important and would require new and active members and members who were not afraid of doing some work. Mr. Shulman was most forceful in emphasizing the point that downtown businessmen would have to work hard in a co-operative effort to meet both current and anticipated competition from developments in other parts of the community.

The members approved a policy proposal requesting province-wide regulation of business hours through effective provincial legislation. This proposal will be passed on to the Chamber of Commerce for further action.

Consideration was given to a proposal for regular co-operative special sales amongst the membership to attract people into the various downtown stores. The new executive was empowered to make a study of this proposal. A formal plan for scheduled promotions is to be laid down later.

Also elected to the executive were Howard Hamilton (vice-president), G. B. Hyde (treasurer) and Ron Fox (secretary).

VIEW PLANS

In line with possible future projects which would benefit the community members saw a film on a street renovation project which was carried out in Norwich, England, and which resulted in transforming a somewhat aging, unattractive business section into a very attractive shopping area which experienced an uplift in business as well as appearances.

Mr. Graham Holland of the Norwich Union Insurance firm was the guest speaker for the occasion and gave an address following the film to further explain the mechanics behind such a project. He noted that a similar project was now being undertaken in Oakville and a number of other communities in Ontario.

The Norwich Plan, he explained, was to take a business area and attempt to improve its appearance and give it a character of its own under a group of architects and through the co-operative effort of the business men and the community.

The plan could be undertaken at a very reasonable cost, Mr. Holland explained, which would amount to little more than what might be normally spent for maintenance of attractive shop fronts. The major difference is that every place is renovated at the same time and under an overall direction which will both stress the individual business premises and yet produce a harmonious whole.

There were a number of questions following Mr. Holland's address and considerable discussion took place.

About 40 were present for the meeting

HONOR MACKAY

Found Guilty Of Neglecting Seven Children

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Jean Callahan, 41, was found guilty Tuesday of neglecting seven children. She was given a one-month jail term and fined $100.

Evidence at the trial, remanded 14 times since last June, was that the children were accepted for boarding at a modern bungalow in a fashionable district of suburban Scarborough, then transferred to a dilapidated house in mid-Toronto.

Crown counsel R. G. Poupore said the floors of the second house were filthy, no blankets or food were found in the house and the backyard was piled with garbage. He said board for each child was at least $11 a week and the children were kept for the sole purpose of making money.

Mrs. Callahan, mother of two teen-aged daughters, admitted previous convictions in 1948 for child neglect, in 1950 for keeping infants without a license and in 1960 for keeping infants without a licence.

Ice Damages Roman Ruins

ROME (AP) — Europe's severe winter has caused extensive damage to such famous Roman ruins as the Arch of Titus and the Baths of Septimius Severus.

Professor Gianfilippo Carettoni, superintendent of antiquities for the Roman Forum and the Palatine Hill, says that rain and snow trickled into tiny openings in the porous marble of dozens of monuments and frogs.

As the ice expanded it popped dangerous cracks in the archways, pillars and sunken passageways.

"Only radical preservation and restoration efforts will be able to save them," Carettoni said.

Seek to Focus Geneva Talks On Test Ban

GENEVA (AP) — President Kennedy's chief disarmament negotiator began a series of private talks with neutral delegates at the 17-nation disarmament conference today in an attempt to bring the main focus of the talks back to a ban on nuclear weapon tests.

U.S. delegate William C. Foster's first meeting was with Abdel Fattah Hassan of the United Arab Republic. He also scheduled talks with the Swedish and Nigerian delegations and with the delegates from Britain, Italy and Canada.

Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, surprised the delegates Tuesday with a proposal for a treaty banning the deployment of nuclear weapon systems in foreign lands and seas.

The proposal, unacceptable to the Western powers, overshadowed the test ban issue as the conference resumed after a two-month recess. Western delegates said Kuznetsov's proposal was a manoeuvre designed to draw attention away from Russian stalling tactics in the test ban negotiations.

One Western official speculated that the proposal might have been designed to impress the Chinese Communists — who are not represented here — with the Soviet Union's intransigence. The official said Kuznetsov himself must have been fully aware that the West was certain to reject the proposal.

The next session of the conference is scheduled for Thursday.

Student Loses Faith in Party

OTTAWA (CP)—Richard S. Comber, 23, president of the University of Waterloo Liberal Student Club, says he is resigning from the Liberal party to join the New Democratic party.

Mr. Comber told reporters at the national Liberal council meeting Tuesday, "I have lost confidence in the party and in its leadership." He said he has been a member of the policy committee of the Canadian University Liberal Federation for four years and a one-time candidate for the national vice-presidency.

Mr. Comber was critical of "Liberal backsliding on programs of social welfare, eagerness to compromise for immediate political advantage and in particular the party's unfortunate stand on the acquisition of nuclear arms."

Red Wings Win Midget Puck Series

Through lack of proper information the minor hockey story appearing on today's sports pages stating that the Red Wings defeated the Rangers 4-3 in the first game of a midget goals-to-count series is incorrect. Wings won the game 4-3 but it was the second game of the series. Red Wings also won the first game, 4-1, thus captured the series last night by a total score of 8-4.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

By pegg rogers

HOW MUCH DO YOU REALLY SPEND ON CLOTHES?

For over a year now, we have been conducting a quiet research program, in order to come up with a workable fashion budget for three types of Canadian women. These are, the career "girl" under 40 — the young married under 40 (both homemaker and-or working girl) and the middle-aged woman, again, either homemaker or working girl, or both.

The one concrete fact to emerge so far, from all our questions and interviews is that the middle-aged woman usually buys more expensive clothes than the career girls, but certainly less often. Income group seems to have very little to do with it. The wife of the $25,000 a year executive will buy a cotton dress for $25, as willingly as the $65-a-week steno, although the steno expects more from her $25 than the wife of the executive.

There seems to be little relationship between the cost of a suit or dress and the price of the accessories to be worn with it. It has always been our belief that money invested in handbags, shoes, gloves, scarves and jewelry, should be just that — an investment, which will last at least three of four years. Our research has shown us that many women will buy an expensive cloth coat and then complete the ensemble with a $6.98 hat, a $5.98 handbag, along with last year's shoes, which originally cost $12.98.

A recent survey published in the United States indicates that the average woman spends $150 a year on clothes. We are waiting for the comparable Canadian figures, which should be out soon. Our own results range from a well-planned $36.75 (this gal is organized and an expert sewer and knitter) to an opulent $1,000, shown by one of Canada's top, women, public relations officers. In the course of her work, she appears regularly on TV and addresses women's clubs on an average of twice a week, so her appearance is part of her job.

When we ask our la(ti)st question, "How much do you really spend on clothes?" the answers vary from, "I haven't the slightest idea" to "far too much" or "far too little".

They do agree that they would rather own one good suit or dress than two or three less expensive ones. Everyone we questioned, was interested in the survey and many of these women are now keeping careful track of each dollar spent on fashion, with the eventual hope of making this money go a little farther.

Many of the credos of the fashion world, such as, a hat should cost one third of the price of its companion suit or dress, are not being followed. It is quite possible that these values have changed, just as our world is changing. But, it's still a good question — "How much do you really spend on clothes?"

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of the Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville Ont.

PRINCE ARRIVES

OTTAWA (CP)—Prince Albert of Liege, 28-year-old brother of King Baudouin of the Belgians, arrived in the capital Tuesday night on a 12-day visit to Canada after a two-hour drive from Montreal's Dorval Airport.

S. Hastings Y.P.U. Holds Rally Meet

On Monday approximately 75 young people of the South Hastings district gathered at Canniffon United Church for the annual rally with Canniffon Y.P.U. acting as hosts for the evening.

Glen Chambers gave a hearty welcome to all. Those present from College Hill led in the worship service.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mr. C. Dawson, of Canniffon charge who gave an inspiring and challenging talk for everyone.

During the election of officers, conducted by Rev. Bob Nicholls, of Plainfield, who will also act as district supervisor for the coming year, those elected for 1963 are: Glen Chambers, president; Don Bowers, vice-president; Wayne Luman, treasurer; Gordon Hamilton, secretary.

Recreation was held in the Orange Hall, Canniffon, in the form of a dance, with music supplied by Mr. J. Ketcheson, of Belleville.

Many thanks go to Judy Dafoe and Clare Smitarin for leading the singsong, and to all others who helped in any way. The new executive hopes that the success of the rally will be indicative of the coming year.

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

The president, Mrs. Douglas Brenton, presided for the February meeting of Canniffon United Church Women, held in the Sunday school rooms of the church, and extended a warm welcome to all. She read a poem, "Forgive Us Lord."

Business period followed. Mrs. W. Brenton, supply secretary, read the list of supply work for the coming year.

The World Day of Prayer is March 1, to be held in the evening at 8.00 p.m., with the Evening Unit and younger groups joining.

Mrs. G. Brenton took the chapter, "God the Creator" from the book by Dr. Donald Mathers, "The Word and the Way." The doctrine of creation is a basic Christian belief. It is not a scientific description of how the physical universe took shape. It is a theological description of how God was, and is, and always will be related, to the whole of nature. God is creator; everything else is His creation.

"The doctrine of creation helps us to pray; it helps us to have a sound attitude toward body and spirit. God gave us bodies and we ought to accept them reverently and use them reverently. It helps us to have a sound view of ourselves. Believing in God as creator we can think of ourselves as creatures; we can accept the fact there are limits to our powers, that there are many things we cannot do as well as other people, or as we can't do at all. But knowing this, we can still rejoice in what God had given us; use our talents to the full, and commit all we do to a wise Creator."

Mrs. T. Howard, group leader, was in charge of the program, having as her theme for the worship service "Praise the Lord for His Creativity," with Mrs. Bolding reading the Scripture followed by meditation and prayer.

Mrs. C. Dawson told a story from "Hasten the Day," about a retired minister and his wife who found new suburbs without churches or leadership and what he did to overcome some of its problems.

Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Dawson rendered a lovely duet, followed by a reading by Mrs. D. Brenton, about Asian and Chinese immigrants, their problems, new language, loneliness and working conditions and how the church can help to overcome some of these.

Springbrook Rawdon Story Given at W.I.

BONARLAW — Mrs. W. J. Barlow was hostess to the W.I. on Wednesday afternoon with a large attendance of members and two visitors.

Mrs. M. Cassidy presided, and opened the meeting in usual manner, and thanked Mrs. Barlow for opening her home.

It was decided to give a quilt to a burned-out friend. The W.I. will hold a card party at the home of Mrs. George Williams later in February.

Ten dollars was donated to the County Home for treats and cards of thanks were received from Mrs. Yorke and the children's fund. Ten dollars was donated to the building fund for the Retarded Infants' Home at Plainfield and $25 donated for the recreation centre at Springbrook and 13.95 realized from the card party.

The conveners for citizenship Mrs. G. Thompson and Mrs. McCoy put on the following program. Mrs. G. Broadworth gave a paper on 'electricity'. Mrs. G. Thompson introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Wesley Thompson who gave a splendid address on Springbrook and Rawdon Township, and passed around record books dating back to 1856. He told of the road conditions in early years, and how Springbrook had two churches, two hotels, two banks, three stores, a blacksmith shop, bake shop and a harness shop, cheese factory and two lodge-rooms and butcher shop, a grain elevator, also a woodwork shop and school. The late John Morgan owned the grist mill which also cut lumber. There was a cheesebox plant.

This was followed by a humorous reading by Mr. Thompson on early settlers.

Mrs. Cassidy thanked Mr. Thompson for his splendid address.

Several pieces of stones were on display that were taken from the Bancroft area and mine at Marmora. Some were polished and made into jewellery.

Mrs. McCoy put on a contest on 'Authors'.

Refreshments were served by hostess and assistants.

'Christian Education' Topic at U.C.W.

The Shannonville United Church Women held their regular February meeting at the home of Mrs. Raymond Clarke on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of 24.

The president, Mrs. Asa Cook extended a cordial welcome to all and opened the meeting.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. Don Thompson.

Mrs. Orval Stratton led in prayer. The Scripture selected from Deuteronomy 17:14-20 was read by Mrs. Ken Juby, with Mrs. Doug Lauer giving the comment on the Scripture read.

PROGRAM

Mrs. Don Thompson prepared the program and presented an interesting paper on "Christian Education" — The Teaching Ministry of the Church" by James D. Smart.

James Smart has undertaken the task of calling the church to a rethinking, not only of its Christian education policies, but of the whole teaching ministry of the church as it has been called of God to make disciples of all nations.

Ministers have felt that the educational function was not essential to their ministry and felt imposed upon when asked to assume responsibility for Christian education in the local church. There are many references in both old and new testaments to show that preaching and teaching go hand-in-hand and that one is invalid without the other.

There has been a lack of concern within the church regarding Sunday School teaching and the pupils senses this lack of concern and soon feels that he is too old for Sunday School.

There are three main agencies for Christian education, the church worship, the Christian home and the church school. Because the home and the church have not fulfilled their responsibilities there has been an unfair burden on the church school.

A GOD-CENTRED HOME

The answer is, a home where God is made so much the centre that it comes as naturally to the child to turn to God in prayer as it is to eat when he's hungry. The child should be free to ask religious questions in the home and have his doubts discussed. But the average parent is uncomfortable in this subject and so avoids it.

Miss Carlene Smith of this city recently placed second as her fellow students at Ryerson Institute of Technology voted to select "Miss Ryerson" for this year.

Miss Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith, 54 Greenlawn Avenue, graduated from BCIVS last summer and is taking the medical laboratory course at Ryerson.

Chosen the delegate of the Circle K club in the Miss Ryerson contest, she took time out from her microscope to make her beautiful gown for the gala event.

The answer here is more adult education. The congregation must recognize its responsibility for Christian education in the local church, "We are called to be the church for which Jesus Christ lived and died."

The business period followed.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

An invitation from the Melrose U.C.W. to join them for the World's Day of Prayer service on March 1 at 2 p.m. was accepted.

Mrs. S. Elliott, chairman for the social functions, presented the plans made by the committee for the ensuing year. Approval was given. There will be a pie social in April. A spring tea in May, and the date for the strawberry social in June was set.

Mrs. Thompson closed the meeting.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held on March 7 at church hall with Mrs. Reg Galbraith in charge. There will be a quilting in the afternoon with a pot-luck supper to follow.

Alpha Lambda Plans Black, Gold Ball

An open meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, was held recently at the home of Mrs. C. Young. Members discussed the plans being formulated for the annual "Black and Gold Ball" to be held in the spring.

A report was made regarding the Sorority's adopted children. Members and rushees were invited to attend with their husbands the forthcoming "Valentine Party."

Mrs. T. Shaw introduced Sorority Sister, Mrs. D. Ivison, who presented a program "The History of Dress." Mrs. Ivison, by following the suggested outline from the Beta Sigma Phi program book was able to make an interesting resume of the history of dress.

Mrs. Ivison first mentioned Eve, then various Biblical characters as well as the Egyptians, Romans and Greeks.

Along with her talk, Mrs. Ivison had pictures to illustrate the dress worn through the Middle Ages, the Renaissance, the Baroque and Napoleonic periods; the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

To complete her presentation Mrs. Ivison conducted a contest of identifying various drawings pertaining to different periods.

Mrs. B. Walmsley thanked Mrs. Ivison for her informative program.

Mrs. D. Fedrick assisted the hostess, Mrs. Young, in serving refreshments.

RITUAL OF PLEDGES

Also, recently, at the home of Mrs. P. Poulin, the impressive candlelight pledge ritual was conducted for pledges Mrs. R. Ward and Mrs. B. Ward-man. Mrs. W. Tatham and Mrs. R. Ketcheson received the Ritual of Jewels degree. The social committee with Mrs. C. Newell conducting the entertainment made this evening memorable for all Sorority sisters present.

MADE BIG CHANGE

In 1893 only three household electrical appliances were available—an iron, a toaster and a coffee maker. Today there are about 100.

Club Activities

C.A. SERVICE

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle held the C.A. service last Friday evening. President Keith Helm welcomed everyone and opened the service. Mrs. Fred Spring led in prayer. Song leader for the evening was Mr. Bob Smith of Peterborough.

Following the singing of a number of hymns; Mrs. Lonnie Reilly and Mr. Paul Spurrell sang the duet, "Until Then."

Vice-president Reg. Williams conducted a testimony and chorus time.

Mrs. L. Reilly and Mr. Paul Spurrell sang the duet, "Precious Hiding Place." The evening message was given by Mr. Lonnie Reilly, taken from 1st Corinthians 13, speaking on "God's Love Manifested In Our Lives."

Premier Asks Women to Join Crusade

TORONTO (CP)—More than 2,000 women from all parts of Ontario were asked to become "salesmen" for Canadian goods by Economics and Development Minister Robert Macaulay Tuesday night.

Pleading for support from women for Ontario's current Trade Crusade, aimed at creating 60,000 more jobs in Ontario by 1970, Mr. Macaulay said he has never advocated a buy Canadian campaign as such.

It is only common sense to buy Canadian goods if their price and quality are comparable to the price and quality of imported goods, the minister said.

"We can sell abroad but we have to start selling here."

After entertaining the women at an all Canadian dinner at the Royal York Hotel—the menu included consommee au sherry, roast Lake Simcoe duckling, fiddle heads saute, spiced Niagara peach, tricolor parfait and petit fours—Mr. Macaulay reminded his guests that they are responsible for spending 85 per cent of every consumer dollar.

He said the women's division of the Trade Crusade, established by 250 at a meeting Tuesday would give the government advice which it could translate into action.

The women's division hopes to establish 10 working committees to study hard and soft goods manufacturing, product promotion, design, natural resources, retailing, consumer purchasing, human resources and economics.

Trinity U.C.W. To Hold 'Training Day'

Miss Olive Ashe, Madoc, president of Trinity U.C.W., was hostess to the Belleville Presbyterial United Church Women's executive on Monday afternoon in Trinity United Church parlor. Eighteen members were present.

Presbyterial president, Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, Trenton, presided and conducted a brief worship period taken from the book, "Strengthening the Spiritual Life" by Nels F. S. Ferre.

A great deal of business was transacted setting up committees and appointing delegates.

A "Training Day"-for presidents and executive members is to be held on March 23rd in Holloway Street Church, Belleville. A sub-committee of mesdames Morgan Sills, Ameliasburg; George Carlisle, Stirling; Leslie Finkle, Foxboro; Kenneth Weaver, Stirling; Charles Johnston, Trenton; Frank Davidson and Grant Coulter of Belleville was appointed to arrange this program.

Voting delegates to U.C.W. Conference in Brighton, March 18-19 are Mesdames Harry Pierson, Wellington; Keith Bray, Ivanhoe; C. W. Smith and Grant Coulter, Belleville; Charles Johnston, Trenton, and Frank Smith, Newburgh.

Two discussion group leaders —Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. Keith Bray— were appointed for the school for U.C.W. being held in Whitby in August.

Mrs. Smithrim closed the meeting with St. Jude's benediction.

Miss Ashe and members of Trinity U.C.W. served refreshing cups of tea and coffee with fruit bread and cheese.

Prophetic Fashion

By VERA WINSTON

This charming coat of pale, pastel-loned mohair has a fluffy feel and a chic air and is a resort number that is prophetic of Spring.

Shaped seams from the underarm contain slit pockets. Drop shoulder seams flank the wide-away, notched collar.

Although a belt cinches the high waistline, the coat can be worn without it.

Lovely in pale apricot, rose, heavenly blue or bone white—a perfect all-purpose coat.

PRODUCTION DROPS

Steel ingot production in the week ended Feb. 9 eased .6 per cent to 143,444 tons from 144,271 a week earlier. Output in the same 1962 period was 138,094 tons. The index of production, based on the average weekly output during 1957-59 of 96,108 tons equalling 100, was 149 in the week ended Feb. 9, compared with 150 a week earlier and 144 a year ago.

Kiwanis L.A. Hears History Of Club

Last Thursday evening, members of the Kiwanis Ladies Auxiliary met at the Kiwanis centre for the February meeting. Despite the extreme cold weather, there was a good attendance.

The meeting was opened by president Mary Denton, who welcomed the members and introduced the speaker for the evening, Dr. Robert Brain.

Dr. Brain graduated from the Ohio College of Podiatry in 1954 and in the same year came to Belleville, and took up the practice of Podiatry. Dr. Brain was president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club in 1961.

Dr. Brain chose as his subject "Kiwanis". The first club was formed in Detroit, Michigan in 1914 by Joe Prance and Alan Brown. Today, there are over 5,000 clubs in Canada and the United States with a membership of over 270,000 and is spreading through the free countries of Europe.

1ST KIWANIS CLUB

The name "Kiwanas" (or Kiwanis") is derived from three Indian words and means, "we find pleasure in sharing our talents with others". On January 21st, 1915 the charter for Kiwanis International was granted. In 1916 the first Kiwanis Club was formed in Canada at Hamilton, Ontario. The Kiwanis motto is "We Build". The Kiwanis have a magazine called "Kiwanis magazine." Key Clubs are sponsored by Kiwanis and the first Key Club was formed in 1925. Helping underprivileged children is one of the basic purposes of Kiwanis International.

Ina Bellstedt thanked Dr. Brain for his most interesting and informative talk on Kiwanis.

A short business session followed.

Rita Coleman reminded everyone this was White Cane Week in Canada.

A Red Cross Blood Donor's Clinic will be held at the Centre on February 28th from two to four p.m. and from seven to eight p.m.

Carm Mott announced the marathon bridge is going smoothly and a dessert bridge will be held at the Kiwanis Centre in March. Everyone is asked to bring a dessert.

Due to illness, Thelma Freestone was unable to be out.

With the completion of business the meeting was closed and lunch served by Elsie Trafford and her group, and a social half hour followed.

Mother's Helper

WEE PUPPET PEOPLE can join the Hallowe'en celebration at your house. Core an apple for each child (and for you, too)—red ones are all right, but the golden variety is better for color. Draw a Jack O'Lantern face on the apple, drape a white cloth over your hand, put your pointer finger where the core used to be. Thumb and third finger become the puppet's arms.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Sidney T. — I'm afraid of her expensive tastes.

Jeanne P. — He can change jobs and enjoy life more.

• • •

Sidney T. —I'm a bachelor of 48. Two months ago I met a very charming widow of 42, and after one date with her I became really interested in seeing her regularly. Visions of love and marriage danced in my head. They'd still dance, except for one thing. She seems too demanding in money matters. It was all right to spend $30 on our first date. I was prepared to splurge with dinner and a Broadway show. But when I've limited my expenses on the last few outings to just a movie and coffee, she gives me a lecture about quitting my job to earn more money. I've worked at the same place for fifteen years and I make $125 a week. Lots of couples live nicely on that. Why should she make things so hard?

Jeanne P. — He is missing so much out of life, simply because he has settled back in a humdrum job and hasn't the money to travel or to live graciously. I feel I was sent into his life to open his eyes. Isn't that what a woman is for — to get a man to bestir himself for his own good?

He's not too old to get a better job. But he is perfectly content with his present one, even though he certainly doesn't make enough for us both to live on. His idea is to marry me and have me keep on working. What good is that? I'd have nothing but a hard life to look forward to — either working the rest of it, or never having the money for any comforts. Where's his ambition?

The Council: Sidney has plenty of ambition, Jeanne, but it's not aimed in the same direction as yours. His eye seems to be on love and marriage, while yours is on loot and marriage!

There'd have to be a compelling reason for a man to quit a job where he's happy and where he has built up 15 years of seniority recognition, is there a better one, a sure-bet one, offered to him? Does his health demand moving to a different geographical area? No. The only argument for pulling up stakes is to go after a salary which will provide Jeanne with the lavish things she bankers after. And since Jeanne is what Sidney bankers after, he's understandably shaken.

It's true that shaking up a man slightly, sowing a few seeds of discontent, can be constructive when the brighter alternatives are there for the asking and the grasping. "Never underestimate the power of a woman" is the guide-line for American industry. It's the little woman who moves mountains of men from 3-room apartments to that cottage small by the waterfall.

But Jeanne's prodding isn't the helpful, convincing sort. If it were prompted by love for Sidney she'd hold up more solid goals for him based upon lasting values — such as, for example building a nest-egg. It would be a we-two together project, with Jeanne pitching in too — either by outside employment or inside economies. By contrast, her emphasis upon acquiring possessions, luxuries and ease for herself, with Sidney lapping up a few fringe benefits in return for slaving away, Her scale of values is false. With such a superficial purpose she could not contribute to a happy marriage. Both would wind up disappointed having gained nothing of what they really wanted — no peace for him, no high-stepping for her.

Sidney may or may not earn more money in the future. But if he marries, it should be to a woman who wants the same sort of future he does — one he can afford without breaking his back.

IODE Elects 1963 Officers

The annual meeting of the St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E. was held at the home of Mrs. W. E. Sandercock, 228 William Street. The presentation of the flag and prayer of the Order opened the meeting to a large and keenly interested group.

With the regular meeting adjourned, Regent, Mrs. R. M. Patterson, called on officers and conveners for their reports. Mrs. Ross, of the chapter when heard in its entirety, is amazing in its scope. Bursaries, scholarships, awards and prizes to the amount of hundreds of dollars are given annually; knitting and sewing for relief purposes, parcels of books to soldiers' recreational centres; Christmas baskets to war veterans' families in need, form the nucleus of other activities.

Blood donor clinics; Canteer Society and United Appeal also are assisted generously and the Chapel welcomed New Canadians at Citizenship Court.

Mrs. G. Watkis presided for the installation of the new officers for 1963.

The slate as presented follows: honorary regent, Mrs. R. M. Patterson; regent, Mrs. Ralph C. Bigger; 1st vice-regent, Mrs. Geo. Hume; treasurer, Mrs. Ross Taylor; secretary, Mrs. K. M. Putnam; asst. secretary, Mrs. J. R Reynolds; educational secretary, Mrs C. R. Whittemore; 'Echoes' secretary, Miss Evaleen Ferguson; services secretary, Mrs. G. M. Gibbons; standard bearer, Mrs. S. Kvarda.

Conveners: commonwealth relations, Mrs. Chas. Cox; civil defence, Mrs. E. F. Rutherford; world affairs, Mrs. J. M. Parrott; films, Mrs. F. M. Carcellier; hospitality, Mrs. F. Hrachovec, 2nd Mrs. J. ## Are Announcements Proper?

DEAR DORIS—We are having a quiet wedding and not sending out printed invitations. Should we still send wedding announcements?—IN DOUBT.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR IN DOUBT—You may. Or you might write a short note to warm friends to say "I think you will be pleased to know that I was married today to . . . . We are leaving on a little trip but will be back by . . . . . Our new address is . . . . . Write them ahead, mail right after the knot is tied.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—I have moved to a university town and live with my grandmother. By living with her, I have cut down my expenses, and I do believe I am company for her.

I realize that there are bound to be differences between a nineteen-year-old and a seventy-one-year old. However, she has accused me of horrible things—which I have neither said nor done. When I try to explain things, she tells me that I am only nineteen and do not know what I am talking about.

If my marks permit, and I can find a way of telling her and my parents, I think I would like to try renting a suite with some other boys next year. I do not want to hurt anybody, so would you please tell me a way of telling them?—GREY.

DEAR GREY—Since she believes the worst when it is not so, what chance have you to make a friendly break? Yet it's worth your best effort. Tell her how much you appreciate having her; that she has helped you make friends and now you can carry your own weight. Promise to come and see her sometimes—and do it.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—A few weeks ago my boy friend and I had quite a misunderstanding; mostly my fault. Now he ignores me completely. Is there any way that I can apologize without making a fool of myself? My mother thinks that I'm too young to be upset over a boy, but even though I am only sixteen, he means a great deal to me.—NOT TOO YOUNG.

• • •

DEAR NOT—Friendship matters at any age. Be big enough to apologize.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—I have been thinking lately of entering one of the armed forces but don't know how to go about getting information about it; especially about what a young girl has to do to gain entrance and can do after entering—LOVE THE ARMY.

• • •

DEAR LOVE—Write to one or all of: Royal Canadian Air Force, Royal Canadian Navy, Army Recruiting Station. Address is the same for all three: 239 Queen Street, Ottawa, Canada.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Our son became engaged and brought his girl friend home with him for a weekend. Now we live about 150 miles apart and we have never met the girl's parents. Do the bride's parents make the first approach or is it proper for us to take the first step and ask them down for a dinner?—JUST WONDERING.

• • •

DEAR JUST—The young man does the asking, and his parents follow up. A dinner invitation would break the ice nicely.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

Acknowledging receipt of wedding gifts often poses a few problems. Here are some typical questions from readers:

1. Who writes the thank-you notes?

2. Who should be thanked?

3. When a gift is from a married couple, to whom is the note addressed?

4. If the donor is a friend of the groom, who should acknowledge it?

5. How is a present sent by a group — of co-workers, for example — acknowledged?

6. What's the most gracious way of acknowledging a cheque or a gift certificate?

7. If a present is to be exchanged, should this be mentioned in the thank-you note?

8. May a printed thank-you card be sent instead of a personal note?

9. How is a thank-you note signed before the wedding?

10. What form is used when notes are sent after the wedding has taken place?

ANSWERS:

1. The bride writes the thank-you notes on her social stationery, making sure that she makes specific reference to the gift in the message.

2. Everyone who sends a gift, including close friends and relatives who live nearby and by whom the bride sees constantly.

3. To the wife. When the bride says "thank you" in the note, it automatically includes the husband, as well.

4. The bride, even if she's never met the donor, before.

5. If names are listed individually, a note should be sent to each. If the gift card has a collective signature such as "The Steno Pool," a single note is sent in response.

6. It's gracious to mention what the bride and groom plan to buy for their new home with the cheque or gift certificate.

7. A note is sent in acknowledgment of the gift received. If it's to be exchanged, the bride may mention this fact at her own discretion, depending on her relationship with the donor.

8. It's not considered good form. A handwritten personal note is traditional and more appropriate.

9. With the bride's first name and maiden surname. Naturally she just signs her first name if the note's to a relative or close friend.

10. The bride may sign her first name and her married name, or her first name, maiden name and married name. In cases where donors might not recognize her married surname alone.

BY VERA WINSTON

Moygashel linen is the posh fabric, crisp and sparkling. Here it makes a delightful resort dress done in three tones of blue or pink or in two tones of beige with a white yoke.

The neckline is slightly lower in a V-cut in back. Pockets are slashed into the side front of the skirt.

The dress is fashioned with clever precision to do right by the figure.

Small Talk

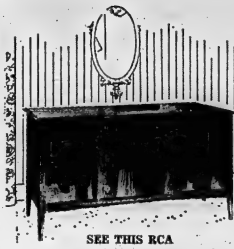
by Jean Cherry

Numerous novels have told of people being married on the high seas by the captain of the ship and it always seems so romantic to me — you know, beyond the blue horizon and the 30-mile limit — maybe on the way from Singapore to Saudi Arabia.

Is it true?

G. K. Nield of London — he's European public relations officer for Canadian Pacific, says, "There is no truth whatever in the idea which still persists that Masters may perform a marriage ceremony."



It seems that for the ceremony to be legal, it must be performed by a minister of religion, with the Master of the ship making the appropriate entries in the official log book. There is absolutely nothing in the Merchant Shipping Acts which suggests that a shipmaster has the right or privilege to marry a couple even in an emergency such as impending death.

Perhaps people have been led to believe that a ship-master can perform the marriage ceremony because he officiates at shipboard church service and burial services.

Obviously there is frequently some urgency in burying someone who has died on board, but it is a matter of respect for the dead that a service is held — and anyone can conduct it. It does not have to be the captain, although as ship-master he must comply with the Merchant Shipping Acts as far as log book entries and completing the forms for the Ministry of Transport records.

When the fates come marching in and a baby is born aboard ship, here again it is obvious that the master must comply with certain formalities so proper records can be kept on shore.

So, the only time a captain can marry two people is in books and movies. But the diagnostic truth is that each time he does, it perpetuates the fallacy. (C).

Women More Practical Than Men Buying House

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—Women are far more practical than men when it comes to buying a house, says Mrs. Shirley Brunke, chairman of the women's division of the Toronto real estate board.

"That would be a lovely house if we didn't have to live every day" is a comment made by women to Mrs. Brunke.

The everyday little things that influence a woman's choice of a home are such things as a door directly from the garage into the house for bringing in groceries, an entrance through which service people can go into the basement without passing through other parts of the house, and especially if she has children, a main floor washroom.

Women consider whether the furniture they already have will be appropriate for their new house. "If they have been accustomed to modern design and furniture they are hesitant about older and colonial styled homes."

"Women are also tired of being chauffeurs and want to live near libraries, schools, shopping centres."

KITCHEN IMPORTANT

The kitchen is one of the most important factors in a women's choice of a home, says Mrs. Brunke. "If a woman likes two houses that are about the same price, she will probably choose the one with the nicer kitchen."

Although women are practical, they usually ask for houses that are "different" or "sneaky." They also look for charm in a house, says Mrs. Brunke.

"When you walk into some houses, you don't feel anything. When you walk into others, you feel as though you would like to get to know the people that live there or did live there. Women notice this difference right away."

Mrs. Brunke was trained as a dietitian but switched to real estate eight years ago because it is well-paying and she can work from home, on her own time.

"Many people just see me floating from lunch to an appointment and then home and think my job is all glamor. But there's a lot of hard work," she says. When she first started selling, she worked from eight o'clock in the morning until midnight, day after day.

To sell real estate, a woman must have the ability to pick herself up after disappointments and keep going.

"When first starting, people may go as long as six months without making a sale. When just beginning, a private income, even a few dollars a month, is a good thing—so you won't starve."

CONNECTIONS HELP

Robert Johnston of the firm in which Mrs. Brunke is a sales agent says that in addition to a pleasant personality and optimistic temperament, some sort of connection — business, church or social—is a great help to a woman.

But [illegible] she has to be [illegible] and find the product she can sell it, he says an overly-aggressive personality would not be suited for the work.

"People are very sensitive about their homes and don't like to feel that they are being sold a bill of goods."

Mrs. Brunke was the first of five Canadian women to become a fellow of the Canadian Institute of Realtors, by successfully passing a three-year university course which includes study of architecture, town planning, economics, law, brokerage, insurance, property management and accounting.

Women have been in the real estate business in Canada for about 40 years and between 10 and 12 per cent of the 13,000 members of the Canadian Institute of Realtors are women, she says.

Festive Fashion

By VERA WINSTON

Depicted is a dress and jacket ensemble that would be a good choice for the mother of the bride, especially if chosen for resort wear or anywhere else that enjoys a benign climate.

The dress is a sheath with a bodice of re-embroidered lace. The skirt is of linen and is gathered a bit for ease from the waist.

The matching linen jacket dips in a curved line in back.

Comes in bone white, shell pink, maize yellow or pale blue to linen of the finest quality.

Women Put Two Questions To Liberals

OTTAWA (CP)—Making an unscheduled appearance in a closed Liberal council meeting Tuesday, members of the Voice of Women succeeded in putting two questions to party officials on nuclear weapons.

Mrs. Charlotte McEwen of Ottawa, a member of the VoW's Ontario committee, said later that replies were made from the head table by J. W. Pickersgill, MP for Bonavista-Twillingate. Her questions and his answers:

Question: Will there be a role for a Liberal candidate who is not convinced of the need for haste in signing the final agreement on the nuclear warheads but who supports the party platform in all other respects.

Answer: The Liberal party is a democratic party. If a majority of members in a riding convention wish to choose the candidate who differs on this one question, I do not believe he would be repudiated by the party.

Question: Will the party whip operate on votes on nuclear arms or would it be a free vote to accommodate those Liberals who have general misgivings?

Answer: Canada is a free country. No whip can control the votes of members in any way whatever and I am sure confirmed these replies.

SNAFFY-SNIPPERS

Bethel - Zion 4-H "Snappy-Snippers" held their seventh meeting last Saturday, with nine members, one visitor and two leaders present.

Roll call, something I have learned about making a garment was well answered.

The collection amounted to 32 cents.

Next meeting will be a work meeting on February 16.

Discussion included plans for a skit for Achievement Day.

Mrs. Tufts gave out sheets for the members to check their skirts and blouses and record books by. Achievement Day programs were also given out.

Demonstration — Mrs. Tufts showed the correct way of pulling on the skirt bands, which are finished with slip-stitching. Mrs. Tufts also demonstrated how to put the skirts and blouses on the hangers for exhibit for Achievement Day.

Ann Emerson demonstrated the using of the automatic button-hoier.

no Liberal whip would ask a candidate to vote against his conscience on this question. We need to put beside this the need for a reliable majority to insure stable government. It would be very sad if there would ever be a Canadian Parliament when no Liberal would vote according to his conscience.

College Hill W.R. Club Enjoys Film

A recent meeting of the Wedding Ring Club of College Hill was entertained with films shown by Mr. and Mrs. J. Parrott, on their most intriguing trip around the world.

Mr. Don Dafoe introduced Mr. and Mrs. Parrott. The films shown of their trip, in part were most timely in transporting the viewers for a short time beyond the Tea, and snows of a Canadian winter and gave all a strong desire to soon see the first sign of spring.

Many thanks are due to Mr. and Mrs. Parrott for their time and efforts to provide a wonderful evening of entertainment for the Wedding Ring Club.

Mr. Don Dafoe made a token presentation on behalf of the club at this time.

A rather lengthy business session was in charge of the presidents Monte and Sue Moorcroft, It was stated there is a substantial amount within the treasury at this time.

Several notes of thanks from the elderly and shut-ins receiving Christmas gifts were read by the president. Reports were heard on the couples' New Year Party at Albert College by Don Dafoe. John Townsend also gave a report on the enjoyable bowling party held in late January by the social conveners, the John Townsends.

A motion for the club to provide church stationery for the year, was approved; also a motion in regards to the amount to be presented to the building fund being added to before turning it over to the committee in charge.

Madam president, Sue Moorcroft, and madam, vice-president, Orlene Clot, set a tentative date of March 30th for a dance and games night to which another club could be invited.

With the adjournment of business, the worship service was led by John and Millie Townsend with Millie Townsend reading the Scripture.

Don Dafoe gave a story on "Humility".

Mrs. Parrott was pianist for the evening hymns. John Townsend closed the worship with a prayer.

Group 2 served a delicious lunch.

An enthusiastic social hour followed.

Today's Cooking Magic

Potatoes and Oranges

Cookbook No. 11—Recipe No. 3

DISHES CHILDREN LOVE

Children that eat well are generally healthy children, that is, if they eat the right kind of food. And the secret of getting their interest in the right foods is to serve it attractively. Here is a nourishing dish taken from the Culinary Arts Cookbook Dishes Children Love. What could be a more tempting dish or better balanced diet than potatoes and oranges served this delightful way. Every mother should have a copy of this cookbook.

SWEET POTATOES IN A BASKET

Scrub and rinse 4 medium-size (about 1½ lbs.) sweet potatoes.

Cover with boiling salted water and cook, covered, 30 to 35 minutes, or until tender when pierced with a fork. While potatoes cook, cut into halves crosswise 3 large oranges.

With a spoon or grapfruit knife, remove pulp sections from inside dividing membranes. With scissors or knife trim and remove membranes from orange shells. Set aside orange shells, cut-sides down, to drain thoroughly.

Peel potatoes. Pour boiling water over potato masher, food mill or ricer and bowl to heat thoroughly. Mash or rice potatoes into bowl.

Add orange pulp and a mixture of 2 tablespoons brown sugar; 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon seasoning. Whip until light and fluffy. Pile lightly into orange shells. Top each with one of 6 marshmallow halves.

Place filled baskets on broiler rack. Set temperature control of range at broil. Place in broiler with tops of marshmallows about 4 inches from source of heat until marshmallows are browned and slightly melted. Makes 6 servings.

You'll find in "Dishes Children Love" nutritious recipes like the above.

Mother's Helper

WHEN IT'S TIME to send your Christmas cards, your children will be proud to help with the job. They can chose envelopes, put on stamps and seals. As you write the address, mark an "X" on the spot where the stamp goes. Even a non-reader won't make a mistake—the stamp covers the "X". (Be sure your helpers can distinguish stamps from seals.)

Lots of Work For Women Aboard Boat

VANCOUVER (CP) — At a time when more and more women are forsaking the role of housewife to seek careers, Mrs. H. G. Groom is a bit an unsual.

A graduate of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London she has abandoned her dancing career to do her husband's mending.

Mrs. Groom came to Canada in 1948 and taught dancing in Winnipeg before moving to Vancouver five years ago. Here she met her husband-to-be, a fisherman, and gradually lost interest in the stage and dancing classes.

The Grooms have a home in nearby Coquitlam but from June to September they're never home. Their summers are spent aboard their 39-foot gillnetter, Mr. Groom doing the fishing, his wife spending much of her time mending torn nets.

The attractive, auburn-haired woman says she enjoys mending, so much so that she has enrolled in a course at the British Columbia Vocational School in suburban Burnaby to brush up on her technique.

"It's expensive to have the nets mended," she says, "and the way I used to mend them scared the fish away."

What, besides mending, does a woman do aboard a fishing boat?

"A bit of everything," says Mrs. Groom. "Each spring I paint the boat while my husband goes over it mechanically. While we're aboard I cook and I clean, I steer and I keep my husband company. And if necessary I can pitch fish"—that is, pitch the fish from the fishing boat on to a packer.

Memorial Service Held By Stirling W.I.

Mrs. W. C. West was hostess to the Stirling Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon, with a good Attendance of members present.

Mrs. R. Reid chaired the meeting with the usual opening exercises, conducted with Mrs. R. Stapley as pianist.

"Household Hints" included using an egg white with cream when iced and it will not be watery—oil just the bottom of the cake pan as oiling the sides prevents batter from rising its desired height.

Secretary Mrs. P. Bronson read the correspondence. A letter from Miss E. Spouse, 4-H Club home economist, Napanee.

At this point the secretary suggested the placing of magazines of the W. I. in various public places, so others may receive a benefit from its contents.

The "Federated News" was handed out to those who subscribed to it.

Treasurer Mrs. W. C. West reported $17 handed in to the representative for the branch to the Hastings Museum will be Mrs. P. Bronson.

For the "Festival of Sacred Praise" held at St. Paul's United Church the Stirling Women's Institute is presenting a Bible to the boy or girl who will be chosen for the best Scripture reading."

A committee of two ladies, Mrs. W. C.-West and Mrs. B. Reid was appointed to arrange for the selling of a dozen card tables.

A donation for Stirling Fall Fair will be given again this year with Mrs. M. Ayerhart, and Mrs. B. Reid as a judging committee.

Mrs. R. Stapley has been a busy lady mailing out to different addresses in Manitoba, Indian Sanitorium, a missionary school in Formosa, three different places in England, work being done by the limbless veterans, used Christmas cards, with 225 cards per box. Ten boxes up to date have been sent. Money was voted to give Mrs. Stapley to assist in her work.

The quilt making question was again discussed, with a suitable pattern being chosen, with Mrs. E. Foster volunteering to cut out the pattern for the entire quilt. Each member will be expected to bring some print either of their own, or their neighbors', to get the project started.

CITIZENSHIP REPORT

Citizenship convener Mrs. F. Foster gave a splendid report.

"A citizen worth having is an individual devoted to his family, his neighborhood, his church, his community and for the benefit of all, its welfare."

A memorial service was held for two Institute members, Mrs. R. Williams and Mrs. Hiram Rodgers. Mrs. Lewis Rodgers paid a glowing tribute to both, saying one was like a sister, and the other a choice friend and neighbor. Valuable members of the Stirling Women's Institute and throughout the years have given much to the prosperity of the society, they leave cherished memories with the W.I.

Mrs. P. Bronson and Mrs. R. Stapley sang softly the sweet old hymn, "Going Home."

Mrs. M. Ayerhart gave an appropriate reading, entitled "Communion."

A tasty lunch was served and social time spent after which Mrs. E. Foster moved a vote of thanks to the program participants, also to the hostess and lunch committee, Mrs. S. McMurray and Mrs. B. Reid.

Women's Division of Ont. Trade Crusade Formed

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—More than 250 Ontario women attending a conference organized by the Ontario department of economics and development have voted to be called the Women's Division of the Ontario Trade Crusade.

The name was decided upon after delegates expressed confusion concerning their role in the trade crusade.

Mrs. Muriel Wright, chief of the consumer service section of the department, asked the women to work on committees which will study hard- and soft-goods manufacturing, product promotion, design, natural resources, retailing, consumer purchasing, human resources and economics.

Mrs. C. A. Volpe, Ontario president of the Consumers' Association of Canada, said there was overlapping and duplication of CAC work in some of the committee terms of reference.

"The CAC is anxious to support the trade crusade's move to make 60,000 more jobs available in Ontario, but takes a dim view of anything set up to duplicate its program," Mrs. Volpe said.

WILL WAIT AND SEE

She said her organization would wait and see what developed following Tuesday's meeting before determining the role it would play in the trade crusade.

Mrs. L. G. Lymburner of Port Colborne, Ont., immediate past president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario and chairman of the meeting, said the same relationship should exist between the women's division of the crusade and other women's groups as exists between the National Council of Women and the women's institutes, the university women's clubs and other women's organizations.

Mrs. Lymburner said all women's groups "should work as one. Our problem is a problem for everyone."

Ontario women were first asked to participate in the crusade last Dec. 7 by Economics and Development Minister Macaulay and a five-member executive committee was appointed to work out plans for Tuesday's meeting with Mrs. Wright.

CHOSEN ON EXPERIENCE

Delegates to the conference were selected on the basis of their experience and participation in women's organizations across the province.

The 10 working committees will attempt to answer for the government such questions as why Canadian women buy imported goods and how Canadian-made goods compare with imported goods in quality, construction, appearance and design.

Product surveys of consumer goods and consumer buying habits will be made throughout the province.

"Canada has got to make a name in the economic market, a name that stands for absolutely first class. But we can't get anywhere until we find out what the consumer needs," said Mrs. D. E. Robertson of Chatham, chairman of the soft goods committee.

"We need to upgrade our attitudes, services and goods," said Mrs. Wright. She said that because women spend 85 per cent of the consumer dollar they are responsible for creating 80 per cent of the 60,000 new jobs that the trade crusade is trying to create.

BACKS EQUAL PAY

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted by the United Nations in 1948 affirms the principle of equal pay for women for equal work.

Bleeding Heart

by Mary Moore

When my brother saw it his only comment was "It's a bleeding heart!"

It was a fancy Valentine dessert I had made as an alternative to the heart-shaped cake I gave her yesterday. Because he said that and everybody chuckled I'm going to tell you how I made it so you will have a chuckle and a choice too.

BLEEDING HEART:

First you make that "Forgotten Torte" (December 5, 1961) which I am calling.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Loin or Shoulder Lamb Chops; Mint Sauce; Broccoli with Cream Sauce; Shoestring Beets; Shredded Lettuce, Green Pepper and Radish Salad; French Dressing; Baked Spy Apples with Raisin Stuffing; Top Milk; Coffee.

REMEMBERED TORTE:

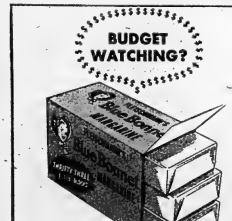
4 egg whites, 1 1/3 cups sugar, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar.

Add cream of tartar to egg whites and beat until quite foamy then gradually add sugar and beat until very stiff. This takes a long time if by hand but only 8 to 10 minutes with electric beater.

Put a piece of foil, shiny side up, on cookie sheet. Using a heart-shaped pan as a guide, or freehand, outline a heart on the foil with a blunt pencil. Pile stiff meringue in centre and gently push it just to meet outline but make the edges high with a deep indentation in centre for it is going to be filled with ice cream later. Put in oven of 400 deg. Fahr. and turn oven off. Leave meringue in oven until stone cold (or overnight). To my delight the foil peeled off the bottom like magic and I transferred it to my very large glass cake plate.

When serving time arrives fill with 1½ pints fine-quality vanilla ice cream. I spooned it from the cartons in broad scoops which I piled, overlapping in centre of meringue heart. This gave me plenty of little hills and valleys over and through which the topping could flow (see below).

To give it a shattering bleeding hearts treatment, spoon on, at random, fresh frozen thawed sliced strawberries, letting the red juice drizzle down one side as if from a gash.



The children will love it but how are you?

P.S. All fooling aside, this would be good too, if the ice cream were left out entirely, and centre filled with two thawed packages fresh frozen strawberries or raspberries and topped with unsweetened stiffly whipped cream.

For a different taste treat, be sure to serve onions in bouillon, cook like asparagus and serve on toast with white sauce.

Conservatives Elect Officers In Town, Twp.

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford and Seymour Progressive Conservative Associations met at George's Restaurant on Saturday evening when officers of Seymour and Campbellford Association were elected.

Mr. Ben Thompson, former M.P. for Northumberland, presided for the election of officers. J. Locke, president of the town organization for nearly 20 years, asked to be relieved of the duty. The following were elected for Campbellford: President, Everett Steele; Vice-President, Charles Iler; Treasurer, R. J. Locke; Secretary, Mrs. Alf. Lauesen.

Seymour officers elected were: President, Alex Linn; 1st Vice-President, Mel Wight; 2nd Vice Pres., Carleton Rowe; Secretary, Alex Stephens; Treasurer, Ernest Irwin.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow paid tribute to Mr. Locke, retiring president, for the excellent co-operation he had received from Campbellford during his tenure of office as the Northumberland member of the Ontario Parliament. He spoke highly of Mr. Harry Bradley who had sacrificed much in offering his services to the people of this county.

Harry Bradley, M.P. stated that despite the Liberal Party's claims of gloom, the Canadian economy shows a healthy picture of growth. Trade balances are more favorable and climbing. The automotive industry had its best year in 1962 and he said that much of Canada's success had been due to the efforts of Hon. George Hees, minister of Trade and Commerce.

Indians Trained in Health Program Go to Reserves Across Canada for Cleanup

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal health department has turned to the Indians themselves in a program to clean up reservations across Canada and cut down on epidemics

Thirteen hand-picked Indians, given intensive courses in sanitation and community health, have been turned to the reservations to help spark what eventually will become a nation-wide reservation cleanup program.

Federal medical officers had been trying for decades, often without success, to teach Indians the value of cleanliness and sanitation until attractive Ethel Martens, a departmental health instructor suggested the Indians be equipped to teach themselves.

The resulting program, after only a few months' operation, has proved so successful that only the federal austerity program has prevented its spread to Indian and Eskimo communities throughout Canada.

The idea is simple, says Miss Martens a native of The Pas, Man., who once was a globe-trotting school teacher.

RESENTED OUTSIDERS

"The Indians resented people of another culture tryin to impose their rideas on them." Miss Martens reasoned that the same ideas coming from another Indian would be more acceptable.

Residents of the reservations themselves were asked to pick 13 of their own people to handle the new joba.

The 13—including four women and two Indian chiefs—were given a six-months course, most of it at Norway House in northern Manitoba. Two were given additional training as dental assistants.

The pilot team then was sent out to 10 reservations, ranging in size from Island Lake, about 350 miles northwest of Winnipeg with a population of 1,978, to Split Lake, north of the Hudson Bay line, with 400 residents.

Most of the Indian instructors returned to reservations that were over - crowded and had poor sanitation and garbage disposal systems. Many were drinking untreated water hauled from lakes.

BUILDING PRIVIES

This had been going on for years despite repeated pleas from white medical crews to clean up.

In the few months the Indians have been conducting health and sanitation instructions the program has been "a tremendous success," reports Miss Martens.

"Privies are springing up everywhere." Indians are digging garbage disposal pits and boiling or chlorinating their water.

Main reason for the success of the program is the instructors. They are mature—the average age is 40—and are nearly all heads of families and respected members of the communities.

The women are paid $155 a month, the men $175 and the dental helpers, the youngest but best edurated in the group, $185.

Miss Martens grew up in Winnipeg and graduated from the Teachers' College of the University of Manitoba. She taught school for a while in Manitoba and then taught her way through many parts of the world, working in Australia, England, Ceylon, Egypt, India and France.

She joined the health department in 1958 after taking her master's degree at the University of California.

British Govt. Has Apologized To Duke

LONDON (AP)—The British government has apologized to the Duke of Windsor for not informing him in advance about controversial references to him in recently-published captured German archives.

Peter Thomas, undersecretary of state at the foreign office told Parliament Monday:

"It is true that the attention of His Royal Highness would normally have been drawn to the contents of the proposed text before publication. It is regretted that due to an administrative oversigh. His Royal Highnes was not so informed in advance in this case, and an apology has been made."

The captured archives contained a report, apparently from the Duk- of Coburg, telling Hitler in 1936 that the Duke of Windsor then King Edward VIII, strongly favored a British alliance with Nazi Germany.

The Duke of Windsor said immediately after publication of the documents in December that they gave "a generally false impression."

New Brunswick Legislature Now Open

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

With formal pomp and color, New Brunswick's legislature has moved into session. It was the fourth provincial legislature to go to work this year.

Lieutenant-Governor J. Leonard O'Brien, greeted by a 100-man guard of honor from the 1st Battalion of the Black Watch regiment from nearby Camp Gagetown, read the traditional Speech from the Throne Tuesday.

The speech promised a bill to protect innocent victims of highway accidents with "a more realistic level of public liability and property damage insurance coverage."

It also promised a high school text book rental system and a measure to encourage expansion of credit facilities by chartered banks and credit unions for farm improvement and development.

Other legislatures in session are British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec. Alberta's pre-election session starts Thursday.

In Toronto, Ontario Opposition Leader John Wintermeyer opened debate on the government's billion-dollar budget for 1963-64 with a promise that a Liberal government would issue four-year provincial savings bonds to finance a wide range of reforms.

He suggested the Conservative government should establish a list of priorities for expenses instead of "tinkering with existing revenues and expenditures."

BRINGS IN ESTIMATES

In Quebec, Premier Jean Lesage, also the finance minister, presented second supplementary estimates of $30,181,300, bringing the province's total 1962-63 spending estimates to $987,811,975. The roads, health, youth and welfare departments received the bulk of the additional.

At Victoria, Education Minister Leslie Peterson told the B.C. House the Social Credit government has no intention of introducing a medical care scheme by itself. He said that as soon as a federal government is elected, his province will seek a federal-provincial conference to discuss federal government sharing on a 50-50 basis, of a medical care plan.

Mr. Peterson also said the federal government should take over major, if not complete, costs of higher education.

George Maharis Is Suspended From Series

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—George Maharis, co-star of the Route 66 television series, has been suspended.

No reason was given in the announcement Tuesday by Herbert Leonard, executive producer of the television series. But a spokesman from the company said Maharis had been absent repeatedly on grounds of illness.

Maharis, believed to be in New York City, was not available for comment.

The spokesman said Maharis was examined three weeks ago by his own physician and by a specialist in New York hired by the company and both declared him healthy.

The spokesman said Glenn Corbett, co-star on the recently cancelled It's a Man's World television show, has been hired to take Maharis' place.

which covers all classes of murder except deliberate slayings and deaths associated with crimes of violence.

The charge of "unlawful assembly of persons who have begun to disturb the peace tumultuously" "carries a maximum sentence of two years on conviction.

PROMISES PRECAUTIONS

Chief Insp. H. H. Graham, head of the provincial police criminal investigation branch, promised Tuesday that "sufficient precautions" against further violence will be taken by police when the settlers are brought in.

Since the Kapuskasing jail, in the basement of the police building, can normally hold only 19 persons at a time, the prisoners were expected to be transferred elsewhere.

The new charges were ordered after Attorney - General Fred Cass sent Crown Attorney S. A. Caldbick to Kapuskasing from Timmins. There was also "more evidence accumulated" after a continuing police investigation, said Insp. Graham.

The Reesor Siding outbreak came as a climax to a series of incidents since some 1,500 bush workers went on strike Jan. 14 against Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company in Kapuskasing and its affiliate, Kimberly-Clark of Canada Paper Company at Longlac, 190 miles west of here.

BOTH SIDES ACTIVE

The strike has been marked by mass demonstrations by both strikers and settlers. Both cut wood for Spruce Falls, the bushworkers as employees and the settlers working independently with special permits on Crown land.

To cut off supplies of lumber to the company's newsprint mill, the bushworkers have been patrolling surrounding highways and roads to intercept truckloads of wood. The settlers complained that loads of lumber were frequently dumped from trucks and a train carload of logs was thrown off at a siding in a separate incident.

Members of three craft unions which work at the Spruce Falls mill, who stayed away from the job in large numbers yesterday, voted early today to return to work on the 2 a.m. shift.

The decision came after a seven-hour meeting of mill workers, and the vote was reported to be 152 to 32. The company is understood to have pleaded with the workers not to inflict further hardship on the area. The mill is the main source of income for Kapuskasing.

MILL AFFECTED

The strike's effects had appeared to be spreading to the mill itself. Mill workers who had been keeping the plant going on a reduced schedule refused in substantial numbers Tuesday to cross the picket line.

Only one of the company's four production lines operated. Two others had been made idle earlier because the newspaper strike in New York had brought a reduced demand for the company's newsprint.

Members of the three mill unions — representing paper makers, electrical workers, and pulp and sulphide workers—met all day Tuesday before issuing a statement blaming the company for the continued picketing. Then they met again at night to discuss whether to cross the picket line.

The statement said the company refused to sign an undertaking not to punish mill workers who refused to cross the lines, and added that all four newsprint making machines "may be shut down."

The company also attacked the picketing, blaming it for the collapse of negotiations in Toronto with a provincial mediator during the weekend. The bushworkers' union had reneged on its pledge to remove the pickets, the company said, and therefore it had made no arrangements to continue negotiations.

The strike began while negotiations were in progress for a contract to replace an agreement that expired last Aug. 1. Union members began the walkout in protest at a lack of progress in the talks.

The bushworkers want simultaneous contracts covering workers at both Spruce Falls and Kimberly-Clark, granting a reduction in the work week and compensating wage increases. The companies maintain the Kimberly-Clark operation can not support such increases because of poor markets.

NAMED TO BOARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Ernest P. Weeks, 51, director of economic studies for the federal public works department for the last nine years, was named Tuesday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker as executive director of the Atlantic Development Board. The senior appointment for the newly-created board takes effect March 1.

Brief Pleasure Trip Ends In Tragedy

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) An inland pleasure flight for an aerial view of Niagara Falls ended in tragedy Tuesday when a light aircraft crashed into a snow-covered field, near the Niagara Parkway killing four men.

The federal transport department immediately launched an investigation.

All the victims were living in Niagara Falls, N.Y. and were employed as technicians in the electro-minerals division of the Union Carbide Company.

The dead: Theodore Slevens, 28, pilot of the plane and a native of Winnipeg, John Barclay, 24, Robert Dubois, 26 and James Dowling, 20.

The plane, a single - engine Tri-Pacer owned by the St. Catharines Flying Club, had taken off from the club field only 15 minutes before it crashed. It burrowed a hole six feet deep when it struck the frozen ground. Wreckage was strewn for 100 feet.

FEARED EXPLOSION

Fearing an explosion from the use of acetylene torches, firemen worked with wirecutters for 90 minutes to free three of the bodies. The body of Dubois was found 30 feet from the plane.

Stevens received his licence in Winnipeg and had logged about 160 hours of flying time. He was a member of the St. Catharines club.

Two hydro workers—James McGuire, 51, of St. Catharines and Ellis Rifberg, 62, of Niagara Falls, Ont.—told of seeing the plane crash.

Mr. Rifberg heard a loud roar, said McGuire. "It was coming over the trees. Suddenly it nosed over and dropped with a loud thump."

The left wing was ripped away. The plane did not catch fire.

R. E. Sanderson, Emergency Measures Organization rescue officer, said it appeared the plane failed to clear the tree-covered escarpment after flying up too quickly and stalled the engine.

The pilot apparently tried to land on the highway but pulled up too quickly and stalled the engine.

Sulphur Queen

Jan. 31, 1880, the British naval training ship Atlanta, with 290 officers, crew and cadets, sailed to an anonymous fate.

Stranger than fiction was the disappearance in 1885 of the British freighter Fernwood (25 men), Preston (29 men), Clanders (37 men) and Humber (36 men). The Fernwood and Preston set sail together Jan. 20. The Clanders followed Jan. 24, and the Humber left the Thames Feb. 15. The Thanemore (43 crew) also vanished in 1885.

Englishmen still speculate on what happened to the White Star liner Narconic, lost on her maiden voyage between Liverpool and New York in 1893 with an undetermined number of persons aboard, and the liner Waratah, which left Natal, Brazil, bound for London with 200 aboard July 26, 1909. In between, the American passenger ship Condor vanished after leaving Esquimalt, B.C., Dec. 7, 1901, with 104 aboard.

LOST WITH 309

June 14, 1918, the U.S.S. Cyclops, with 309 men left Barbados and was mysteriously lost. On July 13, 1925, the Maplin liner Swift Star, with a crew of 32, left the Atlantic end of the Panama Canal and passed beyond the horizons of man.

The French freighter Mousque, with 129 crew and passengers, sailed from New Caledonia Aug. 1, 1953, and the sea claimed her.

Nov. 7, 1872, the brig Mary Celeste, commanded by Capt. Benjamin S. Briggs, left New York for Genoa.

A month later the Mary Celeste, her cargo of alcohol intact, her sails set but limp, was found becalmed 400 miles west of Gibraltar.

There was no trace of the crew.

Quebec Police Take Over Probe Of Shooting

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec Provincial Police have taken over the investigation into the shooting of 30-year-old Donald Walson Fleming.

Police Chief Walter Maheux of nearby South Hull, Que., took a statement Monday from the justice minister's son at Ottawa Civic Hospital where the youth has been since the Feb. 2 shooting at the home of socially-prominent Mrs. Jayne Perley-Robertson.

The chief told reporters then that he would hold a press conference Tuesday. Tuesday he said he will not discuss the case until Attorney-General Georges Lapalme of Quebec is aware of all details.

"It's up to him whether or not any charges will be laid, said the chief.

Fleming was wounded in the chest by a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun loaded with number four bird shot.

problems; and

Promote labor - management co-operation in assisting government to "plan effectively for economic growth."

Mr. Wintermeyer said little of the $180,000,000 increase in the province's revenue could be attributed to economic growth.

He said increased taxation and inflation accounted for $125,000,000 and the remaining $55,000,000 "is definitely the result of growth—growth of population and the increased consumption of liquor and gasoline."

Mr. Wintermeyer said Ontario's education systems faced a crisis and there was no indication the government had given any consideration to representations from educational groups, especially rural and separate school bodies, "in order to remove inequities."

He said a Liberal government would establish a university grants commission to plan and carry out a long-range program and prepare a five-year capital budget "so the universities will know how much they will receive in the years ahead."

The Liberal leader proposed that highway programs should be divorced from the budget and financed separately from revenue currently associated with highways and transportation.

He said a Liberal government would establish an inquiry into government operations similar to the federal Glassco Royal Commission.

The legislature approved estimates for the travel and publicity department, authorizing total expenditure of $2,482,000, compared with an actual expenditure of $2,204,000 in the current year.

No Survivors

plored the scene. They said they were drawn to the area by "fires which were little parts of the burning plane."

"All around us were little pieces of wreckage and a lot of luggage," Dillon said. "My wallace said it looked as if all the bodies were intact. All he had was a flashlight and he couldn't see too much. The tail was broken off. The fuselage was fairly burned," he said.

Dillon said it looked as if the airliner's pilot was "trying to bring her in" for some unknown emergency cause.

Ground radio contact with the jetliner ended at 1:42 p.m. EST. That was only seven minutes after Miller Capt. Roy W. Almquist of Rosemount, Minn., lifted his craft from Miami International Airport en route first to Chicago, then to Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore.

One of the first sighting reports came from Gordon Swann, who was fishing in Everglades National Park.

"Suddenly there was a ball of fire within a mile, and a ball of fire descended all the way to the rim of mangrove trees on our horizon," Swann said. He got word to a park ranger who relayed it to coast guard search headquarters.

The plane, a $5,000,000 craft powered by four turbo-fan engines, had a capacity of 165 passengers. The model was put into service in October, 1960.

READY FOR SALESMEN—High school student Karen Fitzgerald juggles a stack of cedar plant boxes hammered together by members of Vancouver's Junior Achievement club. The boxes will be sold by the student group salestaff. Aim of Junior Achievement is to teach students about the business world. (CP Photo)

Girl at 17 Reminisces About Early Days as Boss

By KEITH POWER

VANCOUVER (CP)—"I had to fire two people," Roberta Clayards, 17, said over the noise of the production lines. "It was difficult, but they weren't pulling their weight."

Roberta, a pretty, dark-haired girl, was reminiscing about her early days as boss of one of the 23 teen - age companies that make up the flourishing Junior Achievement movement in Vancouver. JA's first branch in Canada.

Roberta was no autocratic tycoon, but a duly elected president with responsibilities to shareholders.

"Before I joined JA, I had no idea of the problems businessmen face," she said. As she spoke, teen - age production teams in the JA workrooms were hunched earnestly over their machines, churning out items from hearth whisks to cuff links.

"It taught me how to meet new people and get along with them," Victoria Adams, the 17-year-old president of JA-Whisks, said. "I don't lose my temper as much."

"Not much," agreed her production chief, Ev McKee, with a smile.

One of the frank aims of the Junior Achievement movement is to spread understanding and appreciation of Western capitalism among young citizens.

JA, an American movement, was brought to Vancouver in 1955. Since then branches also have opened in New Westminster, B.C., Calgary, Windsor, Ont., Brantford, Ont., and Montreal.

HAVE $25,000 BUDGET

In Vancouver, about 190 sponsoring firms contribute to a $25,000 annual operating budget. Every effort is made to make the teen-agers' first venture into the business world as realistic as possible.

The students organize themselves into companies of about 20 early in the school year, decide on a product, sell capital stock at 50 cents a share, go into production, mount a sales campaign and liquidate the company at the end of the year with, they hope, a comfortable profit.

All of the firm members are pressed into service as door-to-door salesmen since companies are not permitted to sell more than 40 per cent of their product wholesale to stores. Salesmen get a commission above their salary, usually 20 cents an hour for workers and $3.50 a month for the president.

The Vancouver movement has had startling success. In 1960, Wendy Holmes of Vancouver became the first girl and the first Canadian to be chosen National President of the Year at the annual JA convention held at the University of Indiana. Last year a JA firm from Vancouver was named Top Company of the Year, besting more than 5,000 JA companies in the U.S. and Canada.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids ... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that the improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

Dubliners Fit Easily Into Framework of Old World

By CAROL KENNEDY

DUBLIN (CP) — Dublin is probably the only capital in Europe where a horse-drawn cab meets you at the air terminal.

It's partly a tourist gimmick: The big hotels maintain their own reconditioned hansoms, gleaming in chocolate and gold. But Dublin still has a few freelance coachmen or "jarveys," and the unsuspecting visitor accepting the offer "cab, sir?" is likely to find himself assisted up a rickety step into a dark interior quilted in leather and smelling of hay and horses.

Jolting over the paving-stones, he gets the first taste of a city where time has not exactly stood still, but where different levels of it seem to coexist and flow together, and where certain aspects of life remain serenely unchanged from three generations back.

This unchangeable quality never fails to astound the visitor from British or North America, where the landscape of cities visibly alters, from month to month. After 10 years away, one expects to see a new Dublin —faster, more neon-lit, glassy with cubist office blocks.

NOTHING CHANGES

But the place remains untouched, except for ribbons of new suburban road. The same luminous, color - washed skies light up the crumbling wharfs that Yeats and Shaw knew; the same adenoidal yelling of the paper-boys turns "Herald!" into "Hegglc;" the same names in Victorian gilt lettering loom over pubs, saddlers and "counting-houses" that were in business when a British viceroy lived in Dublin Castle.

The network of 18th-century terraces round fashionable Merrion Square where Oscar Wilde lived still glow rosy in the splendid sunsets, while ever on the north bank of the murky Liffey, beyond the coffee-bars and souvenir shops of O'Connell Street, the leprous tenements that once also were noble Georgian houses fester in a perpetual smoky twilight. Nothing changes, for better or worse.

This timeless quality is particularly strange in view of Dublin's violent past. In the Easter Rising of 1916 and the bitter civil war that raged on into the 1920s, the city's finest public buildings were reduced to rubble. You can still see bullet pockmarks at the foot of rebel Daniel O'Connell's statue, near the Post Office where the rebellion started.

BLEND WITH PAST

But all the buildings have been meticulously restored; the Customs House lifts its green copper dome against the sky like a spring bud; and by some alchemy of time the stones and columns look as weathered as if they had stood there for centuries.

The people must know the secret of it. Famed the world over for their social poise and epigrammatic talk, gregarious yet oddly self-contained, Dubliners are intensely in touch with modern life — avid readers and moviegoers—yet fit easily into the framework of their fathers' world.

Out in the country a feudal pattern of life persists, with the lord in his stone-flagged castle and maids carrying up steaming cans of water for the hip-baths. And the capital keeps something of a rural feel and pace of life.

The green doubledecker buses sweep round corners on the unwary pedestrian, but in back streets by the river life still moves to the rhythm of the horse. There are chromium cocktail bars in the old hotels, but the atmosphere retains the air of a well-run country house with chambermaids inquiring in the flat Dublin brogue if "ye'd be wantin' a jar in y'r bed"—meaning a hot - water bottle. (The other Irish meaning of "jar," one quickly appreciates, is a drink—preferably a draught of the rich Guinness stout brewed down by the river.)

HIDEOUS SLUMS

Perhaps this native ability to mingle old and new explains how Dublin has manafged to effect her revolutionary past so gracefully, and how she emerges to the stranger as a bundle of contradictions all rubbing along amicably in the soft Irish weather.

The contradictions are everywhere, from Nelson on his pillar a few yards from the steps where Patrick Pearse read the proclamation of nationalist independence on Easter Monday, 1916, to a religious bookshop blandly displaying missals alongside lurid paperbacks entitled Rebel Cork's Fighting Story and With the IRA in the Fight For Freedom — the Red Path to Glory.

The picture is by no means all rose-tinted. Outside Naples, Europe today has few worse slums than those of the Irish capital. The Neapolitan slums can look picturesque from a distance with their lines of colored laundry strung across the lanes, but Dublin's slimy, rotting 18th - century tenements make the onlooker feel physically unclean.

Men in real rags, tiny grimed children humping piles of evening papers as big as themselves, the teeming 12-to-a-room warrens of The Coombe — these things tear at the heart of a visitor an hour's jet flight from London, where such sights belong in the pages of Charles Dickens.

One leaves puzzling over the enigma of a place where the philosophy of things - as - they - have-always-been seems to be accepted as much in the reeking slums as in the classical mansions of Merrion Square.

Tom Thumb Was Married 100 Years Ago

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Thumb, the world's most famous midget, and Lavinia Warren, only 32 inches tall, stood on a specially built dais 100 years ago Monday to become man and wife.

They might not have been seen otherwise by the throng in Grace Episcopal Church here.

The lavish ceremony was arranged by showman P. T. Barnum, who had immortalized Tom Thumb by exhibiting him to much of the world.

Approximately 2,000 persons were invited to the wedding. Many others wanted to come. Some offered to pay up to $50 for a seat in the church. No seats were sold, however.

Thumb, then 25, was 35 inches tall and weighed 32 pounds. Miss Warren, 22, weighed 29 pounds.

Thumb had been the winner over another midget, 23-inch Commodore Nutt, 30, in a bet tie for the hand of Miss Warren, whose full name was Mercy Lavinia Warren Bumpus.

BEGAN CAREER EARLY

The three had been proteges of Barnum, who launched Thumb on the trail of fame in 1842, when Thumb was four years old. Thumb was born in Bridgeport, Conn., and christened Charles Sherwood Stratton. Barnum gave him the name Tom Thumb and proceeded it with the title of general.

Thumb and Miss Warren, a native of Middleboro, Mass., were married Feb. 10, 1863. Nutt, son of a New Hampshire farmer, survived as best man.

Later, at a reception in the Metropolitan Hotel, the couple stood on a grand piano to receive 2,000 guests. Their honeymoon trip to the south included a stop at the White House, where they were received by president and Mrs. Abraham Lincoln and members of Lincoln's cabinet.

Thumb earned several million dollars but, at his death July 15, 1883, left his widow only $16,000 and some real estate.

His widow married another midget, Count Primo Magri, two years after Thumb's death. She died in 1919 at the age of 78, widowed a second time.

Claims Charge Is 'Fantastic'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.(CP) — Provincial Health Minister James McGrath said Monday one charge levelled against Dr. Sailen Aude by residents of the Port Saunders, Nfld., area was that he was a Soviet spy.

Mr. McGrath in an interview agreed with the health department's investigating team that the charge was "fantastic." He said his officials had also found nothing to support charges of incompetence.

Dr. Aude, a Cuban refugee, is returning to St. John's to be reassigned to some other part of the province. He is expected here within the next day.

About 300 residents of the northern west coast fishing community signed a petition demanding Dr. Aude's removal from the Port Saunders nursing station.

In commenting on the spy charge, Mr. McGrath said the Soviet Union must have plenty of spies if it can afford to station one at a place as remote as Port Saunders.

The departure of the 45-year-old physician means there is no doctor on the rugged 100-mile coast from Bonne Bay to St. Anthony. There are district nurses and a nursing station in the area.

The department's investigation said the "insidious campaign of hostility" might have threatened the Audes' safety.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Exercise, any gym teacher will tell you, is an excellent muscle developer. Master Cassius Clay, the current fistic sensation and owner of the first bullet-in facial radio station, is a great believer in exercise. His well-developed body is proof of that.

But young Cassius, the self-styled Louisville Lip, may overdo this development business. If he persists in the continuous exercise of those facial muscles that are used for whistling, hissing, and tooth upholstery, he may emerge as the first white Ubangi to quest the heavyweight boxing championship.

One thing can be said about Master Clay. He fears no man. He looses his verbal eruptions and lets the lava roll where it may. Even the shadow of the mighty Liston when it fell athwart the floor of the Clay training quarters the other day, failed to muzzle the "Lip." In fact it spurred him on to greater efforts.

Verbally he showed utter disdain "for the ring abilities of the world champion. Liston, from his remarks, showed less than that for this young cockerel of the southland. The insult exchange ended with Cassius inviting Liston into the ring there and then.

That was the closest Clay has come to annihilation since he first flashed across the pugilistic horizon.

Speaking of boxing, Madison Square Garden is said to be well satisfied with what it reaped since it started growing its own vegetables. "Our first crop was pretty good," says chief gardener Harry Markson, "and we anticipate a rich cauliflower harvest from this year's planting."

The general manager of boxing for the big country fair where the cauliflowers and sometimes tomatoes are displayed for the New York yokels and TV addicts was referring to a farm policy inaugurated last year.

Under the policy the Garden underwrites losses—up to a point—of selected small boxing clubs in the interest of cultivating new talent. "Last year we backed 18 clubs to the extent of $250 a show. This year we're helping only 13, but for larger sums," said Markson. The carefully-culled recipients of the Garden dole are scattered from New England to Washington and way stations.

Filled with rustic fun and high spirits as a well-liquored hillbilly barn dance, the shows are at least dispelling some of the local apathy towards boxing.

Like in Union City, N.J., which opened to a capacity house on a nasty night. All the fighters were considerably less scientific than a grade nine student and had about as much art as a belly dancer.

The main event scheduled for eight rounds featured a local rough boy with an erratic right hand, the cockiness of a born street fighter and coal black hair that flopped over his eyes.

His less local opponent had more experience but considerably less self-assurance. During the preliminaries the less local fighter was assailed by vague doubts, perhaps inspired by the ferocious appearance of the bully-boy's buddies at ringside.

Twice the timid fighter was stopped at the door as he was about to flee into the dark safety of the stormy night. The third time he was captured as he attempted to bolt, removed to a dressing room, forced to don trunks, and his street clothes put under lock and key.

"You can run out now if you want to," grinned the genius who had masterminded the coup, "but it's gonna be kinda cold out there in boxing trunks."

From such clubs as these came Hurricane Carter, now a Garden main eventer. Markson is keeping a watchful eye on a welterweight named Joe Williams, undefeated in nine starts, and a flock of other countryside kids. "If we keep gardening," he says, "who knows, we may develop some real hothouse varieties."

Bucyk Sparks Bruins Win Over Blues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As coach of Boston's last-place Bruins, Milt Schmidt has problems that are multiple and diverse in scope. But he also has the top scoring line in the National Hockey League.

Before a hometown crowd of 7,233 Tuesday night, the unit collected a total of seven points and the Bruins slaughtered New York Rangers 6-3.

Boston's big line has Murray Oliver at centre, flanked by Johnny Bucyk and Tommy Williams. The three have piled up a total of 152 points.

Bucyk, the only surviving member of Boston's old Uke line, counted two goals and assisted on another to push in front of Detroit's Gordie Howe for the NHL's point-gathering leadership.

He has 39 points with 24 goals. That's a better point-total than anything he ever racked up in a full season even when the Uker were romping.

Meanwhile Williams scored once to reach the 20-goal plateau and Oliver drew three assists. The slim centre hit the 20-goal mark in weekend play and his three-point effort Tuesday night lifted him past Howe and within two points of Bucyk.

GAIN ON RANGERS

The win gave the Bruins 36 points, leaving them four shy of the fifth-place Rangers, who have a game in hand.

Gerry Cheevers also scored twice for Boston and Guy Gendron's 17th goal of the season rounded out the attack.

New York's marksmen were rookies Leon Rochefort and Jim Neilson and Don McKenney, swapped by Boston to New York last week for Dean Prentice.

Prentice drew an assist on Gendron's goal. He was in the penalty box, leaving New York with a numbers advantage, when the Topper broke loose for his second goal.

Toppazzini actually put the puck in the net behind goalie Gump Worsley a third time but the goal was disallowed.

Worsley made 26 stops to 18 for Boston's Eddie Johnston.

'Nobody Will Help Us'

Trail 'Orphans' Lose Six In Row

HALIFAX (CP) — Bobby Kromm, disconsolate coach of Trail Smoke Eaters, led his Trail Smoke Eaters towards the world hockey championships today with grim prospects for the future.

The Smokies, who won the world title two years ago, haven't looked like champions lately. They wound up a seven game cross-Canada tour Tuesday night with a 6-3 defeat at the hands of Halifax Tartans of the Nova Scotia Senior League, their sixth straight.

Kromm, says he needs four more players before the tournament starts at Stockholm March 7 and nobody seems to be willing to give him any.

"I've asked and asked," he said. "Nobody will help, not the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association nor individual clubs. I'll try again, but what's the use."

He had little praise for Smokies' performance Tuesday.

SHOOTING OFF TARGET

"You saw it. They (the Tartans) are about on a par with the Norwegian and East German national teams. Maybe the desire isn't there. We're not finishing the plays and the shooting is miles off."

Norway and East Germany, considered second-rate entries in international hockey, will be required to play a qualifying match to determine which of them makes the championship group at Stockholm.

CAHA officials were not immediately available for comment on whether they will try to hustle up reinforcements for the Canadian entry.

The Smokies, scheduled to fly to Montreal today before launching a 10-game European exhibition tour at Geneva, couldn't do much against the Tartans before a crowd of 5,628.

The home club, waiting for the breaks, broke up Trail passing patterns and frequently outsped the Smokies' defence.

Veterys Moe Lemiranade scored three goals and assisted on a fourth for the winners. Linemate Brian Gravers was the other Halifax marksman.

Harold Jones, Gerry Penner and Hugh McIntyre counted for the Smokies.

City Hockey At Arena Tonight!

The Pepsi's will have another go at sewing up the city Hockey League's coveted top spot when they tackle their arch enemies, Weibanks Motors, in the second game of tonight's double-header at Memorial Arena.

Trudeaus and Joyce-Rollins, also bitter rivals in previous meetings, open the night's action in the 7.45 p.m. fixture.

Pepsi's will likely find the going plenty tough again tonight if past performances mean anything. The Goojan-Shaw bandied Pepsi's have lost just three games all season, but two of those losses have come at the hands of the third-place Weibanks squad.

Weibanks have been running hot and cold most of the year but they always seem to come up with a top effort against the loop-leaders. One of the main reasons has been the leadership of Wayne "Wimpy" Brown, a strong candidate for the leagues Most Valuable Player award. Brown has played only seven of his club's 13 games but is the loop's third high point man with 23 points, including 14 goals.

Trudeaus will be attempting to bolster their chances of finishing in first place alive in the opening game against the surging Joyce-Rollins Combines. The Combines have won their last two starts and have served notice to all that they will be tough in the playoffs so Trudeaus will have their hands full this evening.

The battle for the scoring crown, between Garry Joyce and "Pug" Kellar, both of Trudeau, plus a feud that has existed between several players of these two clubs for some time, should help make it a most interesting night.

Yankees Sign Tom Tresh

The Dotted Line League

NEW YORK (AP)—It's great to be young—and a Yankee. That could just about sum up the feelings of 24-year-old Tom Tresh last season's American League rookie of the year. He signed his 1963 baseball contract Tuesday with the world champion New York Yankees.

Tresh, who switched from an all-star shortstop to a first-class left fielder in late season and then starred afield and at bat in the World Series, was richly rewarded for his performance.

The versatile switch - hitter was given a substantial pay boost to an estimated $17,500 by the Yankees.

Tresh wound up the 1962 regular season with a .286 batting average, 20 homers and 83 runs batted in.

In the series against San Francisco Giants, he led the Yanks at bat with a .32 average. His three-run home run in the eighth inning off pitcher Jack Sanford gave the Yanks a 4-3 victory and his sensational backhanded catch of a Willie Mays drive helped save the seventh and deciding game.

The Yankees signed seven other players Tuesday, among them Joe Pepitone, who will get first crack at the first-base job vacated by Bill Skowron's trade to Los Angeles Dodgers of the National League.

Other signees included pitchers Stan Williams, Marshall Bridges and Jim Coates. This brought the list of contented Yankees to 25 with 12 players, including Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, still unaccounted for.

There was brisk activity elsewhere. Other players agreeing to terms included shortstop Joe Pagan, catcher Ed Bailey and infielder Ernie Bowman of the Giants; third - baseman Gene Freese of Cincinnati Reds; outfielders Don Demeter of Philadelphia Phillies, and pitcher Jack Kralick and Boy Moore of Minnesota Twins.

Catcher Russ Nixon and infielders Billy Gardner and Dick Williams came to terms with Boston Red Sox.

Hamilton All Out For '64 Cup Epic

To Toss Heavy 'Woo' At CFL

By PAUL RIDSTEAD

HAMILTON (CP)—Every last Hamilton fan worth his salt will help roll out the red carpet for officers of the Canadian Football League, who open their annual meeting here Friday.

There's more to it than being the perfect host. Hamilton wants the Grey Cup game in 1964.

The East Conference holds a two-day annual meeting starting today and the western conference a annual meeting is Thursday. They join forces Friday and Saturday at the CFL sessions.

Included in the CFL's business will be the 1963 schedule, discussions about officiating, a proposal by British Columbia Lions that league offices be established at Toronto, discussion of recent charges that United States pro teams are raiding the CFL, and the 1963 Canadian college draft.

The city will be host Thursday at a luncheon, at which a 12-page brochure will be passed out to CFL officers outlining the reasons why Hamilton feels the Grey Cup should be contested here in 1964.

CARTOON BACKS CLAIM

The Spectator planned to carry a two-column cartoon on its sports pages as further inducement.

It shows Vancouver—where this year's classic will be staged—with mud, Montreal with snow, Toronto with fog and Hamilton with sunshine.

Hamilton hoteliers also say the city has adequate hotel accommodation—35 first-class hotels and motels with room for at least 4,100 persons.

The capacity of Civic Stadium is 27,061—which could be increased by 7,010 by erecting bleachers—and gross revenue for the game has been estimated at $304,452, more than the gate last year at Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition Stadium.

The Lions' suggestion for having offices situated in Toronto is expected to cause controversy. CFL Commissioner Sydney Halter, for example, is a Winnipeg lawyer and says he has no intention of moving. John Barrow, Hamilton's outstanding lineman, started the ceiling talk recently when he said two of his Tiger teammates had been approached by American clubs.

Barrow said American and National League clubs offered a bonus and large contracts to the players to play out their options this year.

The rumblings going up the 1963 schedule haven't been able to come up with one satisfactory to all clubs. This year's schedule will be based on the plan used in 1961, with Eastern and Western teams playing host to the same teams they did that year.

Up Lead To Eight Points

Flyers Whip Royals 9-4

Junior "B" Final Statistics

Guelph Royals have all but clinched their position in the Ontario Hockey Association Provincial Junior A group—the league's cellar.

Guelph would have to win all its remaining seven games while fifth-place St. Catharines Black Hawks lost their remaining games to even tie for the last place spot.

The league-leading Niagara Falls Flyers defeated the Royals 9-4 at Guelph Tuesday night.

The win gave the Flyers an eight-point lead over second place Montreal Canadiens, with the Flyers having eight more games to play and the Canadiens nine.

Niagara Falls scored five unanswered goals in the first period. The Royals narrowed the gap in the second to 5-3 but Niagara entered 4-1 in the rest of the game.

Wayne Maxner, the league's leading point-getter, had two goals and three assists to give him a total of 82 points. Terry Hollinger scored twice for Niagara Falls and Ron Schock, Bill Goldsworthy, Bill Glashan, Ted Snell and Dick Morin got one each.

Guelph scorers were Doug Davidson, Gary Ivan, Trevor Fahey and Bob Jones.

In the first meeting this year between clubs of the Provincial Junior A group, the Toronto Metro Junior A group, Toronto's league-leading Neil McNeil Maroons shut out Hamilton 5-0 on a benefit exhibition game at Toronto, before a crowd of more than $4,000 from the 3,403 fans will go to former Toronto St. Michael's player Dave Price who lost the sight of an eye in a playoff game against Hamilton last year.

In regular Metro Junior A action, Whitby Dunlops beat Toronto Knob Hill 5-4.

He appeared in several main events at Madison Square Garden in New York and was undefeated Canadian welterweight champion.

Sinks Four-Footer For Stroke Victory

Palmer Nips Player For Third Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arnold Palmer won his third straight $15,000 Phoenix Open golf championship after a final round that was 48 hours late—seven minutes too long for little Gary Player.

While Player sat glumly near the scoreboard Tuesday after missing a short putt that would have meant a playoff, Palmer rammed home a four-footer for a 70 and 72-hole total of 273 that gave him the tournament by one stroke.

Rain had washed out two previous attempts to play the final round at the par-72 Arizona Country Club course, but Player was more concerned about a seven-minute delay.

Needing to sink a four-footer for a birdie, the South African stewed for seven minutes while his playing partner, Don January, talked to ease the putt that had hung on the lip of the cup on the 18th hole would drop in.

BALL STAYS OUT

It didn't and Player finally got a chance at his putt. He had to settle for a par four and a runner-up total of 274, a stroke ahead of third-place Jack Nicklaus.

The rules say a golfer may wait a reasonable time for a hanger to drop.

Player lost the Palm Springs tournament to Nicklaus last week in a playoff after coming five strokes behind on the final round.

Palmer's victory, his second on the winter tour, was worth $5,300. Player pocketed $3,400 and Nicklaus $2,200.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Al Balding of Toronto, the only Canadian pros to survive the full four rounds, finished out of the money.

Cassius KO'd 'Mom' In First Bout

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cassius Clay and kid brother Rudolph put on a sparring show Tuesday for their proud daddy, Cassius Sr., who allowed that some day they will fight each other for the world heavyweight title.

No. 2 challenger Cassius, training for what he hopes will get him a shot at champ Sonny Liston, was joined by the family from Louisville, Ky.

Rudolph, a 190-pounder at 18, set up training camp with his brother. He said he would turn pro in three months.

"I've brought both of 'em up to be champions and they've been fighting since babyhood," said Cassius Sr.

"I scored my first knockout when I was two," Cassius said. "I knocked mom's two front teeth loose. You can still see the gap."

RCAF Nips Picton In Overtime

PICTON (Special) — A goal in the dying seconds of regulation time and another in the first minute of overtime provided the RCAF Globetrotters with a 6-5 win over the Picton Macs in Lakeshore Intermediate hockey playoffs here last night.

Third game in the best-of-seven series will be played in Trenton Friday night with the fourth in Picton Saturday. The series is tied 1-1.

Gebhardt scored two third-period goals, at 15.51 and 19.32, to pull the Trotters into a tie and force a ten-minute overtime heat. Joe St. Pierre triggered the winning marker after just 49 seconds of play in overtime on a solo effort.

The Macs battled hard to get on even terms but double minor penalties to Mulholland, Gebhardt and roughing call at 7.43, killed their chances of getting the equalizer.

Trenton led at the end of the first, but Picton cut the margin to 3-2 after two frames and fired three in a row for a 5-3 lead by 10.11 of the third. Then came Gebhardt's goals and the overtime.

Gebhardt was the only two-goal man for RCAF with singletons going to St. Pierre, Scott, "Red" Gravelle and Maroney. Peterson and Maroney each earned two assist, McKinnon, Scott, Gravelle and Blanchard one each.

Dave Jones scored twice for Picton, less than two minutes apart, to open up the 5-3 lead. Jim Guernsey, Lionel Bolly and Weese had the other goals. Sam Mulholland collected three assists, Keith MacDonald, Pat Gilmour and Leo St. Denis one apiece.

Trenton picked up nine penalties and Picton seven. Yvon Blanchard and Ron Hull got major for a third-period fight.

Cheque O.K. Joe Stopped Payment

MIAMI (AP)—Former baseball great Joe DiMaggio says that a $7,000 cheque that has embroiled him in a law suit is "not a bad cheque."

Sherman Harris, a restaurant owner in Indio, Calif., has brought suit against DiMaggio and S. H. Bryn of Los Angeles, charging the bank returned the cheque which he said he cashed for the two men Jan. 10.

"This is not a bad cheque," DiMaggio, the ex-New York Yankee star, said. "There were funds on deposit to cover the cheque completely. I stopped payment because of facts that came to my attention and it is now in the hands of my attorney."

He did not elaborate.

Harris said DiMaggio made out the cheque to Bryn, who asked the restaurant man to cash it and that the cheque was returned unpaid by the Great National Bank of New York.

Berenson Back With Hull

Cesare Loaned To Aces

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens say spare goalie Cesare Maniago has been loaned to Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League to give Aces' goalie Charlie Hodge a brief rest.

The NHL club also said Tuesday that first-string goalie Jacques Plante remains a doubtful starter for Thursday's game here against Boston. A decision would be made on whether Plante can play following today's practice.

A club spokesman said it had not been decided who will replace Plante Thursday if the veteran netminder doesn't play. Plante has been bothered since November by a hip and groin injury.

The Canadiens also announced left winger Gord (Red) Berenson has been sent back to Hull Ottawa of the Eastern Professional League after scoring one assist in an eight-game stretch with the NHL team. Berenson, who started the season with Montreal, came to Hull-Ottawa in mid-season and played 22 games.

Aces Drop 6 in Row

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quebec Aces, usually invincible at home, are streaking in reverse and it may cost them a chance at the American Hockey League's Eastern Division championship that they seemed to be heading for only two weeks ago.

With five different players doing the scoring, Hershey Bears spilled the Aces 5-3 at Quebec Tuesday night and took over sole possession of second place. It was the sixth straight loss for the Aces, now third in the standings and four points behind the first-place Providence Reds. More important, it was their fourth straight loss before the home folks.

Hershey got away only 18 shots at goalie Cesare Maniago, filling in for regular goal-tender Charlie Hodge, but clicked on five of them. The marksmen were Pete Conacher, Cleland Mortson, Roger DeJordy, Dick Meissner and Willie Marshall. The Aces' scorers were Danny Lewicki, Bill Dineen and Dollard St. Laurent.

Minor Hockey

The Red Wings edged the Rangers 4-3 in a penalty-studded Midget hockey playoff game here last night. This was the first game in a two-game, total goals-to-count, 2nd round series.

Gary Lucas scored twice, Bob Percy and Rob Bateman once each for the Wings. Jim Clarke has two helpers and Bateman one.

Ron DeRoche, Bob Hunter and Dave Loft fired the Ranger goals, all unassisted.

There were 18 penalties in the contest, including one game misconduct, two misconducts and six majors for fighting.

In the Squirt section, second round, Maple Leafs nipped the Black Hawks 3-2 and Canadiens downed the Frontenacs 4-2. Both were the first in two-game, goals-to-count series.

B. Creelman fired two Maple Leaf goals with B. Clements potting the other. D. Guest and M. Semark scored for the Hawks.

S. Lougheed was a two-goal performer for the Canadiens with T. Ford and R. Woodley adding a goal each. R. Burley and D. Kirby scored for the Frontenacs.

Four Squirt exhibitions were also played with Flyers downing the Barons 5-2, Royals topping the Red Wings 3-1, Rangers defeating the Bruins 3-2 and Macs whipping the Browns 8-3.

B. Bleekmen scored twice, D. Semark, W. Andrews and B. Kirkman once each for Flyers. D. Rutherford and D. Lupenello were the Barons' marksmen.

J. Ralph, H. Rollins and B. Buchanan scored for Royals while B. Shewhan replied for the Red Wings.

Ranger marksmen were C. Janitsch, B. Burley and R. Magher while D. Chatterly and D. Lorimer had Bruin goals.

The Macs were paced by H. Genereaux with three goals and by R. Kerr with a pair. D. Carmichael, A. Wilson and R. Porremba also scored for the Macs. W. Farrell bagged a couple and J. Sprackett one for the Browns.

WELFARE ROLLS UP

WINNIPEG (CP)—City Welfare Director G. G. Myers reports that last week's total of welfare cases in Winnipeg was the highest in 25 years. He said 8,412 people were listed as living on welfare benefits Feb. 3, compared to 8,106 at the same time last year.

Unprecedented Move

May Postpone Cup Final

LONDON (Reuters) — An emergency meeting of the Football Association committee in London has discussed the unprecedented step of postponing its soccer cup final.

The final, scheduled for May 4 at London's Wembley Stadium, may be staged two or three weeks late because of the havoc caused to the early rounds by prolonged ice and snow.

Results of Tuesday's meeting were not disclosed and the committee intends to meet again Monday to review the position. It will then decide on dates for the semi-finals and final.

Normally there is a five-week gap between the semi-finals and final but the semi-final date of March 30 has been set aside for the quarter-finals.

The committee made a further appeal to clubs to play their third and fourth-round ties as soon as possible. Nineteen of the 32 third-round ties still have to be completed which means there are 48 clubs still involved in the fourth-round draw.

While the English Football Association has extended the season for two weeks at the request of the Football League, its Welsh and Scottish counterparts have taken bolder steps. The Welsh Football Association has announced the season will go on to June 1, while the Scottish League has suggested a plan for summer football.

Tiger Has Respect For Fullmer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—One of the men who refuses to believe Gene Fullmer is through is middleweight champion Dick Tiger.

The Nigerian titleholder said Tuesday at his training camp: "Fullmer is going to come all out this time."

The 33-year-old fighter has been training in New York City since Jan. 10. He arrived in Las Vegas Sunday night and opened camp here Monday for the Feb. 23 title rematch.

"Fullmer is not an easy man to knock out," Tiger said. "I expect a very tough fight. I'll train for 15 rounds."

Tiger defeated the former champion last October in 15 rounds.

Briton Seeks Bout With Griffith

LONDON (AP)—Brian Curvis of Wales floored challenger Tony Smith of England for three counts of nine and retained his British welterweight title on a technical knockout in the 10th round of a scheduled 15-rounder Tuesday night. Curvis weighed 145 pounds, Smith 144.

Curvis now looks to a world title fight against Emile Griffith of New York in an outdoor fight in Cardiff, Wales, in late May or June. Griffith first must successfully defend his world title against Luis Rodriguez of Cuba in Los Angeles March 16.

Referee Eugene Henderson of Britain stopped the fight after one minute 51 seconds of the 10th round.

Curvis fumbled through the first six rounds and rarely looked like a man ready for a crack at Griffith.

Smith managed to knock Curvis down in the second round. No count was taken but Smith brought blood from Curvis's nose in the third round.

Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Big Johnny Bucyk regained the lead in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race Tuesday night, scoring two goals and an assist as Boston trounced New York 6-3 in the only NHL game scheduled.

Bucyk, formerly tied with Detroit's Gordie Howe for the scoring lead, now has 29 points—24 goals and 35 assists.

Meanwhile another Bruin, Murray Oliver, picked up three assists and moved one point ahead of Howe into second place with 27 points.

Jean Beliveau of Montreal, idle Tuesday, dropped to fourth place with 25.

The only other gain in the big seven went to Andy Bathgate of the Rangers, whose one assist put him in a fifth-place tie with Frank Mahovlich of Toronto and Stan Mikita of Chicago.

Mahovlich's 54 points are split 27-27, Bathgate's are 24-30 and Mikita's are 22-32.

Western Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks exploded for four goals in the second period to score an 8-2 victory over Calgary Stampeders Tuesday night in the coast club's campaign to regain leadership of the Western Hockey League's Northern Division.

Bob McCusker scored two goals for Vancouver. Howie Hughes, Bob Kabel, Dave Duke, Jim Baird, Trent Beatty and Larry Popein added singles. Eric Sutcliffe and Milan Marcetta replied for the Stamps.

The Canucks are second in their division with 47 points, four behind Seattle. The Stamps are last with 31 points.

Argos, Eskys Hold Long Huddle

Parker Future Still In Air

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Football League's two last-place clubs huddled until the early hours today trying to iron out a trade that would move quarterback Jackie Parker to Toronto Argonauts from Edmonton Eskimos.

Edmonton general manager Joe Ryan said there would be no announcement today.

Lew Hayman, oronto managing director, said: "We're still going over rosters and positions. Nothing has been settled, but I have no idea what the next several hours may produce."

Parker, Edmonton's triple threat, has asked to be traded.

In a press conference at Edmonton earlier this month he said Toronto would be his first choice. Toronto also is the only club in Canada urgently needing a top quarterback. Toble Rote, who came from the National League two years ago played out his option with the Argonauts and signed with San Diego Chargers of the American League.

Neither club announced players being discussed, but the Eskimos are reported to want cash and Canadian players, including Argonauts centre Norm Stoneburgh. Parker, from Mississippi State, is eligible this year for Canadian citizenship.

Edmonton missed the playoffs last year for the first time in years when Parker missed six games because of an injury. Parker, who was the Canadian Outstanding Player award three times.

The football executives all head for Hamilton today for the start of the CFL's annual meetings.

Tigers Edge Galt 4-3, Move Up

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers kept their playoff hopes alive in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A group Tuesday night when they staged a three-goal rally in the third period to down Galt Terriers 4-3.

The win, in Galt, moved the Tigers a point ahead of Galt in the battle for the fourth and last playoff spot.

Terriers, who needed only one win to make the playoffs took a 3-0 lead in the first 32 minutes, but wilted under the late Tiger assault.

Windsor remained atop the standings with 45 points, followed by Chatham in second position with 42, Woodstock with 38, Kitchener with 26 and Galt with 25.

Mag Dubois scored twice for Tigers while Bill Kennedy and Jim Dahmer added singles. For Galt, playing coach Bob McKnight scored twice and Bob Mader added another goal.

Tigers must finish five points ahead of Galt to claim the final playoff spot. Two costly losses to Sarnia Rams, who dropped out of the league will cost the Tigers four points at the end of season play.

Today's game will see Windsor at Chatham as the two top teams strive to increase their point spread in league standings.

Would Move CFL Office To Toronto

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Lions are coming up with a suggestion that may shake the hierarchy of the Canadian Football League.

Lions' general manager Herb Capozzi said Tuesday the club will propose at the annual CFL meeting in Hamilton this weekend that all CFL offices be centralized in Toronto.

At present CFL commissioner Sydney Hailer lives in Winnipeg, secretary Jack Gillies in Regina and statisticians Bill Hawryluk and Gordon Walker in Regina and Toronto respectively.

Said Capozzi: "Toronto, for all intents and purposes is the centre of Canada. It is the transportation centre and the communications centre. It is more accessible than Winnipeg for visiting delegates and it is close to football and communications areas that we deal with in the United States."

He said that with a centralized office there, league business could be conducted at all levels with a single telephone call.

INCREASE SEASON

ALBANY, N.Y (AP)— The New York legislature passed a bill Tuesday adding 25 days to the state's harness racing season and permitting Yonkers Raceway to open Feb. 25 for the earliest inaugural in history. The bill, the first of Governor Rockefeller's new money-raising plans for solving the state's fiscal problems, is designed to increase the state's revenues from betting taxes by $9,000,000 a year.

Toronto Rink Is Unbeaten

NORTH BAY (CP) — Mrs. Emily Woolley of Toronto, a frequent Ontario champion in the past, led her rink undefeated through two games Tuesday to take a lead in the Ontario women's curling championships.

Play continues today with three more draws. A sixth draw will be held Thursday if necessary, to decide Ontario's representatives in the Canadian finals at Saint John, N.B.

Mrs. Woolley defeated Ottawa's Mrs. Audrey Braid 9-5 in the first draw and Mrs. Elsie Forsyth of Port Arthur 8-5 in the second.

Mrs. Forsyth..won her first-round game 11-7 against Mrs. Roger Morrison of Noranda, scoring a five-ender in the third to overcome a 2-0 deficit and topping it off with a four-ender in the eighth.

Mrs. Braid captured her second-draw contest 12-6 over Mrs. Morrison

Angela Lansbury in Running For Academy Nomination

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Angela Lansbury, it's a long time between academy nominations.

Eighteen years, in fact. When she was a teen-ager, Angela won nominations for her work in Gaslight and The Picture of Dorian Gray.

The returns won't be in until Feb. 25, but she is certain to be in the supporting-actress race again for her role in the The Manchurian Candidate.

This will mark the flowering of a new career for the British-born actress, who lately has made a specialty of playing mothers. M o t h e r hood may never be the same.

Not since Phillip Wylie propounded momism has the ancient institution suffered such abuse. The Lansbury campaign started with the Broadway version of A Taste of Honey, in which she played a slatternly, unfeeling mother of a sensitive girl.

PLAYED HORRENDOUS MA

She followed with All Fall Down, as the nonstop-talker who drove her husband and sons to distraction. But Manchurian Candidate would win all elections for the most horrendous ma since Medea; her hobbies ran to assassination and high treason.

Russell Opposes Foreign Bases

MOSCOW (AP)—British philosopher Earl Russell said in an interview published today in the Soviet newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya:

Many People in W. Europe Regard U.S. Presence More As Menace Than Blessing

This is the second of a series based on a trip through Common Market countries by AP special correspondent William L. Ryan. In this story he examines European feelings of resentment against the United States.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LONDON (AP) — There are vocal and influential people in Western Europe who regard the American presence on the Continent as more of a menace than a blessing.

The Brussels explosion at the end of January, when France slammed the door to Europe in Britain's face, has landed in some quarters to increase irritation with the United States.

The British government's careful policy, keeping its anger in check after Brussels, has kept the thumb in the European dike, holding back at least for the time being a tide of resentment. These are high cards torn apart, sharpen conflicts and lead toward a thing called confrontation. The questions lean reliance on the United States, and a Europe for Europeans.

Here is a development is there, nurtured by France President de Gaulle's outspoken suspicions of and resistance to Washington.

There is a curious blending of right-wing conservative views with those of the left regarding the U.S. role in Europa.

SOME WERE RELIVED

In England, for example, certain articulate forces were relived when France's veto kept Britain out of the six-nation Common Market. They saw Britain at a disadvantage as an island power in Europe. They prefer something in the nature of an enlarged European Free Trade Association without surrender of economic sovereignties.

One spokesman for the right wing Tory group is Viscount Hinchingbrooke, an anti-Market member. He says membership with the campaign cry that it would betray British interests and make Britain too subservient to the United States. Lord Hinchingbrooke, an anti-able peer who does not consider himself a right winger, says people should forget about the menace of communism, "wake up to the fact that the United States has done us harm, while the Russians have not." He says Europe should set on its own approaching Moscow, not wait for the U.S. to lead.

These still add up to a minority views. There remains a great backing of pro-American sentiment in Europe, pronounced in West Germany, Italy, the low countries and Britain. But implicit in development of the independent Europe idea is the possibility that new anti-Americanism will grow in England and on the Continent.

Asian Flu Brings Several Deaths in N.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Asian flu or something similar is sweeping the eastern half of the United States, causing widespread absenteeism among students and teachers, forcing some schools to close and resulting in at least 20 deaths.

The Carolinas appear to be hardest hit.

North Carolina has been declared an epidemic area with flu outbreaks in about 20 counties and at least two deaths reported from the state's capital. Three others died of "flu-like" ailments.

In South Carolina, three counties have had serious flu problems. More than a dozen flu deaths have been reported in the state.

Schools in Trigg County, Ky., were indefinitely because 80 per cent of 2,000 pupils were ill. At nearby Hopkinsville, Ky., the hospital said it is tending the greatest number of patients in its 60-year history.

More than 1,200 pupils and teachers were absent from Louisville, Ky., schools Monday. Dr. Hiram E. Fitzgerald, Kentucky's state health commissioner, said the state may be in for an epidemic of Asian flu but it appears mild and is no cause for alarm.

School absenteeism also was running high in Maryland's coastal area, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Norwich, Conn.

TEACHERS AILING

In Bridgeport, Conn., public schools were closed Monday to give teachers, suffering from "flu-like" symptoms time to recuperate.

Sunday ringing enough substitute teachers for those who were ill.

The Sharon Springs Central school in Schoharie County, N.Y., closed Monday for the week after 135 of the 425 students and staff members, early members developed a flu-like ailment.

Seventy navy recruits at the Great Lakes training center in Illinois are under treatment for Asian flu in the last three weeks, the disease hitting 270 of the 8,000 recruits there.

The public health service in Washington took a sampling of 108 cities and said pneumonia-influenza deaths have been above the epidemic threshold for four weeks.

Especially vulnerable to flu, the service said, are the elderly, the chronically ill and pregnant women. The flu weakens them and, in many instances, makes them susceptible to pneumonia.

SHIPS COLLIDE

NEW YORK (AP) — Two American-flag vessels collided in the fog off Paulsboro, N.J., Monday night, punching large holes in both ships, the U.S. coast Guard reported. No injuries were reported. The collision was between the Steel King, a 492-foot vessel bound for Baltimore, and the Atlantic Trader, a 572 - foot freighter bound for Revere, Mass.

Rebel Bands Keep Castro's Troops Busy

HAVANA (AP) — Travellers returning from central Cuba say bands of armed counter-revolutionaries have increased their activity and are keeping thousands of Fidel Castro's troops on the alert.

According to their reports, the insurgents' action is centred around the Escambray Hills, a rugged area in south-central Las Villas province, about 250 miles southeast of Havana.

Few of these attacks are reported in Havana newspapers.

Travellers say the counter-revolutionaries are coming down from the hills, and once even struck close to the 400-year-old town of Trinidad, disrupting part of its electric power.

Havana newspapers said Jan. 11 that counter-revolutionaries attacked a peasant home in Trinidad, killing one man and several others.

Since then, unconfirmed accounts of attacks on buses and trains in Las Villas have reached Havana.

An unofficial tally of counter-revolutionary activity in 1962, based solely on information published by Havana newspapers, shows government forces killed at least 31 persons engaged in anti-government operations. Insurgents have claimed a minimum of 18 lives during last year.

Canada Plans Big Icebreaker

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada is planning to build a 24,000 horsepower icebreaker which would be the most powerful conventionally - engined icebreaker in the world.

Rankine Strang, director of the department of transport's ship-building branch, says the design of the icebreaker is not complete.

He was speaking to the technical section of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association during the association's annual meeting here.

The most powerful Canadian icebreaker is the John A. Macdonald with 15,000 h.p. and the most powerful U.S. icebreaker is the 22,000 h.p. Glacier.

Chief's Forces Fight Pogo In Transkei

ENGCOBO, South Africa (Reuters)—Fighting has broken out in a district of the Transkei between what were believed to be members of the anti-white Pogo underground African nationalist organization and forces of Chief Kaiser Matanzima, it was officially learned here today.

The forces of the chief, head of the Transkei Territorial Authority, were supported by South African police.

The clashes began when Pogo members and other tribesmen attacked a headman who called on Matanzima for assistance.

Reports reaching here said at least 200 armed tribesmen and South African police were battling a large force of Pogo members backed by supporters of the Mahlangan organization, believed to be an offshoot of Pogo.

Many of the Africans were said to be fighting with assegais (spears) and battle axes.

The Transkei was established to be South Africa's first Bantustan —an internally self - governing Negro state.

It has a population of 1,258,000 Negroes, 18,000 whites and 13,760 coloreds (mixed race).

The Transkei lies between Natal and the eastern cape, and is the first of eight planned bantustans.

U.S. Is Likely To Avoid Clash With de Gaulle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post says that President Kennedy conferred with his chief foreign policy experts Tuesday in a review of the crisis in the Atlantic alliance.

The Post, quoting informed sources, says the meeting was one of a series scheduled to re-examine U.S. policy in the wake of France's vetoing British membership in the European Common Market.

Kennedy also conferred with schools of strategy for dealing with the challenge to the 'grand design' of American foreign policy.

"To use an oversimplification, the Post suggests in essence that the United States should regard French President Charles de Gaulle's policy as a head-on attack on American policy, and react to it head-on, point for point. This group sees as inevitable collision between two 'grand designs.'

"A second group, one that seems to include most of the experienced diplomats, wants to work around the de Gaulle obstacle. It favors co-operating with de Gaulle where possible and opposing him where necessary, but letting the European nations that disagree with him set the pace—for fear that otherwise the Common Market may be stopped, along with the momentum of the Atlantic alliance.

"The latter approach appears to be in the ascendancy."

Special Zoning Proposed to Kiwanis Club

PICTON — Chris Lockyer, father of accident victim Richard Lockyer, made a brief visit to Picton Kiwanis Club Monday on behalf of his family to thank his fellow club members for sympathy extended.

Mr. Lockyer said he hoped at some future date to sit down with club members and discuss the promotion of speed zones in hazardous areas of the district. "I hope we as a club will be able to come up with some suggestions," he said.

Club president Dr. Lionel Dockrill endorsed the speed zoning idea. He said the driving in Picton is "absolutely [illegible] who lives on [illegible] ning drivers at his end of town who "must be going 70 mph," and of drivers using the racetrack for a speedway. "It is time something was done," he said. The doctor said he and club vice-president, Dr. LeRoy Hall, have often felt like taking some of the local "hotrodders" into the morgue to view accident victims.

Earl Donoghue, a Kiwanian, who is a near neighbor of the Lockyers, expressed concern for the safety of his children on that stretch of the highway. Said he, "with speeds the way they are today, this type of accident is going to happen again."

H and S Assoc. Celebrates Founder's Night

PICTON — Founders' Night for Home and School Association was celebrated locally at Queen Elizabeth School with vice-president Mrs. B. Algar presiding.

A warm welcome to the audience, which included many past presidents and grade XIII students, was extended by the president, Mr. W. D. Adam. Past presidents of Picton Association were read as follows: Mrs. G. Cook, Mrs. L. B. Calnan, Mrs. E. Ward, Mrs. F. Webster, Mrs. C. Rutter, Mrs. W. Hicks, Mrs. J. H. Walmsley, Mrs. C. Carter, Mrs. R. L. Perkin, Mrs. E. Armand, Mrs. R. Fyffe and Mrs. W. Drew. A few words about Founders' Night followed Mrs. A. C. Curtis, Home and School Associations, have established the Curtis Memorial Library. Recently, one-half of the funds have been used for student bursaries.

In a brief address Principal Carl Reid mentioned two school events to take place this month. This Wednesday at 8.00, senior pupils display athletic ability on "Fitness Night." On February 27, grade VII and VIII present the operetta "Mikado."

Mrs. R. Colliver, accompanied at the piano by Mr. A. Bennie, sang two delightful numbers, "Carlotta" and "Red, Red Robin."

TALK ON WILD LIFE

Mrs. F. Wallis of Belleville, captivated the audience with her excellent slides and lively commentary. Her ability to call wild life enables her to obtain close-range photographs of rarely seen local birds, animals and fish. She often captures several amusing poses of the same subject, and frequently through various stages of growth. Mrs. Wallis studies the habits of wild life and stresses the value of conservation. Careless water pollution or a thoughtlessly tossed match may destroy thousands, even an improperly opened can may be the cause of a horrible fate of some animal foraging for food.

An enthusiastic naturalist would consider himself fortunate to accompany Mrs. Wallis on an early morning hike or boat ride but everyone who sees her pictures can really appreciate the value of wildlife.

Light refreshments and a social half hour followed the conclusion of the meeting. The cake served on this occasion was decorated in honor of Founder's Night.

Wagon Given by Kiwanis To Be Used for Safety Work

The Belleville City Police are now using a new safety car thanks to the work of the Kiwanis Club of this city and its members. Yesterday afternoon Police Chief Walter Probert took official receipt of a new station wagon from the club's safety committee chairman, Leo McKee.

The vehicle is to be used exclusively for the work of Sgt. Ralph Blatchford and the force in bringing safety to the school children of the community.

At the presentation ceremony in Kiwanis Centre Mayor A. McLean Haig commented on the good work of the police department in safety. He expressed the "thanks of every citizen" Ralph Blatchford, who is called Belleville's "Mr. Safety", Sgt. Blatchford was given a standing ovation by those present in recognition of his work.

Judge J. C. Anderson gave a brief address as guest speaker for the occasion. He expressed the opinion that such activity on the part of both citizens and police as was evidenced in the safety campaign in the city schools had long range benefits. This would be an increased safety consciousness of the citizens of tomorrow which would lessen both police work and court cases through fewer accidents and violations, he suggested.

Judge Anderson said that he knew of few communities which have as successful a safety program as does this community and expressed gratitude that the Kiwanis Club understood such work as a club project.

Special guests for the occasion were Mayor Lloyd Symons and J. B. McLauchlan and Sgt. Ralph Blatchford.

The meeting was conducted by club president Ralph Graham.

Resident Has An Unusual One-Dollar Bill

PICTON — Harry Trask, 42 Diver Bell, Picton Heights, has in his possesion an unusual one dollar bill issued in 1934. It is almost a two-in-one bill because of its color but the dollar denomination and printing is the same on both sides. However, in the printing, different colored inks were used, with one side having the usual one-dollar green, while the other has the blue used on five-dollar bills. Going by color alone, it would be easy to make a mistake. The present face value is one dollar but it is felt that it might be more highly valued by a collector. Serial number is S/L 4813136. Mr. Trask collects silver dollars and hopes to swap the bill for certain ones he lacks.

Blood Clinic Committee Sets 200 as Quota

PICTON — A meeting of the Blood Clinic committee was held on February 7th at the home of Mrs. Ted Armand with seven present and Mrs. H. Slaven in the chair.

Each convener was presented with detailed duties to perform including getting helpers and any publicity necessary.

Mrs. H. Slaven and Mrs. Ted Armand are co-conveners of the blood committee and in addition co-conveners already listed Mrs. Clarence Rutter will be the typist with Mrs. Frank Chapman making the necessary posters.

The quota for the spring clinic is 200 pints of blood which necessitates at least 350 appointments being made. The clinic is being held on Wednesday, March 6, at the Armouries a very convenient spot for anyone wishing to drop in and make a donation of life-giving blood.

The meeting closed with a social half-hour and light refreshments served by Mrs. Armand and Mrs. Marshall.

New Type Space Satellite Soars Into Orbit

Will Take Two Weeks To Prove Its Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Syncom, a new type of space communications station, soared into orbit today and successfully passed two key hurdles toward becoming the world's first satellite to seemingly "stand still" in space.

Success cannot be completely evaluated until the satellite has performed a number of planned, complex manoeuvres, expected to take about two weeks.

If experiments planned for this intended first-of-a-kind synchronous satellite work, the United States will have taken a big stride toward a relatively inexpensive world - wide space communications network requiring only three satellites.

A synchronous satellite is one which appears to hover over one spot on the globe because its speed matches that of the earth's rotation. This can be achieved only at an altitude close to 22,300 miles.

SUCCESSFUL LAUNCHING

The three-stage Douglas Delta scoring its 15th straight satellite launching success, blasted off at 12:35 a.m. EST and drilled Syncom into a highly elliptical orbit at 22,860 miles an hour. The mechanical marvel coasted upward for five hours and seven minutes until it reached near the 22,300-mile altitude. Then a small solid fuel rocket was fired by a timing device and changed the orbit from elongated to circular at this height.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that the two critical early phases of flight — the launching and the firing of the small rocket—had occurred.

But it said that several hours of tracking would be required to determine if the manoeuvring ignition of the small rocket had been.

The firing occurred high above the equator between Madagascar and the East African coast. During the long coast period, the satellite's speed had dropped to just under 6,800 miles, equalling the speed of the earth's rotation.

To make most effective use of ground communications stations, scientists want the satellite to be stationed over the equator between South America and Africa.

Syncom is not equipped for television transmissions as were Telstar and Relay communications satellites launched last year. Syncom, an 86-pound sphere built by Hughes Aircraft Company, is geared for telephone, teletype and radio communications. Company officials hope will prove the feasibility of using high - altitude synchronous satellites not only for communications, but for weather forecasting and other duties.

HAD TO RESIGN SAYS HEES AS MAN OF HONOR

Former Minister Gives Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—George Hees says that "as a man of honor" he had to resign as trade minister last Saturday because Prime Minister Diefenbaker did not carry out a promise to modify the government's policy on nuclear weapons.

He said in an interview Wednesday that at the Conservative caucus meeting Feb. 6 Mr. Diefenbaker had promised he could "meet on common ground" and work out policies which he, Mr. Hees, could support.

"By Friday afternoon, it was very apparent that nothing was going to be done to meet my position in any way. . . . So there was no alternative—I had to resign."

Mr. Hees, in a talk in his Ottawa hotel room during a brief return visit to the capital, said his position has been "very much misunderstood." Questions had been raised how he could have declared following the Feb. 6 caucus that the party was united and then have resigned Saturday.

"I was completely convinced on Wednesday that my position was going to be met within reason. No attempt was made to meet it."

SPOKE FOR HOUR

Mr. Hees said that at the caucus meeting, where he was chairman, he had spoken for about an hour outlining his position: That Canada should have nuclear weapons on Canadian soil to help preserve peace; that Canada had to uphold its nuclear obligations to its neighbors; that it would be "disastrous" for the party to take an anti-American stand in the election.

He said he had told the caucus that "if present policies persisted, I had no choice but to resign."

This statement was followed by a "great wave of enthusiasm" with appeals for party unity, he said.

The prime minister was sitting right beside me. He leaned over and said: 'If you will not resign, we can meet on common ground on these issues and work

REVIVAL OF OLD RACE CHARTERS NOW BANNED

Action Taken In Legislature

TORONTO (CP)—Revival of dormant racing charters for the establishment of new race tracks will no longer be permitted. Provincial Secretary John Yaremko told the legislature Wednesday.

In an often stormy debate, he said Ontario now has enough racing days and in future all racing associations will have to be incorporated by special legislation by either the Ontario or federal governments.

Mr. Yaremko challenged Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, to an electoral battle in Toronto Bellwoods, Mr. Yaremko's constituency, and accused him of using "dirty, nasty, loaded words" in criticizing his department, himself and W. Earl Rowe, who became lieutenant - governor March 1.

He demanded Mr. MacDonald apologize to Mr. Rowe for his statement Monday that Mr. Rowe used illegal procedures to obtain shares in racing charters and made false statements to the Provincial Secretary's Department. Mr. MacDonald refused.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Attorney-General Cass said the department will investigate the charges made by Mr. MacDonald.

"You were trying to work a big air of mystery, pretending there had been great conspiracy and great collusion," Mr. Yaremko said.

Mr. MacDonald renewed his attacks Wednesday. He said Mr. Rowe and his son had named themselves directors of the Grimsby Recreation Club Limited on March 30, 1961, reviving a charter first granted in 1937. The club, with the name revived as the new Windsor Raceway.

When they realized this was illegal, they advertised a dummy opera'l annual meeting, sent out letters to dead shareholders and elected themselves, Mr. MacDonald said. He claimed a shareholders meeting had never taken place.

Mr. Rowe said although he was not happy about the manner in which old charters were being revived, it was legal.

He said 21 charters, all issued before 1912, had been revived since 1959. One application had been refused. He dismissed Mr. MacDonald's claim that favor had been shown in granting revivals.

In each case, before granting revival of corporate powers, it was established by affidavit evidence and viva voce examination that the proposed parties had been satisfied.

Company Head Had to Hire Detectives to Protect Ships

OTTAWA (CP)—The president of Canada's second largest shipping company on the Great Lakes told a federal inquiry he spent $361,000 on hired detectives during the last two years because he was "dealing with murder incorporated."

J. D. Leitch, 42, of Upper Lakes Shipping Limited said Wednesday the detectives were hired to protect the company's ships and their crews against violence and harassment in a fight against the Seafarers' International Union of Canada. He was testifying before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris's one-man investigation of labor strife and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes.

The shipowner, who heads companies worth an estimated $70,000,000, blamed the SIU and its American - born president, Hal C. Banks, for terrorism and gangsterism in the maritime industry. He traced the history of his labor fight with the SIU since 1961—a dispute that culminated in an outright break in contractual relations with the SIU last April and a new contract with the SIU's rival, the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC).

BELIEVES CAN COMPETE

He testified that he believed that an efficient Canadian ship, manned by Canadians at Canadian wages, could compete against the lower-cost ships under the Red Flag if allowed to do so.

Mr. Leitch appeared at the 97th session of the inquiry, which started last August. There were indications that it would be among the last witnesses to appear before Mr. Justice Norris, who is eager to conclude his investigation and write a report for the federal labor minister.

Several other witnesses, including Norman Reoch of Reoch Transport and R. McLagan of Canada Steamship Line, are scheduled to appear before the inquiry concludes.

Baluba Warriors Defy Troops To Disarm Them

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Two hundred Baluba warriors in war paint marched on the airport outside this Katango province capital Wednesday and defied a United Nations bid to disarm them.

The Baluban, carrying weapons ranging from bows and arrows to bicycle chains, went to the airport to meet their political leader, Jason Sendwe, who flew in from Leopoldville, the central Congo capital.

The crowd at the airport was swollen by the arrival of 800 Baluba women and children who were to have been flown by the UN to their tribal homes in Kasai At the last moment their flights were cancelled.

Wearing tribal monkey skin headdresses, grass skirts and sackcloth uniforms, the Baluba warriors formed outside the airport terminal. Their commander angrily refused to obey a UN order to hand over their arms.

Only a handful of Balubas was allowed on to the field to greet Sendwe's plane. The rest chanted praises to him and the late Patrice Lumumba, former Congo premier.

"I have come here to help my brothers and to sort out the refugee problem," Sendwe told reporters. About 3,000 Baluba refugees still live in a camp on the outskirts of Elisabethville.

Sendwe, an arch-enemy of Katanga's President Moise Tshombe. Is the leader of the Balubakat party concentrated in north Katanga.

Visiting Prince Ill With Flu At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Albert, 38-year-old brother of King Baudouin of Belgium, was reported resting comfortably at the Embassy here today following an attack of influenza contracted Wednesday.

The spokesman said Prince Albert probably will remain in Ottawa through Saturday. The hope is that he will rejoin his party in Calgary Sunday.

The sudden illness has meant a reshuffling of the prince's schedule for today and Friday. The remainder of his party, led by the ambassador, will attend the official opening of a photographic import building in Toronto this afternoon.

A visit to the Canadian Red Cross headquarters in Toronto has been cancelled as has a visit to Polymer Corporation in Sarnia Friday. Without the prince, the party will keep a scheduled engagement Friday afternoon in Delhi.

Members of the party include Raoul Boorman, Belgian minister of external trade, Andre Verbosmoen, deputy director general of the Belgian foreign trade office, and Michel Didisheim, trade counsellor.

PRINCIPAL CRACKS DOWN

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Arthur Hartman, principal at suburban North Hills High School, declared Wednesday that a total of 71 students have been suspended a week for violating a good grooming code. Principal targets of the crackdown were short and tight skirts, tight trousers and wild hair styles—both male and female.

Police Processing 237 Charged With Rioting

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—An orderly police roundup of striking loggers continued in the Northern Ontario bush today in the aftermath of a bushworkers dispute that erupted into a fatal burst of gunfire at nearby Reesor Siding early Monday.

In Toronto, government officials huddled into early morning hours with company and union officials in an attempt to end the strike that started January 14.

Late Wednesday night at Kapuskasing police held in custody 18 of 19 men facing three non-capital murder charges each. The 19th was expected to arrive from Montreal today.

The orderly processing of 237 men charged with rioting had by late at night after 96 had been taken into custody. Only one had posted the required $200 bail. The rest were taken by two buses to a former internment camp at Monteith, 100 miles south of this Northern Ontario bushtown.

The 237—police originally estimated 400 would be charged—are members of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (CLC) which is striking against Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company. The union assisted the more than 200 provincial police officers rushed in Monday to buttress the existing 25-man force in rounding up the 237.

IN DEATHS OF THREE

The 19 men charged with murder in the death of three union members of the nearby Val Rita co-operative, a group of French-Canadian settlers that supplies pulp wood independently to the Spruce Falls paper mill here.

In Toronto, Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree said conversations between the government and the two factions were "encouraging."

At midnight he said: "we'll be here all night and tomorrow, if necessary, as long as there are signs that progress is being made."

The closed meetings, hurriedly called by the department of labor, started at 10 a.m. independently, but after an hour, both company and union men were meeting together with Mr. Rowntree.

Three company and three union representatives arrived in Toronto by Trans-Canada Air

U.S. PLANES CIRCLE SHIP SEIZED BY REDS

Venezuelan Rebels Board Freighter

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—United States Navy planes sighted and circled a commandeered Venezuelan freighter today about 200 miles south of the Dominican Republic in the Caribbean—the Venezuelan Navy announced.

The freighter was seized Tuesday by members of a Communist terrorist organization opposed to the government of President Romulo Betancourt, Communications Minister Pablo Miliani reported.

Earlier reports said the terrorists had help from an unidentified warship.

The Venezuelan government declared the seizure an act of piracy and asked the navies of all nations to help in capturing the freighter.

The navy announcement said the U.S. Navy planes, presumably from Puerto Rico, were circling the ship.

The captain of the 3,126-ton Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui confirmed in a radio message to the government shipping company that a warship intercepted his ship en route to New Orleans and a guerrilla band took it over.

The government did not identify the nationality of the intercepting warship, but it was suspected here that it was Cuban.

Fidel Castro and Betancourt are bitter enemies and the ship's master, Capt. Oscar Pereira, said the hijackers identified themselves as members of the Communist-led, pro-Castro FALN, the Armed Forces of National Liberation.

Pereir; said he and his 35 men were unarmed.

The hijackers broadcast from the ship that they had seized it as a protest before world opinion against the present government in Venezuela."

LOUIS PRIMA WEDS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Bandleader Louis Prima, 51, announced Wednesday he has married 21-year-old Gia Maione, his singing discovery. It was his third bride's first. Prima and singer Keely Smith were divorced in 1961. Miss Maione's adopted custody of the two children.

Bushworker Wounded by Settlers Sympathizes With Their Plight

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—Ovila Bernard, 25 - year - old bushworker wounded in the battle of Reesor Siding, is not a bitter man.

From a hospital bed he said in an interview he is sympathetic to the problem of the settlers in independent woodcutter-home stockpile he had been attempting, in company with other strikers, to push the bush.

He holds no bitterness for the settlers who opened fire and killed Jean Guy Bourgeois and wounded nine others Monday. But, he says neither does he regret having taken part in the raid. Nineteen settlers have been charged with non-capital murder.

He says the settler is in the same boat as the union logger—only worse off. He feels he was fighting their battle as well. If they's demand for pulp.

Some Fire Escapes on Tenements In Quebec Just Tacked to Wall

QUEBEC (CP)—When Mrs. Mildred Bergeron-Blanke writes letters to the editor about stingy landlords and fire escapes on tenements, she does so from a tenant's point of view.

Her letters hit editorial pages here as the city was shaken by a terrible winter fire toll—five dead and more than $7,000,000 in damages done.

In one case, criminal charges were laid against a landlord after a woman was burned in a three-storey building having no fire escape.

Firemen used nets and ladders in below-zero weather to get tenants climbing on Rue St. Jean for 18 months and had to fight through city hall to get the doctor who owned it to put up a fire escape.

The escape turned out to be typical of many on downtown buildings—a simple wooden ladder tacked to the wall.

Sukarno Heightens Tension

Says Malaysia Would Encircle Indonesia

JAKARTA (AP) — President Sukarno heightened the tension between Indonesia and Malaya Wednesday night, calling the plan to unite British territories in Southeast Asia an imperialistic scheme to encircle his island republic.

It was Sukarno's first public denunciation of the plan to unite Malaya, Singapore and British territories in North Borneo in a federation of Malaysia. The plan calls for inauguration of the federation Aug. 31.

"We don't want Malaysia around us," Sukarno told 10,000 persons at a rally in Jakarta. "We know it is encirclement. Malaysia is to save imperialism."

Sukarno said he had told the armed forces "we still have a challenge to face."

"'Beware,' I said. There is an attempt on the principle of anti-colonialism."

He hedged this implied military threat, however, by saying Indonesia "will carry out political confrontation against the Malaysia idea."

"Thus will include economic confrontation as well," Sukarno continued. Apparently he was threatening to cut off the large Indonesian transit trade through Singapore and Malaya.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio warned earlier of a possible armed conflict if the Malaysian plan goes through. Subandrio's warnings triggered announcement of, a military buildup in Malaya, which has only a small armed force and depends largely on Britain for its defence.

Sukarno also reaffirmed his support for the North Borneo revolt which sought to set up an independent state including Sarawak and North Borneo.

Last December a pro - Indonesian rebellion broke out in M. Azahari, led a revolt against the British, charging the people of the three territories never were given a chance to decide whether they wanted to join the Malaysia federation. British troops flown in from Singapore crushed the revolt in a week.

The rest of Borneo is Indonesian territory and so-called volunteers have been reported assembling there to aid the North Borneo rebels.

Board Reserves Judgment On Parrot's Application

Members of the Ontario Municipal Board yesterday reserved judgment until Friday on the application of John M. Parrott, of Stanley Park Ltd., for relief from a decision of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board which denied him further changes in the Stanley Park sub-division plan.

The hearing was held at the city hall council chambers with Municipal Board vice chairman A. H. Arrell and V. S. Milburn conducting the hearing.

Belleville Solicitor William Argue appeared for the applicant while the Suburban Planning Board was represented by E. Gus Porter.

Mr. Parrott requested several changes in the sub-division plan which would slightly increase the area of certain corner lots allowing a higher value house to be erected.

The applicant claimed that the change would not be detrimental to any of the adjoining owners.

RESULT OF LITIGATION

The area in question is north of Victoria in the Meadowvale Ave. district.

The hearing was told that 87 different changes in the Stanley Park sub-division plan had already been requested by the owner or builders. Mr. Argue explained, however, that this was only because the Stanley Park sub-division was the largest developed to date in this city.

Mr. Argue claimed the refusal of the board's planning board to allow further changes was the result of litigation between the city and Mr. Parrott.

Municipal Board members stated, however, they were not interested in Mr. Parrott's fight with the local planning board.

Mr. Porter told the hearing that the planning board was requesting new sub-division plan to protect the rights of property owners in the area. Witnesses called at the hearing included Thomas Ransom, local land surveyor, Charles Mott, city planning engineer, James Cathcart, Belleville Real estate agent and Jack M. Parrott.

Sentences Totalling 24 Years Given Four Men, Teen-Ager

A crime spree that centred in Harmony ended in Belleville this morning when sentences totalling 24 years were given to four men and a teen-ager.

These were the sentences handed down by Magistrate T. Y. Wills as he finally disposed of charges including armed robbery, wave of break-ins stretching from Whitby to Belleville, illegal possession and auto-stealing.

John Albert Bainbridge, 22 nine years in Kingston penitentiary;

Glen Irwin Gray, 21 — seven years in penitentiary;

Ross Allen Lake, 23—four years;

Henry Sylvester Empey, 31 — two years less-a-day in reformatory plus six months indeterminate;

Frederick O'Shea, 16 — two years on probation.

"There is not too much can say to you on these charges," said Magistrate Wills as he reviewed the convictions before the five men in the dock.

"You know quite well what you are facing before the law. Some of you have some record, so you know what happens when you are convicted."

Every available seat in the court was taken as relatives and friends of the accused men came to hear the magistrate's final disposition of the charges.

ARMED ROBBERY CHARGE

The sentence wrote an end to intensive police investigation that started in Belleville January 7, when Kelly's Sports Shop was looted of a small amount of merchandise, furs valued at $1,200. The trail finally led to Marmora two weeks later when Constable Murray Brown questioned suspects into the armed robbery of an all-night restaurant. On January 18, 52-year-old George Aunger was held up and robbed at gun point in Belleville. On closing time.

Chief Brown called in Belleville police and OPP officers from Madoc. By Monday, following a long week-end weekend searches detectives were sorting loot from a wave of breaking and entering or four months.

Magistrate Wills singled out the armed robbery charge for special mention as he announced the sentences this morning.

"It is one of our most serious offences," he told Bainbridge, Gray and O'Shea — the three charged with the crime.

He sentenced Bainbridge and Gray to four years for the offence. The Kelly burglary was charged against Bainbridge and Lake, and the magistrate noted the large quantity of firearms that had been taken.

"Anybody can draw any inference they like from a gun scam drawing no inference," he said.

He sentenced both men to three years for the break-in.

Burglaries in Brooklin and Otonabee townships also netted against Bainbridge brought another two years consecutive sentences. The eight other charges against Bainbridge, the magistrate made the terms concurrent.

Gray was also given three years for the same burglaries.

A seventh charge of breaking and breaking in Crowe Lake near Marmora and theft of a stove charged against Lake and Empey, added another year to Lake's jail term.

The magistrate, imposing the reformatory term on Empey told him: "You are in a different position. You have no previous record whatever."

Finally, Magistrate Wills turned to the 16-year-old O'Shea.

"You have caused me a lot of concern," he told O'Shea.

"You are 16 years old, have no record, yet you are involved in an armed robbery. I cannot help feeling there is an element of punishment that should be applied to you — and I also have to consider the good of society as a whole."

Placing him under the suspended sentence, the magistrate also ordered O'Shea to observe a midnight curfew nightly unless otherwise permitted by the county probation officer.

Around The Tee

The Victoria and Grey Trust bonspiel for this district will be played at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday for the beautiful trophy and prizes. "Bud" Tull, manager of the local office is working in conjunction with the Club to make this one of the best on record. There will be eight outside rinks competing augmented by the same number from the local club.

There will be a three-game draw for each rink and the winning rink to be decided on point system.

The bonspiel rinks from the local club are going to dress up for the occasion and no doubt some outlandish costumed will result. The farmers last year made a distinct hit but this year the ladies are going after the honors. There are others in line but they refuse to detail their outfits so the gallery will just have to wait. The spiel has always been a popular event and a great deal of sociability is engendered.

Mac White and his Colts rink of T. Mc. Cameron, William Riley and Ron Beau will journey to Kingston on Friday to meet the city players rink for this district. This playdowns is for rinks with less than seven years membership in the incorporated club. The competition is quite stiff in this competition for besides the eight a number of young players, who have taken to the game like a bit of duck to water, there will be at least twelve rinks entered in the event. The competition may run into Saturday it will be a knockout draw. The three clubs that provided the best in the club and should cause a lot of trouble to the rest of the curlers in the contest.

The Bay of Quinte Mixed bonspiel scheduled for March 8-10 inclusive will be a grand affair. The three clubs that participated in the men's spiel are again co-operating and to date 54 rinks of the 64 required have entered and it is expected the list will soon be completed. The committee wishes the spiel to be representative of the whole district but some rinks are reported to have not co-operated to the extent the committee would like. More rinks are expected from that area and the lists are being kept open to accommodate these rinks. Beautiful trophies have been obtained and splendid prizes will be given the winners in the several events.

Last week at the RCAF women's spiel a rink of Mrs. Beverley Neill, Mrs. Jean Meagher, Mrs. Audrey Cook, Mrs. Connie Wilkinson as skip had a fine game high and missed winning the trophy by two points to another rink of Mrs. Lenore Batemen, Mrs. Edna Hume, Mrs. Gwen Sutton with Mrs. Mary Mott as skip won the one-game high score. The women of the club have been quite active in the past weeks attending spiels throughout the district.

Union Will Get Answer In Few Weeks

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada has reserved judgment on the constitutional validity of British Columbia legislation prohibiting unions from using dues or membership fees for political purposes.

The validity of the legislation was attacked jointly by local 16-601 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (CLC) and the government of B.C. after a kitchenwan at a three-day hearing before a bench of seven judges. The B.C. attorney-general opposed the attempt to upset B.C court decisions declaring the legislation to be within provincial jurisdiction.

The court's judgment in the case is not expected to be delivered for several weeks, the usual length of time taken to dispose of constitutional issues.

The legislation before the court is an amendment to the B.C. Labor Relations Act which forbids use of union dues and membership fees for political purposes. All unions must sign a statutory declaration that they are obeying the law before they are entitled to check off privileges.

Request Zoning Change for Westside Area

A decision by Central Mortgages and Housing Corporation not to approve a request for a single-family housing within a certain distance of a railway track, has prompted a request for a change in zoning for a proposed sub-division in the northwest part of the city.

The west end sub-division tentatively known as West Park Village, lies west of Sidney Street, between the CNR double track and 401 highway, and comprises part of Lot 38.

Yesterday the sub-division developers, known as L. and M. Developments, at a public meeting held by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board asked for a change in zoning from the present R-1 which permits only single-family dwellings.

Two of the zoning change requests were for M-1 on the first 300 feet north of the tracks and for RM-2 for the next 200 feet.

WOULD ALLOW FACTORIES

This, if granted, would allow light industry immediately north of the tracks and duplexes, triplexes and small apartments on the next 200 feet.

For the next 3,000 feet a zoning change to R-2 was asked. This would allow a smaller type house on a smaller area lot, but retaining the present 60 foot frontage requirement.

Only three people spoke at the meeting at which planning board member Alderman Les Digby acted as chairman.

Mr. W. J. McCormick, appearing for L. and M. Developments Ltd., outlined the reasons for the zoning change request.

One area resident opposed the change, while another resident of the area asked why Mr. McCormick was not requesting a zoning change for the entire property running north to 401.

It was later indicated that Mr. McCormick might alter his request to cover the entire lot.

The zoning request will be considered, at a later meeting of the planning board.

Pastor Awarded D.D. Degree For Service

At a convocation in Calvary Temple on Tuesday night the Reverend W. R. Greenwood, superintendent of the Eastern Ontario and Quebec district, Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity for outstanding service in the Christian ministry. The ceremony was largely attended and included ministers and laity from the surrounding area.

"This great congregation is an indication of the love and respect in which our dear Brother Greenwood is held," said Alex E. Haw, LS.D., LL.D., who conferred the degree on behalf of Reverend Dr. A. D. Shoemaker, President of Trinity Southern Bible College and Seminary. Reverend Dr. Hope M. Smith read the citation from the seminary and Reverend Dr. A. J. Turvey of Michigan gave the dedicatory prayer.

Reverend Dr. Laurie H. Price paid tribute to Dr. Greenwood, stating that he had been a faithful preacher of the Gospel for many years and an able administrator in the district for the past 18 years. "He has the same zeal and determination to do his best for the cause of Christ as when he graduated from Bible College and commenced pioneer work in Saskatchewan 32 years ago," said Dr. Price. "He has a sense of duty that few people possess and he works long hours encouraging and inspiring Christian workers throughout his large district. In spite of his great responsibilities and his successful leadership, Brother Greenwood is a very humble man. He did not seek this honor but we certainly agree that he deserves it."

Dr. Greenwood is also manager of the Lakeshore Pentecostal Camp on Prince Edward, one of the largest religious retreats in Canada. With characteristic foresight and determination to overcome obstacles Dr. Greenwood has enlarged the camp and installed many new facilities during the past few years. He is not afraid of manual labor and he usually sets the pace when there is hard work to be done.

Girl Guide and Brownie Tea Enjoyed, Success

By GLADYS WARD

Christ Church Parish Hall was gaily decorated for the annual Girl Guide and Brownie tea convened by Mrs. R. B. McCulloch and co-convened by Mrs. W. Ironside on Wednesday afternoon.

The guests were received at the door by Mrs. A. McLean Haig, Commissioner for the Quinte Area; Mrs. D. Stewart, Belleville Division Commissioner; and Mrs. Doris Bannon, District Commissioner for Belleville, Northwest.

Mrs. R. D. Arnott and Mrs. Bannon were gracious hostesses, inviting visitors to the tea room. Here the walls were decorated with the mottoes of the Guides, Be Prepared; the Brownies, Lend a Hand; and the Rangers, Look Wide. Post- ers had entouts representing the badges, elves, fairies, sprites and Kelpies. Two lifed-sized mannequins were dressed in complete Brownie uniforms. The decorations were designed by Mrs. R. B. McCulloch and Miss Martha McCulloch.

Pouring tea at the three tea tables were Mrs. J. G. Demorest, Mrs. J. L. Acton; Mrs. A. M. Mills, Mrs. D. Arnott; Mrs. B. R. Waters; and Mrs. J. S. Sharman. Interesting pieces of driftwood were used for table cenpires with blue and gold flowers. The three tables, each with white linen cloths represented the three levels of Guides. The first had tribranched candelabra with yellow candles for the Brownies, the second had blue candles for the Guides and the third had red candles for the Rangers. At the end of each table the insignia of that group was placed.

Small tables with dark blue cloths were placed around the room. Those who served were dressed in their uniforms and included: Mrs. Eakins, Mrs. Hanna, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. Watkin, Mrs. Pringle, Mrs. Male, Mrs. Boulton, Mrs. Maid, Mrs. Akey, Mrs. Horwood, Mrs. Irwin, Mrs. Mundell, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Moon, Mrs. Howes, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Williston, Mrs. Donohoe, Mrs. Denike, Mrs. Gerow, Mrs. Chartrand, Mrs. Albert, Mrs. Bellemare, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Delbridge, Mrs. Crone, Mrs. Pollard, Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Boldrick and Miss Le- Grave.

REPLENISHED TABLES

Replenishing the tea tables were: Mrs. Sharman, Mrs. Acton, Mrs. Steinburg, Mrs. Brennan, Mrs. Driscoll, Mrs. Stalikovitch, Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Colden.

The attractive plates had dividers of lace doilies topped by Brownie symbols of bows, rooms, sprites and owls, and since it was a Valentine-time tea, they also carried heart-shaped bolders.

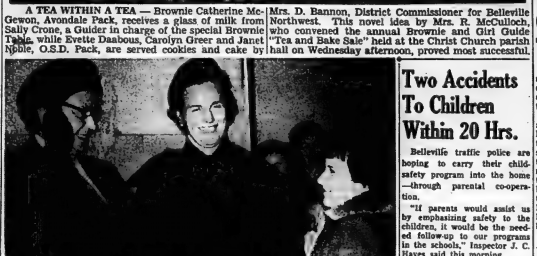
Looking after the important work of preparing these plates and making the tea were: Mesdames Dowsick, Parkef, Little, Walton, Gulls, Lennox, Johnston, Walker, Reid, Brodie, Greatrix, Eves, Ellis, Johnston, Lewis, Fitzgibbon, Berry, Day, Kempster, Batt, Munroe, Coombe, Wynn, Boyle, Keech, Spurgeon, Stirling, Grenke, Taylor, Plumpion, Durst and Miss Swain.

The three tables, each with a delectable assortment of home baking did a thriving business. The Belleville West table was convened by Mrs. N. A. McMillan with co-convener, Mrs. C. S. Lowther. Those assisting were Mrs. T. Schofield, Mrs. W. Kirkham, Mrs. B. R. Waters, Mrs. A. Bannon, Mrs. H. J. McCorquodale, Mrs. R. Heidel, Mrs. G. Lawrence, Mrs. J. E. Clarke and Mrs. J. Harder.

The North East table was convened by Mrs. Pringle with Mrs. Dymock and Mrs. O'Connor assisting.

At the Southeast District table were: Mrs. R. Bailey, Mrs. S. Wiggins, Mrs. A. Green, Mrs. N. Hodgins, Mrs. M. Brodie and this was convened by Mrs. D. de Boer.

The tea table was in charge of Mrs. Devolin, Mrs. Lochlin, Mrs. McLaughlin, Mrs. Bongard and Miss Dowsick.



After school hours the tables were arranged for the younger ones, who included Brownies from the GSD and other packs. They were served by the 2nd Belleville Brownie Pack of Christ Church, with Miss Sumner Lowther pouring milk for them.

Mrs. Belsey was treasurer for the afternoon.

Approximately 600 guests, were served at this most successful tea; the success of which Mrs. D. Stewart Division Commissioner and the convener, Mrs. R. McCulloch attributed to the whole-hearted cooperation of every member of the Guiding movement and the mothers who supplied the lunch and donated items for the bake tables. To all who assisted with this worthy project, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. McCulloch were truly grateful.

A TEA WITHIN A TEA — Brownie Catherine McGewon, Avondale Pack, receives a glass of milk from Sally Crone, a Guider in charge of the special Brownie Table, while Evette Daabous, Carolyn Greer and Janet Noble, O.S.D. Pack, are served cookies and cake by Mrs. D. Bannon, District Commissioner for Belleville Northwest. This novel idea by Mrs. R. McCulloch who convened the annual Brownie and Girl Guide "Tea and Bake Sale" held at the Christ Church parish hall on Wednesday afternoon, proved most successful.

TWO STEWARTS EXCHANGE GUIDE SALUTE — Mrs. D. Stewart, Belleville Division Commissioner, welcomed Brownie Kathy Stewart (no relation) and her Brown Owl, Mrs. Wanita Fox, from the O.S.D. Pack, to the annual Guide and Brownie tea yesterday afternoon. Over 600 guests attended the most successful tea and bake sale ever to be held in the city.

Liberals Kick Off Campaign At Club Canara

Fresh from the national policy council session in Ottawa, Liberal Tempie punched out the pattern of his election campaign in South Hastings to nearly 400 party workers in Belleville last night.

The theme will be one of economic action, free of fast and loose promises, said Mr. Tempie. Social legislation must await the return of financial health.

"There is no money left for any of these plans," he told the party members at Club Canara. "What money we can raise will be put first into the development of the country."

"We have a program and it is one that is designed to get Canada moving again, designed to get Canada back in good financial position."

After that, the Liberal party will institute social schemes, including medicare, "and all the social measures that Canada of course needs."

TWO PRIORITIES

"But mark it well please. There are two priorities. The first priority is to get the country moving again."

Among the economic transfusions planned by the party will be a wholesale attack on industrial problems; the encouragement of industrial settlement, with a new department created specifically to oversee industrial expansion. This will be backed by "expansionist trade policies."

Other measures will be the extension of funds for municipal public works, new low-cost housing and public transit.

"Monies will be made available by loans to municipalities. It will be money invested in Canada and it is a wise businesslike thing to invest money to make money."

Technological training facilities will be greatly expanded, to provide retraining of workers besides technical students. Financial aid will be accessible for students — again on a loan basis.

YOUTH GREATEST RESOURCE

"We all know a nation's resources are its human resources and the greatest asset of all is our youth. We must give the youth of this country the opportunity to be educated — and at all levels of education."

Mr. Temple also disposed of any thought that the current defence controversy will be kept out of the campaign.

"Defence policy is in this campaign; it is very important and, I am sure, a great many Canadians support the stand for nuclear defence."

"We are not here tonight, nor at any time during this campaign to promise that things are going to be easy, that things are going to run. Things are going to be good again, but it will take some time."

"The people of Canada are ready for some plain talk — for some plain answers."

WAN' HIGHER SUBSIDY

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Dutch poets and authors want bigger subsidies from the government The government has budgeted about $8,400 for special grants to authors this year and said two-thirds will go to five authors. But the Dutch federation of Professional Artists says 50 leading poets and authors should be helped with substantial grants.

Right on Ball Lining Up New Prospects

City real estate firms are right on the ball when it comes to lining up new prospects.

In fact they even go as far as to offer to list the homes of salesmen working with opposition realtors.

At least that's the way it happened this week following the sale of a house in the west side area.

First, the house in question was listed with an individual realtor but when it failed to move within a few weeks a multiple listing ensued.

In due time the house was sold — by a salesman working with an opposition company, who happened to live on the same street.

A couple of days later this salesman received a letter from the opposition firm offering to list his house for sale.

Two Accidents To Children Within 20 Hrs.

Belleville traffic police are hoping to carry their child-safety program into the home —through parental co-operation.

"If parents would assist us by emphasizing safety in the children, it would be the needed follow-up to our programs in the schools," said Const. F. C. Hayes said this morning.

His comments followed two accidents within 20 hours that sent two young children to hospital.

David Bury, 6, of 37 Linton Park Drive, received concussion and bruises last night when he was hit by a car on Victoria Avenue, driven by Frank Clapp, 305 Victoria Ave.

This morning, 7-year-old Pamela DeBaisie, 73 Highland Ave., was admitted to Belleville General Hospital after she was struck by a truck.

"We would like to see parents also teaching a little safety at home," said Inspector Hayes, who directs the city's traffic plans—including the full-time school safety program.

"They can also help by setting an example when out with their children, by observing all the customary safety practices," added the inspector.

Police Hold Dance

TRENTON — Last night, the seventh annual Valentine Dance, sponsored by the Trenton Police Association, was held in the Trenton Legion Hall.

Chairman of the successful event was Constable Carman Schwager and he was assisted by Constable Roger Camp and Sgt. Bruce Westfall.

Police officers and their guests danced to the music of Jack Kane and his orchestra and a cold turkey buffet was enjoyed by all.

Kingston Man Hurt in Mishap

TRENTON — Joseph Pollock 21, of Kingston, is reported to be in satisfactory condition today at Cobourg General Hospital, where he was admitted following an accident Wednesday morning on Highway 401, one mile east of Colborne.

Provincial police at Brighton say that Pollock was a passenger in a car driven by Peter Christopher Willis, 21, also of Kingston, which went out of control on an icy patch of road on the highway and rolled over. Williams was not injured.

Pollock was at first thought to be seriously injured, but his condition has improved to the point where hospital authorities think he may be discharged today.

Damage to the Williams car is set at $500.

ASKS COMMON LEVEL

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. G. E. Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, Wednesday night appealed for a common level of high school education and uniformity entrance qualifications across Canada. More than 200,000 persons, most of primary and high school age, moved from one province to another last year, he said. But Grade 10 in Ontario was not necessarily Grade 10 in another province.

Which Horses Will Run?

The early days of any election campaign are always fascinating, for they provide us with the first hints of the issues on which the various parties will try to fight the campaign.

The parties trot out their horses, but quickly discover some of them will not run. Generally, when polling times comes and the campaign gets rolling, all have at least one favorite issue facing the starting gate. Even among these culled entries, however, there are some casualties in the jockeying for position early in the race. Unhappy the party which finally finds its fortunes riding on a "horse" not of its own choosing.

Before the last election, for instance, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced that socialism would be the issue and Tommy Douglas happily took up his challenge. But the election, of course, was not decided on this issue; if it had been, there is no question but the Prime Minister, as the champion of free enterprise, would have swept to a decisive victory.

The major issue in the coming election ought to be Canada's economic problems. These are of long standing. They have their origin in our geography, climate and past history and in the impact on us of economic, political and scientific developments throughout the world. They are not the fault of any political party, the worst that can be said of the various parties which have held power over the past two decades, the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives, have erred in their judgments of the nature of the problems we face and of the steps required to cure them.

All parties will discuss these matters and advance solutions, but past experience suggests this will not emerge as the dominant issue. Because the problem is so complex, few voters will make up their minds solely, or even largely, on this basis. The Socreds, whose "funny money" proposals, ridiculous though they may be, are an effort to deal with economic woes, will win what seats they get mainly on this issue, but on such things as separatism in Quebec and provincial political allegiances in Alberta. The New Democratic Party's socialism will cut little ice compared with its opposition to Canada joining the "nuclear club," which nobody proposes. Nor will the more practical platforms of the Liberals or the Progressive Conservatives on economic matters be the deciding factor in how they share the votes. We shall have to look elsewhere for the main issue of the coming campaign.

The need for stable government will be a much more decisive factor in the minds of many and this the issue of greatest importance. But its influence on voters will depend on the judgment of these voters on the likely result. It will be a potent force in making people vote for the party they think most likely to win—but it will not decide which party they pick as a winner.

Nobody has worked previously on an issue which brought the downfall of the government, but it seems unlikely that, as such, it will emerge as the top issue of the campaign.

It could, however, become part of what, if it emerges at all, will inevitably be an issue of greater scope—the question of U.S. influence in Canadian affairs.

Early assurance that anti-Americanism will not be a theme of the Progressive Conservatives is weakened by the fact that this pledge came from Hon. George Hees, who has since resigned. In the sense in which some interpreted it it was an impossible promise. The Prime Minister and his associates will have to defend their policy on nuclear arms and the U.S. state department has made it painfully plain that this policy runs counter to the wishes of the U.S. administration. The New Democrats have also been picked by some for an anti-American role, and indeed, in stating their stand against Canada accepting nuclear arms under any conditions, they will inevitably oppose U.S. desires. But neither the Progressive Conservatives nor the New Democrats should be accused of anti-Americanism on such slim grounds alone - - - any more than the Liberals should be accused of playing the role of U.S. satellites just because their policy happens to be more acceptable to our neighbor and friend.

Silliest suggestion of all is that Toronto's Bay Street crowd should be cast in the role of the bogeyman by the Conservatives. It is in Toronto and its environs that the Conservatives must make gains if they are to have much hope of emerging from the election with a clear-cut majority.

The uttered part of a man's life, let us always repeat, bears to the un-uttered, unconscious part a small unknown proportion. He himself never knows it, much less do others.—Thomas Carlyle.

Big Parties Agree Ontario Will Again Decide Election

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Again, both the major parties agree, the decision in this election, as it was last June, is Ontario's to make.

Even Social Credit Co-Leader Robert Thompson concedes that, and unlike Co-Leader Real Caouette, makes no pretense that he has even a remote chance of doing business in this key province.

But he does say that he'll cut deeper into Liberal strength in Quebec, and wipe out what's left of the Conservatives in French Canada.

And what makes this unpretty prospect all the more frightening is that Social Credit homeland and a province shaken by the Liberal reincarnation of former Defence Minister Douglas Harkness.

So, if Social Credit clobbers the Liberals in Quebec, even worse than a year ago, which was more than bad enough, and slaughters the Conservatives in Alberta, the total national result could encompass the political disaster of last June with another confusion and frustration of election.

ONTARIO THE DIFFERENCE

Both parties are in agreement that give or take not more than a half dozen seats either way, they'll divide the West that way, the Maritimes pretty much as they did.

Robert Thompson, a reasonable if irrational politician, and a very personable individual, has said that it will be good enough for Social Credit if they bag Quebec and pocket Alberta.

That should put the Socreds in the driver's seat again if the two major parties parcel up the other eight provinces, balancing out, as they did last June, within 16 House of Commons votes.

It was intolerable that this oddball political rump in the Commons should have had the power to hold down a Government - - - any Government, Conservative or Liberal, with a clear Parliament with the essential business of the public hardly begun.

It was crazy that the balance of rational political power should have been uncertain as to allow these funny-money mavericks, on a whim, to sit in the seats of the mighty.

It might not be so bad if Robert Thompson was in charge. But he is a man with little, if any, less sense of national responsibility than John Diefenbaker or Mike Pearson.

ANYTHING BUT THAT

But he is not in charge. Not really.

Abd Real Caouette is.

Robert Thompson says Social Credit, if it gets any seats, with more than satisfying gains in Quebec and Alberta in what he and Caouette consider a very certain prospect, will stay 'pretty clear of things.'

That leaves those decisive 85 make-or-break seats up for grabs between the Conservatives and the Liberals — save, of course, for a very special few that could go to the key NDP bright lights such as Douglas Fisher and David Lewis, sometimes close to any party in any Commons.

So make it 80 seats to split — but not to divide evenly or between the two big parties, in such a way that one or the other will come out of it with enough seats in the Commons to conduct the nation's business without the "help" or the blackmailing threats of the Socreds.

Add the majority of Canada's key seats to the Liberals already considerable provincial strength and scattered Maritime and not inconsiderable (even with Socred gains) Quebec representation, and you've got Mike Pearson as Prime Minister.

Total it with what the Conservatives now hold in Ontario and the party's solid (and holding) Prairie bloc, and the Tories are back in enough strength to get the nation's business done.

Make it one or the other. Make it anything but Social Credit seats — anything but a Real Caouette minority.

Need to Know Self Well To Wish Wisely

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Unlike all other animals, man is distinctively a "wishing" creature. You hear and read the bat, the wolf and the walrus wish for nothing but what their anatomies had — the same home, the same food, the same every thing.

It is no accident, I think, that fairy stories (which always reveal the deepest needs of man) are so concerned with wishes. Reading a book of such stories to the children the other night, I was struck with the prevalence of "three wishes" running through so many of these stories.

But while man may be described as a wishing creature, this does not mean that wishing is easy. On the contrary, many of our dilemmas not come from the fact that we do not know what we properly should wish for? In the fairy tales, the first two wishes are always vain or foolish; even a child, who is a bundle of desires, does not know what he truly wants.

In his superb essay on "Man the Technician," Ortega y Gasset made the point that knowing is by no means easy." He reminded us of the quandary of the newly rich man, "with all wish-fulfilling means at his command," Ortega points out, "he finds himself in the awkward situation of not knowing how to wish. At the bottom of his heart he is aware that he wishes nothing, that he himself is unable to direct his appetite and to choose among the innumerable things offered by his environment."

Such a man has to look for a middleman to orient him. He gets an expert to help him select fine paintings. His wife hires an interior decorator to do over the house. The current fashion, the latest rage, the predominant wishes of other people determine these choices. In a sense, he entrusts others with wishing for him.

The first things the newly rich get are better automobiles, newer clothes, more liquor, razors, mixers, and so on. But these are not genuine wishes; they are what Ortega calls "the fiction and the gesture of genuine desire." They have not been thought of originally and for oneself, but are repeated blindly and unconsciously, because that is what the culture calls for.

Then Ortega, as usual, strikes to the heart of the matter: "Every wish for this or that particular thing is intimately connected with the person a man wants to be. This person, therefore, is the real necessary wish and the source of all other wishes. If a man is unable to wish for his own self because he has no clear vision of a self to be realized, he will have but pseudo wishes and spectral desires devoid of sincerity."

What is called "a crisis of wishing" may be upon us today. The world offers us almost limitless choice, but few of us have a clear vision of a self to realize, the more our wishes come true, the more we suffer from emptiness, and become instead merely drunk with the fulfillment of pseudo wishes.

The Y.M.C.A. Girls' first team the "Aces" are still unbeaten in competition this year. Last night, in a regular League fixture, they took the heavy side of a 34 to 13 score from the second team, the "Jokers", although the younger girls made their step for it. Both teams were a little shaky under the basket, but the play was good for both sides and the spectators enjoyed the exhibition. The teams: Aces — Salisbury, Deneau, Molyneaux, 2, Sherry 14, R. Oliphant 6, Price 8, M. Hitchon 4, total 34. Jokers — Robson Whonnacott, Lasenbury 2, Gilbert 2, Lepore 7, Taylor (Quinte) 3, Wright, S. Oliphant, S. Hitchon total 13.

Being watchman aboard a lake boat during the time of winter in Belleville harbor is an occupation almost second to none in loneliness. At least that is the claim put forward by Captain "Ben" Bowers of Trenton's well-known pilot of Bay of Quinte waters, presently acting as watchman aboard the Brockville - owned collier "Bayfax" untinning in Belleville to await installation of machinery.

First of all it may interest local citizens to know that the "Bayfax" is the only collier to winter in Belleville for considerably more than 20 years. She was purchased last summer and reconditioned especially for coaling service on the Bay of Quinte. This winter she will have conveyor machinery installed by the Stephens-Adamson Company. The Captain easily recalls when sailing schooners piled up and down the Bay of Quinte freighting coal from Oswego, barley from local ports of call to the elevators at Kingston, as well as lumber and wood. He can well remember when Belleville harbor was a forest of ships' sailing masts, but that was before steamers became common.

Blackboards Trade Secret

Welland Tribune

The formula for Drambuie, that nectar of liqueurs, associated with Bonnie Prince Charlie, can't be only well-kept secret in Scotland.

Just as jealously guarded for the past half century is the method worked out by the late William B. Garden, an Aberdeen man, for producing the most celebrated blackboards in the world. Mr. Garden established a colony in the Illide town of Kilsyth, north-east of Glasgow, and its a flourishing concern today, employing 60 at an amazing export demand. In a recent High Overseas Broadcast, A. J. Campbell described a visit to the Kilsyth plant.

The factory turns out hundreds of revolving blackboards for schools, colleges, airports and business houses in every country in the world. Campbell watched them packing these boards in crates, known as they're now called, and addressing them to places like Hong Kong and Rhodesia, Malta, Australia, New Zealand and Canada. Huge vans waited outside to transport the blackboards to the docks by the Clyde, and from there they begin the long journey across the sea to their destination.

The firm is coping with rapidly increasing orders. The other day, for instance, they sent 56 revolving chalkboards to a modern technical institute which UNESCO has equipped in Tehran. The revolving boards from this Scottish factory are in use at airports from New York to Istanbul, London to Calcutta, giving passengers the arrival and departure times of their airliners.

Big business firms use them for charts and lectures. So do all the leading banks. They are used in universities from Edinburgh to California, from Glasgow to Buffalo. It is the largest blackboard unit in the-world — it's height 20 feet high and "I feet wide — was made at Kilsyth, and stands today in the physics block of Glasgow University. There's even a special section for cinema projection incorporated in the revolving surface.

Schools everywhere use these chalkboards. The small old-fashioned black board is a thing of the past. Education is spreading so rapidly that it's hard to keep up with the demand. Hundreds of boards are being shipped to Rhodesia, and Ghana, and the African, and Australian continents generally. You'll find Scottish-made blackboards revolving in classrooms in Ceylon and Burma, Borneo and Senegal.

The secret of the chalkboards stays with Mr. Garden's family today. The master is not the only process of twelve applications which build up to the finished surface. The late Mr. Garber used to make the frame work of the boards is shipped to Scotland from the forests of Borneo. There are always four different shipments of timber at one stage or another — one being cut down in Borneo, a second on the high seas, a third being dried in the kilns in Glasgow, and a fourth in the Kilsyth workshop benches for processing.

When Are Women Safe From Becoming Pregnant?

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister says a woman's safe days are 14 days before her period. I say it's 14 days afterwards. What do you say? — P.N.

By "safe days," you of course mean the time when pregnancy cannot occur.

It so happens that the fertile and infertile times in the cycle are not nearly as exact as some people think — or some wish.

For pregnancy the ovum or egg must first emerge from the ovary. Then it must be fertilized within a reasonably short time by the male sperm.

For women with very regular cycles, the time of ovulation tends to follow a more or less steady pattern. For irregular cycles, ovulation isn't so easy to predict.

But regardless of the duration of the cycle, it is the time of ovulation, and hence the fertile period, generally occurs 14 days before the beginning of the next menstrual period.

Thus in a perfectly regular 28-day cycle, ovulation would occur around the 14th day after the beginning of the preceding period, or 14 days before the beginning of the next one.

The latter probably applies for the 35-or 45-day cycles — 14 days before the next one. But ovulation may occur when the next one will start isn't so easy.

The life of the ovum or egg is probably about 48 hours; life of the male germ cells may be somewhat longer. Therefore the time during which pregnancy may occur can extend over three or four days.

Because of variations in individuals, it is rather risky to try to say positively that any particular time is absolutely "safe."

The greatest probability of pregnancy is somewhere in mid-cycle. The first few days after the period, and the last few days before onset of the next one, are in general the "safest," but beyond a margin of a few days, pregnancy becomes increasingly hazardous.

You might think of it as walking on a frozen lake, too around the edges and open water in the middle.

The farther you get from shore, the thinner the ice and the more risk of falling in, but there isn't any way of establishing the exact distance at which you will go through the ice. There are some ways of looking at it. I get at least as many letters from people who want to become pregnant.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 14 and the hair on my legs is black. I asked my mother if I could shave and she said no, but that I could use cream hair remover. My home economics teacher said this would open the pores and cause more hair to grow. So is it better to shave? I'm confused. — U.Z.

I can't blame you for being confused. Neither shaving nor cream removers will increase the growth of hair, and each is better depends on personal preference.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had diabetis for about 9 months but still feel sick at my stomach and become very tired. I have been told that I will get well. I have also been told that I will never get entirely over it. Which opinion do you think is right? — Mrs. A.T.

You'll get over it, but it takes time. There is reason to suspect that many patients may, after fully recovering, still harbor the germ but it doesn't bother them. It is important only to the extent that we are reluctant to accept blood donations from people who have had the disease.

Troubled with varicose veins? The best way to start doing all you can to relieve the problem, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., requesting my booklet, "How To Deal With Varicose Veins," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover the cost of handling.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A reader has asked me to explain why so many of our scholarly and cultivated people always refer to an historian rather than a historian?

"Nobody seems to speak of an historey," she says. "They invariably say a historian. Otherwise it would come out as Nistory, not history. Yet when they affect to speak of the new historian. they do not sound as if they were saying Nistorian. They give it the aspirate — and then good big gust of wind, instead of historian. Why is this?"

Madam, there is no accounting for such things. Maybe some eminent head stuffer of bygone years could not pronounce his aitch but so many of our scholarly and cultivated people always refer to an historian rather than a historian?

The late Queen Victoria, in whose reign I had the honour to be born, was better at German than English in her girlhood. It was her habit, I am told, to open the balcony as the bal-CONEy, the accent on the cone. She never learned better. And for the entire Victorian Era, people of quality, the real top drawer, all followed suit.

One of the old kings of Spain had a lisp and couldn't pronounce the letter S. Ever since the Spanish, in royal deference, say TH for Z.

Something for Nothing

Niagara Falls Review

Getting rich the easy way is still a good dream for many people. In the past, it was the lure of buried treasure, the magnetic attraction of gold fields, and the discovery of oil that aided the dreamers to dream on, and thinking of the hardship of the trail, but only of the gains to be won. Nowadays it is more likely to be an investment in penny stock, in the hope of a sudden killing on the stockmarket. We suppose that there are few humans free from the desire to get something for nothing.

Denies Hockey Club Will Be Involved

SUDBURY (CP)—Ted Hill, president of the Sudbury Wolves Hockey Club, denies the club will be involved in a suit against the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-CIO).

The union is striking the Sudbury arena and a representative of the arena commission said Tuesday a suit against the union will be brought in the name of the commission, the club and the city.

Hill said Wednesday the club is not involved and that his lawyer, Cecil Facer, had told city lawyer John Ryan so.

The strike was called Feb. 10 in effort; to force a conclusion to bargaining for four stationary engineers who want increased wages.

The commission holds the strike is illegal and Chairman J. D. McInnes said the "full implications of the law will be brought to bear against the union."

Meanwhile hockey games are being played as usual, as players and fans cross picket lines.

Had to Resign

out policies you can support.'

"This was the most tremendous relief in the world. The last thing anyone wants to do . . . is to break with your party and break with your cabinet. . . .

"So when the prime minister said that to me, I felt completely elated. There was a tremendous load off my shoulders. There was the most emotionally charged attitude you could imagine.

HEES AGREES

"I rose and said: 'Okay, I'll go with you, John.'

"I shook him by the hand. I thought he had given me the understanding which relieved me of the obligation to resign. I felt there was nothing between us then."

Mr. Hees said that on the next day, Thursday, the caucus met to make routine plans for the election campaign. On Friday morning there was a cabinet meeting.

"By Friday afternoon it was very apparent that nothing was going to be done to meet my position in any way. I realized I was in the same position as before the caucus meeting Wednesday.

"On Saturday morning, I asked the prime minister if his position was as firm as it appeared to me. Yes it was—no change. So there was no alternative—I had to resign."

PLANS HOLIDAY

Mr. Hees plans to leave Feb. 22 with Mrs. Hees for a skiing holiday in Europe and will be back in Toronto election day to vote for "the Conservative candidate in Broadview." He declined to discuss his future prospects in politics.

"That is something that will have to take care of itself. . . . I love political life, but if I've got to do the honorable thing."

Mr. Hees said he had been worried that Canada didn't have "the best possible defence"—nuclear warheads for the Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles and Voodoo interceptors to defend the U.S. nuclear strike deterrent power.

Only when the aggressors know they cannot—destroy the deterrent force will they not attack."

The warheads had to be installed in Canada. He said that at the very least it would take 1½ hours to bring them into Canada intact, while there would be only 15 minutes' notice of a bomber attack. Bombers "for several years are going to be the main threat."

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Man is not alone. This is what Religion teaches.

But man does feel lonely — and the knowledge of his apartness causes him deep and profound anxieties.

He feels lonely even when he appears happily united in marriage.

Anyone who is familiar with much of the writing dealing with martial happiness in both popular magazines as well as learned journals must be aware of this strange paradox. Most marriage counsellors are really suggesting something quite queer. In the long run their advice to couples who have difficulties is nothing more than a suggestion that despite their unbearable sense of loneliness they "hook up," float each other with courtesy and help to make each other "feel better".

COMPLIMENT WIFE

Thus, the marriage counselor tells the couple that the husband must "better understand his wife and be helpful". He should speak favorably about her new dress and compliment her when she prepares a new dish. In turn, she should be understanding when he comes home tired and disgruntled, should listen attentively when he moans about his business problems and when he forgets her birthday she should be tolerant rather than angry.

This advice amounts to little more than a suggestion to oil the machinery of "living together." It never deals with the permanent problem of human understanding for although both parties treat each other with courtesy and understanding, though they be parents or grandparents, nevertheless they may remain strangers to each other. All of their lives they are "one" but separated in the mist of their togetherness. One pus one still eye to eye — they are not one, but two.

WE DO NOT CHOOSE

How then can we overcome our lifelong problem: to live with oneself, even when we live with another self.

If instead of seeing our human loneliness and individual apartness as a curse we were to recognize it as a perfectly natural and inescapable, we might be able to deal more courageously and more constructively with this question. From the moment we are "born" we come into a world which we do not create nor choose; from the moment the umbilical cord is cut, our tie to a protective womb is torn and broken. In order to make the most of life we must come to accept this inevitable fact rather than to destroy our lives and our hopes because of it. Can not our aloneness be made into a blessing rather than a blight?

Most of us have difficulty in finding this to be true because we never really get close to ourselves; we always run away from the deepest part of our own being, closing out the light from within in our vain hope to be satisfied from without.

We know a lot about other people and other things. Our entire educational enterprise is geared to that. History, geography, even psychology are taught with a view to helping man to get along in the world. The true cultivation of our own wrids is somehow never dealt with. Yet, man can be close to himself and if he would cultivate self-knowledge he could make of his alone-ness something significant and worthwhile.

We come to the world seeking union outside of ourselves but hardly ever experience ourselves first. Into the noise we come and are overwhelmed by it—destroyed by it—because there is still small voice within us.

Man is art fraudulently copies the work of others; it must, because it reflects nothing of the mystery of the self. True art, like every creative work, can only emerge out of the direct dialogue of the artist with his real self. He may have little, but the creative man is infinitely more than we think; he, at least, has himself.

Man is alone—but there is much to him. He can overcome his loneliness if he learns to live with himself.

Often, we lose everything we could have acquired only because we have refused to find ourselves.

Will Continue

Lines to start the meetings after the two-engine plane they originally started in ran off the runway at Timmins into a snowbank as it was taking off. No one was injured.

The plane had been sent by the department of labor to bring labor representatives Fred L. Flatt, general manager at Spruce Falls; Woodlands manager, Fred N. Wiley, and Industrial Relations officer C. G. Wright; Kapuskasing Union Local President Joseph Laforce; Port Arthur union local president, Tullo Minor, and Port Arthur union locals lofficial, C. S. Ehholm.

Mr. Wright said: "There were no discussions during the flight" to Toronto.

WILL PICKET OFFICES

About 50 leaders of Toronto locals of the United Electrical Workers' union (Ind.) will picket the Toronto office of Kimberly-Clark Canada Limited, associated firm of Spruce Falls Power and Paper.

J. H. Bettes, business agent of the Toronto joint board of the electrical workers union, said: "The company is not bargaining in good faith."

The company earlier refused to consider negotiations unless picket lines were first removed by the striking union from the Spruce Falls plant gate at Kapuskasing.

The Reesor Siding outbreak came as a climax to a series of incidents since some 1,500 bushworkers went on strike against the Spruce Falls plant at Kapuskasing and the Kimberly-Clark Pulp and Paper Company at Longlac, 180 miles west of here.

The bushworkers want simultaneous contracts covering workers at both plants, with a reduction in the work week and compensating wage increases. The companies maintain the Kimberly-Clark operation cannot support such increases because of poor markets.

Since the strike began the union has been blocking the transport of wood cut by the settlers—most of them French-speaking men from Quebec who supplement their usually meagre income in the bush and muskeg country by supplying about 110,000 cords of pulpwood each winter to the Spruce Falls mill.

DIE IN GUNFIRE

The three union men were killed by gunfire as they advanced Monday night on a stack of settlers' pulpwood awaiting movement to the mill.

Killed in the shooting were Joseph and Irene Fortier, brothers, and Fernand Drouin. Their bodies were taken Wednesday by train to their Quebec province homes. The Fortier brothers are to be buried at Palmarelle and Drouin at St. Elzear.

The 19th man charged with murder is Paul-Emile Coulombe of Val Rita, manager of the co-operative, who took his wife to Montreal from hospital at Hearst, 80 miles west of here. He left immediately after being freed on $500 bail Monday night when he and the other 18 were originally charged with shooting with intent to wound.

The charges were changed to non-capital murder Tuesday and a round-up of the co-operative members started.

By Wednesday night, 14 of them had surrendered here and another four surrendered at Hearst. All were taken to district jail at Haileybury.

UNION CO-OPERATES

In rounding up the 237 union members, police had close co-operation from the union. A union steward escorted members of an improvised police headquarters and court room in the Kapuskasing Inn —owned by the paper company—and provided a translation service for the French-speaking majority.

They were arraigned in pairs as they were brought up from a basement waiting room. All were remanded in custody to next Tuesday.

Paper machines at the mill were back in production Wednesday after members of the Papermakers' Union, who had respected picket lines set up by the loggers last Friday, voted to return to their jobs.

Only two of the four paper machines have been operating because of the New York newspaper strike. The men had been working three-hour shifts. The brief refusal to work resulted in only one machine operating.

The union members being arraigned were mostly dressed in their heavy work clothes. They were served sandwiches in the hotel beverage room, but no beer.

Revival

porations had been cancelled for failing to file annual returns, including 7,000 in the last two years.

Mr. MacDonald interjected and accused Mr. Yaremko of "winking at affidavits which falsify a situation."

Mr. Yaremko said his department handled 10,000 affidavits a year and he could not personally check each one.

He said granting of a charter granted corporate powers and a corporation remained alive even after forfeiture of corporate powers.

The shares of such a dormant corporation would still be outstanding and could be held by persons who acquired them by inheritance or other legal transfer.

MEET REQUIREMENTS

However, he said later: "Racing charter revivals will no longer be used in this province."

Asked whether new legislation would be needed, Mr. Yaremko said he had sufficient power to reject applications for revivals.

Mr. Yaremko said all requirements of the Corporations Act and of his department had been met before the corporate powers were revived.

In only one case of a revival application had any community representation been made against the application, he said.

That charter, incorporating the Chesley Driving Park Association, was denied a return of corporate powers.

Of all applicants for the 21 charters that had been revived, he said, "I knew no one, outside of, by reputation, Mr. Rowe."

In the administration of raising charters "there was nothing done by the department which was illegal in any way, shape or form to my knowledge," the provincial secretary said.

Mr. MacDonald said Mr. Yaremko's speech was "one of the most incredible I've ever heard in this House.

"After defending everything that has been going on behind the facade of legality . . . he concludes by announcing that this procedure will be eliminated."

Despite the provincial secretary's demands for an apology the NDP leader said "I don't withdraw a single word I said."

In his earlier charges, Mr. MacDonald added that the revival of old charters through "nonsensical procedures and illegality" was simply a means of circumventing the Criminal Code.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) said Mr. MacDonald had "staked his honor" on allegations that false affidavits had been filed with the provincial secretary. Yet, "the minister of the Crown asserted with gall" that Mr. MacDonald could lay charges in a court if he had evidence.

Referring to the NDP leader's statement that a former lawyer for the provincial secretary's department, Donald McNeil, had acted for a federal Progressive Conservative member in reviving charters, Mr. Sopha asked: "Who is it in the department that . . . McNeil has been using . . . to make himself privy to this information?"

fly to descend them," said Mrs. Bergeron-Blanke in an interview Wednesday. "The scare I got in that place made me move out."

In her letters, she wonders why landlords can blatantly disregard fire safety laws and escape prosecution while such things as minor thefts by unemployed persons mean jail.

She said that last year, three young children were trapped by fire and died in the upper stories of the old tenements, often photographed by tourists as picturesque and definitely in the tinder antique class.

Municipal and provincial authorities have allowed one owner a three-month delay to place a fire escape inside a business establishment. Mayor Wilfrid Hamel said it is "positively" the last delay before legal action will be taken.

The building includes a night club and restaurant on the second floor, with one exit. The city says there would be a disaster if fire broke out in the club.

Serious winter fires are traditional in Quebec City, with its narrow streets and closely-packed wooden buildings, but authorities say this cycle is the worst yet.

"Fantasy of Fashion, Music" Presented by BPW Club Draws Large Audience

By MARIE E. HUFFMAN

The beauty of fabric, variety and exclusiveness of design, and above all, the intricate and beautiful detail work that distinguish custom made clothes were all evident in the creations shown by 'Originally Yours' in the "Fantasy of Fashion and Music" presented in the collegiate auditorium last evening.

A capacity house greeted the show, which was directed and co-ordinated by Mrs. Enid Richards, and sponsored by the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club.

Mrs. Dorothy Brown introduced the evening and shared the duties of commentator with Mr. Phil Squire, amid a tastefully decorated stage setting of white lilies in tall standards of green ferns. Floral pieces and stage settings were the work of Mrs. Marion Margaret Bryan of Winnipeg, mother of Mrs. Richards.

Interspersed throughout the show were a number of musical numbers that added greatly to the atmosphere, and included solos by Miss Diana Woolley, Mr. Wayne Soble, and Mr. Phil Squire. Musical settings were provided by Mr. Bill Long at the Hammond organ.

SPORTS CLOTHES

Gay summer fashions in sports clothes led off the fashions, and included a smart and comfortable suit of Blue Jay slam-dighters that featured a sunburst coloured overblouse which could be worn belted or without as milady prefered. This was followed by a number of eye - catching ensembles which were versatile enough to be worn for either beach or street wear. Bold combinations of colors were featured particularly in one elegant costume cut from imported cotton bouclan in pure fast-pink and white. This was a four-piece outfit that dared to combine a matching sweater-red shorts, with a fully-lined jacket and matching sleeveless blouse and closed straight skirt, all the latter pieces being in the lovely pink shade. Piques and-polished cottons were the materials for other clothes in the group, all tastefully designed and impeccably fitted to enhance their wearers.

LOUNGING COSTUMES

For evenings at home, both in the lounging mood, or as hostess, milady had her choice of a number of lovely lounge sets. One beautiful costume was of imported satin brocade from Egypt which featured an oriental motif, the kimono coat with its loose fitting fluid lines in white, accented by bright scarlet fastenings, and scarlet pure silk pyjamas. The jacket was lined with the same scarlet silk, and formed a picture of relaxed elegance.

Another particularly beautiful design was shown in a floor-length hostess coat in a striking deep purple flowing brocade. Full length bell-wing tapered sleeves were featured, and a matching set of pyjamas with short overblouse dramatically accented by a rhinestone buckle, completed this ensemble.

BACKOIL COTTONS

Cottons were not forgotten in this lovely collection, and were shown to advantage in a floor length breakfast coat of dacron and cotton in a beautiful gold on white floral design. This was complemented by a smart suit of pyjamas in deep m-e green Arnel.

This group demonstrated the versatility of this type of costume for her leisure moods or when entertaining.

Daytime dresses included something for everyone, and were distinguished by choice of fabric and color as well as design. Here again, imported fabrics were featured, including one ensemble of combed cotton found favor which was featured in a two piece suit with short cardigan jacket of white lace with woven red and blue horizontal stripes. Under the jacket was worn a simple white wrap shift, which would lend itself to a great variety of changes in accessories. This was accompanied by a matching bowler hat, handmade of imported straw.

The dainty, crisp appearance of the gowns in this group left the impression of complete femininity, even in the more tailored offerings in the group. It also included the ever-popular paisley, that was shown in a soft shirt-waist dress of blue and green which was in classic style, gathered on a tailored yoke with centre front opening with full-length cuffed sleeves and self-covered belt.

The next group to be shown was that of coats and suits, and nowhere was there more evidence of exquisite craftsmanship, faultless tailoring, and beauty of fabric.

Leading off this section of the Program was a stunning straight cut coat of tangy-red wool in a rope-twist weave with three quarter sleeves, square shoulders and featuring diagonally cut bound button-holes. The coat had a matching detachable fringed scarf, and under the coat was worn a contrasting gown of wool plaid.

Featured in a new shade of wool worsted called "earth" was a smart suit that stressed simplicity with its short open front box jacket and three quarter sleeves. The skirt was pencil slim with centre back pleat, and was worn with an overblouse of cotton and silk in green and gold — the same shade as the matching hat was a high crown pill-box in shades of gold.

EUROPEAN INFLUENCE

The European influence was also seen in a wonderful tunic ensemble with long shaped coat tie with side slits worn with a contrasting scarf in the neckline, completed the matching slim plaid skirt scored in red.

The hit of this group was an elegant three piece suit in striped grey English wool. It featured a double-breasted full coat with a deep shaped collar and concealed pockets. The three quarter sleeves were pointed to dropped shoulder armholes. The coat was lined with a complementary print. A dropped shoulder armhole. The coat was lined with a complementary print. # Holy Rosary CWL Enjoys Avon Tour

The February meeting of Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League Council was held on Monday evening in the school.

After a word of welcome from the president, the ladies adjourned to the Avon Jewellery Company where Mr. Lasier conducted a most interesting tour of the plant, explaining in detail the various steps beginning with the design on a piece of paper to the finished product on display in the stock room. Appreciative thanks were extended to the Avon Company for a most educational and interesting hour.

Upon returning to the school the business meeting followed.

Corresponding secretary reported seven get-well cards sent and several thank-you notes received.

Finalized plans on the Day of Recollection to be held on March 2nd were given by Mrs. Hamilton. Commencing at 10.00 a.m., two lectures will be given in the morning, and two in the afternoon. Lunch will be served in St. Michael's school for a nominal fee. The day will be concluded at 4.00 p.m. with Mass. All are requested to attend if possible.

Communion Sunday this week. Thank-you notes were received from Sisters for parcels sent at Christmas. A letter was read from the Cancer Clinic extending thanks to the volunteer workers. The annual Communion Breakfast is to be held on April 21st, details at the next meeting. Visitors are needed for hospital visits in March.

Thanks were extended to the ladies who assisted with lunch at the anniversary dance.

A "Penny Sale" will be held at the March meeting. Each lady is to bring a gift.

A discussion followed on lenten devotions and it was unanimous that the ladies, in keeping with the lenten season, would like extra devotions and Mass held during the week in the evening at 8.30 p.m. so that everyone would be free to attend.

It was suggested a letter of thanks be sent to the Gordon Tompkin Company in Kingston for the sponsorship of the Bi-

ST. THOMAS' AFTERNOON GUILD. WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The regular monthly meeting of the Afternoon Branch of the W.A. of St. Thomas' Church was held in the parish house on Tuesday afternoon.

The rector opened the meeting with the litany and special prayers for a family in bereavement. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. McConnell.

Several letters were read, one a letter of thanks from the Rev. and Mrs. Sinclair acknowledging the gift of a blanket for their new daughter. An invitation to a make-believe-tea in Watson Lake, Yukon, was received, the proceeds to go towards new pews in their church.

A number of items of business were discussed and members were urged to attend the meeting of the Women's Church Year.

It was with regret that the W.A. has had to say "goodbye" to Mrs. T. Simpson who has been the Dorcas secretary. She will be greatly missed at the work meetings.

Mrs. F. Leach has offered to take over the work of the Dorcas department with the assistance of several members.

The ladies were reminded of the World Day of Prayer to be held in the Baptist Church on the first Friday in Lent. This service includes all women of the church.

After adjournment of the meeting tea was served by Mrs. F. Alker and assistants.

Mrs. Hogan advised that the Cub and Scout card party is to be held on Monday night in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Father Rufus gave his blessing and the meeting adjourned. Lunch was served and a social time s[pent].

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

ARE TELEPHONE INVITATIONS CORRECT?

Apparently some younger unmarrieds still have some doubt about the propriety of extending party invitations by phone to someone of the other sex.

Admittedly the hesitancy is felt more by the girls than by the boys, although many of the latter wonder if they're doing the right thing.

In these days of orbital flights, transatlantic television and instant dialing, new social customs spring up and become established virtually overnight.

I, personally, prefer written invitations, but this has nothing to do with my marital status or any particular rule of etiquette. An invitation on paper — or on an appropriate card — is a constant reminder of the event and, more important, of the time, date and exact address.

But a good number of "bachelors" of both sexes, in this relatively informal era, like the spontaneity and personal approach of a telephoned invitation. There's nothing wrong with it, within reason.

After all, make certain that your relationship is so friendly that a telephone call won't be misinterpreted by the recipient.

A career girl I know summed it up this way:

"I occasionally give informal cocktail parties in my apartment and I like to balance the unattached girls present by a fair proportion of bachelors. Many of them I've met through my job, and others at various functions I attend.

"I like to invite the men by phone, because I don't really plan these things too far in advance. Besides, I get a quick answer this way and can plan accordingly for the number of people I know are coming.

"Sometimes, though, I get the feeling that a man I'm calling thinks I'm being a bit forward, or that I'm assuming a friendship he doesn't feel. I don't think I'm a hussy and I certainly don't want any one else to think so."

I know the girl and I know she's not a hussy. But she probably is assuming more than a casual friendship if the man she's talking to makes her feel uncomfortable.

Yet, as she says, he may be extremely intelligent, a good conversationalist and a boon to any party.

In that case, it's back to the written invitation.

This way of forming a new party doesn't make the man uneasy, satisfies his sense of propriety and gives him the proper opportunity to decide if he really wants to attend.

On the other hand, the telephoned invitation to a good friend is a pleasant custom, because the hostess can chat informally about the party and mention mutual friends who will be there.

My career-girl friend uses both ways of inviting now. She just plans her parties earlier.

Mr., Mrs. Henry Sagriff Mark Silver Anniversary

Recently at the Melrose Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Sagriff celebrated their silver wedding anniversary.

There were 85 guests present to mark this occasion and to felicitate the esteemed couple. Pink and white streamers decorated the hall. The tea table was centered with a three-tier anniversary cake, and silver candles.

Refreshments were served to guests from Enterprise, Belleville, Read and Corbyville. The address was read by Mr. Thomas McGrath of Belleville, who also made the presentations of a beautiful gas stove as an expression of esteem and good wishes.

All joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" after which dancing was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sagriff were married at Chippawa by Reverend Father O'Sullivan on January 24th, 25 years ago. They lived there until 1940, at which time they moved to R. I Corbyville, where they now reside. The attendants were, Marion Dwyer, sister of the bride, now Mrs. Joe Colden of Cannifton, while Georgs Sagriff, cousin of the bridegroom was best man.

Their family consists of (Angela), Mrs. Jon Murvay, of Peterborough); Firman, also married and now at Camp Petawawa in Pembroke; James of Clinton; and Edwin, Sharon, Josephine, Laverne and Donna all at home.

Today's Cooking Magic

Boiled Lobster So Easy to Dress

Cookbook No. 12—Recipe No. 1

THE GOURMET FOODS COOK-BOOK

Today's the day for a new cookbook in The Ontario Intelligencer's Cooking Magic Series. This one's called Gourmet Foods. Does that title bring to mind exotic viands, exciting to read about but beyond the average cook? Not at all! Gourmet foods are simply foods with a flair - often old favorite recipes dressed up in a new, different way. Even the newest newcomer to the kitchen can start on the road to creative cookery by following the simple step-by-step procedures in this book. Here, for instance is a recipe for one of the most famous delicacies of all!

BOILED LOBSTER

Fill a large deep kettle or sauce pot, having a tight-fitting cover, about ⅔ full (or enough to cover the lobster) with hot salted water (1 tablespoon salt per quart water). Bring water rapidly to boiling. Grasp by the back and plunge head first into the water 1 live lobster, 1¼ to 1½ lbs.

Cover, bring water again to a rolling boil. Reduce heat and simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Drain and cover with cold water to chill. Drain again. Place shell-side down on a cutting board.

Twist off the two large claws, the smaller ones and the tail. With a pair of scissors, cut or with a sharp knife slit the bony membrane on the underside of tail. Spread tail shell apart and remove meat in one piece. Remove and discard the intestinal vein. With a sharp knife, cut lobster into halves; cut completely through entire length of body. Remove and discard the intestinal vein running length wise through center of body. Remove and discard stomach (a small sac which lies in the head), and lungs (which lie in upper body cavity between meat and shell).

If present, remove and reserve the tomalley (green liver) and the coral (bright red roe) to be used along with the lobster meat or as a garnish. Remove the small amount of meat present in the body shell. Disjoint the large claws and crack with a nutcracker. A nut pick may be helpful in removing meat from small joints and claws. Put meat into a bowl or jar, cover and refrigerate until ready for use.

For serving meals with a flair, Gourmet Foods is beyond compare.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Harry U. — I'm finished handing out gifts to that bunch.

Nettie R. — Don't be hard on them. They're thoughtless kids.

Harry U. — This does it. Here it is February and not a word of thanks from my Connecticut cousin for the Christmas present I sent. Out of the 30 out-of-town friends and relations I mailed packages to, he and his wife are the only ones who haven't bothered to acknowledge theirs. I know they received it, because I have the return receipt. And this isn't the first time they've shown no appreciation for my pains. They ignored my wedding gift to them and a birthday token for Mal.

Now that a baby is due I've decided to show them how I feel about their carelessness. There'll be no contribution from me, even though this will be the first baby in the next generation. Too bad its parents have no manners.

* * *

Nettie R. — I know my brother is particularly hurt by Mal's silence, because he and Mal were great friends as kids and he still feels the old affection for him. Maybe it's because I don't feel so close that I don't mind getting the same treatment. I sent small gifts, too, and I haven't received a thank-you either. I figure that's their way. They're really nice kids. But either they don't follow the rules of etiquette, or else each one thinks the other sent the card. I know that sometimes happens with me and my husband. We wouldn't want anyone to drop us because of that.

I won't let Mal's oversight stop me from giving them a baby present. Im sure there's a good explanation. Eventually we'll hear from them.

The Council: As Nettie says, there's surely a good explanation for such cavalier behavior on the part of this young couple. A blunt, if cynical, one would be that this is their way of saying, "Go ahead and give, if you want to be a sucker. But if you insist on a thank-you, we'd rather not have you give us anything."

Since there seem to be no occasions when these cousins can meet face-to-face for a verbal acknowledgement, a written note from Mr. and Mrs. Mal is a must. It can be as brief as one word: thanks. But it should go off promptly from the same post office that brought the gift. This dictum comes whole-bog out of the etiquette books, as well as out of a normal person's sense of decency. In flouting it, Mal and his wife (particularly the latter, since social correspondence is a traditional duty of the distaff side) are making their feelings eloquently clear. Their silence speaks loud. It says, "Dear cousins, Please get lost!"

In sending this pair presents repeatedly, despite their failure to notify him of their receipt of or reaction to same, Harry has given them "overtime" benefit of the doubt. His next, and final, package should be a big gift-wrapped box of nothing. He won't mind getting no thanks for that! Strangely, however, it may evoke his first thank-you note from Mal. It will read, "Thank you for nothing!"

It's true that one doesn't bestow presents for the sake of thanks. A gift is a symbol of friendship. One uses it to say I like you and I hope this brings you some pleasure. But if there's no response at the other end, where's the friendship? It takes two, just like in a tennis game. Here Harry kept on serving, long after Mal walked off the court.

Dashing Rain Cape

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Here is wonderful rainy day insurance coverage, done with a flourish.

It's a rain cap of printed leopard fabric completely reversible to black taffeta. If desired, a belt is available that slips through and ties in front. The cape goes nicely over a suit or dress and the hood, to protect the coiffure, can be dropped cowl-fashion when not in use.

Beans German Style

by Mary Moore

The simple recipes calling for dried white beans, which I am featuring today, had their beginnings in Dusseldorf and Soest in Germany. That was four years ago.

At different restaurants I ordered "pease" which were an accompaniment to pork hocks in the airport restaurant in Dusseldorf and smoked Westphalian ham in Im Wilder Mann in Soest.

This was simply dried split yellow peas, cooked with some savory seasoning to a puree

Now I have done much the same thing with navy beans to serve with pork or ham. I also made bean soup which we are having for lunch today.

So since the source idea is from Germany and is common on German tables let it suffice for my foreign recipe this week. Next week I am planning on giving you Japanese Sukiyaki, for my cousin Irene is coming to make it authentic. She lived in Tokyo for many years.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

(Valentine's Day — Guests) Ham Steak; Mustard Corn Relish; Candied Sweet Potatoes; Individual Tomato Aspic Salads on Shredded Lettuce with Cottage Cheese Dressing; Valentine Cake (see Tuesday); Bleeding Heart (see Wednesday); Meringue Torte with Ice Cream and Strawberries); Tea.

SUNDAY

Roast Pork Butt; Spiced Applesauce; Pan Roasted Potatoes; Buttered Green and Lima Beans; Head Lettuce Salad with Cucumber Mayonnaise; Lemon Sponge (see Friday); Coffee.

SAVORY WHITE BEANS

1 smoked ham bone, 1 lb. dried white (navy) beans, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ bay leaf, 1 medium onion, chopped, 8 cups water.

Mix all ingredients and allow to soak 2 hours or overnight if room temperature is cool. Cover and simmer 4 hours. Serve with any pork dish — hocks, sausages, chops, or substitute for bare ham bone a ham bone that has about 1½ lbs. of meat on it. When beans are cooked remove meat and bone, slice meat and serve with the beans. Mustard Pickles are good with this.

NAVY BEAN SOUP

This is somewhat similar to the Award Winning Navy Bean Soup that I gave here in January of 1960. It is simply an extension of the cooked beans above.

1 smoked ham bone, 1 lb. dried white (navy) beans, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ bay leaf, 1 medium onion, chopped, 12 cups water, 1 chicken bouillon cube, ¼ cup chopped celery leaves, ¼ teaspoon MSG (accent).

Mix all ingredients. Soak 2 hours or overnight if room is cool. Simmer covered, about 3 to 7 hours or until beans cook down to a puree, and any meat falls from bones. Taste before serving to see if it requires more salt.

Serve this as a main course soup with toasted rye or whole wheat bread or with homemade whole wheat rolls. Make a generous bowlful of green salad with Roquefort dressing and a magnificent blueberry pie. Serve a generous slab of cheddar cheese with the pie.

Wonderful on a cold winter's day.

Says Women's Votes Killed Chivalry

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's new Swiss consul suggests that when women won the right to vote they were pronouncing the death sentence on the age of chivalry.

Only three of Switzerland's 25 cantons have extended the franchise to women and since the question of suffrage remains an issue in his country, Walter Kilchermann is understandably diplomatic in discussing it.

"Any woman who pays taxes should be able to vote, and this applies particularly to single women."

He adds, however, there's another side to the question.

"Men try to be the protectors, but if women want to have the same rights as men, they don't need the protection any more, and this could be the reason why men are less polite than they used to be."

He goes on to suggest that many women think politics is men's business and that a married woman's place is in the home looking after the family. But he concedes that in Switzerland more women will in time win the right to vote and that it's probably a good thing, all considered. Still, he raises one final question:

"If women have the same rights, should they not have the same responsibilities—such as military service?"

Drinking Reaches Climax

DEAR DORIS—I read an article about alcoholism and how it grows over a period of 14-18 years. Over the last three years my father's drinking problem has been coming to a climax.

He drinks every night. Every once in a while he gets wild and begins to tear up the house. We offer him anything he wants while he is intoxicated to keep him happy.

When he in his natural mind, we tell him how the drinking bothers us, but he just doesn't want to listen.

Where could I get information on alcoholism? I'm sure any suggestions would help hold our family together as well as solve our miseries.—DOUBTFUL

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DOUBTFUL—Your phone book may list the A.A. group in your area. Also, write to the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Foundation, 24 Harbord Street, Toronto 5, Ontario, for information; and ask, as well, for any resources where you are to help teen-agers. There may be an Al-Ateens group—and this could mean a lot in helping you to cope.

* * *

TO WILLING VOLUNTEER—For some fine ideas about getting something started, write for the booklet "Everyone Grows Old," to the Canadian Welfare Council, 55 Parkdale Avenue, Ottawa 3, Canada.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO QUESTION MARK — At four, your adopted daughter came to you, doubtless already well on her way to becoming a resentful adult. Early childhood may have held horrors of rejection and neglect which she buried deep. Her baffling defiance, and the marriage she now contemplates, could be disastrous. A counsellor is the only answer now.

Department Changes Testing Program for Tuberculosis, And Brucellosis in Cattle

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Kenneth F. Wells, veterinary director general of the animal health branch of the federal agriculture department, said, Wednesday the department has changed its testing program for tuberculosis and brucellosis in cattle.

He told 800 farmers at the annual meeting of the Holstein Association of Canada that in future the government will concentrate on an area testing program, rather than on individual herds.

If cattlemen wish to maintain their herds on an accredited basis they must arrange the testing at their own expense, he said.

If you have a high class breeding herd in which export of animals with both the programs. However, in many of the country's herds this is unnecessary and the cost would not be justified."

The association passed a resolution urging the federal department of Agriculture make every effort to insure that area tests for TB and brucellosis are kept up to date so that there will be no interference with the export of cattle.

Canada is one of the world's greatest exporters of dairy cattle.

TIE TO BUTTERFAT

Robert H. Rumler, of Bradenbora, Ohio, secretary of the Holstein Friesian Association of America, said dairymen in the United States were in trouble because they had tied their production to butterfat.

He said a similar situation could develop if the dairymen tied their production to protein. Consequently, he said, his association has established a policy of evaluating milk by its total nutrients including protein, sugar, minerals and butterfat.

The association also called on the federal government to expand rather than reduce the "record of performance" production testing program for cattle.

Fifteen members were elected to represent Ontario on the association board of directors.

Master breeder certificates were presented to W. Alex Snedden and James M. Brown, both of Aimonte, Ont; F. Roy Ornston of Bradford, Ont., and Robert Fleet of Oshawa; Jack F. MacDonald of Thamesford, Ont., and Carver Brothers of Belmont, Ont.

Class extra certificates were presented to A. Snedden, Aimonteford; the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association, Belleville and the Peel District Cattle Breeding Association, Woodstock.

Dr. Wells, right, representing the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, received a lifetime production certificate for the reformatory's Jenny Bagpipe Rockabye, which has produced a lifetime production of milk with a total of 251,040 pounds.

Queen Afraid Prince Andrew Will Forget Her

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — A New Zealand woman mayor said today the Queen is worried Prince Andrew—three next Monday—might forget her during her present tour.

Mrs. S. P. Harling, mayor of Blenheim, said she got this impression during the royal visit to the town Wednesday.

She said the Queen told her after she left Britain that Prince Andrew had for several days kept asking to visit "mummy."

Later he got used to the idea his parents would be away for some time, but now he was asking when "mummy" would be back.

Mrs. Harling said the Queen spoke with her children whenever she could 11G by radiotelephone from the yacht Britannia.

Freezing Cold In Plane Says Stowaway

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Two days of tense waiting in the wheels-up fuselage of an airliner, shivering from the cold and in constant fear of detection was part of the price of a 15-year-old Czechoslovakian boy paid for freedom.

In his first interview since leaving a Cubana Airlines plane at Gander, Nfld., Dec. 21, Milos Anthony Navratil told of his daring escape from his homeland Tuesday that Miloš has been given a home here by Mr. and Mrs. Jaroslav Tichy.

With Mr. Tichy acting as an interpreter, Milos said how he spent many days going to the airport in Prague and keeping watch on where each aircraft was headed.

"On Dec. 19," he said, "I found out a Cubana airliner was going to land in Prague. I checked an airline magazine and learned that the plane was bound for Havana with a stop in Canada."

Milos said he went to the airport and stowed himself into the baggage compartment. He hid between a mass of cables and the outer skin of the plane, and stayed there until the plane took off.

It was two days and nights before it put down.

"I was shivering from the freezing temperatures and ter rified I'd be caught or discovered by the crew of the plane."

He was so cold in the plane at night that the bottle of water he had with him froze.

Senator Mounts Massive Attack On Old Flaw

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot is mounting a massive attack on a century-old flaw he says is in Canadian constitutional law.

If he is right and the law is not changed, he said in an interview, many marriages and separations based on civil code amendments passed by the Quebec legislature since Confederation are technically invalid.

The Quebec Liberal senator, who wants to pull the law relating to marriage and legal separations in his native province, will take his case this weekend to a meeting of the Quebec bar in Montreal.

The source of a large skein of legislative authority, Senator Pouliot said, the only Quebec Civil Code amendment since 1867 properly passed by the Quebec legislature was one in 1912 governing the pronouncement of bans for jewish weddings that may be held on Shabbath sabbath instead of on Sunday.

There have been 64 other amendments, deletions and additions to the 318 sections of the code governing marriage, separations and marriage covenants which, the senator said, all are technically invalid because they were passed by the provincial legislature without reference to the federal Parliament.

Report Dissatisfaction With Macmillan Growing

LONDON (CP) — Reports of growing dissatisfaction with the leadership of Prime Minister Macmillan among Conservative members of parliament have brought renewed speculation as to the premier's future.

Most observers agree, however, that the unrest is nowhere near the proportions of open revolt And Macmillan has given no indication he intends to quit.

But five of London's daily newspapers today carry reports of the discontent that has become more audible in the corridors of Westminster since Macmillan's post - mortem speech Monday on the Common Market failure.

It was not the rousing speech, with plans for the future, that supporters had expected and when Macmillan sat down there was only scant approval from the back benches.

On the other hand, the Labor party, generally given a 10-to-20 chance to win the next election, gives the appearance of being in fine fighting form.

Macmillan, 69 last Sunday and apparently in good health, has been dogged by setbacks in recent months — the Common Market disappointment, growing unemployment, loss of the Skybolt nuclear missile, insults from President de Gaulle and the embarrassment over his cancellation of Princess Margaret's fiancé visit.

However, as veteran political observers point out, the deepening decay could soon evaporate with some sudden turn of good luck to put new zip into party morale.

One thing is certain, if Macmillan is seriously considering resigning he will have to decide soon—probably within the next two or three months. He would have to give his successor time to get established before the general election that must come some time within the next 20-odd months.

Hand-in-hand with all this talk around Parliament goes speculation as to who would succeed Macmillan.

The emphasis seems to be on age and the names of Edward Heath, 46-year-old lord privy seal and chief negotiator at the Brussels talks, and Reginald Maudling, 45, the chancellor of the exchequer, are most often mentioned.

Not many months ago the top candidates were thought to be R. A. Butler, 61, the deputy premier who narrowly missed out when Macmillan was picked six years ago, and Iain Macleod, 50, who after 16 months as party chairman has been widely criticized for failing to command enthusiasm.

Macmillan himself, of course, has never given any hint that he intends to retire.

But observers agree that if he does, it may be that he is waiting for someone to emerge who attracts the support of the great majority of Tory MPs before giving up.

Youth Charged With Shooting Husband, Wife

SAANICH, B.C. (CP)—A 16-year-old youth was charged Wednesday with being a juvenile delinquent by committing acts that would be an offence if a juvenile court in connection with the shooting deaths of a woman and her husband.

The youth was remanded to Friday.

Dead are Mr. and Mrs. George A. Bickford.

It is believed the shootings occurred Monday.

Discovery of the double slaying resulted when Mrs. Bickford's employer, Gerry Rease, went to her house to find out why she had failed to report to work.

Police found Mr. Bickford lying in the passageway leading to a bedroom and Mrs. Bickford in the kitchen. Both had been shot twice. Children, Mrs. Mrs. Bickford four times, her husband once.

On the night of Jan. 30, was a rigger at a shipbuilding company. His wife was 43.

Senator Has Not Made Up His Mind

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Wallace McCutcheon, named trade minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet Monday, said Wednesday he hasn't thought about resigning his senatorship to run in the April 8 election for a seat in the House of Commons.

He gave the brief reply "I haven't thought about it" to reporters who asked if he still intended to resign his life appointment in the upper house, as urged by Liberal and New Democratic Party leaders.

Political sources speculated on the prime minister seeking election in Dufferin-Simcoe, the Ontario seat made vacant by the appointment of Commissioner Gow W. Earl Rowe as Ontario's new lieutenant-governor.

Dufferin-Simcoe has been won for the Conservatives by Mr. Rowe in all elections since it was established in 1924.

He said his department's trade and industrial promotion programs this year will continue as planned.

LEAPS FROM AUTO MOVING 70 MILES PER HOUR — Sharon Ann Cronk, 19, waits in a Detroit hospital bed with no more serious injuries than a couple of bruised arms after she jumped from her speeding car when the accelerator jammed. The gas pedal stuck as she left a restaurant parking lot and when the speedometer needle passed the 70 mark she rolled out of the car and along a busy Detroit thoroughfare. The auto hit the rear of a truck and veered off into a field. "I'm now sure of a Valentine," she said, thinking of how she would look for her fiance on Valentine's Day. (AP Wirephoto)

Iraq's Regime Battle Reds In Streets

BAGHDAD (AP) — Forces of Iraq's new revolutionary regime battled Communist holdouts in the streets of Baghdad through the night.

Rifles, machine-guns and, occasionally, heavier tank weapons were heard in the centre of the city from about 9:30 p.m. until 5:30 a.m.

It was the heaviest firing in the Iraqi capital since Saturday night, the second night of the revolution that overthrew and killed Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

Urged by clandestine Red radios to stage an armed uprising against the new anti-Communist regime, Iraqi Reds have held out in pockets in heavily populated sections of Baghdad. Troops and civilians of the national guard have been moving in systematically to clean out the pockets.

Foreign Minister Dalib Hussein Shabib issued a press conference Wednesday the new military regime will honor all international agreements, including those with foreign oil companies, and welcomes investments from abroad.

Shabib also promised the "strongest possible co - operation" with President Nasser's United Arab Republic, "based on the firm belief of the common destiny of the Arab people."

(A Baghdad broadcast of the press conference quoted Shabib as saying the regime would observe commitments with Russia and with anyone else.")

Jumps From Car Going 70 Miles Hour

DETROIT (AP) — An 18-year-old waitress jumped out of her car at 70 miles an hour after the accelerator jammed. Physicians said Sharon Cronk's escape without serious injury was remarkable.

She suffered numerous cuts and bruises.

Sharon recounted for police her wild two-mile ride along busy Detroit thoroughfare Wednesday. She said that when she drove out of a restaurant parking lot her car speeded up to 40 miles almost immediately.

Sharon said:

"I was going faster and faster, even though I had my foot on the brake. I rolled the window down and screamed at people to get out of the way. All the time blowing my horn too and trying to get the accelerator free.

"Then I smelled rubber burning and I opened the door and jumped as the speedometer needle passed 70.

"The next thing I knew my glasses flew off and I was rolling in the ground."

The car went another couple of hundred yards before it hit the rear of a truck and veered into a field. The truck driver was not hurt.

Police said the question asked her most often since her wild ride was: "Why didn't you turn off the ignition key?"

"The answer was that I didn't know what would happen if I turned the key, so I left it alone," she said.

Communist Press Does Best To Worsen Arms Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—The Communists are doing their best to exacerbate Canada - U.S. differences over defence policy, diplomatic observers believe.

Since these differences broke into full public view two weeks ago, there has been a steady drumbeat of commentary from Moscow and Peking, mostly via press and radio.

Through it all runs the suggestion that the United States is trying to pressure a reluctant Canada into obtaining nuclear weapons.

Diplomatic informants here say they cannot recall a time in recent years when the name of Canada has received so much mention in the controlled Communist press.

The various articles have been duly picked up and translated by the North American news wires.

They represent a significant change from what Russia was saying less than a year ago about the issue of nuclear weapons in Canada, officials say.

Last June 15, just as the federal election campaign was reaching its climax, the Soviet embassy here released a statement complaining that Canadian statesmen were openly making demands for preparations for nuclear armament.

The statement, which had been conveyed to the Canadian government only a short time before, singled out Prime Minister Diefenbaker and the then defence minister Douglas Harkness as being involved in a campaign to "wear down the resistance" of Canadians to nuclear weapons.

The statement was roundly denounced by leaders of the four major political parties as an attempt to intervene in the election campaign, in which the question of nuclear weapons acquisition figured prominently.

Reporters Will Carry Appeal To Lords

LONDON (Reuters)—Two reporters refused the right to appeal a conviction for failing to divulge sources of information said Wednesday night they will carry their appeal to the House of Lords, Britain's highest appeal court.

The move came after court of appeal judges Lord Alfred Denning ruled Brendan Mulholland, 29, of The Daily Mail and Reginald Foster, 58, a freelance writer working for The Daily Sketch, had no grounds to appeal their contempt of court convictions, and that newspapers must divulge their news sources when a judge so directs them.

In a statement Wednesday night, the reporters said that while the court had refused them the right to appeal to the House of Lords, it had also certified an important point of law was involved, and this permitted them to apply for leave to appeal to the House within 14 days.

Mulholland was sentenced to six months and Foster to three months by a high court in February for refusing to tell an investigating tribunal the sources of their part in a statement about convicted admiralty spy William Vassal.

Vassal, a self-admitted homosexual, was convicted of passing secrets to Russia and sentenced to 18 years in prison last October.

Bid to Have Conviction Reduced Fails

TORONTO (CP) — Nineteen-year-old Gary McCorkell's bid to have his conviction for capital murder reduced to one of which now has been divided into smaller provinces along tribal lines. They are to form an "an intensified presence of United Nations troops in this country to be called for very soon."

TIME NEEDED

The new provinces are not likely to be settled overnight. The secretary-general observed that the UN mission has been in Congo a year from now.

Earlier the UN leader had visualized a reduction in the present 19,000-man strength of the force to some 12,000 or 13,000 by the end of March. That strength will include some elements of the Congolese national army.

NATO Nerve, Heart Centre Is in France and Likely to Remain There Indefinitely

LONDON (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has everything it needs in France except the French.

"It's a little like running a boat with the anchor down," says a NATO source.

The heart and nerve centre of NATO are in France and probably will remain there indefinitely. That is where most members is, where planning is done, where the NATO council sits.

Right now France's major contribution to NATO is geography. The French delegate sits in the council, but that's about all he does.

The Atlantic crisis provoked by France's blunt rejection of Britain's bid to enter the European Economic Community turned a possible NATO's problems with France. NATO sources say French attitudes hamper planning, the French failure to co-operate in defence systems and French insistence on acting exclusively of the other allies can cause more harm.

Military planning will go on, even if NATO in effect must virtually write off France. But recent events pose new dangers for NATO.

FRANCE MAY SPLIT

A split among the six Common Market nations over France's veto in January could make the French "empty chair" a full reality at least for a time, and that would weaken the alliance.

"I think it would be a disaster if we should divide," the late Kennedy has said. "The forces in the world hostile to us are powerful"

He has responded softly to de Gaulle thunderbolts, but he has made it clear division between the United States and France is a serious danger to Western security.

The possibility of a weakening bond between France's veto brings grave economic problems to Britain. She may feel obliged to cut her NATO military commitments. Britain's three divisions—55,000 men plus support troops—in Germany cost her in the neighborhood of $200,000,000 a year.

Prime Yerwolf has made no move to restore to NATO the functions withdrawn in protest de Gaulle says for the Algerian crisis. She has withdrawn her fleet from ships NATO's Mediterranean force. Her contribution now amounts to two divisions in Germany, and even it NATO still is nearly six divisions short of the 30 which planners hold necessary to proceed with the forward defence program for Europe.

While de Gaulle insists "the Atlantic alliance is absolutely necessary," he provides its big gest headaches.

REJECTS INTEGRATION

He rejects integration, which means blending defence forces under a single command. That suggests to de Gaulle a surrender of sovereignty. On that issue France caused the collapse of the European defence community in 1954.

De Gaulle has refused to permit stockpiling of atomic weapons in France. Striking-force squadrons must be located in Germany and Britain.

De Gaulle rejects Kennedy's proposal for a multi-nation nuclear force. He wants his own atomic striking force. His idea is getting to be known in Europe by the curious name of "the little deterrent."

Eventually, in de Gaulle's words, France's deterrent "will have the sombre and terrible capability of destroying in a few seconds millions and millions of men."

De Gaulle says the Cuban crisis showed that U.S. nuclear weapons are ready to go into action for "something other than the defence of France" and nobody can say "where, when, how and to what extent the American atomic weapons would be employed to defend Europe."

France's policy is not to turn French weapons over to a multination force under foreign command, but "on condition and if a necessary use atomic forces together . . . under effective co-operation, technical or strategic, if it is desired by France's allies."

By the end of this year de Gaulle intends to have an atom bomb about three times the size of the one dropped on Hiroshima in 1945. It will be carried by Mirage IV bombers which need U.S. refuelling planes.

By 1966, de Gaulle hopes to have 50 Mirages in the air plus a force of solid fuel missiles of 900- to 1,200-mile range, and eventually underwater missiles with three submarines.

It would do no good, NATO sources say, to force France the U.S. KC-135 refuelling planes, or to scale other threats against de Gaulle. Such action would only serve to underscore de Gaulle's complaint that the United States wants to dominate Europe.

The Congo Troubles Are Far From Over Than Tells UN

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Congo has done a quick disappearing act from newspaper front pages, UN officials say —and those of United Nations personnel there—are far from over.

This was reflected in Secretary-General U Thant's report to the UN security council last week, in which he said that although the council will be told done that "it may be rightly said that we are just at the beginning of a new phase of our operation, in which a radical change in emphasis and direction will take place."

Heading the list is the still troublesome problem of reintegrating Katanga with the Congolese Union. A plan has been developed under which troops of the central government will be brought into Katanga while UN troops remaining for a time under UN control.

There also are tribal quarrels in the eastern province of Kasai, tribal lines.

"an intensified presence of United Nations troops in this country to be called for very soon."

Aside from the military aspects of the Congo job, the UN forces a mammoth task is now restoring normal civil life in the huge country.

UN policy so far has been to channel all aid to The Congo through the international organization in order to avoid complications. The possibility of direct aid from other countries is being considered.

In addition, the UN itself is launching an aid program that includes assistance to Katanga which has described as "the most massive technical assistance effort in the country."

The aim is to put some 1,300 international experts into The Congo rather than double the number there last year and by the end of March UN has sent to any single country.

They will concentrate mainly in the fields of education, health and communications. At least eight of the specialized UN agencies will help.

Thant has appealed to the 110 UN member nations for $8,000,000 in voluntary contributions to get the operation under way.

Dublin Is Fighting Again --To Save Historic Homes From Hammers of Time

By CAROL KENNEDY

DUBLIN (CP) — A small, white-bearded Dubliner looking like a shrunken George Bernard Shaw marched angrily at the head of a procession down 18th-century Fitzwilliam Street leading an Irish wolfhound and bearing a mourning wreath.

Watched by sightseers and television cameras, the old man laid the wreath against the fanlighted door of one of the terraced houses, then turned and launched a tirade at the crowd.

"These vandals . . . how can they do it?" he cried, his voice almost breaking. "It's like putting a cromlum - plated frame round an 18th - century painting."

The cause of the demonstration—one of many these days—is providing Dublin with its biggest talking-point since the Irish Republican Army disbanded last year.

The Electricity Supply Board, a government concern, owns a block of Georgian terraced houses in Lower Fitzwilliam Street, part of a splendid vista linking two of Dublin's great residential squares and set against a backdrop of distant purple mountains.

Now it wants to tear down its property and erect a glassy modern office block in its place.

MOST DON'T CARE

Apart from the fact that the board is unpopular with many Dubliners for real or imagined high-handedness — "they think they're God, absolutely," said one secretary in disgust — the proposal has aroused a fierce protective instinct in citizens who normally regard their famous heritage of Georgian architecture with apathy, if not outright boredom.

A few, in whom the flame of nationalism still burns fitfully, regard the graceful vistas of 18th-century Dublin as a relic of alien rule; the urbane, cultivated Anglo - Irish society of riches, privilege and the neo-classical comedies of Sheridan and Congreve. Their attitude could be summed up as: "Bring on the hammers."

But others feel differently.

Five years ago, Desmond Guinness of the Dublin brewing family started the Irish Georgian Society to oppose the demolition of what he called "the soul of a city."

The hammers then were striking only at the needier of Dublin's Georgian terraces, some of which have been transformed into slum tenements, and most people felt it would be no loss if they came down. But the society has gained members rapidly since the Fitzwilliam Street row blew up. It now has 1,200 members, including 150 Americans.

WAS IN CASTLE

"We don't mind being called cranks," said Guinness in a newspaper interview. He thinks up oddball ways of raising funds, such as holding an open-air twist contest in a ruined castle, and is hoping a United States group called the Society for the Preservation of Historic Ireland is going to help in the fight to save Fitzwilliam Street.

Meanwhile the Dublin housewife continues to battle in typically calm fashion with the drafts, sagging floors and dirt-trapping cornices of her Georgian home, while her husband copes with the drawbacks of a similarly ancient office up three flights of steep dark stairs.

These people aren't exactly prepared to join battle with the ESB or get up petitions. But they look affectionately down the rose - red brick vista linking Fitzwilliam and Merrion Squares — what someone has called the ultimate in urban good manners — and hope vaguely that "something will be done" to save it from the glare of new concrete, glass and steel.

Vistas, however, are best appreciated from a distance. Close up, you can see the iron bands clasping the frail old buildings together, and perceive a supporting beam here and there through a window, propping up a rickety ceiling.

This may well be the thin edge of a demolisher's wedge for the stage set of squares and terraces that makes Dublin unique among modern capitals.

Tomorrow: Twist records help popularize Gaelic.

'SOUL OF A CITY' — Proposals to demolish these 18th century terraced houses on Dublin's Fitzwilliam street have come up against opposition from lovers of Georgian architecture. Owners of the property want to build a modern office building on the site. It would destroy "the soul of a city", said one Dubliner. (CP Photo).

Wonderful When School Over -- Prince

NELSON, N.Z. (Reuters) — Prince Philip said here that attending a tough school was like bashing your head against a wall—"it is wonderful when you finish."

The prince made the remark while touring the Outward Bound School for Youth Leadership in Marlborough Sound.

He flew to the school in an amphibian plane from Nelson where he arrived with Queen Elizabeth on the royal yacht Britannia after an overnight crossing of the Cook Strait.

The yacht was welcomed by a flotilla of small boats as it sailed toward, New Zealand's south island on another leg of the royal couple's pacific tour. In Nelson, the Queen attended a tea at which she disclosed that her son Prince Charles will visit New Zealand soon after he finishes his schooling in Britain.

At the school, Prince Philip accepted on behalf of the school's trust £7,000 ($21,000) in proceeds from a book of speeches by Lord Cobham, the former Governor - General of New Zegland who founded the school.

Philip remarked: "If I published a book of speeches they would not endow a chicken-coop."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Coach Bobby Kromm of the Trail Smoke Eaters, the newspapers insist, is not a little "concerned" over the performances of the Canadian world tournament representatives during their exhibition junket across Canada.

The Smokies lost six of seven games, the majority to teams of mediocre quality as far as senior "A" calibre is concerned. The stock of the Smokies sagged deeply when they bowed to a pick-up team of untried collegiate hockey players.

So as follows the night to day, comes the yelps and bleats of the "Canada faithful". The at-games defeat of the Smokies provided the ammunition for their howitzers of criticism.

"What chance has a club which cannot win games from home-country clubs not supposed to be in their class?" is the howl. "They'll be murdered by the Czechs, Swedes and Russians and probably by the little-fancied United States squad."

Why don't these self-styled "experts" line their gunsights on the National Hockey League, and others who turned the ley shoulder on Coach Kromm's appeal for player assistance?

Bert Olmstead and Johnny McMillan, tied by strings to the New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs, were sought by the Smokies' coach. Kromm got the brush-off in both cases. He tried to secure services of Tommy Walker of the Windsor Bulldogs, top scorer of the OHA senior "A" league. Walker is still with the Dogs.

Coach Kromm and a number of the Smokies are rich in championship and world hockey tradition. Trail has won two world titles, two Allan Cups, three Western Canada titles and 16 British Columbia crowns.

Kromm is a coach well tried in the crucible of world competition. He knows what lies ahead as far as competition goes and he knows the international situation, both hockey and otherwise. And he knows what Canada needs player-wise to meet the stiffest competition yet offered by European clubs.

No wonder he is "concerned." Or is he?

One could scarcely blame Kromm if he told the "critics," the NHL, the CAHA, and other non-assisting people to take the proverbial jump in the lake, pack up his gear and trek back to Trail.

But he is not that kind of a fellow. He does not believe that the showing of the Smokies on their cross-Canada exhibition tour indicates they are ill-equipped to meet the challenge of the Russians, Czechs and the Swedes.

As one writer puts it: "It may be a blessing in disguise that the Smokies are not leaving their best efforts in Canada. Kromm, obviously, is not driving them, preferring to bring his club to a peak slowly, and extensively, which is wise. The tournament demands sustained, peak performances."

They face seven exhibition games in Europe before engaging in competitive play in Stockholm. These should produce at least some idea of the potential of the Smokies.

And don't forget this. Despite the fact the Smokies need some help, they boast some of the best senior players in the country. Ten of them played on the Trail club that won the world title in Switzerland in 1961. And as the McFarlands discovered in 1959, experience is absolutely essential in world competition.

So let us not judge Canada's entry in world competition too hastily. Many a thoroughbred racehorse has come from the rack to gallop under the wire the winner.

They may not prove to be the better team in the Stockholm world stakes, but here's one Canadian who is "rooting" for them to bring home the 1963 international championship.

Grab Five-Point Lead

Dogs Drub Maroons 6-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons took a 6-0 loss Wednesday night at the hands of Windsor Bulldogs and saw first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings move nearly out of reach.

With both Chatham and Windsor having five more league games to play, Windsor has a five-point lead over Chatham. Bulldogs sewed up the win in a hurry at Chatham before an estimated 1,500 fans, scoring three times in the first period. Their big scorers, Bob Brown, Irwin Gross, Lou Bendo, Tom Walker and Jacques Begin lived up to their reputation, handling all the scoring. Bendo scored twice and the others once each. For Windsor rookie goalie Wayne Rutledge. It was his second shutout of the season.

Bassen Blows; Big M Goes; Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Terry Sawchuk was lucky Wednesday night—he wasn't in the nets when Detroit Red Wings met Toronto Maple Leafs.

Subbing for Sawchuk, a key in Detroit's early season spurt, until he injured his hand two months ago, was the usually reliable Hank Bassen.

But he had one of those nights as the Leafs hammered Detroit 6-2 and moved into second place over the idle Montreal Canadiens.

Bassen looked bad on five of the six Leaf goals—and on the sixth he got a misconduct penalty for agruing too strenuously with referee Eddie Powers.

Toronto supporters got an additional boost from the return to life of Frank Mahovlich, the big gun who has barely managed a pop in his last 21 games.

He scored only five goals in that span, but hit for two Wednesday night to raise his season's total to 29, stops in the league.

Other Leaf goals came from Jim Horton, Bob Pulford, George Armstrong and Red Kelly, while veteran Alex Delvecchio and rookie Larry Jeffrey scored for Detroit.

Kelly also drew assists on Mahovlich's goals.

HORTON STARTS IT

Bassen's troubles started midway through the first period when Horton charged the length of the ice before popping the puck behind Bassen from a scramble in front of the net.

Bassen protested so violently that Powers—who had warned both clubs before the game started that no nonsense would be tolerated — called him for misconduct.

In the second period Mahovlich was put in the clear by Kelly and pulled Bassen out of the net before slipping the puck behind him.

It was the same story for Hank on the next two Leaf goals in the third period.

Mahovlich pulled him out of the nets again at 6:07 and Pulford faked him little more than a minute later.

Armstrong broke in on him after getting around Val Fonteyne and Delvecchio and Bassen rushed out to try to poke the puck away. He missed but Armstrong didn't.

Bassen charged out again when Kelly broke in at 19:09 but he missed the puck which just kept sliding into the net.

Only one game is scheduled for tonight, Bosto nrBuins visiting Montreal.

City Hockey League

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The Pepsi's wrapped up the City Hockey League regular season championship and the Labatt Trophy with a tight 2-1 victory over Welbanks Motors last night and promptly picked the runner-up Trudeau Motors squad as their opponents in the first round of the playoffs.

Trudeaus outlasted the Joyce-Rollins Combines 8-6 in the earlier game to keep their chances for top spot alive but the later win by Pepsi's erased that final Trudeau hope.

The games postponed on December 26 are not necessary to decide playoff spots, so those games have been washed out.

Semi-final playoffs will get under way next Wednesday night with Pepsi's tackling Trudeaus in the 9.15 game and Welbanks taking on Joyce-Rollins in the 7.45 opener.

PEPSI'S 2 — WELBANKS 1

The league champs took a 2-0 lead in the first period and nursed it until late in the third when Welbanks ruined Claude Carr's shutout bid and made it a tight one at the end.

John "Shaker" Baker scored Pepsi's first goal at 9.23 on a solo effort, lifting a high backhander past Bob Green, who battled it out with Carr all the way in the goalies' duel.

Dave Jones made it 2-0 with a few seconds left in the period, taking Chuck Llewbithan's passout and flicking it home all in the same motion while parked six feet in front of the net.

The game was very close checking during the second period and part of the third, fine penalty killing by Skelly, Waite and Murray holding the losers at bay when Pepsi's played two men short early in the third.

Carr and Green both booted out some good, close-in chances but Bill Vesterfelt finally broke the Welbank goose egg at 18.31, tipping Rod Turner's shot past Carr after Earl Cousins started the play.

Welbanks never got the opportunity to lift Green in favor of a sixth attacker, although he he did get as far as the blueline once, and it ended 2-1.

Referees Don McCurdy and Jean-Paul Lamirande doled out five minor penalties with

TRUDEAUS 8 — JOYCE-ROLLINS 6

Trudeaus had the best of the play for two periods, leading 4-1 after one heat and 6-2 after forty minutes, but the Combines rallied strongly in the third and twice pulled to within one goal.

Scoring champ Gary Goyer finally ended the scoring at 19.20 of the third heat when he scored from behind his own net into the open Joyce-Rollins cage while the losers had 6 attackers pressing. Goalie Don Barclay, who batted the puck back of his net to Goyer, drew an assist on the play, the first picked up by a goalie in the loop.

Earlier in the third, goals by Boomhower, Sheridan and Marineau had reduced the Trudeau lead to 6-5. Marineau made it 7-5 with the Combines shorthanded but seconds later, at 18.58, Boomhower scored again to make it 7-6, leading to the empty-net situation.

Ed morineau and Gary Coyer Ed Marineau and Gary Goyer threw assists to spark the Trudeau attack. "Pug" Kellar had one and one, Ray Allen, Hugh Petrie and Ed Plata a goal apiece. Frank Cris, Gerry Jones and Barclay also collected assists.

Carl Boomhower triggered two Joyce-Rollins markers with

MONTREAL (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters, Canada's representatives in next month's world hockey championships, left for Europe Wednesday night with coach Bobby Kromm conceding he's a bit concerned.

Kromm, with six straight losses in a seven-game exhibition tour fresh in his mind, admitted the team has problems—"but they've sent us over to win and that's what we've got to do—win."

The Trans-Canada Air Lines jetliner carrying the team to London was almost three hours late leaving. It was delayed at Toronto while flight equipment was loaded aboard.

The players, showing no signs of being disheartened despite their coach's worries, spent the time idly chatting in the airport's waiting rooms.

Goalie Seth Martin said: "We don't mind being underdogs—in fact we like it that way."

WANTS HELP

Kromm made it clear in a brief chat before boarding the plane that he is upset over what he considers the lack of help his club has received.

"My briefcase is full of letters asking for help, but nobody did anything. Everything we've got we had to do ourselves."

He said he is glad "we have another 10 exhibition games in Europe before the championships start. It'll give us a chance to rectify our problems."

He didn't specify where he thinks the problems lie or where the team needs bolstering, but he admitted making a determined try to land defenceman Jack Douglas of Chatham Maroons of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League.

The 18-man team, last season's Allan Cup champions, received a batch of telegrams as they waited at the airport. One, signed with hundreds of names from Trail fans, said in part: "No fooling, all Trail is behind you. Keep up the good work it will all work out OK."

Art Potter, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said in Edmonton he has confidence in the Smoke Eaters despite the club's poor exhibition record.

"They have a pretty good club. It's a case of finding their feet," Potter said in an interview Wednesday. "They have the experience, and know what has to be done."

Red Kelly Has Mild Concussion

TORONTO (CP)—Centre Red Kelly suffered a mild concussion in the last minute of the Toronto Maple Leaf-Detroit Red Wing National Hockey League game Wednesday night. Leafs won 6-2.

Kelly scored Toronto's sixth goal but couldn't remember it after his injury. He struck his head on the ice when checked by Detroit defenceman Howie Young.

Trimble Larks' Head Coach?

Would Consider If Price Right

By PAUL RIMSTRAD

HAMILTON (CP)—Jim Trimble is still interested in Montreal Alouettes' coaching job and if he gets it his assistant, Ralph Sazio, will take over as head coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

These were the impressions after interviews with Trimble and Jake Gaudaur, president of the Ticats, at the opening of the Eastern Football Conference annual meeting Wednesday.

The EFC get-together continued today and the Western Conference was scheduled to hold its annual meeting. The Canadian Football League will hold its annual sessions Friday and Saturday.

Except for complaints about the 1963 schedule, little came out of the EFC meeting. Most of the talks centred around Trimble, the Jackie Parker deal and Hamilton's bid for the 1964 Grey Cup game.

Trimble, towering Ticat coach, said earlier he would be interested in the Montreal job only if it was the dual position of general manager and coach.

However, Trimble admitted Wednesday that he would consider the job as head coach providing the consideration" made it worthwhile

NOT MONEY ALONE

He said money alone wouldn't take him to Montreal as a replacement for Perry Moss, who left the team recently. It would have to be a better deal than he already has at Hamilton.

When asked to expand on the "consideration," Trimble replied with a smile: There are 64 different ways to skin a cat."

Ted Workman, president of the Als, wouldn't admit he met with Trimble for three hours Wednesday, nor would he comment on the status on Frank Ivy (Ivy).

Workman came here directly from New York, where he met with Ivy Tuesday. Ivy, who won successive Grey Cups as coach of Edmonton Eskimos in 1954-55-56, now coaches Houston Oilers in the American Football League.

Most folks have given Ivy the inside track for the job, but indications here are that Workman and Trimble are negotiating.

Workman declines to discuss the situation but says the Als' coaching job could be filled before the meetings end here Saturday. The announcement, though, would be made from Montreal.

TWO ELIGIBLE HERE

The two eligible candidates in the Ticat organization are assistant coaches Sazio and Joe Restic. Sazio has been with the team as a player and coach since 1950. Restic joined the Ticats last year.

Another deal creating interest is the one concerning Toronto Argonauts and the Eskimos.

Argo managing director Lew Hayman and Edmonton general manager Joe Ryan both indicated that negotiations for Jackie Parker, Edmonton's all-everything, were nearly complete.

Parker, the sparkplug of the Eskimos since he joined the team in 1954, asked to be traded this season. Toronto is his No. 1 choice.

Argo players mentioned most frequently among the speculators are Mike Wicklum, Bill Mitchell and quarterback Tom Maudlin. Cash is also expected to be an issue

Trimble said the Tiger-Cats would also like to talk to the Eskimos about Parker.

INSPIRES INTEREST

He's a super-player," said Trimble. Too good for any club not to show interest."

Hamilton is making a pitch for the Grey Cup game in 1964 and today planned to pass out copies of a 17-page brochure to football officials at a civic luncheon. One of the various selling points is that Hamilton has 2,100 first-class hotel and motel rooms.

I'd like to see those rooms," said Workman with a chuckle. The Grey Cup game will have He meant Vancouver, Toronto to stay in the three big cities." and Montreal, although Montreal has never been host to the Grey Cup spectacle.

Moira Quinte Mat Champions

Moira Secondary School Trojans won the first COSSA Quinte District wrestling championships at the inaugural meet held in Campbellford yesterday.

The Trojans will represent the Quinte district at the COSSA championships slated for Anderson High School, Whitby on Saturday, February 22rd.

The Moira grapplers won the team championship with 8 points total of 124 and became the first holders of the handsome trophy donated by May or Tanner of Campbellford.

The well-coached Trojans swept eight of the twelve individual championships and finished second in another three classes. Campbellford High school won three of the weight divisions with Belleville Collegiate Institute taking the other.

Other schools competing were Albert College and Norwood High School.

The team totals were Moira 124 points; Campbellford 84; BCI, 46; Norwood, 36 and Albert College 10 points.

A total of fifty boys from the five schools participated in the championships before a packed gallery of spectators. There was not a dull moment in the five-hour competition.

The calibre of wrestling was exceptionally good and many of the bouts were closely contested. Student spectators added color to the events "rooting" for their school representatives.

The Trojans were worthy champions and will face stiff competition in the COSSA meet on Feb. 23. Schools which will be represented at this meet have had wrestling teams for three years and have always placed high in the all-Ontario championships meet.

Campbellford's Bob Jefferies won the unlimited class with schoolmates Don Tummer and Rudy Joss winning the under 136 and under 148 pounds divisions.

Moira winners were: — Wally Weller, (under 98); Don Piperni (under 115); Ted Pordham (under 123); Len King (under 130); Alan Lewis (under 141); Fred Donaldson (under 157); John Burns (under 165) and Jim Rutherford (under 183).

Belleville Collegiate Institute's Ken Lang won the under 106 pounds class.

Women's Rink Win Away From Title

NORTH BAY (CP) — Mrs. Emily Woolley of Toronto moved within one step of winning the Ontario women's curling championships with a 9-8 win over Mrs. Elsie Forsyth of Port Arthur Wednesday.

Mrs. Woolley, who has a 4-1 record, will go against winless Mrs. Peggy Morrison of Noranda in the sixth round of the championships today. A win would give Mrs. Woolley her second provincial crown in the last three years.

Mrs. Woolley's three - game winning streak came to an end earlier Wednesday when Mrs. Audrey Braid of Ottawa defeated her 8-6 in the fourth round. Mrs Forsyth defeated Mrs. Morrison 7-5.

In a second game later Wednesday, Mrs. Braid sent the Morris in foursome down to fifth straight defeat, shipping the Northern Ontario entry 14-6.

Mrs. Braid and Mrs. Forsyth will meet in today's other game.

Says Larks Will Be Cup Favorites

MONTREAL (CP)—J. I. Albrecht, who quit as chief scout of Montreal Alouettes for an administrative job with Oakland Raiders, says the Als shape up as a favorite in the East for a Grey Cup berth next football season.

Don't you make any mistakes about it—they're going all the way," he said in an interview Wednesday night.

He quit the Alouettes—less than a week after agreeing to a new contract—in the wake of Perry Moss' dismissal as the team's head coach and general manager. He said Moss' firing had nothing to do with it.

I've always wanted a chance to work in football at the general manager's level and this was it.

Carbo, Palermo 'Stay Put'

Hoods' Appeals Rejected

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals has affirmed the conviction of Frankie Carbo, former underworld boxing czar, and three others for conspiracy and extortion. A fifth man was ordered set free.

The men were convicted in a Los Angeles federal district court jury trial May 30, 1961, for attempting to muscle in on earnings of Dan Jordan when Jordan was world welterweight champion in 1958.

Carbo, 57, received a 25-year prison sentence and was fined $10,000. Following his trial he was sent to Alcatraz pending his appeal after the court was told that his presence in Los Angeles might lead to harm for Jackie Leonard, a fight promoter who was a major witness at Carbo's trial.

Others whose sentences were upheld Wednesday were Frank (Blinky) Palermo, 55, Philadelphia boxing manager, 15 years and $10,000 fine; Truman Gibson Jr., 43, Chicago lawyer and former president of the now-defunct International Boxing Club, five-year suspended sentence and $10,000; and Joseph Sica, 49, Los Angeles sports promoter, 20 years and $10,000.

The court reversed the conviction of Louis Tom Dragna, 40, of West Covina, Calif. It ordered the lower court to enter a dismissal for him. He had been sentenced to five years.

Briton Signs To Meet Griffith

LONDON (AP)—Brian Curvis of Wales has signed for a world welterweight title fight against champion Emile Griffith although British boxing writers rate the Welshman a slim hope against the hard-hitting New Yorker.

The 25-year-old British champion agreed to terms Wednesday with promoter Jack Solomons for the title bout in Cardiff, Wales, in late May or early June. Griffith must first successfully defend his crown against Cuban Luis Rodriguez, the No. 1 contender, March 16. He already has agreed to meet Curvis if he gets by the clever Cuban.

Curvis did not impress the experts Tuesday night even though he outclassed Tony Smith and finally stopped the Englishman in the 10th round of their 15-round scrap for the British crown.

He is not a fighter on whom we can build title hopes," wrote Steve Fagan in The Daily Sketch.

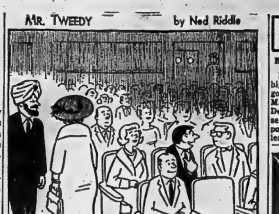
By THE CANADIAN PRESS



With help from Sudbury Wolves, Kingston Frontenacs Wednesday night moved into a tie with Hull-Ottawa Canadiens for the lead in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

While Sudbury upset Hull-Ottawa 6-1 at Sudbury, Kingston defeated the visiting St. Louis Braves 5-3.

The results left Kingston and Hull-Ottawa with 68 points each. Both have played 50 games and oddly, both have scored 207 goals. Hull-Ottawa leads in wins with 30, one more than Kingston, and has a five-goal edge in goals scored against.

Both clubs lead Sudbury by 17 points and Sudbury has a 13-point lead over St. Louis.

Goaltender Gerry Cheevers was the main stumbling block for Hull-Ottawa. The Sudbury goalie made 33 saves, many of them at point-blank range. He missed on Bob Courcy in the second period after Sudbury had taken a 3-0 lead in the first.

Crawfords Defeat Lightfoots

Belleville Crawfords crushed Lightfoot Construction 84-56, and Trenton Wilsons whipped Cobourg 80-46 in a Bay of Quinte Basketball League doubleheader at the air station last night.

The setbacks for Cobourg and Lightfoots left them tied for the loop's fourth and final playoff spot at the end of the regular schedule. They will meet in a sudden-death game, at RCAF gym, on Monday night at 8.30 with the winner advancing into the play-offs. Trenton Wilsons and RCAF will play a postponed game at 7.15 as part of a twin bill.

Crawfords led 42-21 at the half-way mark last night and never looked back. Every man in the Crawford lineup shared in the scoring spree with five players hitting double figures.

Bert Faulkner and Ted Batchelor led the way with 17 points apiece, while Sid Forster hooped 14, Bill Latchford and Larry Campbell 10 each.

Don Smith sparked the Lightfoots with 21 points, followed by Cord Mutter with nine, Marner and Caswell with eight apiece. Caswell and Skinner fouled out early in the second half, leaving the losers with five players.

Wilson, still undefeated in league play, got a 27-point scoring production from Bob Moore, while Gary Quinlan led Cobourg with 19 points.

Belleville Crawfords (84) — T. Batchelor 17, B. Faulkner 17, S. Forster 14, B. Latchford 10, L. Campbell 10, Lekiec 6, Lange 6, Gault 4.

Belleville Lightfoots (56)— D. Smith 21, C. Mutter 9, B. Marner 8, Caswell 8, G. Reynolds 4, D. Skinner 4, T. Ewing 2.

MONTREAL (CP)—Swimmer Dick Pound, honored as Montreal's outstanding amateur athlete of 1962, has decided to pass up the trials for a berth on Canada's team for the forthcoming Pan-American Games but he will be pointing for the 1964 Olympics.

"I'd sure like to make that trip to Tokyo," said the rangy 20-year-old, the son of a Montreal executive with a paper company.

He said Wednesday night that pressure of his studies as a fourth-year student at Sir George Williams University here would make it too tough for him to take time off for the Pan-Am Games in Brazil.

The eastern division trials open here Friday and Pound's entry was announced Tuesday night by meet officials.

"I could go in but it would only mean that I'd be shunting aside someone who could really afford to make the trip," said Pound, a native of St. Catharines who moved to Montreal with his family at the age of 10.

An unassuming youngster with close-cropped blonde hair, Pound won a gold medal for Canada in the 100-metre freestyle at the British Empire Games in Australia last November and is the only Canadian ever to break the 50-second barrier for the 100-yard freestyle.

He was interviewed at an SS-a-plate dinner sponsored by the Montreal Sportsmen's Association to make awards to the city's outstanding sports personalities last year.

It was the second award for Pound. In 1960 he took the amateur trophy after placing sixth in the 100-metre freestyle at the Olympics at Melbourne.

Jacques Plante, goaltender for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, was named the top professional athlete of 1962.

Rudy Pilous, coach of the NHL's Chicago Black Hawks, was announced as the featured speaker. But he was unable to attend because of the death of his mother-in-law and his place was taken by Red Storey of football and hockey fame.

Toe Blake Fined $200 For Remarks

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League has fined Montreal coach Toe Blake $200 for remarks about the officiating after Canadiens' 6-3 loss to Toronto Maple Leafs here Jan. 31

Campbell said Blake's remarks implying the officials had bet on the result of the game were completely unwarranted and unfounded."

He added in a statement: It is a serious reflection on the integrity of the officials and is clearly in violation of the league rules."

Eddie Powers referred the stormy game, in which Blake drew a bench penalty for protesting a Toronto goal.

Dickens Chronicle on CBS Off-Beat, Intriguing Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—An off-beat and intriguing program, a Dickens Chronicle, turned up on CBS Wednesday night Obviously inspired by the Broadway musical hit, Oliver, based on Oliver Twist and perhaps the 151st anniversary of Charles Dickens' birth, the program presumed a renewed curiosity about the Victorian author by the contemporary American public.

The hour-long program wove together some of the famous Dickens characters—Mr. Micawber, Mr. Pickwick and Mrs. Nickleby, among others—with a dramatized account of the author's tempestuous and rather disorderly life. Somehow, it seemed very well.

Dickens came off as a selfish, rude character whose patient wife finally left him.

Bob Hope, who has been doing only occasional specials for the past couple of seasons, is expected back next year as a Friday night regular on NBC . . . Jackie Gleason, who has been playing it hot and cold about another CBS season, has agreed and will return again on Saturday nights.

The most recent Nielsen ratings—for the last two weeks of January—still give CBS shows a commanding lead. Beverly Hillbillies is still the top show, followed by ABC's Ben Casey. Then follow CBS' Candid Camera, Red Skelton, The Lucy Show; NBC's Bonanza; CBS' Gunsmoke, Danny Thomas, Andy Griffith and the NBC's Bob Hope Christmas Show.

Recommended tonight:

Blow High, Blow Clear, ABC, 10-11 EST—Tommy Sands in a Premiere Theatre drama about a trumpet player.

Yank Hurler Shot in Leg By Woman

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Marshall (Sheriff) Bridges, ace relief pitcher with New York Yankees, was listed in fair condition in hospital today as police questioned a woman they said shot him in the left leg after some sort of argument" at a club.

Police said the wound was not serious, but Yankee officials said Bridges could be on the sidelines for two months.

The shooting occurred Wednesday night at a Negro club known as the pride of Fort Lauderdale Elks Lodge.

Police booked a woman identified as Carrie Lee Hayner on a charge of aggravated assault. Bridges was under sedation and could not give his version of the incident.

Yankee officials said he was shot in the leg below the knee with a small-calibre weapon.

Took Too Long to Slip To the Cup From the Lip

NEW YORK (AP)—Is seven minutes too long to wait to see whether a putt drops in from the lip of the cup?

Gary Player thinks so. The rule book indicates his playing partner Don January, was wrong in making the little South African wait that long Tuesday on the 18th green for a chance at a four-footer.

Player missed the putt and took a par four. He eventually placed second by one stroke to Arnold Palmer in the windup of the Phoenix open golf tournament. First place was worth $5,300 and second $3,400.

January waited for seven minutes to see whether the ball would drop in. It didn't. Player burned while he was waiting.

"January didn't have a right to wait seven minutes for that putt to drop," Player said. "It was very nerve-wracking, especially knowing I needed just a bird to tie Arnie."

Asked for an opinion, Joe Dey executive director of the United States Golf Association, said: "I wouldn't want to pass judgment on something I didn't see," but added that "seven minutes is a long time." He cited Rule 35-1, Sub-Section H:

"Whether a ball has come to rest is a question of fact. If there be reasonable doubt, the owner of the ball is not allowed more than a momentary delay to settle the doubt."

Dey said another part of the rule book points out that a momentary delay means a short period, such as a few seconds, not minutes.

But on the other hand, he pointed out, the player has to make sure his ball is at rest. If he hits a ball-that is moving, he would be penalized.

NA Figure Skating

Canadians Favored Over U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The question of how well the United States has been able to come back following the tragic 1961 plane crash which wiped out its figure-skating team, will be answered here this weekend at the North American figure-skating championships.

A total of 36 skaters—24 entries—will represent the U.S. and Canada in the two-day competition beginning Friday.

Under international rules, a team is usually limited to eight entries.

The additional members are being allowed the U.S. team to give that country a chance to rebuild its squad.

Canada is in a different position. Because of her fine showing at the world championships last year—no member finished worse than sixth—she is being allowed to send the full complement of 12.

Following the championships here, both teams will leave immediately for Cortina, Italy, for the world championships Feb. 27 to March 2.

Barons Bow To Indians, Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stratford Indians, with a new muscular look, again are in a threatening position in the American Hockey League.

Since the line of three converted defencemen, Bill White, Bob McCord and Fred Harris has been put together, the Indians have won five of six starts.

The line produced two goals, by White and McCord, in Wednesday night's 4-1 triumph over Cleveland Barons. Dennis Olson beat Dale Rolfe and fired the other goals. Joe Szura got Cleveland's only goal.

The Western Division leaders, Buffalo Bisons, scored a 7-3 victory over Providence Reds in the other game.

Art Stratton, Ed Van Impe, Cliff Schmautz, Doug Robinson and Jackie Jacques Plante will "in control all probability" play in the nets when Canadiens meet Boston here tonight.

Plante has been bothered by sore muscles in the hip and groin in the last two weeks, and missed three games with the ailment last week.

Blake didn't say who would replace Plante if the veteran goalie is unable to play, but a club spokesman said most likely candidate is Charlie Hodge, Quebec Aces goalie who worked out with Canadiens Wednesday.

Canadiens said spare goalie Cesare Maniago, who filled in for Plante in the three games last week, has been loaned temporarily to the Aces. The move was being made to give 29-year-old Hodge a rest.

The club said Hodge could return to his home in the Montreal suburb of Lachine and keep in shape by practising with Canadiens.

Maniago's recent play has left room for criticism. He allowed 12 goals in the three games he replaced Plante, and then was beaten on five of the 18 shots on him in his first game Tuesday night with Aces, a 5-3 loss to Hershey.

Minor Hockey

Belleville and Trenton Peewee All-Star teams battled to a 3-3 deadlock in an exhibition game played here last night.

Fred Waite, Mark Acquafreddo and Darryl Demers scored for Belleville with Dave Cass and Brian James earning assists.

Mike Powell, Bob Hewitt and Terry Brown had Trenton's goals. Joe Couture and Bill Dobbie drew assists.

Belleville Peewees open their OMHA playdowns against Oshawa in the first game of a double-header at seven o'clock here Friday night. Oshawa and Belleville Bantams tackle each other in a nine o'clock fixture.

Plante May Play in Boston

MONTREAL (CP) —Coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens said Wednesday ailing goalie Jacques Plante will "in control all probability" play in the nets when Canadiens meet Boston here tonight.

Strengthen Second Place

Baby Habs Halt Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal junior Canadiens Wednesday night moved a step closer to clinching second place in the Ontario Hockey Association's provincial Junior A group by defeating the fifth-place St. Catharines Black Hawks 5-3.

The victory gave Canadiens 51 points, three more than Hamilton Red Wings, the defending Memorial Cup champions to whom they meet at Hamilton tonight.

Niagara Falls still holds a six-point lead over Montreal. Both have eight more games in the league schedule, one more than Hamilton.

St. Catharines pulled their goaltender in the last minute at Montreal Wednesday night in an effort to tie the score but the move backfired when left winger Andre Boudrias trapped a shot by St. Catharines and shot the puck into the open net.

Norm Dennis scored twice for Montreal. Boudrias, Yvon Cournoyer and Bill Inglis scored the others.

St. Catharines scorers were Ken Hodge, Fred Stanfield and Dennis Hull.

First String Catcher

Tigers Like Mr Triandos

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—The Tigers are distressing—a .159 batting average and six home runs. They represent the net output last season of Gus Triandos, once a feared slugger.

"Forget them," says manager Bob Scheffing, who's counting on Triandos as the Tigers' No. 1 catcher. "There are some other figures that are more impressive. Gus's weight is down 25 pounds to 218. He's trimmer than I've ever seen him."

The Tigers' acquisition of Triandos in a trade that sent Dick Brown to Baltimore Orioles is strictly a gamble Triandos feels the best thing that ever happened to him was getting away from the Orioles.

"I guess my mental attitude got me down," said the 32-year-old catcher when questioned about his shrunken average. "The Orioles must have got fed up with me. I know I was fed up with them. . . .

Remember that series with the Yankees when we won five straight? Well, they let me catch a lot in that and I hit pretty well. I thought I was starting to come out of it. But then I was back on the bench. No wonder I started getting so heavy."

Astrological Forecast

For February 15
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Some may try to hold you back today. Best to act on your own initiative. Planetary aspects coincide with time to "break away." Accept lessons learned as great experience. Don't brood.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Seek harmony in partnership, marital and business. No time to pout. Be considerate. Check public relations. Take wait-and-see attitude. Cycle has been higher in past.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Today featuring romantic attitude. You want to see and believe only the best and beautiful. Reality may be something different. Plan carefully your long-range commitments.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Check details, including budget. Tendency to "splurge" today should be overcome. Be sensible, reserved, but have a good time. Don't try to pack everything into one night.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) You may find yourself "speaking out of turn." Check impulse to argue. Be calm. Let a smile win for you. Control tendency to be combative. Be considerate of feelings of others. Stress diplomacy.

Virgo (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) Illusion may rule day for you. Means you begin to "read meanings" into innocent statements, actions. Overcome suspicion. Be fair. Apply Golden Rule. Do something "extra nice."

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Friends, associates may wear "long faces." But harmonious day indicated. Means others will call upon you to be "referee." Your best bet: A sense of humor. Discord about you soon dissolves.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Many expect "the world" from you. Means you have opportunity to give your best. But don't expect immediate appreciation. Day when many are grumpy no matter what you do. Be understanding, patient.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Much in your favor, especially where business contacts are concerned. You may be called upon to stay late, or give a little extra. Do so. Tonight, be with one who needs you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Read Aries message. Discuss serious questions with trusted friend. Day is favorable. Stress independence, knowledge gained from recent experience. Consider new propositions.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Emphasis on accomplishment. Don't be swayed by flashy claims. Be thorough, sincere. Peculiar attitude of many today can prove confusing. Don't be drawn into disputes. Tonight good for entertaining.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Good hour expect today indicates chance for enlarging horizons. Means you see potential. You can put finger on right spot. You inspire confidence. Excellent for cementing new friendships.

If today is your birthday your features are of major cycle, opening up greater opportunity.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Much argument among persons and nations. Power is key word. Much bragging, deception, questionable claims indicated.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks and San Francisco Seals — the second-place teams in the Northern and Southern divisions of the Western Hockey League — are within striking distance of first place.

The Canucks edged Edmonton Flyers 3-2 Wednesday night to move within two points of Seattle Totems. San Francisco Seals bested Los Angeles Blades 6-0 to creep within a point of Portland Buckaroos.

Don Head scored two goals for Vancouver and Bob Kabel picked up the other marker. Don Cline scored for Flyers.

Al Nicholson and Nick Mickoski fired two goals each for the Seals. Singles came from Ed Panagabko and Len Haley.

In the fightfilled Los Angeles game, Orland Kurtenbach, Ed Diachuk, Frank Arnett, Ed Stankiewicz and Haley got minor and major penalties. Haley scored his goal with six stitches in his scalp after a stick-swinging incident with Arnett.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

THE NHL individual scoring race tightened up a bit as a result of Frank Mahovlich's two goals for Toronto Maple Leafs but Bobby Hull, tested for Detroit Red Wings in Toronto's 6-2 victory Wednesday night.

The big Leaf left winger remains in goal-scoring lead, pumping in his 28th and 29th markers to pull two goals ahead of Howe.

Ontario Curling

Four Rinks Undefeated

HAMILTON (CP)—Four rinks remain undefeated after two rounds in the Ontario men's curling championships.

The leaders are John Ross of Toronto, Murray Roberts of Unionville, Bob Kalpoglenny of Ottawa Glebe and Robert Mann of Hanover. Each had 2-0 records Wednesday.

The other teams in the eight-club hospiel were winless after two matches each. They are Sid Smithers of Galt, Ralph Hyslop of Glanford, Jack Nash of London and Lorne Tudhope of Parry Sound.

The Ross foursome trampled Glanford 17-5 and Galt 13-5. Un-loaville won 8-5 over Galt and 12-5 over Glanford.

Hanover's wins were 11-8 over London and 8-7 over Parry Sound. Hanover posted three in the last end to claim the victory over Tudhope's Parry Sound crew.

Ottawa broke a 7-7 tie with a two-ender in the 10th and added another in the 12th for a 10-7 win over Parry Sound. Earlier, a four-ender in the sixth did most of the work in a 9-7 victory over London.

Play in the seven-round event continues with three rounds today. The winner advances to the Dominion finals in Brandon.

The Dotted Line League

NEW YORK (CP)—Is 35 the age for a new lease on baseball life?

It was for Robin Roberts. It may be for Luis Arroyo.

Roberts, the comebacker of last year, and Arroyo, aiming for the same honors this season, made the major news as the baseball stove began heating up Wednesday.

Robin, a 244-game winner in the major leagues, sent his signed contract to Baltimore Orioles. He will get an estimated $30,000, the same as last year, for his 16th campaign.

Roberts swept to comeback honors at the age of 35 after New York Yankees released him without letting him throw a pitch in a regular game. Picked up by the Orioles in late May, he wound up with a 10-9 won-lost mark and the league's second best earned-run average.

Arroyo, a sore-shouldered flop for the Yanks last season after a superb 1961 season in the American League, showed up at the Yankee training camp in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and threw hard for five minutes—the time limit at this early stage.

My arm is in shape," Arroyo said.

Favorites Win Net Rounds

NEW YORK (AP)—Defending champion Chuck McKinley, three other U.S. Davis Cup members and a handful of favored foreigners have won their way into the second round of the national indoor tennis championships.

McKinley, No. 1 player in the U.S., led the advance with an 8-6, 6-3 triumph Wednesday night over John Sharpe of Australia, a student at Pan American College in Texas.

All of the top-seeded favorites on both the domestic and foreign lists survived their opening matches in the dimly-lighted, barn-like Seventh Regiment Armory.

They included Roy Emerson, the top-seeded foreign representative from Australia who crushed Bill Scarlett of Cedar Grove, N.J., 6-1, 6-2.

Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., trounced Francois Godefroid of Waterloo, Que., Canadian Davis Cupper, 6-4, 6-4.

A crowd of about 1,500 found the indoor matches a bit more a mystery than the players. They not only couldn't see the ball under the recessed 1000-watt lights but couldn't hear the umpires' calls.

The fund dropped from a peak of $326,000,000 in 1956 to $19,000,000 last May. Then it recovered slightly and stood at $98,975,326 at the end of 1962.

Indications are that payments to unemployment will continue through a multi-million-dollar government loan. (CP Newsmap).

Fatal Father's Day Gift Brought Horrible Tragedy On a Summer's Evening

The disaster that struck Paul Staples, Seattle newspaper man, on a beautiful summer evening could happen to anyone. This is his story of his ordeal and the people and will which helped him work his way back to a useful life.

By PAUL STAPLES
of the Seattle Times

SEATTLE (AP) — A doctor had told my wife it would be a miracle if I lived. Yet her voice was cheerful as she spoke from the shapeless world of dim light that was my hospital room.

"Hello darling," she said. "You are doing fine. I know you are."

I resented her cheerfulness. I hated the world and was filled with anger and self-pity. I believed I had been dealt an injustice by fate.

It was a mixture of emotions I soon learned I would have to suppress in the weeks ahead if I was to survive the injuries from fire that dimmed my eyes and seared my face, body, arms and legs.

"Don't try to kid me," I said bitterly. "I know what the situation is. I've heard the doctors and nurses talking. It's all bad."

"But Paul, the doctors only know what they can do," my wife, Alice, pleaded. "If we try we can make up the difference. A lot of people want to help us."

The power to reason returned to me as she spoke. My anger subsided. I thought for a few minutes and finally replied:

"Yes, Alice, I believe maybe we can make up the difference."

A balmy June evening 10 days earlier, Alice and I had returned home. A riding lawnmower was in the carport. A bow of ribbon and a greeting card were tied to the handlebar.

WIFE'S GIFT

The mower was Alice's Father's Day gift to me.

I was filled with the exhilaration of a boy with a new bicycle several evenings later when I rolled the mower from its shed and cranked the motor.

The evening air was heavy with the sweet scent of grass and flowers. It was great to be alive, I thought.

My mowing was nearly finished when I came to grief. The mower veered sharply and hit a stump.

Instantly, the mower became a lurching clawing monster. I struggled to hold my seat and at the same time cut the power and disengage the clutch.

In a surge of fright and brute strength I managed to wrench the mower from the stump. The mower leaped toward a link-chain fence. I still fought for control. Suddenly I was chilled and filled with horror. There was fire.

I tried to push myself free of the mower. There was no escaping. The fencing was over my left foot and had it trapped against the mower's frame. In a moment, I was enveloped in roaring, gasoline-fed flames.

The mower went on and turned over on newly plowed ground.

I attempted to douse the fire with dust as I scrambled clear of the fence. I clawed at my shirt and tried to rip it off. The fire filled my hands and only burned more fiercely.

HEAD FOR LAKE

I realized I was a human torch and slowly burning to death.

Turning toward Lake Washington, 35 feet away, I cried for help as I beat at the flames and staggered to the edge of the water. I plunged into the lake. I splashed around and then lifted myself from the water. Flames billowed again from under my shirt. I dropped back into the water and waited.

For the first time I realized I was seriously hurt. I looked into the twilight sky. My left eye was blurred. I was cold and breathless as I climbed from the water. I strode uphill through the loose dirt.

There were voices somewhere. I kept shouting for help. My cries were unheard. My wife, Alice, was in Seattle attending a meeting so I headed next door to the home of Mrs. John N. Wilkinson.

Mrs. Wilkinson and her sons, John and Robert, summoned a doctor and ambulance. My face, arms and body were blistered and black. Mrs. Wilkinson wrapped me in wet towels and placed blankets around me. The doctor arrived and gave me a shot of morphine.

As the ambulance reached the main highway, the attendant who had sat silently beside me this far spoke to the driver.

"Have you got your big light on top on?" he asked. "How's your siren? I think you'd better roll this one."

GIRL STABBED TO DEATH AT L'AMABLE

Bushworkers' Strike Brought To Close

Will Return to Work At Two Points Saturday

TORONTO (CP)—A strike by 1,500 Northern Ontario bushworkers appeared near an end today after union and company officials reached agreement Thursday night on a basis for settlement.

One report said the men will return to work Saturday in Kapuskasing and Longlac, after meeting to ratify the agreement, and that a contract dispute which started the strike by members of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (CLC) 31 days ago will go before an arbitration board.

Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree said after union and company officials had met almost continually for 19 hours that he regarded the agreement as a basis for ultimate settlement of the dispute and for a return to work.

In Kapuskasing, the news was seen as the first concrete step toward ending a dispute in which three strikers were shot to death and another was wounded.

MAN SURRENDERS

Police said Paul-Emile Coulombe, about 45, who was in charge of operations at a railway siding near Kapuskasing where the fatal clash between strikers and independent settlers occurred Monday, surrendered to his lawyers in Kapuskasing early today.

Coulombe was the last of 19 settlers charged with non-capital murder to turn himself in. A pickup order had been issued for him after he failed to return from Montreal where he had taken his ailing wife.

Meanwhile, police continued to round up strikers charged with rioting following the fracas in which the settlers opened fire with shotguns, rifles and pistols. Police said 240 charges have been laid and more are pending. So far, 181 strikers have surrendered and all but four are being held at Monteith prison farm, a re-education institution camp. Bail was arranged for the other four.

Proceedings in Toronto started almost immediately afternoon.

ROME (Reuters) — Giovanni Battista Ricciardi, Italy's former central treasurer, was called Thursday for misappropriating 228,000,000 lire ($366,000) in state funds. Ricciardi, 70, faced a maximum of 20 years sentenced to five years and eight months in jail. The court remitted one year of his term.

HAROLD WILSON BRITISH LABOR PARTY LEADER

Wants to Rid U.K. Of Nuclear Arms

LONDON (AP)—Harold Wilson, the youngest Labor party leader in British history and possibly the next prime minister, wants Britain to get rid of its nuclear arms and abandon the Polaris missile agreement with the United States.

In a television interview following his election to the party leadership Thursday night, the 46-year-old Wilson said nuclear arms should be confined to the United States and the Soviet Union.

As the party leader Wilson will become prime minister if Labor wins the general election which Prime Minister Macmillan must hold by October, 1964.

Recent opinion polls have given Labor a clear edge over Macmillan's Conservatives.

Wilson, a leftist intellectual and Labor's foreign affairs expert, won the party leadership over George Brown, the more conservative deputy party leader.

Wilson defeated Brown 144 to 103 in a second ballot of the Labor members of the House of Commons. Two legislators did not vote.

WITHDRAW FROM NASSAU

Burly, pipe - smoking Wilson served notice immediately that he favors negotiations for an orderly withdrawal from the Nassau agreement Macmillan and President Kennedy made to supply Polaris missiles for British submarines.

"As long as there are nuclear submarines in the world they should be held, as far as the West is concerned, by the United States and by the Soviet Union," Wilson said.

He also said that he would like to see the U.S. Polaris submarine base at Holy Loch, and other such bases, taken out of the present American - British framework and put under NATO's wing.

Wilson insisted that Labor rejects neutralism and intends to give firm support to the Western alliance.

Cuba Offers Asylum to Red Crew Hunted by Warships and Bombers

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Fidel Castro's regime offered asylum today to Communists who seized the Venezuelan freighter Anzoategui while Venezuelan destroyers and jet bombers hunted the fugitives vessel across the Caribbean.

The 3,127 - ton freighter was believed heading for the Cuban port of Santiago, on the island's southeast coast.

Three Venezuelan destroyers were reported on the track of the captive ship. But if its position was known, it was kept secret by Venezuelan authorities. The Castro government, in a statement broadcast by Havana radio, said if the ship arrived at any Cuban port, "the revolutionary government will grant asylum to Venezuelan revolutionaries and members of the crew which so desire it."

The broadcast said the ship and the rest of the crew would be turned over to the UN Secretary General U Thant.

Reliable sources said U.S. Navy planes assisted the freighter Thursday midway between the U.S. and the Dominican Republic. Shipping circles in Caracas said the motorship Superfreighter started sighting the Anzoategui in about the same position.

Cuba would have placed the freighter about 450 miles southeast of Santiago, 40 miles from the U.S. base at Guantanamo.

Some observers believed the hijackers had not decided whether to try for the Cuban port or for Mexico. The freighter has a top speed of 15 knots, considerably less than the pursuing destroyers. But it had a

SOCRED LEADERS SPLIT ON ISSUE OF A-ARMS

Thompson Gives Views to Press

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Thompson has dissociated his national party from the "No, no, no" views of his Quebec deputy, Real Caouette, on the acquisition of nuclear arms for Canada's defences.

Mr. Thompson said at a press conference here Thursday that his party's nuclear arms policy statement for the April 8 general election does not rule out nuclear warheads for Canadian forces in NATO or at home.

He is not advocating their acquisition now, but says that if a Social Credit government is elected it will follow the advice of what he described as a non-partisan parliamentary defence committee, after it has examined secret security information and the international situation

Mr. Caouette, who did not attend the party's strategy committee meetings here this week —he is holidaying in Jamaica before hitting the election campaign hall — apparently forthright opposition to nuclear arms a week ago.

Asked at a Montreal press conference for a yes or no statement on whether Social Credit would equip Canadian forces with nuclear weapons, Mr. Caouette said:

"I'll give you a straight answer. It's no. At home, no;

Martin Outlines Policies of Liberal Party

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Paul Martin, veteran Liberal member of Parliament for Essex East, called Thursday night for voters to give the Liberals a workable majority in parliament.

At no time has Canada been in a position to be more efficient, he said. "It is necessary to restore good relationships with the United States and to honor Canada's commitments to NATO."

Mr. Martin said a Liberal government would do four things:

It would get "things moving and start a vigorous national growth; it would make this economic growth work for the benefit of all Canadians; it would make Canada with a national identity; and it would have a policy of influence to the benefit throughout the world."

Student McNulty, 44, a St. Catharines school teacher, was nominated to run in the April 8 federal election for Lincoln constituency, which he won from the Progressive Conservatives last June.

MURDER PROBE—OPP detective sergeant Lloyd Lyle arrives from Belleville district headquarters to start investigation into fatal L'Amable stabbing. Scene of the death of 18-year-old Shannon Frost was the home of Mrs. Edward LaCroix, where police officer remained on guard through the night after the LaCroix family left to stay with girl's parents at Actinolite.

Allegations Bring Sharp Retort From Inquiry Head

OTTAWA (CP)—Private detectives "framed" the Seafarers' International Union of Canada by beating up employees of Upper Lakes Shipping Limited and framing it on the union, SIU lawyer Joseph Nuss asserted Thursday.

The 28-year-old lawyer, who said he had no facts to back the allegation, was seeking to find out where and when the Upper Lakes Shipping line of Toronto used private detectives in its disputes with the SIU since 1961.

"I am ashamed of you," snapped Mr. Justice T. G. Norris when Mr. Nuss suggested the frame-up before the federal inquiry into labor strife on the Great Lakes.

"You have not one title of evidence. You have no right as counsel here, as responsible counsel, without a bit of evidence, to get up and make that suggestion."

Mr. Nuss contended that the SIU had been blamed by interfere for a pattern of labor violence on the Great Lakes in recent months.

Nuclear Policies of Four Parties as Enunciated

OTTAWA (CP)—Nuclear policies of Canada's four major political parties as enunciated by party leaders in recent statements:

Progressive Conservative — Prime Minister Diefenbaker . . . With regard to bringing nuclear warheads on Canadian soil we will continue to negotiate with the United States so that they will be readily available in case a need. This means that our security will be assured while at the same time we will be doing nothing to increase the nuclear family." (House of Commons, Feb. 5, 1963)

On the question of nuclear weapons for Canadian forces in NATO, the Anglo - American Nassau agreement produced "a completely new concept of defence" which required that Canada's role be reviewed at the NATO ministerial meeting in Ottawa May 22-24. "Any earlier decision would be premature." (Toronto speech, Feb. 11, 1963).

CIVIL SERVANTS ALLOWED TO ENTER POLITICS

Bill Introduced In Legislature

TORONTO (CP)—With a federal election April 8 and a provincial election expected this year, the Ontario government has released its 36,000 civil servants from a 66-year-old law stopping them from political activity.

Provincial Treasurer James N. Allan Thursday introduced a bill in the legislature allowing all civil servants except deputy ministers and high officials to hold elected office in municipal, provincial and federal governments.

The bill also provides for an eight-man coalition of government officials and civil service staff to negotiate with them working conditions and particular wage cases. It would not deal with over-all salary negotiations.

Also set up would be a civil service arbitration board that would deal with deadlocks in the council.

The government bill does not apply to the 15,000 to 20,000 employees connected with crown agencies.

The government move follows tacit approval given last year of the candidacy of civil servants in the federal election. If the bill does not receive royal assent, the time to be effective for the April 8 federal election, civil servants still would be allowed a chain of incidental leaving to her death occurred in mid-afternoon. Mr. LaCroix, a mill-worker with Bakelite Products Uranium, was at work and the three young LaCroix children were sleeping at the time.

The first intimation of tragedy came shortly before 3.30 p.m. when provincial police at Bancroft were called to the LaCroix home, where they found the girl dead.

Crown Attorney John Pringle said an autopsy in Belleville early morning revealed the girl had suffered multiple stab wounds.

TAKEN TO BANCROFT

Coombe shortly afterwards was taken to the OPP detachment offices at Bancroft, while senior staff officers were called to the scene from Belleville district headquarters.

Sergeant Lyle and district inspector A. McDougall took over investigations here while assisting the area staff arrived at the Criminal Investigation Branch inspector.

The LaCroixs immediately turned the whole house over to the investigators — and drove to the Frost family residence at Actinolite where they stayed the night.

The LaCroix's immediately 4 a.m. Friday while the family slept upstairs over the grocery store run by Mr. Frost.

He was home on details surrounding the sudden death of his young sister-in-law.

Lots of Liquor At Dinner Member Charges

TORONTO (CP)—J. B. Trotter, Liberal member of the legislature for Toronto Parkdale, accused the provincial government Thursday of lavishing gallons of liquor on 2,000 women at an Ontario trade crusade dinner in the Royal York Hotel Tuesday night.

Mr. Trotter made the comment during debate on the government's $40,000 fund of $40,000, contained in the estimates of the provincial secretary.

He said Premier Robarts and Treasurer Allan Grossman "basically "threw money around like drunken sailors" for the 2,000 and said three bars had been set up.

Ross Whicher (L—Bruce) said the appropriation for the liberal were not hospitality funds but could be classed as political funds. He said he had read that $17,000 had been spent on drinks for 25 per person.

Mr. Macaulay said Mr. Whicher's statement was erroneous and added that the bill for the dinner has not been received.

Leonard Coombs, Toronto, Facing Murder Charge

Accused Came to Scene Of Crime on Thursday

L'AMABLE (Staff)—Violent death in the afternoon came to this Hastings County hamlet, five miles south of Bancroft, yesterday.

An 18-year-old girl was stabbed in the home of her brother-in-law, where she arrived a week ago from Toronto, and today police have charged a 22-year-old Toronto man with her death.

Dead is Sharon Margaret Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Frost of Actinolite. Charged with capital murder is Leonard Michael Joseph Coombs. He appeared for remand in Belleville at 3 p.m. today.

Police say Coombs arrived at the house about 2.30 p.m. He was in custody less than an hour later.

Only sketchy details were made known by police on circumstances leading to his arrest.

OPP Detective Sergeant Lloyd Lyle said Coombe and Miss Frost knew each other in Toronto.

"He had been keeping company with her," he told reporters, but said the pair were not engaged.

Miss Frost arrived at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward LaCroix, here, February 8. To that time she had been boarding with a couple in Toronto where she worked in the office of a chemical company.

The chain of incidents leading to her death occurred in mid-afternoon. Mr. LaCroix, a mill-worker with Bakelite Products Uranium, was at work and the three young LaCroix children were sleeping at the time.

The first intimation of tragedy came shortly before 3.30 p.m. when provincial police at Bancroft were called to the LaCroix home, where they found the girl dead.

Crown Attorney John Pringle said an autopsy in Belleville early morning revealed the girl had suffered multiple stab wounds.

TAKEN TO BANCROFT

Coombe shortly afterwards was taken to the OPP detachment offices at Bancroft, while senior staff officers were called to the scene from Belleville district headquarters.

Sergeant Lyle and district inspector A. McDougall took over investigations here while assisting the area staff arrived at the Criminal Investigation Branch inspector.

The LaCroixs immediately turned the whole house over to the investigators — and drove to the Frost family residence at Actinolite where they stayed the night.

The LaCroix's immediately 4 a.m. Friday while the family slept upstairs over the grocery store run by Mr. Frost.

He was home on details surrounding the sudden death of his young sister-in-law.

He made one emotional gre-him in Bancroft.

Dirt on Ice May Be Used for Early Breakup

QUEBEC (CP)—An earlier spring breakup may be possible by the use of dirt on ice and snow, an Ottawa scientist says.

The Eastern Snow Conference was told Thursday by G. F. Williams of the National Research Council of the results of NRC studies of the effect of the dirt on ice and snow.

Black or dark substances absorb more of the sun's radiant heat than white substances, which merely reflect it, he said.

The result is that dirty snow absorbs the sun's heat and melts itself. If there is enough dirt or dust or dark substances mixed with snow and ice on bodies of water, and if there is enough sunlight, the bodies of water will have an earlier spring breakup.

The NRC is working on the technical possibilities of dirtying snow in cases where it might be desirable to get rid of it faster, he said. The cost would probably be high and there were numerous practical difficulties, but faster melting would be an aid to early navigation.

Several years ago, Russian experiments on fine coal spreading powdered charcoal and cinders over large tracts of snow to see if this was the technique worked in melting snow.

Finnish experiments in scarification: "Oh my God! It was terrible."

At L'Amable, the slim ranch-style bungalow of the dairy brick which was the scene of the tragedy, was in the care of a provincial police constable. Parked in the driveway a car, which police said was Coombs', remained parked through the night, as officers questioned

Dutch Liner on Festive Voyage Hits Wreck in Estuary of Weser

BREMEN, West Germany (Reuters)—A festive special trip aboard the Dutch luxury liner Maasdam ended today when some 500 passengers and crew members took to lifeboats after the 15,024-ton liner hit a wreck in the Weser estuary on West Germany's North Sea coast.

Captain A. H. Lap of the Holland America Line, owners of the 11-year-old vessel, said there were no casualties.

The passengers — including government and foreign dignitaries, Dutch reporters and the Royal Dutch Navy band—were taken from the Maasdam's lifeboats aboard the Bremerhaven pilot-boat Totihilt Hagen to go to Bremerhaven.

The voyage was to celebrate a new ocean service between West Germany and New York.

The Holland America line spokesman said the Maasdam left New York Feb. 4, calling at Southampton, Le Havre and Rotterdam en route to Bremerhaven.

A marine official in Bremerhaven, a busy port of the Weser estuary, said the Maasdam hit the submerged wreckage of the 6,000-ton British ship Harborough, which sank in March, 1959 after hitting the wreckage of another ship, the Soviet freighter Kholmogry.

The Holland America spokesman in Rotterdam said the Maasdam's captain, A. H. Lap-Hansen, was in touch with a skeleton crew and said the ship was in tow on the way to Bremerhaven.

This reporter was aboard the Maasdam having breakfast in the dining room when, suddenly, there the collision occurred with a crash and a grinding noise.

It was light and there was oil floating on the water. An hour later the ship developed a heavy list and members of the crew, wearing lifebelts, lowered lifeboats. The passengers and some crew members left the ship in an orderly fashion and there was no panic.

Four Would-Be Assassins Arrested

Army Officers Plotted to Kill de Gaulle

PARIS (AP) — French officials announced today that a group of army officers has been arrested for plotting to kill President Charles de Gaulle. It was the fifth assassination plot against the 72-year-old chief of state reported in 18 months.

Unofficial sources said four high-ranking officers were arrested Thursday and a massive search was under way for a fifth officer.

The defence ministry refused to make public details of the plot because of the hunt for the fifth officer.

A hint that something was afoot came Thursday when, prior to a scheduled visit by de Gaulle to the French military school, swarms of armed gendarmes scourd the buildings and rooftops. Nobody would reveal the reason for what appeared to be extraordinary security precautions.

De Gaulle appeared at the school this morning on schedule.

The plot was announced as the trial continued for nine men

Bore 9 Babies to Blackmailer, All Still-Born Without Aid

ILKESTON, England (Reuters) — Former schoolteacher Doris Wilson, 37, has told a court in this quiet Derbyshire town about nine still-born babies she had over a 17-year period by a local man who was allegedly blackmailing her.

One by one she buried the babies in the garden of her home after giving birth to them in her bedroom with no one to assist her, Miss Wilson told the court.

She testified last week against 56-year-old industrial security officer Ellis Bednall, charged with trying, between January, 1961, and December, 1962, to conceal the birth of a child born to Miss Wilson and on eight further charges of conspiring with her to conceal the birth of eight other babies.

Prosecutor Edmond MacDermott said Bednal, who pleaded not guilty, was regularly paid blackmail money by Miss Wilson and in the end "bled her white." The hearing was adjourned until Feb. 20.

Miss Wilson herself ap-charged with trying to assassinate the French president with a burst of machine - gun bullets last August. Most of those defendants are army officers or former members of the military.

De Gaulle has been considered a traitor by a section of the French officer class since he agreed to independence for Algeria. He angered the colonial in bringing de Gaulle to power because it believed he would defend French Algeria.

One defendant at the current assassination trial, a veteran of Dien Bien Phu, said he went to ultra-right underground headed by Georges Bidault, a former premier and foreign minister who is a fugitive outside France.

Cheese Production Must Be Hiked to Hold Markets

Canadian Cheddar cheese production should be increased by from the 115 million pounds manufactured in 1962, to at least 140 million pounds during the coming season stated Mr. R. C. Arnold, Chairman of the Ontario Cheese Producers' recently.

Last year, when we needed 30 million pounds more cheese to fill our export orders, production in Canada decreased two-and-one-half million pounds, as domestic consumption increased about 13 million pounds and stocks were also depleted by 13 million pounds. Canadian cheese consumption is most likely to increase each year and additional amounts will be required annually. Canada will require 40 per cent more cheese for the domestic market or nearly 200 million pounds by 1970, according to estimates made by Mr. J. M. Herlwick, President of the National Dairy Council, in an address before The Saskatchewan Dairy Association, Regina, February 14th.

There is a potential for considerably greater exports to the United Kingdom of our "mild ous Cheddar Cheese" Mr. A. L. Rowson, London, England, speaking at the Annual Meeting of the Ontario Cheese Producers, stated that larger quantities were needed for the expanded sales of Canadian cheese on the British market.

The Ontario Cheese Producers' were only able to purchase 17 million pounds of cheese produced in 1962, for export and this was about half enough to meet the requirements of the British importers. This is a considerable decrease in exports from the previous year. Sometime, the cheese producers have been guaranteeing the quality, giving a continuity of supply on the British Market and have sold it at a realistic price which has created confidence with the English cheese trade for our product. Unless Canadian cheese production can be increased considerably, there is a possibility we may lose this lucrative export market.

The suggested increase in the support price of skim-milk powder to 12 cents per pound, as recently discussed, should create confusion in the dairy industry. Action of this kind could further reduce cheese production and increase butter.

The larger home consumption, the greater demand on the export market and the depleted stocks show that cheese production must be increased in Canada immediately or we may be forced to import cheddar cheese from other countries. Considering Canada's butter surplus, imports of cheese would seem to be a ridiculous situation stated the President of The Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board.

Horticultural Soc. Seeks to Beautify Home

"A Horticultural Society has as its primary aim the beautification of home and community." The Belleville society, revived recently after an absence of some years, shares this aim, and is this year embarking upon a program to fulfil it, at least partially.

The past two years saw much done in organizational procedure and this current year is the occasion of an increased membership drive.

It is the firm belief of the society that Belleville is a city which lends itself to beautifying; that needs beautifying; that deserves beautifying.

Citizens are encouraged to lend support to the society by joining, by encouragement, and by attendance at meetings, which are designed and varied to meet the needs of the season and the community.

"Landscaping the Home," the topic of this month's meeting, should prove timely and worthwhile.

As an added attraction suitable draws are held at the meetings, besides the premium for membership. Seasonally, too, exchanges of plants are encouraged and certainly enjoyed.

For a society with worthwhile aims, and their realization, for a more beautiful Belleville, the local Horticultural Society needs and is calling you.

Earl Dafoe New Treasurer Of Fair Board

The Belleville Fair Board accepted the application of Earl Dafoe of Foxboro, for the post of treasurer with the Belleville Agricultural Society at their regular meeting in the County Building yesterday evening. Mr. Dafoe's application was one of two received.

A number of new classes and shows will be added to the Belleville Fair this year. They are: The Quinte Livestock Judging Competition, held each spring for members from the counties of Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington to be held at the Belleville Fair.

A special commercial features to be added to the fair exhibit. Classes in this exhibit will probably include first cut hay with an 8% or less cut content, alfalfa, legume, or grass, and a grass and legume mixture. There can be as many as a second cut hay section.

The exhibit will be organized by Don Harry, Bob Malory, Bob Burkett and Griffith Gatchouse.

The board heard a proposal by the Hastings County Holstein-Friesian Association requesting a closed show open only to Hastings county exhibitors. The board suggested that a closed Black and White Show could be held by the association on Tuesday, towards which the board would donate $200 prize money, and that an open show be held on the Thursday.

A proposal for two new classes under the cattle section for milk breeds—for cows five years and over, dry and wet—was approved, as was the suggestion that the box stalls in the "L" barn be replaced by standing stalls to help provide more accommodation.

A motion to have the fence and gates repaired as expenditures was accepted.

Western Alumni Hear President Of University

"The universities, even those who prefer to remain private, have a responsibility to expand and extend their services," Dr. J. E. Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, told a large group of Western alumni at a dinner meeting in the Hotel Quinte last evening.

Dr. Hall explained this responsibility as one from the fact that the university population in Canada is expected to triple within the next 40 years.

The meeting's purpose was to establish a local committee which has funds amongst alumni for Western's proposed $7,000,000 expansion program.

University of Western Ontario Alumni president Fred Norwood and alumni council member Ward Cornell outlined the plans for the expansion and the part which alumni are expected to play in realizing its achievements.

Fred Deacon was elected chairman of a Quinte district committee. A vote was formed following the addresses. Dr. Stephen Morphy is vice-chairman and Mrs. Jewell Hilsey and Mrs. Eloise Burr are also on the committee.

Harold Varty, Ex-Warden of County, Elected

Harold Varty, ex-Warden of Hastings county and former reeve of Tyendinaga township for many years, has been named 1963 president of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities.

Mr. Varty is the second county municipal official to hold the presidency of the Ontario body. The late Eric S. Denyes, former county clerk treasurer, held the office several years ago.

Board Allows Part of Appeal Of J. M. Parrott

The Ontario Municipal Board today at city hall allowed partly the appeal of John M. Parrott against the decision of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board refusing further division of certain lots in the Stanley Park area.

In announcing their decision on the hearing held Wednesday, Municipal Board members allowed the appeal in connection with two corner lots and denied the appeal on four others.

No direction was given in connection with the planning board feeling that there should be a new subdivision plan for the Stanley Park area, although Board members said that in view of the number of changes granted it would be preferable if a new plan had been registered.

Canadians Urged to Cut Down on Import Buying

TRENTON — Housewives all over Ontario are being told that they're the world's largest importers.

Doing the telling . . . through newspaper ads, radio, TV and at get-together meetings in Ontario cities . . . is the Department of Economics and Development.

Chief of manufacturing arrangements with the department, Lorne S. Campbell, told Local Kiwanians last night that Canada imports more goods per capital than any other country in the world. Per capita, Canada imports $335 in foreign goods annually, Britain imports $75 worth of goods, per capita, per year. The United States, $33.

Ten thousand dollars worth of imported goods would give one Canadian a job, says Mr. Campbell. But, $60,000 Ontario boys and girls finish school and start looking for jobs. If Canada can cut down on its imports to the extent of $600 million dollars, there'd be jobs for them.

"We've got to do something about it," said Mr. Campbell.

What's the Ontario government doing about it?

"Plenty," said Mr. Campbell. Canadians are being urged to cut down on their import buying by $600 million dollars next year. Big manufacturing firms are being urged to place subcontracts with smaller, local firms. And the small firms are being given an opportunity to "show their wares" at Manufacturing and Opportunity Shows in such centres as Toronto, London and Cornwall. (There's an M. & O. Show in Cornwall at the end of May.)

MAN WITH MISSION

Mr. Campbell, who has worked for the Ontario government for the past five years, describes his boss, the Hon. Robert W. Macaulay, as a "ball of fire." "Mr. Macaulay", says Mr. Campbell, "sleeps three hours only out of twenty-four. And he's the anyone who spends more than three hours a night in bed is a sluggard."

Mr. Macaulay is a man with a mission. He's bent on selling Canada to Canadians. "Charity begins at home," is the slogan in the economics and development department, and the present campaign is aimed at reaching the Ontario housewife who, after all, controls the buying of foodstuffs, clothing and many of the things brought in to C- home by friend husband.

Last night, Mr. Campbell told the Kiwanians of the success of the M. & O. Shows. One small manufacturer from Colborne, who'd sold at the Toronto show and sold a million dollars worth of business to large manufacturers, who up until the show had been unaware of his existence.

"We're all guilty, from the smallest to the largest, of going out of Canada to buy," said Mr. Campbell. "We should maintain a day-to-day vigilance on our import buying and buy Canadian whenever and where ever possible."

Air Transport Band Delights Large Audience

TRENTON — Over six hundred servicemen, their dependents and invited guests were thrilled to the music of the Air Transport Command Band Wednesday night in the Station Recreation Hall.

The fifty-four piece band, under the direction of Flying Officer E. J. Robbins of Belleville, held the audience in rapt attention throughout the nearly two-hour program. Thunderous applause greeted the conclusion of each number.

The band joined with the RCAF Trenton Pipe Band which with Band Officer Flight Lieutenant Jack Scholes and Pipe-major LAC Sandy Keith, in their first official appearance regaled the crowd with Scottish airs.

The Rockcliffe Gaelic Dancers whirled through a program of Highland dances, and their periodic war whoops brought shouts of delight from the many children in the audience.

Student Cuts Arm, Plunged Through Glass

TRENTON—Pat Rogerson, 12, a student at St. Peter's School, sustained a four inch cut to his right arm when he plunged it through a window at the rear of the market square while playing with other children during his lunch hour yesterday. Pat went to the police station where he received treatment.

CHILD SHAKEN UP

Six-year-old Keitha Kenny, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kenny of Dufferin Ave., escaped with nothing more than a shaking up when she ran into the side of a slow moving car on Wrigge Street around noon, yesterday. Police say that the child ran from behind a parked car and against the vehicle making a turn onto Wrigge off Dufferin Ave.

SURVEY TWO ROUTES

Consulting engineer George Totten and a crew of workmen are surveying the two suggested routes for Murray Township's proposed development road. One route would follow the old Second Dug Hill Road, from Highway 401. The other would cut off Highway 33 at Dead Creek and proceed to Highway Two to 401. Aim of the survey is to establish costs for both routes, for a decision as to which route the 300 foot development road should take. The Ontario Department of Highways, which is footing the bill.

AT CONFERENCE

Murray Township clerk, Angus Gunter, returned yesterday from a two-day conference of the Ontario Rural Municipal Association held in Toronto. Mr. Gunter says nothing of interest, peculiar to this area was discussed but that several administrative problems, common to rural municipalities across the province came up at the meeting.

Trade in Stolen Furs Causing Much Concern

MONTREAL (CP) — A flourishing trade in stolen furs is causing concern for Canada's $100,000,000 fur industry, and police say they are powerless to stop it.

The concern has become more evident in recent weeks, as more than $220,000 worth of furs have been stolen from Montreal furriers since Jan. 1.

In the 11th and 12th robberies this year, thieves got away Wednesday night with a total of $17,000 worth of coats, jackets and stoles.

Each year, in Montreal alone, thieves make off with $1,000,000 in stolen furs. Police say most of these furs will never be recovered. They will be cut, relined, and reassembled and sold to fur buyers across the country.

In many cases police suspect that someone in the industry helps thieves to get rid of the stolen furs.

The problem has become so acute that insurance rates for furs have risen 300 per cent in less than five years. Some major underwriters have tacked on clauses in their contracts, making the client liable for losses up to the first $25,000.

Some help for the industry may be on the way. The Fur Trade Association of Canada, and the Master Furriers Association say they have developed an indelible ink for fool-proof marking of furs.

The two groups have already started a campaign to convince furriers to use the ink. There has been no reaction so far.

$10,000 Fire At Jim's Place On Highway 2

A Friday fish fry turned into a $10,000 fire at Jim's Place on No. 2 Highway east of Belleville at Point Anne Lane about 10:00 a.m. this morning.

The fire started around some deep fry equipment in the snack bar which forms a part of the motel and dining establishment of R. James McCluskie. Mr. McCluskie reports the he had turned on the deep fryers about 30 minutes before the fire is believed to have started.

Two units from the Belleville Fire Department answered the alarm at 10.03 a.m. Fire Chief Gerald Vance estimated the damage at about $10,000, the entire interior of the snack bar building having been damaged by fire and smoke and considerable equipment damage was sustained.

The main building, which houses the central dining room, was not damaged and none of the small cabins and other out buildings were touched by the fire, either. Business will continue as usual in the dining room and motel units.

Recreation Highlights

B. Jayvah, Assistant Director

"Small Boy Bowls Real Big Game" — That was the headline in the Canadian Five-Pin Bowling News when Richard Brogan, bowling in the U.A.W. junior 5-pin league at Golden Mile Lane rolled 431 in his third game. Richard had ten strikes in a row and was robbed of his 11th when he put the ball in the pocket and a stubborn corner pin stood up.

What makes this such a feat is that Richard was only 12-years-old and to date, it was the highest single game bowled at the Golden Mile Lanes.

At a recent meeting of the Recreation Directors of the East Central Ontario Zone, it was decided to accept Trenton's invitation to host a junior bowling tournament.

This tournament would be played in Trenton on Saturday, April 6, 1963 with communities in the East Central Ontario zone invited to send junior and bantam teams. These would be made up with five boys and five girls on each team. The junior and bantam boys will play off, followed by the junior and bantam girls.

The tournament will be under the direction of the directors of the East Central Ontario Zone, and will be run under the rules of the Canadian junior bowling council.

The Canadian junior bowling was first organized in 1957 and since then the total mixed membership of boys and girls has increased tremendously. In fact, the 1961-62 membership registrations were 18,000 boys and girls, under the age of 18.

Junior Bowling, and the interest in it is increasing rapidly, all across Canada. There are junior bowling leagues in ten of Canada's provinces which actually speaks for itself.

With the vast improvements that have been made in today's bowling lanes, and with the interest steadily increasing on the part of the adults, it seems only natural the "small of it" should be given a chance to compete and try their hand at a few "strikes", "spares" and even "foulz".

Bowling lane proprietors in the area will soon be receiving information re: the upcoming tournament and it is hoped that each community in the East Central Ontario zone will send at least one team for each of the bantam and junior divisions.

Aside from the regular individual trophies, a new trophy will be awarded for the Bantam Division, one for the Junior Division and the existing Directors' trophy will be awarded to the community with the highest combined Junior and Bantam score.

It is hoped that tournaments such as these will interest the young people in the community. Even more is this great Canadian sport.

As one member of the Canadian junior bowling council once said "Learn the game of a lifetime, for a lifetime of fun."

Fair Attractions Are Approved By Board

The Ontario half-mile dirt track motorcycle championships will again be held at the Belleville Fair in 1963. This event will be the opening night's entertainment, announced "Sensator" Harry Rollins at a meeting of the Belleville Fair attractions committee yesterday evening.

A tentative schedule for the grandstand features provide for a special children's show on the Monday afternoon with the RCMP Musical Ride and Pony Show and the motorcycle races that evening. Tuesday's program will have the RCMP in the afternoon plus a horse show while that evening the Mounties will perform again together with a band presentation and a special horse show.

Wednesday evening a series of buggy races together with the musical ride are scheduled. In the afternoon the ride and a horse show are anticipated. The Thursday evening will feature harness racing with pari-mutuel betting privileges. A horse show is planned for the afternoon.

Additional grandstand attractions may be added pending the result of research which the committee will be making into available professional entertainment at the Ontario Fairs convention held in Toronto next week.

Grills Spoke For Hamilton At Farm Show

Lee E. Grills, M.P., Hastings South, representing the Federal Government and the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Alvin Hamilton, recently addressed more than 300 at the 17th annual Canada Farm and Industrial Equipment show's official opening luncheon in Toronto.

The luncheon assembly consisted of top company executives, well known in Canada to industrial people, as well as a large number of presidents and executive officers of U.S. manufacturing firms.

$10,000 Fire At Jim's Place On Highway 2

A Friday fish fry turned into a $10,000 fire at Jim's Place on No. 2 Highway east of Belleville at Point Anne Lane about 10:00 a.m. this morning.

The fire started around some deep fry equipment in the snack bar which forms a part of the motel and dining establishment of R. James McCluskie. Mr. McCluskie reports the he had turned on the deep fryers about 30 minutes before the fire is believed to have started.

Two units from the Belleville Fire Department answered the alarm at 10.03 a.m. Fire Chief Gerald Vance estimated the damage at about $10,000, the entire interior of the snack bar building having been damaged by fire and smoke and considerable equipment damage was sustained.

Teachers Donate $35,000 to Founding Fund

The public school teachers of Peterborough have contributed $35,000 in cash and pledges to the Trent University Founding Fund, it was announced today by E. C. Braund, campaign general chairman. In making the announcement Mr. Braund said that President T. H. B. Symons was particularly gratified at the initiative shown by this group and by its generosity.

"This very generous and thoughtful contribution is much appreciated by everyone associated with Trent University—both as a substantial donation which will help the Founding Fund to achieve its objective and because of the understanding interest and support for the University on the part of the public school teachers whom it indicates," said Dean Symons. "I look forward to the continuing development of a friendly and creative association between the university and the public school teachers in its community."

The Trent University Founding Fund is moving into the active phase of solicitation, which should be completed by the end of March 1963. The Fund seeks $1,520,000 in public support, to help finance the first five years of operation.

Conservatives Name Candidate Last of Month

South Hastings Progressive Conservatives are not expected to hold their nominating convention to choose a candidate for the April 8th election until the last week in February, it was learned today.

In the meantime the riding organization is holding local meetings pending the official start of the campaign.

New Sidewalk Will Be Built On 50-50 Basis

The city of Belleville will pay 50 per cent of the cost of a new sidewalk to be built on the north side of Victoria between Herchimer Ave. and Farley Ave.

Approval for the walk to be built under section 8 of the Local Improvements Act was granted today by the Ontario Municipal Board following a hearing at city hall.

Several weeks ago council approved of the walk on the 50 per cent cost basis but at least two property owners in the area voiced objection and the municipal board hearing was called.

No official objection to the walk was voiced today at the hearing and construction of the walk was approved.

Under provisions of section 8 of the Local Improvements Act, construction of walks may be initiated by the municipality and when all of the walk is mainly by residents outside the area the municipality may pay 50 per cent of the cost.

The 1,800-foot walk on Victoria Ave. between Herchimer and Farley would be used mainly by public and high school students.

Construction of walk is expected to go ahead in the spring with public tenders to be called for the work.

Palace, Tower Workers Want Pay Increases

LONDON (Reuters) — A spot of labor trouble cropped up at two of Britain's most famous institutions — Buckingham Palace and the Tower of London.

There was no talk of a strike at either of the two famed tourist attractions here. However, the ancient tower's 38 picturesque-looking Yeomen warders decided tentatively on a "work-to-rule" campaign to back their bid for a modest pay increase.

The Buckingham Palace case was before a special appeals tribunal hearing a demand for unemployment compensation for a royal groom who was fired for alleged neglect of duty. The hearing listened to union charges of "misuse of manpower" and "over-regimentation" in the royal mews attached to the palace, and to Elizabeth's London residence, as union and palace officials clashed.

The tower Beefeaters, who perform a variety of duties ranging from guarding the palace to acting as tourist guides, met in solemn conclave. They decided that if they had been so threatened of their claim "or tangible evidence of progress toward one" by Feb. 23, they would cease to perform duties other than those done for the ministry of public buildings and works, their regular boss.

However the Yeomen added stoutly, this would not apply to functions involving members of the Royal Family.

The Beefeaters asked for the pay increase by Feb. 23, and immediate decision was announced from either meeting.

DISCUSS CONGO AID

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula is to arrive here Feb. 25 for talks with the Belgian government on Belgo-Congolese relations and technical aid, the Belgian foreign ministry announced today.

Far-Reaching Legislation Passed in Several Houses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's winter - spring provincial legislative season swung into high gear Thursday with the addition of two more legislatures to the four already sitting.

Among topics discussed was an inquiry into the question of legalizing chiropractic in Quebec.

Legislatures opened Thursday were Alberta and Saskatchewan, joining those in British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick.

In Quebec, a proposal by Liberal Premier Lesage that a Superior Court judge be appointed to study the legalizing of chiropractic was accepted by a meeting of the province's doctors and chiropractors during legislature's private bills committee.

NEEDS REPORT

Mr. Lesage said a favorable report from the judge, not yet named, would enable the government to take responsibility for a bill giving legal status to the College of Chiropractors, in existence since 1954 under the Companies' Act.

Chiropractors have sought legal status in Quebec 21 times in the last 30 years but have been opposed by the doctors. There are about 300 chiropractors in the province.

Victoria—In British Columbia, the legislature was adjourned when it was announced that Richard Orr Newton, Social Credit member for Columbia, had died at his home.

Edmonton — In Alberta, the speech from the throne read by Lieutenant-Governor Percy Page said a medical care program will be implemented by the Social Credit government in co-operation with the medical profession to bring costs within reach of those with "limited financial resources." The plan would try to maintain a good doctor-patient relationship.

Regina—In Saskatchewan, the speech from the throne said the CCF government will introduce legislation setting up a public administration foundation to do research work in methods of government operation. It would also give private industry a greater role in planning government programs.

Fredericton — In New Brunswick, the leader of the Progressive Conservative Opposition, C. B. Sherwood, launched the throne speech debate with a charge that the speech, delivered Tuesday, was a "subtle attempt to plunge the legislature into the federal election campaign."

The legislature is expected to be adjourned for part of the campaign for the federal election.

Fourth Quinte Science Fair Being Staged at BCI Gym

The girls' gym at Belleville Collegiate has never exhibited such agility as seen today — save that time the stress is more on nimbleness of mind than physique.

For one day only the gym has been given over to presentation of an important high school show — The Quinte Science Fair, now in its fourth year.

The fair is designed to give the student an opportunity to explore every aspect of matters scientific, and the exhibits prepared by them show a wealth of thoughtful individuality.

This was noted by judges as they strolled between the displays this morning selecting a winner who will exhibit at the Ontario Science Fair later in the year.

Displays with moving parts—ranging from a canny "puffimeter" to measure the residue left in lungs by tobacco smoke, to chickens hatched and hatching—stood with stationary displays of everything from a mineralogy selection to a painstaking demonstration of the human heart system.

58 DISPLAYS

There are at total of 58 displays from the city's three high schools, and as far away as Campbellford secondary school.

All the young exhibitors have one thing in common besides competition for the top prize—a burning interest in scientific research.

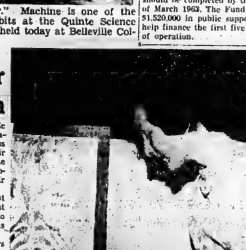
Take Bernadette McEvoy and Brenda Baker of Campbellford, as a typical example.

Their exhibit seeks to illustrate the necessity of proteins in the human diet. They are striving to arrive at a graphic example and have put aside traditional feminine squeamishness and raised white mice. Two pair of mice are being fed separate diets— protein and non - protein—and the progress of their experiment is on view.

There is also a human interest touch to the exhibit, or at least one that will be of inicrest to other mice. One of the pairs has bred a litter.

But not all the exhibitors work in groups. A good example of work done alone can be seen in the display prepared by Lorna Godin of BCI.

Lorna has prepared a full scale backdrop on the human heart and uses a bisected heart (purchased in a butcher shop) as the centre point of the display.



She also takes a serious interest in such work. She hopes to be a nurse some day.

Meantime, the judges throughout the day continued to stroll among exhibits, where a touch of social comment is added by such exhibits as a warning (complete with X-rays) against cigarette-smoking and lung cancer, the significance of fallout shelters, and the "Life Cycles of the Common Tapeworm of Dogs."

But whatever their personal attractions, the exhibits will be strictly judged on merit — and the winner known tonight.

ASSIST WITH CASH

Since 1940 Lutherans in the United States have contributed nearly $70,000,000 to their churches' worldwide assistance program.

Lorna Godin, B.C.I. student, hopes to become a nurse but here she is showing interest in a make-believe volcano shown by a budding volcanist. Lorna has an exhibit at the Science Fair showing the operation of the human heart.

Nasser in Savior's Role

Everybody remembers the picnic at which the tablecloth was spread over an ant-hill—but everybody forgets the dozens of times when a more happy choice of a location was made.

This suggests that one of the reasons why our troubles loom so large is we forget the occasions when possible woes never materialized.

This applies to affairs of states as well as those of households picnic-bent.

It is only occasionally, when some among the mighty manage to get themselves killed in spectacular fashion, that we catch a glimpse of the evil that never materialized.

Such a sight of the imaginary horrors of the past is provided by the absorption by Abdel Karim Masseem of Iraq of a fatal dose of lead. There is no question but that Kassem's sudden demise was the work of friends of President Nasser of the dismembered United Arab Republic. Having wooed, wed and lost Syria, General Nasser is seeking new mistresses for his bare harem and has, for some time past, been making overtures to any who will listen amongst the countries of the Middle East. Kassem was one of those who would not listen, so Kassem is no more.

There was a time, not so many years ago, when the prospect of the spread of Nasser's influence to oil-rich Iraq would have brought screams of anguish from the British Foreign Office. Now, however, though nobody in the well-behaved chancelleries of the civilized West would ever be caught standing up and applauding assassination, the prospect of Nasser's friends supplanting Kassem is not a wholly unpleasing one. Kassem did not start out as a communist—he convinced, like so many another eventual thorn in the flesh of the mighty, as a nationalist, pure and simple. But the pure and the simple have a hard life in the Middle East and soon Kassem found he needed friends. There was a day when he might have turned to Britain or to France, but that was before a little excursion into Suez made them arathema throughout the Arab lands. He did not want to be swallowed up by Nasser, another nationalist who had grown great and thereby acquired ambitions too large for the borders of his native Egypt. So there was left only one other source of power in Middle East politics —the communists. No communist himself, he became their debtor. There was always the chance that the creditor might foreclose, demanding full power over Iraq as payment. So, when Nasser's followers cancelled the account by killing Kassem, the chancelleries of the West breathed easier. The debt died with the debtor.

Nasser himself, who once looked like a potential menace of no mean proportions, now emerges as a "good guy." Our past fears have been proven groundless. Ironically enough, our fears helped to generate their own disproof-ation. He himself is a debtor to the Reds but has been spared a visit by the bill-collector because of our wary distrust of such an eventuality. By opposing him, the West has built him into an independent force, which now rescues it from a dilemma in Iraq. But he is a friend of the type which must have provided the original inspiration for the saying: "With friends like him, who needs enemies?" His next move towards his goal of an all-embracing pan-Arab state may cause more tears than cheers in the West.

Taxes Must Be Raised

The Canadian Tax Foundation says that the federal government's deficit for the fiscal year commencing March 31 next will be at least $600,000,000, perhaps as high as $900,000,000.

This is approximately twice the entire budget a quarter of a century ago.

Something ought to be done about that.

Expenditures ought to be slashed. That is self-evident. But reducing expenditures by $600,000,000 is not going to be simple, unless the slash is made in defence expenditures, which many Canadians regard as essential.

The plain truth of the matter is that, unless we want to deprive ourselves of many of the services we now enjoy, we Canadians are going to have to pay more in taxes.

Where the party which will frankly state, during the coming election campaign that taxes should be increased?

The increase need not be back-breaking. There are almost 20,000,000 Canadians. An increase of $40 per capita would do the trick nicely.

Are we so poor that we cannot afford less than a dollar a head per week to save our country from bankruptcy?

Unconventional Happenings

Montreal Gazette.

They stood around the grave, but no one knew what to do. No prayer book or Bible was to be found in that remote spot in the Australian "out back," where some 80 men were working for alluvial gold in a gully. A well-liked prospector had fallen suddenly ill and died. Every man in the camp had gathered at his burial. But after they had laid him in his grave, they were at a loss for a befitting ceremonial.

What happened is told by Sir John Kirwin, President of the Legislative Council of Western Australia, who has known the life of the "out back" in his younger years. "It was felt something should be done," he wrote, "but no one knew exactly what to do until one old digger stretched out each hand and taking hands the mourners solemnly and reverently, with their hats off, said, 'For He Was A Jolly Good Fellow'."

No thought of a grandeur could be less conventional. Yet it many have been laid in their graves with a more appropriate, spontaneous or sincere. For it often happens that what is done without any forethought or aesthetics, but as a sudden contrivance, has a freshness and reality that tradition may rarely give.

* * *

The American actor Edwin Booth had no hesitation in saying which performance he regarded as the greatest in his life. And for that performance all the traditional equipment of the stage was unexpectedly had to be omitted—even within withheld from him. Everything, the least time.

Edwin Booth had been billed to play Hamlet in a town not far from New York. He and his company arrived by special train. But when they went to the station for their baggage, none could be found.

The theatre filled; the audience grew restless and noisy. At last Booth appeared and the manager to go out and give an explanation. He was to say that anyone who wished to leave the theatre could do so, and he would get his money back. But Booth, who had first preferred to remain, Mr. Booth and company would do their best to give a performance to play, without benefit of props or costumes.

Most of the audience remained to see what would happen. Booth went on, speaking of one of his nights Hamlet: "I felt the whole thing could so easily become ridiculous. But I was on my mettle, and my cutaway tweed jacket and cane for a sword kept me up to the mark. It was a horrible strain; every movement was new; there was no cloak, no chair, nothing—"

Yet looking back upon that night Booth realized that just because everything was new, and all the habitual forms were absent, he had acted with a freshness and zest that he had never known before. "I never acted so in my life," he would say. "It was the theatrical triumph of my life I am sure of that."

* * *

This sudden need to make the best of things, to adapt to the unforeseen and even the uncomfortable, may be full of inconvenience, but it brings its own satisfactions. Even amidst discomforts, the naturalness of life is recaptured and the long dullness of routine is banished.

In his journals, Thoreau wrote in his journals of the new happiness he found in shelter, when it could be made only by his own devising. On July 6, 1845, while exploring the north fork of the Kansas River, he wrote in his journal of the way the camp was set for the night.

He would tie the rifles together near the muzzles, with the butts resting on the ground (though he took the precaution of laying a knife on the rope, that they might be cut away in case of an alarm). These rifles made a sort of frame. Over it he threw a large India rubber cloth, used to cover the packs while traveling.

It was a rather wretched shelter. Yet it was the delight. He wrote of it with admiration: "This made a tent sufficiently large to receive about half my bed, and was a place to shelter my instruments; and as I was careful always to put this part against the wind, I could lie here with a sensation of satisfied enjoyment, and hear the wind blow and the rain patter close to my head and know that I should be at least half dry. Certainly, I never slept more soundly."

The pleasure of what is novel certainly has little relation to its comfort. The newness is all; and it must be something that the person enjoys because it becomes a response that owes little or nothing to habit.

In the year when Dr. William Temple was at Oxford, long before he was appointed Archbishop of Canterbury, he used to escape to 'read by going to the root of his college. Always a stout figure, he would squeeze himself through a skylight on the 'leads' overlooking the chimneypots, he would sit with his book in his head tied in a knotted handkerchief to keep the soot out of his hair.

It is a spot hard to reach, and far from comfortable. But there he could view earth and sky with new perspectives, or read his book in the chimney-shadows. It was a different little world, incongruous and awkward. But he had found it for himself and it had a freedom and refreshment that the orderly and organized world from which he had escaped could not offer.

Priests Aid Unbelievers

Montreal Star

Four Quebec priests whose sympathies for civil and military effects on Quebec's political and social morals now advocate legal measures that would permit civil marriage in this province and allow non-believers to be competent witnesses in the civil courts as they are in the criminal. It is an inspiring act of civil bravery, based as it is on the ecumenical spirit to which they appeal, and of high moral professing social reality in Quebec.

Abbes Dion, O'Neil, Duval and Hamelin are not the first to raise the issue of competence of non-believers as witnesses in civil action. Judges and lawyers have already raised it and the commission studying revision of the Code of Civil Procedure a year ago urged on the government general a change that would permit non-believers to make an affirmation in the civil courts as they now do in criminal cases. Nothing had been done about it and the Quebec clergies take the view that further delays may create "an unhealthy and painful situation and threaten unnecessary irritation."

The difficulty about the oath of non-believers stems from a difference between English and Quebec law. The Canada Evidence Act under which oaths are administered in criminal cases is a federal statute; the Code of Civil Procedure applies in civil and criminal cases. The offending paragraph in the latter is this:

"Before the witness is admitted to be sworn, he may be examined by either of the parties as to his religious belief, and he cannot take the oath or the affirmation, or give evidence, if he does not believe in God, and in a state of rewards and punishments after death."

The provision is rarely involved. Lawyers rarely ask witnesses about their religious beliefs. But they can be asked and, if by reason of nonbelief they are found to be witnesses, injustice may be worked. Hence the Quebec clergies make the further trenchant point that denial of the right to affirm is "contrary to" with that freedom of conscience which is everyone's natural right.

Marriage in Quebec is both a civil and religious rite. For religious marriages civil action may perform a marriage ceremony, their right to do so derives from the civil authority. Yet there are many people who would prefer a civil ceremony. The Quebec clerics think this a legitimate claim in a pluralistic society, and they express respect for freedom of conscience and recognition of the separation of church and state.

Worthwhile Work

Ottawa Citizen

"World Day for Lepers," is a reminder that the ancient disease of leprosy, though curable, still afflicts over 10 million people. But medical attention and human sympathy and interest have wrought wonders. Since 1954, more than 15 million sufferers have been cured. A number of organizations, such as the "Ordre de la Charite" in Paris, devote themselves to the work of helping lepers. They deserve the world's gratitude and assistance.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 15th, 1943.

Belleville Chapter, No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, celebrated its 24th birthday in filling manner, in the Oddfellows' Hall on Front Street. Mrs. Florence Eastman, Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario was the honored guest. Mrs. Ruby Fleming of Trenton, Grand Trustee, and Mrs. Kinnear, District Deputy Grant Matron, for Prince Edward District were also present. Coupled with the anniversary is also the honoring of the Charter Members; six of the original eighty who founded this very enterprising chapter in this city, being present. The hall was prettily decorated with flags of the Allied Nations being very conspicuous.

It was reported by hospital authorities this morning that beds at the Belleville General Hospital were never at a higher premium than at the present time with surgical cases and cold victims occupying every available bed in the institution. It was also revealed that Mountain View Air Station-hospital is also practically full and is going to take care of the influx of patients from the station personnel, when station officials contacted Belleville hospital authorities enquiring how many beds were available.

Mount Pleasant hockey team defeated the Bonarlaw team on Thursday evening by a score of 4 to 2. Bethel team also defeated Glen Ross.

Belleville Doherty's hockey team, managed by Elwood Dudley of the Cities Service, and coached by Les Shiels, defeated Campbellford in that town by a score of 5 to 1, and captured the round by a score of 7 to 4. They fully deserved their victory and in the two games they were the better team. Each member of the team gave his best, and if a star was to be named it would be Les Tice. Up front Fred McDonald, McMeeken and Pete Morgan were the best, but that is not saying that the others were not of the picture. Harry Morgan and Gord McKeekin were the sharpshooters for the two goals scored, but 'Pete' Morgan and Harry Nicoll gave the passes which caused the red light to flash. Both of the passes were beautifully executed. Ken Davis never played a better game and he worked hard throughout the game, but the cards were stacked against him. The referee was Frank McCurry of Toronto. The team is coached by Jack Lynch, president Eastern Ontario in the Intermediate O.H.A. playdowns.
